HUNS VIRTUALLY CUT OFF IN HOLLAND

PREFERS GUM TO "OOMPAHS"—Like a dachshund eyeing a piece of liver, this wooden-shod French lad looks longingly at the stick of gum held by Sergt. John J. Latwas, a tuba player with the U.S. army band that made its first appearance on the European continent in a concert at historic Verdun. The little lad was more intrigued by the gum than by the tuba music. P.S.: He got the gum.

Japanese Lose 58 Ships U.S. Planes Bombard Manila

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 30—(AP).—The victorious United States Navy has launched new aerial attacks against Manila, Tokyo reported today, after sinking or damaging 58 Japanese warships in one of history's greatest naval triumphs. The 3rd and 7th Fleets and an Australian squadron sank 24 Japanese craft, including four aircraft carriers and two battleships, in last week's naval action off the Philippines, Admiral Nimitz announced last night.

Thirteen more Japanese craft, including a battleship, were damaged so badly they may have sunk, and 21 other craft, including six battleships, were damaged.

The total—at least 500,000 tons—exceeds what Japan lost in all the four preceding major Pacific war sea battles combined.

American forces spent six warships for a victory by which, Nimitz said, "The Japanese fleet has been decisively defeated and routed," in addition, the 10,000-ton Australian cruiser, Australia, was damaged.

Japs Report Raid.

(Tokyo radio today reported, without Allied confirmation, that 200 U.S. carrier planes staged three raids on Manila and Clark airfield Saturday—just three days after heavy fighting in the naval battle ended. Japanese aircraft, said another Tokyo broadcast, Sunday began attacking an American task force, including four aircraft carriers, in Lamon Bay, on the east coast of Luzon, opposite Manila.)

Nimitz's communique said "amplifying reports, although still subject to revision as more information is received, indicate an overwhelming victory. The second battle of the Philippine Sea ranks as one of the major sea battles of the World War II in the Pacific."

Three related actions, thus classified as the second battle of the Philippine Sea, were fought south of Formosa, off the east coast of Samar and in Surigao Strait off southeastern Leyte, Oct. 23, 24 and 25. Aircraft and submarines scored more successes in hunting down survivors the next two days.

Possibly only two Japanese ships escaped undamaged from the debacle. No modern nation has had its fleet destroyed in one engagement.

Lost 171 Planes

Japan has lost a total of 40 warships sunk or damaged, including 10 carriers and five battleships, in these previous Pacific engagements—Coral Sea, May 18, 1942; Midway, June 6, 1942; Guadalcanal, Nov. 15, 1942, and first battle of the Philippine Sea, June 19, 1944.

The Japanese loss in the second sea battle, between Oct. 22 and 27:

Sunk—Four carriers, two battleships, six heavy cruisers, three light cruisers, three small cruisers or large destroyers, six destroyers.

Probably Sunk—One battleship, three heavy cruisers, two light cruisers, seven destroyers.

Damaged—Six battleships, four heavy cruisers, one light cruiser, 10 destroyers.

The Japanese lost at least 171 aircraft while Americans losses were 10 planes in the battle south of Formosa. Nimitz said air losses in other engagements, not completely reported, were "light."

China Situation Explosive Lack Of Co-operation Seen

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—(AP)—China has been plunged headlong into a new military and political crisis by the recall of Gen. Stilwell to Washington, and information reaching here indicates that decisions which must be made in Chungking in the next three to four weeks may well determine the fate of the Chinese war effort from now on.

Among American officials there is hope, but little real confidence, that Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek will be able to put his military and political affairs in order without further delay.

High strategy of the war against Japan hangs on the outcome. But this crisis has been months in the making, with a virtual breakdown in China always possible.

Evidence of the despair now overtaking this effort was seen in a dispatch from New Delhi, India, by Associated Press Correspondent Preston Grover. Writing through Allied censorship, Grover reported last night that Stilwell's withdrawal appears "to have pulled the props from under American activity in this area."

Grover pointed out that it had been Stilwell's dual task to obtain for China a maximum amount of supplies from the outside and to get the Chinese to use them in the most effective manner.

The situation within China will come to a head in mid-November when the central executive committee of the Kuomintang is scheduled to meet. As controlling agent of China's one party, the committee is the most powerful political organ in the country.

The three great problems which in the authorities here, confront President Chiang and the central executive committee are these:

1. Reorganization of the army at the top, for immediate improvement in the conduct of the war.

2. Establishment of relations between Chiang and the Communist elements in North China. This would help current fighting in South China little but would be an enormous gain for the future in which Russia may enter the fight against Japan.

3. Broadening the base of the government under Chiang to give it closer contacts with the people, regarded here as a critical need.

Reds Block Hungary Escape Route

Russians Capture Town Of Csap Gaining 50 Miles

LONDON, Oct. 30—(CP).—The last rail escape route for Germans in northeastern Hungary was blocked by the Russians today with capture of Csap (Cop) on the Upper Tisza River, while to the north Berlin reported further gains in the liquidation of an estimated 100,000 Germans pinned against the Baltic Sea.

Csap, junction of four rail lines at the southwestern edge of liberated Ruthenia, was occupied yesterday by troops of Gen. Ivan Petrov's 4th Ukraine army which fought their way 50 miles across mountainous eastern Czechoslovakia, Moscow announced.

A midnight bulletin said the Russians seized the town after a day of wild street-fighting during which hundreds of Germans were killed.

A Berlin announcement said Soviet troops attacking in western Latvia had penetrated to the Priekule area 20 miles southeast of the Baltic port of Leipaja, and had captured Auce, communications centre 70 miles east of Leipaja.

The Moscow communique, one of the briefest in weeks, did not confirm Berlin reports on the Latvia offensive, nor did it mention the East Prussian front, where heavy fighting has been raging along the Kaunas-Konigsberg highway.

(Berlin said Soviet attacks against thick German defences southwest of Ebenrode and south of Gumbinnen, important highway points, were growing weaker).

Resistance Stiff

The Moscow communique asserted that fighting only of local importance occurred along most of the vast battlefields scattered from the Arctic to the Balkans.

Meanwhile, it appeared Petrov's forces and those of the 2nd Ukraine Army of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky were strenuously attempting to maintain the momentum of their attacks in northeastern Hungary. They were encountering stubborn enemy resistance, which at least temporarily checked hopes of an early occupation of Budapest and kept a Slovak Patriot resistance force isolated from land support in the mountains about 100 miles north of the Magyar capital.

In Yugoslavia, a broadcast quoting Marshal Tito, Partisan leader, indicated the Yugoslav forces intended to cross into Hungary and southern Austria in the co-ordinated offensive alongside the Russians.

Yanks Serve In Canadian Army

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1st CANADIAN ARMY, Holland, Oct. 30—(CP Cable)—For the first time in Canadian Army history American troops are fighting under over-all Canadian command.

The Americans came into the line several days ago and have been fighting on the southwest Holland sector between Bergen Op Zoom and Breda, where the Canadian Army is making a great surge northward the lower Rhine.

The Americans already have captured several villages in their advance.

The 1st Canadian Army now is the most international army of this war. Fighting with it are Canadian, British, American, Polish and Czecho-Slovak troops and previously Netherlands and Belgian brigades fought under Lt.-Gen. Crerar.

Czech troops of the 1st Canadian Army celebrated their national holiday Saturday—their Independence Day commemorating the establishment of the independent Czech republic by Thomas Masaryk in 1919.

The Czechs really celebrated. They attacked on their particular sector of the front, stormed into German positions and collared 340 prisoners. It was their best Independence Day for years.

Mosquitos Hit Cologne City Tirpitz Raided

LONDON, Oct. 30 (CP)—The battered German city of Cologne was attacked by R.A.F. planes for the third time within 36 hours when Mosquitos hammered it in a moonlight raid last night.

The latest blow at the great industrial city on the Rhine climaxed a week-end of spectacular raids on Germany by at least 3,500 Allied planes and there were indications the record-breaking assault was continuing in full swing today.

Speedy Mosquitos also struck at Cologne Saturday night in the wake of a 4,000-ton blow by 1,000 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers in daylight, Saturday.

The air ministry announced Sunday that R.A.F. Lancasters made a 2,400-mile round-trip flight to strike the crippled German battleship Tirpitz west of Tromsoe with another six-ton earthquake bomb and also pounded German U-boat pens at Bergen on Norway's west coast.

(A BBC report said Allied planes sank a German transport and 10 other ships in a north Norwegian fjord.)

The speedy Mosquitos also roamed far over Germany shooting up trains and road targets. Sweeping the areas from Peenemunde to Dresden and Stuttgart to Frankfurt, they knocked out at least 14 trains and left several others burning.

From more than a dozen operations by British, American and Canadian planes during the week-end, beginning with a double attack on Berlin, fewer than 15 bombers and fighters are missing.

Here is the box score:

Cologne, one of the next major cities in front of the U.S. 1st Army on the road to Berlin—hit five times, once by nearly 1,000 British and Canadian heavies that gave the city its worst pasting of the war.

German battleship Tirpitz—hit by at least one 12,000-pound bomb as it was caught trying to sneak from Norway to Kiel.

Million And Half Filipinos Freed On Samar And Leyte

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Associated Press War Correspondent

MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS Philippines, Oct. 30—(AP)—Ten days after he waded ashore, Gen. MacArthur today controlled two-thirds of strategic Leyte Island and had a stranglehold on adjacent Samar as retreating Japanese units took to the hills or sought to escape by barge through waters patrolled by American P.T. boats. MacArthur said the liberation of 1,500,000 Filipinos on the two Central Philippine islands was virtually completed.

MacArthur announced in his Monday communique that his men controlled 1,800 square miles on Leyte and Samar were isolated and helpless.

They can be "destroyed at will," he said.

(An unconfirmed Tokyo broadcast hear in Melbourne said 40 American transports convoyed by cruisers and destroyers were sighted yesterday heading for Leyte, and added "The battle for the Philippines is about to begin in earnest.")

American troops, by seizing Carigara town on Carigara Bay, have eliminated the enemy's only effective point of reinforcement for the Leyte Valley, which has been bottled up with guerilla aid.

All organized resistance in the valley appeared to have ceased after last-ditch stands last night at Cavite Bridge and the Dagami Road junction were crushed by American tanks, artillery and bayonets.

Most of Gen. Shiro Makino's 16th division—the once-arrogant perpetrators of the infamous death march on Bataan—were scattering into the hills.

Sink Troop Barges

Motor patrol-torpedo boats patrolling Ormoc Bay on the west coast of Leyte attacked barges which the Japanese were believed using in attempts to withdraw from that side of the island.

A considerable enemy stronghold remained on the western side, and it is likely that Japanese troops fleeing the east-central zone before MacArthur's men might try to escape by way of Ormoc. P.T. boat commanders reported sinking barges loaded with enemy troops.

The American held 212 unbroken miles of coastline from Panaon Island, off the southeast coast, around to Carigara on the north coast. MacArthur announced that "enemy garrison and outposts in the coastal sectors have been liquidated" in fresh advances.

Fighter pilots operating off Leyte airstrips shot down 18 planes yesterday.

Daring Fliers Wreck Jail Free Many Doomed Patriots

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN THE R.A.F., Oct. 30—(CP Cable)—Three Canadian airmen, now it can be told, had a hand in one of the most amazing jail breaks in history. It saved at least 100 Frenchmen, held by the Germans in Occupied France, from almost certain death. For security reasons, I am unable to give the names of the Canadians.

Three Mosquito bomber squadrons—an Australian, a New Zealand and an R.A.F. squadron—carried out the daring exploit. Group Capt. P. C. Pickard, D.S.O. and two bars, D.F.C., who figured so largely in "F for Freddie" in the motion picture "Target for Tonight," was lost on the operation along with his navigator, Flt. Lt. J. A. Broadley, D.S.O., D.F.C., D.F.M.

Briefing instructions for the operation said: "Mosquitos are to attack the prison at Amiens in an attempt to assist more than 100 prisoners to escape. These prisoners are Allied Patriots condemned to death."

At Low Level

Some of these Frenchmen had been condemned to death for assisting Allied airmen to escape after being brought down in France.

In the first flight was a Canadian warrant officer navigator, who said: "Dropping to low level, we came in and dropped our bombs and hopped over the prison wall at a height of 18 feet. Of course we could not see the results, for we were well away when they went off."

Another Canadian warrant officer flew in the New Zealand squadron in the second flight. He said: "We cleared the northern wall by 20 feet and reconnaissance showed afterwards we had made a fine breach."

Flying over the prison during the attack was a Mosquito of the R.A.F. film unit. Its crew saw breaches in the wall and the ends of the buildings broken and prisoners running out through the breaches, and Germans lying on the ground. Two Mosquitos were lost, and two of the Typhoon fighter escort.

Canadians Attack Last Island Guarding Antwerp

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Corrrespondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY, Oct. 30 (CP-Cable)—Sweeping across South Beveland Island Canadian troops today were within 3,000 yards of the narrow causeway linking South Beveland with Walcheren—the last Dutch island which has to be cleared of Germans before the Schelde can be opened for Allied shipping to Antwerp.

South Beveland Island is rapidly being overrun and south of the Schelde Estuary other Canadian formations have accupied Cadzand after the Germans left it hastily to fall back westward to Knocke and Heyst on the North Sea coast. Cadzand, one mile inland and seven miles southwest of Breskens, was the site of enemy batteries which cover the entrance to the Schelde.

The town of Retranchement, two miles south of Cadzand, also was captured.

On the Canadian Army front south of the Lower Rhine, Polish troops have cleared Breda and advanced northward. Leading tanks are five to six miles from the Moerdike bridges over the Lower Rhine—the only bridge across the 1½-mile stretch of water on this sector.

Between Bergen Op Zoom and Roosendaal, Canadian and British troops were fighting a heavy battle against a German force which includes paratroopers.

Advance Through Water

However, the general withdrawal is being made by the Germans along the Lower Rhine front and it appears they may attempt to make a further stand along the line of the River Mark which parallels the Lower Rhine about four miles south of it.

Progress on South Beveland was the most spectacular development of the last 12 hours. Forward troops got into the town of Goes and then strong infantry forces came up fast to clear the town completely. They pushed rapidly ahead from Goes along the dike roadways toward the Walcheren causeway.

South of Goes, more infantry fought across Beveland's flooded fields to capture the town of Heinkenszand, four miles southeast of the causeway, and advanced beyond.

British troops on Beveland were striking out from their beachhead, but opposition from the German 17th Division on their sector was more severe than that confronting Canadian troops farther north.

Walcheren Island was heavily attacked by the R.A.F. Most of the is-

Practically Over

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Paris, Oct. 30.—(CP-Reuter.) — Organized resistance in the German pocket south of the Schelde estuary has practically ceased.

In Beveland, troops form the Goes area have smashed seven miles westward to the end of the half-mile causeway leading to Walcheren Island against only light opposition.

The sudden advance presently is not being exploited. The seaborne group is pressing steadily westwards. It is considered that not much operations territory is left to the enemy on Walcheren, due to flooding.

Take 8,000 Prisoners South Of Maas Believe End Near

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Oct. 30—(AP).—The German stand in the southwestern Lowlands had been cut into four dwindling pockets today and German forces south of the Maas River were disintegrating under a concentrated air attack and the drive of British and Canadian armies racing to the Moerdijk escape bridge only six miles away.

The four pockets were south of the Maas where the chief resistance centre of Breda had been taken; on Beveland Island, on flooded Walcheren Island, virtually cut off by a Canadian drive to within 3,000 yards of the causeway connecting with Beveland, and a tiny six-mile-long, four-mile-wide corner of Belgium on the North Sea southwest of the Schelde.

North of Tilburg a British column struck out from Loon Op Zand and seized the village of Kaatsheuvel, only three miles south of the Maas, and drove to within two miles of Waspik to the northwest, only three miles from the Geertruidenberg span across the Maas.

The drive across flooded lowlands, laced by canals and dikes, in the campaign to clear the Schelde approaches to the Allied harbor of Antwerp, was gaining momentum and approaching a conclusion after some of the most difficult fighting of the war.

To the east a four-day German counterthrust by two armed division, supported by tanks, planes and much artillery, had gained headway, but it was too late to be of great aid to the remnants of 40,000 German troops being pushed against the Maas.

This thrust, from between Venlo and Roermond against the British 2nd Army's east Holland front, had swept through American-held Meijel and Liesel, progressed some 4,000 yards from Meijel toward Asten, and reached the vicinity of Nederweert, only two miles from Weert.

It apparently had gained a few miles and reached to within 15 miles of Eindhoven, but field dispatches said the German drive was being contained, and 15 of the enemy's 50 tanks were knocked out yesterday.

Make Last Stand.

Tank-led Allied troops, now including Americans under 1st Canadian Army command, were crashing through thin German rearguards and retreating columns toward the Moerdijk bridge, only crossing of the 1½-mile wide Maas in the central

Nazi Children Fierce Fighters

TORONTO, Oct. 30—(CP)—The problem of re-educating Nazi youth was discussed by Canadian Broadcasting Corporation War Correspondent Peter Stursberg in a talk from London. Stursberg said that Canadian soldiers returning from the Western front told him that 15 and 16-year-old German boys fighting with the S.S. troops were the most ferocious and savage soldiers they had ever encountered.

The London Press is still discussing "these 'Dead End' kids," Stursberg said. The Allies have decided to drop military proceedings against the schoolboys—the oldest of whom was 14 and the youngest eight-years-old—who fired on American troops. Authorities have decided to hold their parents responsible instead.

Quoting an article written by a British officer, Maj. R. Crisp, D.S.O., M.C., in the Daily Express, Stursberg said the major had just returned from action, and related that the German boys showed no fear.

"They would stand up and fire a rifle at a tank, and if they had no rifle, they would throw a stone...." Maj. Crisp wrote.

Mud Bogs Down British In North Italy

ROME, Oct. 30—(AP).—British and American troops of the Allied 5th Army have made new gains in the mountains southeast of Bologna, Allied headquarters announced today.

Today's Allied communique said weather in Italy had improved sufficiently to permit "very active" patrol action, but did not specifically report any Allied gains or losses.

Flying 700 sorties, the M.A.A.F. attacked gun positions, bridges, enemy shipping, troop and traffic concentrations and targets in south Germany. Seven aircraft were lost.

Swift-running streams and wide areas flooded by recent rains kept the opposing armies still bogged down in the mud.

The hamlets of Bosco and Serra were occupied.

British troops pushed up Highway 67 leading to Forli, 37 miles southeast of Bologna, maintaining contact with German forces withdrawing in order to avoid being isolated.

In the Adriatic sector mud kept British 8th Army troops mired down, but patrols were active in the flooded country beyond the Bevano River, about seven miles southeast of Ravenna.

The Germans were still holding out on high ground north of Predappio, the town south of Forli that includes the hamlet of Verano Do Cost, birthplace of Benito Mussolini.

Polish troops who took the town were handicapped because the only road to it was impassable for vehicles. All military supplies were being transported across the Rabbi River on the shoulders of the troops.

BULLETIN

STOCKHOLM — The Germans expect an Allied invasion of northern Norway on Wednesday, German deserters told the frontier correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper "Aftonbladet" today.

LONDON—Allied columns paced by tanks and planes raced for the German escape bridges and ferries across the broad Maas and Hollandsch Diep in Holland only five to 12 miles away today, and Berlin radio asserted that a major withdrawal across that barrier to Rotterdam was in full swing.

British Sub Returns With 33 Prisoners

LONDON, Oct. 30 (CP)—The British submarine Truculent returned from Far Eastern patrol recently carrying 91 persons, 33 more than her maximum complement. The passengers were Japanese prisoners captured when the Truculent attacked a convoy of four supply ships and two submarine chasers.

The Truculent scored two torpedo hits on the largest vessel, then dived—and hit the bottom at 56 feet. Eight depth charges dropped dangerously close to her, but she escaped with her prisoners.

Race For U.S. Presidency May Be Closest In History

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—(CP).—The hunt for votes in the red-hot United States presidential campaign narrows down this week before election to the northeastern states, where voters are thickest.

President Roosevelt, who returned to Washington Sunday after a seven-state swing through the mid-west, is expected to speak in Boston Saturday night. On the same night, his Republican opponent, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, will speak in New York's Madison Square Garden. Mr. Dewey will precede the President to Boston, appearing there Wednesday.

Thus the race, which all observers agree may be one of the closest in American history, nears the finish line with both candidates campaigning strenuously, aiming at the populous eastern states with the greatest electoral vote. The running mates of both men, John W. Bricker for the Republicans and Senator Harry S. Truman for the Democrats, also centred their last moment attention on the east, each with a number of speeches scheduled this week.

While foreign affairs kept to the forefront in the campaign last week, as has been the case throughout, both presidential candidates toward week's end bore down heavily on post-war prospects for farmers and businessmen. Mr. Dewey promised firm support for farm prices and Mr. Roosevelt talked of plans to stimulate industry.

In Soldier's Field at Chicago Saturday night, before a crowd estimated at 110,000 with 150,000 unable to gain admission, the largest "gate" of the campaign so far, Mr. Roosevelt laid out a 60,000,000-job program for post-war prosperity in a country freed of wartime controls and dedicated to private enterprise. Earlier in the day, at Syracuse, N.Y., Mr. Dewey declared "three square meals a day" for every American would solve the post-war farm problem.

Greek Battles Gain In Fury As Huns Retreat

ROME, Oct. 30 — (AP).—British troops have captured Kozane, 58 miles south-west of Salonika, after the first sharp battle with retreating Germans in Northern Greece, Allied Headquarters announced today.

The Allied communique said casualties were inflicted on the enemy in a spirited fight west of the town, 40 miles from the Yugoslav border, on one of main escape routes for the Germans.

British units entered the town at 2:45 p.m. yesterday, and were given an enthusiastic welcome by the populace, the communique added.

Advance British patrols maintained contact with the Germans as they fled northward.

Night-fighting Beaufighters of the R.A.F. reported seeking two large explosions and fires in the dock area of Salonika. The Germans were previously reported demolishing the port facilities preparatory to withdrawal from the city.

Meanwhile Spitfires attacking rail traffic in the Salonika area destroyed seven locomotives and 10 cars and damaged 11 more locomotives, the war bulletin said

The German retreat through Northern Greece was under constant harassment from Greek Patriot forces, who yesterday captured the coastal town of Platamon in the Mount Olympus area, where more than three years ago valiant British rearguards checked for four days a conquering Nazi army sweeping toward Athens.

Patriot Headquarters said Platamon was yielded by the enemy after seven hours of fighting. Greek guerillas were reported to have blown up two railway trains heading north toward Salonika and there were official reports the Patriots were battling in the streets of Salonika.

The German radio said Allied troops under cover of guns of British warships and planes had landed on the Greek island of Melos, 70 miles north of Crete, and that the garrison there was engaged in bitter fighting.

sector. Strafing planes ripped the openly-fleeing enemy.

A British army spokesman said the fall of Breda had brought about the "disintegration" of the enemy south of the water barrier, the first of several major water barriers lying between the Allies and Rotterdam, 20 miles to the north. Already a bag of 8,000 prisoners had been taken south of the river and it was expected to grow to 20,000.

The Americans had plunged two miles beyond the Breda-Roosendaal road to Moerstraten, six miles from the Maas.

The Germans were putting up a determined battle only around Roosendaal, at the western end of the 40-mile front, and here paratroopers still held determined Canadian and British soldiers out of the town.

The enemy was believed making this stand in an effort to prepare a defence along the small Mark River, 8½ miles north of Roosendaal and four miles south of the Hollandsch Diep, the joint mouth of the Maas and Waal.

With Breda seized by Polish troops of the 1st Canadian Army, only Roosendaal remained to the Germans of the five strongly-held cities which had pegged their defence line. Allied troops pushed approximately 40,000 retreating Germans back against the complex network of waterways south of Rotterdam.

To the south in France, Allied ground troops made slight gains in the Luneville sector, taking the village of Fraipertuis and holding it against determined counter-attacks. Enemy counter-thrusts against Allied positions in the Voges Mountains were beaten off.

Three major water barriers and innumerable smaller streams and canals lie between the Germans and Rotterdam. Fighter-bombers have begun to hammer enemy columns massed at bridges and ferry crossings.

From dispatches said the next three days should see the end of the Germans' stand in the lower coastal corner of Holland. An Allied staff officers said the Germans were losing about 1,000 men a day in prisoners alone.

Loan Slackened At End Of Week

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.—(CP).—Canada's Seventh Victory Loan today moved into the second week of a three-week campaign with $872,000,000 still to be subscribed before the minimum objective of $1,300,000,000 can be reached.

National headquarters announced last night that $69,470,950 was subscribed Saturday to bring total subscription to $428,884,250, compared to $419,332,550 in the sixth loan.

Individual Canadians, who have so far purchased $197,667,600 in this loan, are still $446,000,000 below the $643,000,000 which they purchased in the sixth loan which had a minimum objective of $100,000,000 less.

On Saturday individual purchasers contributed $37,608,350 towards the sales. Headquarters reported that an analysis of the first week's sales showed that the first three days of this drive were ahead of the first three days of the last campaign. But the following three days showed diminishing returns.

Convert Bonds

Today, K. A. Anderson, executive chairman of the National War Finance Committee, urged Canadians holding Dominion of Canada bonds callable October 15, 1944, to convert these bonds into Victory Loan bonds. In making his appeal, Mr. Henderson announced that conversion of these bonds for the first week totalled $100,989,400, of which $17,678,800 were conversions by individuals. He said there are still some $87,000,000 of these bonds to be converted of which $65,000,000 are estimated to be in the hands of individuals.

"These conversions are not included in the announced total of $428,884,250 because they do not mean additional money being made available for the war effort," said Mr. Henderson. "We have been receiving reports during the first week of the campaign which indicate there is a belief on the part of some that conversion of their maturing bonds is sufficient. The exchange of these maturing bonds for the new seventh loan is very important, but it is essential that additional bonds be purchased by these holders out of their current income and savings."

New Burma Drive Gains 57 Miles

KANDY, Ceylon, Oct. 30 (CP-Reuter) — Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's forces have opened a new drive in Northern Burma.

Chinese troops under his command have advanced 57 miles south along the Myitkyina-Bhamo road into Japanese-held territory, it was announced at Southeast Asia Command headquarters today.

Simultaneously, troops of the British 36th Division have moved southwest along the Mogaung-Mandalay road and have advanced 36 miles to a point 30 miles north of the town of Katha and the Irawaddy river. Katha is 150 miles north of Mandalay.

The drive in Northern Burma, disclosed for the first time today, has been in progress for a fortnight, it was announced.

De Gaulle Order Brings Crisis

By JOSEPH DYNAN

PARIS, Oct. 30.—(AP).— Predictions of nation-wide demonstrations accented to-day an incipient crisis precipitated by the De Gaulle government's action in forbidding everyone except the regular army and police to bear arms.

The order, apparently directed at Communist Partisan elements who have defied the government's authority, particularly in southern France, met instant opposition from the influential National Resistance Council, brains of the French underground during the German occupation.

The council declared that the Patriotic Milice (militia)—an anti-Vichy guerilla organization largely communistic—should be given legal status, and questioned the government's right to decide the future of the militia without consulting the council.

At a conference with a delegation from the council Gen. de Gaulle said the government would insist that the decree be respected.

While friends of the National Resistance Council predicted manifestations throughout France against the government's order, Gen. De Gaulle drew the council's attention to the "importance and urgency of the rapid settlement of this problem in view of the necessity of maintaining law and order and in view of France's international position."

The government paid full tribute to "the fighting contributions by the militia during the liberation."

The decree offers the alternative of appearing for military training and eventual incorporation into the regular French Army.

The order presumably does not affect the French forces of the interior, which have been integrated—at least in theory—into the French Army.

Evangelistic Service Held By Business

The Peterborough Christian Business Men's committee had as their guest speaker at the Centre Theatre Sunday evening the well-known radio evangelist, C. Ernest Tatham, of Peterborough. A large audience were present to enjoy the singing of Stan Hunt of Toronto and to listen to the message of Mr. Tatham.

The speaker, in introducing his subject, referred to the members of the Christian Business Men's committee of Peterborough as men who had found out experimentally that the Gospel he had come to proclaim was true.

The speaker took as his text, John 1:29, "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world." These words were spoken by John the Baptist, a man of whom Jesus said, "of all the prophets born of woman there is not a greater than John the Baptist." This testimony coming from one who was thoroughly conversant with the story of all the Hebrew prophets that had lived before John the Baptist, gives weight to anything that might come from his life. The words of the text were spoken under dramatic circumstance. John the Baptist for months had been preaching the coming of a greater prophet than himself, and then one day he saw a stranger coming and immediately he knew that this man was the Christ the Son of God and without hesitation he cried, "Behold the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world."

The speaker divided this text into three words, Load, Lamb, Look. First the load of sin that the human soul is burdened with. "Every person in this theatre is plagued with the presence of sin in his or her life; it is universal; it has been the lot of everyone to carry this load of sin, ever since Adam disobeyed God in the Garden of Eden. Not only is sin a load on each individual, but it is the sin of nations that has brought about their destruction, and it is the sin of the whole world that to-day is responsible for the suffering and sorrow we find everywhere."

Next the speaker spoke of the Lamb of God, Christ Jesus, who was made a sin offering that men believing on Him should be saved, not only from the penalty of sin but from the power of sin. Finally he spoke of the method of salvation, in the words of the hymn, "There is Life for a Look at the Crucified One."

The speaker for next Sunday will be Rev. A. Earle Frid, of Toronto, editor of "World Conquest," the official publication of the world wide evangelization crusade. The soloist will be Mrs. Mary Baster, of Toronto, and the song leader will be Bernard Aldridge of Toronto, who was a welcome visitor at most of the services held last winter.

land is flooded but there are areas around Vlissingen (Flushing) and other towns which are above water and where strong gun positions are located.

The decimated remnant of the German 64th Division in the Scheide pocket now has retreated into an area six miles long and about four miles deep behind a narrow canal which loops around the perimeter, screening Knocke and Heyst.

With the fall of Cadzand, however, the south side of the Scheide has been cleared as far as any enemy guns are concerned which could fire with accuracy on the Scheide estuary.

Yesterday the 1st Canadian Army took 1,500 prisoners on its scattered sectors and 500 of them were picked up in the Scheide pocket.

BY A STRICT regulation of rules and codes, according to accepted tenets and methods of conventional ways of life, there may be some definite progress made through industry, application and persistent efforts against odds. Not only hard work but a sane, balanced and properly governed management of the impulses, emotions and temuper should eventually bear solid fruit. Property and finances may be stabilized, and opposition from influential sources may be deftly and astutely handled. Diplomacy and not strife should win.

Those whose birthday it is may experience a year in which final progress and pleasant relations are established by industry, organized plans and methods with patience and perseverance against opposition and adverse situations Sound judgment, some deep thinking and an amiable and compromising approach should be used to those antagonistic or indifferent. Rash indulgence in quarrels, impetuosity or want of emotional restraints may aggravate difficulties. Be calm, self-possessed sociable and there may be progress and personal joys.

A child born on this day may be serious and industrious but may give in to fits of temper or emotional outbursts defeating its best plans, especially if it also indulges its love of excess.

Russians Refuse To Attend Meet

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30.—(AP).—Russia hung a question mark over her western European diplomacy to-day just as affairs in the Balkans slid into a groove of collaboration oiled by Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill.

The newest upset in Washington, and probably London, calculations came over plans for the international aviation conference opening in Chicago Wednesday.

Moscow announced last night that Russia would not attend because "countries like Switzerland, Portugal and Spain, which for many years have conducted a pro-Fascist policy hostile to the Soviet Union—have also been invited."

It was learned here the declaration would not modify plans for the conference. American officials have talked with Soviet aviation experts and know their views and intend to keep them in mind as the conference develops.

Six Russian aviation officials who passed through Winnipeg during the week-end declined to disclose theier destination. When the Russians reached Edmonton by plane on Oct. 25 it was understood they were en route to Chicago for the conference.

Labor Favors More Income Tax Exemptions

By JACK WILLIAMS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Oct 30.—(CP).—The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada to-day went on record favoring income tax exemptions and extension of the franchise to all citizens 18 years and over.

Dealing with another resolution the annual convention of the Congress, now in its second week, indicated opposition to the taxation of public utilities.

It is expected the convention will conclude late to-day.

Other resolutions which received the support of the delegates asked for introduction of a 40-hour week immediately after the war with earnings maintained at the present level, a superannuation act for railway workers with a minimum of $50 a monthly payable at 60 years and inclusion of merchant seamen and overseas fire fighters in the war gratuities plan.

The convention asked the government to increase its expenditures on research and proposed the establishment of a research division in its own congress.

Ernest Ingles, London, Ont., resolution committee chairman, said Canada was far down the scale in giving encouragement to research. Per capita annual expenditure by Russia for this purpose was $2.40, for the United Kindom, $1.20, United States 80 cents and in Canada 20 cents.

The resolution on income tax asked exemption of $2,400 for married persons and $1,000 for single persons. Reduced exemptions in recent years had made it impossible for some workers to maintain a decent standard of living. Exemption of overtime pay from taxation was also proposed.

COBOURG, Oct. 30—(ENS)—Colborne village went over the top on Saturday in the Victory Loan campaign in Northumberland County. From the start of the campaign Colborne has been well ahead towards its objective of $75,000. On Saturday morning its total was 75.26 per cent but by late afternoon it was 106 per cent. Totals Saturday morning for the county showed that 22.7 per cent or $370,100 had been subscribed.

The 4th Field Battery was in charge of the thermometer raising ceremonies on Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Harold Hayden as chairman. Music during the program was provided by the Cobourg Collegiate choir and the band of the A-11 Canadian Machine Gun Centre, Camp Borden. Speakers were Colonel F. P. Lloyd, Lieut. Larry O'Connor and AB. William Walker. During the program Mrs. F. Spooner presented the prize awarded to Loretta Purser for the best campaign slogan.

On Sunday afternoon the sea cadets of Port Hope and Cobourg, the air cadets and the Camp Borden band paraded at three o'clock, finishing up at the town hall where Captain H. R. Long of Port Hope, veteran of the Sicilian and Italian campaigns, addressed a large gathering in the opera house in support of the Victory Loan. While he spoke, planes from Trenton staged a demonstration over the town, roaring over the town hall in formation and lending a realistic touch to Capt. Long's description of battles in the Italian campaign. Mayor Jack Burnet was chairman.

REACHES 98TH BIRTHDAY—Mrs. Margaret Jennings, who has lived in Belmont township for 51 years, and is its oldest resident, celebrated her 98th birthday on Sunday. Although unable to get out much, she takes an active interest in war news, through the radio.

Mrs. M. Jennings Observes 98th Birthday

HAVELOCK, Oct. 30—(ENS)—Mrs. Margaret Jennings, Belmont's oldest resident celebrated her 98th birthday on Sunday at the home of her son, Wilbert Ashby in Belmont township. She has been a resident of this district for 51 years.

Mrs. Jennings was born in Lincoln, England, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gibson, and came to Canada with her parents at the age of eight years. The family settled in the township of Clark near Port Hope. Her parents hewed their farm out of bush land, later moving to what is now Pontypool where they were again pioneer settlers. At the age of 20 years she was married to Charles Ashby who passed away 27 years ago. Later she married Simon Jennings, who died 17 years ago.

Enjoys Life

Mrs. Jennings enjoys fair health but has difficulty in getting around the result of having her hip broken a few years ago. Her memory is good and her spirits bright. On her birthday she was relating, to guests who gathered on Sunday to partake of a fowl dinner and supper prepared in her honor, events which transpired during her voyage to Canada 90 years ago, it taking six weeks to make the crossing. She takes a keen interest in listening to the war news over the radio and she has done sewing and knitting for war purposes at the beginning of the war and has had letters of thanks from overseas for articles that she has made. At present she is engaged in knitting for members of the family.

Regular attendance and support of the church and the rigid adherence to the Biblical commandment "Honor thy father and thy mother" coupled with plenty of hard work is her recipe for a long life.

She has two sons, Wilbert Ashby and Tom Ashby and one daughter, Mrs. Ezra King. She also has eight grandchildren and nine great grandchildren.

She received many gifts and cards.

Want 20-Year Pact With Reds

TORONTO, Oct. 30.—(CP).—The Trades and Labor Congress to-day neared the end of its 60th annual convention with one of the most controversial subjects—political action—scheduled for discussion.

Saturday the convention endorsed a broad post-war program drafted by its reconstruction committee and dealt with a number of resolutions on various subjects.

The committee proposed establishment of a National Planning Commission, to include labor representation, in an effort to attain full employment. It also proposed such social security measures as introduction of a non-contributory health insurance scheme, extension of old age pensions and unemployment insurance and the establishment of a minimum income of $1,500 a year.

A 40-hour work week was asked and increased development of natural resources recommended.

The convention asked for a Canadian-Russian 20 year pact similar to pacts Great Britain and the United States now have with Russia.

Abolition of the Senate was proposed and the convention endorsed a number of resolutions seeking improvement in working conditions and safety measures for merchant seamen.

Old age pensions, in addition to being included in the Reconstruction committee's report, were discussed on a separate resolution which was adopted recommending payment of increased benefits and lowering the eligible age limit to 60 years.

Teachers Meeting To Discuss Problems

MILLBROOK, Oct. 30 — (ENS).—Miss Margaret Smith entertained the Teachers' Federation of Cavan and Millbrook for its October gathering at her home east of the village, at the week-end, the president, Miss Jean Burnham, taking the chair. The monthly meetings take the place of the annual teachers' convention, which owing to the shortage of tires and gasoline, has had to be given up for the duration.

Discussion of a name for the organization resulted in choice of the one submitted by the secretary, Miss Jean Fairbairn, of Mount Pleasant School, "The Peppy Pedagogues". A question box is a regular feature of the meetings, and this week methods of teaching art in the schools came up for detailed consideration, the Misses Dorothy and Wilda Harker bringing a number of new ideas from their recent Normal school course.

During the social hour Percy Hamilton, Principal of Millbrook Public School, asked questions from a "Quiz Book", and the hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. L. W. Smith, served lunch. The home was decorated with colored oak leaves and clusters of scarlet berries. The invitation of Miss Jean Fairbairn to hold the November meeting at her home, Highway 28, was accepted.

The ultimate result of shielding men from the effects of folly is to fill the world with fools.—HERBERT SPENCER.

The Archbishop Of Canterbury

Men of goodwill of every sect and in every quarter of the globe have lost a valiant leader and a friend by the death of the Archbishop of Canterbury. The Most Reverend and Right Honourable William Temple, the 98th priest to be raised to the throne of Canterbury, was a man of great heart, great faith and great intellect; he was a scholar and a man of the world. Understandably, his profound and able intelligence found its most congenial sphere of activity within the bounds of orthodox Christianity, but it is significant that many men who were not of his faith, and some who were not of any codified faith, were in complete agreement with him on matters of broad principle; a great leader is a man who can unify many divergent views for a great purpose.

• • •

Dr. Temple was known as the People's Prelate, because from the earliest years of his priesthood he devoted himself to the cause of the poor, the ignorant and the distressed. No one would have criticised him if he had chosen to live a retired life, devoting himself to scholarship and the intellectual side of the Church's development. But he possessed the simplicity of mind which characterizes many great scholars, and when he had once made up his mind that his duty lay with the poor, he was not distracted by any personal ambition or preference. He brought severe criticism upon himself when he became actively associated with the Labour Party, but there can be no doubt that he brought the Church near to many people who needed it, and he gave new life to an institution which has sometimes been referred to as the spiritual branch of the civil service.

• • •

Like all men of strong views, Dr. Temple was sometimes wrong, and he was as vigorous in his urging of a wrong cause as of a right one. He had also the characteristic of the strong-minded man in that he was not ready to see two sides of a moral question; he saw only black and white, and any hint that a gray might exist between the two was repugnant to him. It was this downright cast of mind which led him to criticise King Edward VIII from his pulpit, when that monarch expressed his desire to marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson. It was pointed out at the time that by criticising a king in public, a bishop could gain a reputation for courage very cheaply, for a king is not permitted to defend himself in public, and his claim to speak by divine inspiration was taken from him in the time of Charles I. There were many honest churchmen who were painfully perplexed by the Archbishops of England on that occasion.

When Lord Lang retired from the Archbishopric of Canterbury two years ago, to give place to a younger man, the greatest satisfaction was felt that Dr. Temple was chosen to succeed him. His father had been Archbishop in his time, and the son was worthy. But Lord Lang still lives, and the Archbishop is dead—undoubtedly as a result of the strain which high office laid upon him at a critical moment in the world's history. As fitting a comment as may be made on his life is to be found in one of his own sermons. He said: "Your duty to God makes it necessary for you to forget him for the greater part of the day, while you are performing those duties which he has given you to do. People say that conduct is all-important and that worship helps it. That is true as far as it goes, but it would be truer to say that worship is all-important and conduct tests it". His conduct tested his worship and found it good.

The Patriarch of the Russian Orthodox Church now addresses Marshal Stalin as "our dear supreme leader whom God has sent us". Once called the opium of the people, religion in Russia has now become the massage-oil of the chief of state.

Raising University Standards

Queen's University announces that it has raised its standard of admission. This news will be of the greatest interest to Canadians who have watched and criticised our educational system, and a majority of them will consider it a move in the right direction. During the past twenty-five years an idea has become fixed in the popular mind of our country that a university education is a necessity for success in life, and that everyone who can possibly get to a university should go there. Now although it is desirable that the highest possible level of education should be maintained all through the population, it is not a good thing for universities to be crowded with people who have no clear idea of what higher education is, and no burning desire to acquire it. To go to a university to satisfy parental ambition or vanity, or merely to put off the evil day when it will be necessary to find a job, is bad both for the university and the student. By raising its standard of admission Queen's has taken a step toward discouraging this tendency.

The question of university admission, however, is still one which can bear critical examination. Some universities in the United States have adopted the system of admitting only those applicants who can pass a number of fairly stiff intelligence tests. These tests are carefully planned, and varied in character; they inquire into the student's general knowledge, knowledge of world and national affairs, and his aptitude for the course of study which he prefers. Admission is granted on the results of the tests, and in this way applicants who have a knack for passing examinations and accumulating 'grades', but who have inert or immature minds, are eliminated. This resembles the system of the older universities of England, where the academic qualifications for admission are not stringent, but where the necessity for an alert and receptive mind is stressed. Have any Canadian universities considered working on these lines?

In a democracy everybody who can benefit by university education should be able to get it. But learning is not itself a democratic thing, and there are many people who cannot measure up to a good university standard. A university is an institution of higher learning, and to attend it merely for fun or social prestige is to accept a false value at a most impressionable period of life.

Everybody's Doing It

When the Germans began bombarding the south of England with robot bombs this method of warfare was condemned as savage, inhuman and unjustifiable because it could not be controlled and killed indiscriminatelly. Now we learn that robot bombs are being produced in quantity in the United States. Apparently we are going to turn this savage, inhuman and unjustifiable weapon upon our enemies, killing indiscriminately. What is equally significant is that a few newspapers, including the Windsor Star, are applauding this action vigorously, and have a very poor opinion of those who do not think that we should use this weapon which has been used against us.

There is a case to be made for this point of view. In modern warfare we cannot allow the enemy to get a step ahead of us in beastliness and inhumanity; we must run with him, cheek by jowl, into the Gadarene abyss. That is the tragedy of war; it debases both victor and vanquished; it penetrates into every remote cranny of our lives, and poisons the wells of the spirit. As soon as the enemy stoops to a new horror we must follow his example. Is it any wonder that Dean Swift portrayed men as the inferiors of animals?

The prospect, however, is not all dark. It is possible to control the use of inhuman weapons. In this war there has been no major use of gas, a powerful and appalling weapon which was widely used in the First Great War. And why was it not used by the Germans during their years of conquest? Because we threatened terrible reprisals. Perhaps the robot bombs which we are making now are intended for reprisal threats upon the Japanese; but we fear that they are for a more desperate use.

If we use robot bombs against the Japanese we shall have confirmed the status of that weapon as an instrument of modern warfare. The robot bomb is still in its experimental stages. In twenty-five years it will doubtless have supplanted the airplane as the chief weapon of air assault, and future Pearl Harbour disasters will not be carried out by marauding planes, but will be directed from bases many hundreds of miles away. This is a poor lookout for mankind, but unless we outlaw the robot as we have outlawed gas we must expect it.

The Hays office now rules that no more than eight people may be killed in a Wild West Picture. Manpower shortage?

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

WE have had no serious complaint against the weather this year, but let us hope for good heavy rains before too much frost. A thorough soaking will be good for the soil. Severe frosts have a better effect on the land if it has what water it can comfortably hold. Districts where there is little frost always consider they suffer from lack of it in winter. Nothing seems to put the land in the same favourable condition for tilling as good freezing weather, and much better with snow on the ground. This province doesn't usually suffer in the Spring from lack of stored moisture, but I like to see a fairly heavy rainfall in the Autumn, and at time of writing it has not yet come. Water held in the soil all Winter is ready to dissolve plant food as soon as the sun warms the ground and as water is so essential to the growth of all plants, it is well to have it on hand. We could profitably trade some of these fine bright days for a day or two of steady rain; without plenty of water the land fails to do its best. It has been raining some since writing the above, more power to it.

HOLSTEIN-Friesian cattle have reached a high standard in Ontario and many pastures show fine groups of these Black and White cattle. This year no less than 33 Regional Shows of Holsteins were held in Ontario and each show was quite an outstanding event. Friendly rivalry among breeders has resulted in large classes of rather outstanding individuals and in the holding of four championship shows where many of the Regional Show winners met. Two of these shows were held in Western Ontario, at Ingersoll and Oakville, and two in Eastern Ontario at Kemptville and Warkworth. This kind of competition is a liberal education in livestock.

THE lamb sales in Britain have excelled themselves in prices this year. So far, a Border Leicester ram is at the top, being sold for £820, about $3,600. It was bred at Blairgowrie in Perthshire. At Lockerbie a Cheviot ram brought £520. A Blackfaced shearling at Lanark sold for £580, and a half-dozen more at sales brought from £300 to £550. The tops of the Blackfaced breed have not yet been sold. These Scotch Hill sheep often top all the lists. Britain, and particularly Scotland, excels in pure-bred livestock, because the breeders will pay the price for good sires.

THE pig problem is to the fore again and always will be while we undertake to market Wiltshires. It was eternal vigilance that made Denmark the exporter of the world's best bacon. The Danes were ready to learn from their selling agencies, and then provide exactly what the customer wanted, not pretty nearly what he wanted. Some suggestions have recently been made by Elgin Senn, the supervising grader for the Dominion Department of Agriculture, in which he urges the marketing of hogs at 200 lbs. He says that too much fat is responsible for 50 per cent of Ontario's B1 hogs. A year ago we had a few ill-informed people demanding that we be allowed to feed our export hogs to a heavier weight. Every pound that was allowed did harm and lost money for the feeder. Every carefuly experiment yet made shows 200 lbs. to be the most profitable weight at which to market a bacon hog, but in addition the pig becomes worth less per pound if we go on feeding.

There is also the question of sides of bacon the same size and length, English bacon sellers demand this, and we or someone else will supply it. Elgin Senn expresses the opinion that our growing pigs do not get enough protein in their feed. The increased sales of whole milk to cheese factories and milk powder plants likely accounts for this as skim milk is the best feed for young pigs. Alfalfa meal or tankage must take its place, or e few acres of soy beans would be useful. The English selling agencies ask for a return to the mild cure as soon as war risks in shipping are over. Canada will have many ships when our enemies are mastered and rapid transit for bacon over the ocean will be highly important. Another suggestion from these bacon selling agencies is very terse but worthy of our best attention. It says that in Canada we should give "Attention to breeding, housing and feeding as close as may be possible to Danish practice."

A STATEMENT, that may have wide significance, was made in Court held in Carlisle, England, in September, by a Veterinary Inspector of the Ministry of Agriculture. In giving evidence in a case of prosecution for failure to boil pig swill from a Military Camp before feeding it, this Inspector, J. K. S. Emslie, stated that Ministry of Agriculture officials have found that the bones of imported meat, especially from the Argentine, are frequently contaminated by the virus of foot-and-mouth disease. This raises a very vexed question regarding imported meats. As I mentioned a short time ago, all Argentine meat, except in cans, is prohibited from entering either the United States or Canada on account of the danger of its carrying foot-and-mouth. This is the first time this danger was ever admitted in Britain. The British Ministry of Agriculture has always failed to recognize any such danger. Now with one of the Ministry's Veterinary Inspectors giving this evidence, the whole matter may come under review. Every outbreak of foot-and-mouth in Britain has cost large sums of money, the one that carried off the Aldie herd of Finlay MacGillivray being a sort of climax. If the matter is pursued, the Argentine meat trade might be in danger as that country has foot-and-mouth all over it.

WE are around again to the time of year to put in a supply of sods to feed to pigs in Winter. If these are dug, or ploughed up, when the grass is still green and a good length, so much the better. I noticed, with interest, a short time ago that a soldier-farmer brought some Yorkshire pigs over from England for Senator McCrae of British Columbia. The young man landed with his shipment of pigs in very hot weather and he was having trouble with his charges, but he remarked that when he landed in Canada he got a supply of sods with long green grass and as they ate them the pigs were much better.

THERE is something about the earth, earthy, that seems to put an animal right, and probably nature provided a pig with a nose fitted for rooting, so it could get the benefit of eating sods. I remember when the late James Gardhouse, great grandfather of Reford, who now exhibits the Gardhouse cattle, used to put up a supply of sods to feed his shire Stallions in Winter, and how they would eat them up to the last bite. Pigs will do a good job at this also, and will benefit much in health. This is one kind of winter feed, particularly for breeding pigs which should not be overlooked.

A SOLUTION has been discovered, and given a long scientific name, which when applied to potatoes will prevent them sprouting. It would be for use on potatoes stored for food, and while not yet fool-proof, may be one of the useful things learned through the pursuit of a necessity. Potatoes lose much of their flavour and nourishment by growing long white, or colourless prouts.

NAIL IT DOWN!

Ichabod–Glory That Is Fled

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

A NEWS ITEM reports curtly that Cobalt may surrender its status as a town and revert to its humble position as part of the township of Coleman. This is grievous news indeed. Cobalt—the town whose streets were literally paved with silver—town that called the tune to the mining market in the early years of this century—centre of fabled white metal—to revert to a humble part of a Northern Ontario township!

Less romantic than the Klondike gold rush because it was less remote, Cobalt was none the less a name to conjure with in the early days of silver and gold discoveries in Ontario. The vast mineral belt was opened up almost by accident. Fifty years ago, while there was reason to believe there was mineral of some sort in the North, its chief prize was white pine timber, and the T. and N.O. Railway was pushed northwards in the early years of the century mainly to tap these hundreds of thousands of acres of white and red pine.

On reaching the spot in the wilderness that was later to become a great silver centre, construction engineers came across beds of a bluish deposit which was cobalt, and under the cobalt lay the mass of silver ore. The Right-of-Way mine was one of the many that were developed and operated — and incidentally one which brought wealth to a number of Ottawa men.

Fortunes were won and lost on the ground and on the brokers' boards as the silver fever spread. Later gold was found in quantity north and west of the silver ore-bodies. Cobalt has now gone down the other side of the hill.

Not even the Encyclopedia Britannica whose latest edition described Cobalt as "unknown till 1903 it is now the centre of one of the richest silver districts in the world" can save it from the fate of all worked-out mining camps. And incidentally it had a song written about it which ran:

"There's a little old town named Cobalt,
If you ain't been there that's your fault."

But Cobalt to be part of a township! How are the mighty fallen! Ichabod, the glory that is departed.

Walter Scott's Ample Canvas

BISHOP PERCY had discovered old ballads in manuscripts, but Scott encountered them in circulation among the crofters of the Border country....In his "raids" into southern Scotland, Scott was not affected by prejudices in favour of antiquity or of authentic texts, since the critical school of ballad-hunters had not yet arisen. He gathered old and new, and he prized above all the spirit and the vigour of the poems. ....The first fruits of these "raids" were the highly plausible ballads of Glenfinlas, Cadyow Castle, etc., but he soon found he needed a more ample canvas. The old ballad-mongers had no need of atmosphere, since they sang of the things they lived among; but Scott needed space for recreation. So he turned to the lay; The Lay of the Last Minstrel, Marmion, The Lady of the Lake. In paragraphs of swiftly-moving octosyllabic couplets he carries the reader with him through unfamiliar scenes and times in the wake of characters who engage sympathy by their nobility and misfortunes; but the reader draws no special advantage from the verse. It is adequate, but negligent and unremembered; the writer acknowledged as much when he read Byron's tales in verse. He abandoned the lay, and took to the novel.

The project of writing romances seems to have been an old one. Scott says it was inspired by reading Don Quixote, and that the first plan was to describe the adventures of a Jacobite Quixote. Between this impulse and Waverley (1814) there was much development, so that what emerged was a completely new genre....He wrote swiftly, somewhat negligently, but with assurance, of life; characters, scenes, landscapes, atmosphere—all were ready to spring into being. Their merits, indeed, are unequal, and those composed too hurriedly after the crash of 1826 are the worse for the strain. With the passing of years it is the Scottish novels which gain in stature, and especially those which depend more on character than on history. The mental tragedy of Jeanie Deans in The Heart of Midlothian owes to its date and place only the attendant circumstances necessary to any narrative. In Rob Roy and The Fair Maid of Perth interest is excited by the emplacement upon the dividing line of Highlands and Lowlands, the meeting-place of two races with incompatible histories. Ivanhoe and The Talisman carry the mind back to the Middle Ages with a richly circumstantial embroidery that has dazzled the imaginations of men; but they groan beneath much dead weight of description and "tushery." Quentin Durward also reaches back to the Middle Ages, and is the prototype of those books—chiefly for boys—which employ the movements of an unimportant hero in order to bring before us the enigmatic great. Kenilworth, The Fortunes of Nigel and Woodstock are second only to Shakespeare's "histories" in fixing our conception of English history.—From "The Literature of England, A.D. 500-1942," by W. J. Entwistle and Eric Gillett. (New York: Longmans, Green, 1943.)

A Name From The Past

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

PRINCESS BEATRICE, youngest and last surviving child of Queen Victoria and great-aunt of the King, lived far beyond the Victorian era into which she was born. The last vestiges of what now we think of as the golden days disappeared in the smoke and fire of the First World War. The old settled, leisurely way of life had gone never to return.

That phrase, "Victorian Era," means different things to different people. The modern young person, born in this century, thinks of it as a time when women wore funny clothes, when there were no automobiles or movies or radios or vacuum cleaners, when every parlour had an antimacassar and a horsehair sofa, when people led stuffy and conventional lives and were pretty dull.

But that is the very casual and superficial viewpoint. Most of those whose own experience goes back into the days of Victoria think of her times with affection, and regret that they are no more. There was security in those days, and peace, and a family could be brought up in the reasonable assurance that war would not break it up. There were wars, of course, but by modern standards small affairs, and the methods of killing were primitive—the Germans still had to invent poison gas and other barbarities and give us slaughter on a mass scale. Life then, as we think of it now, was an easy and comfortable business.

All that is true, but of course it is not all the truth. Victoria came to the throne in the days of the stage coach in an England which had not changed greatly since Elizabethan times. But her long life carried her through a remarkable period of colonial expansion, of industrial revolution, of the broadening of scientific knowledge, of inventions which before her death had materially changed the ways of life of every one of her subjects. So the fact is the Victorian Era was not the placid thing of movie representations but a time of violent change and constant development in countless ways.

But between the defeat of Napoleon and the defeat of Kaiser Wilhelm the world substantially was at peace for a century, and that was the real significance of the Victorian Era. There were numerous wars, but they were not world wars, and there was some reason for assuming that the nations of mankind permanently had relinquished the sword. That was the atmosphere into which Princess Beatrice was born. She lived to see those hopes dashed, to see the world torn by strife and struggle—one wonders if she felt she had lived too long, if her mind turned back with longing to the serenity of the reign of the "Good Queen."

A Bible Message

And, behold, they brought to him a man sick of the palsy, lying on a bed: and Jesus seeing their faith said unto the sick of the palsy; Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee. And, behold, certain of the scribes said within themselves, This man blasphemeth.

And Jesus knowing their thoughts said, Wherefore think ye evil in your hearts? For whether is easier, to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (then saith he to the sick of the palsy,) Arise, take up thy bed, and go unto thine house. And he arose, and departed to his house. But when the multitudes saw it, they marvelled, and glorified God, which had given such power unto men.

And as Jesus passed forth from thence, he saw a man, named Matthew, sitting at the receipt of custom: and he saith unto him, Follow me. And he arose, and followed him. And it came to pass, as Jesus sat at meat in the house, behold, many publicans and sinners came and sat down with him and his disciples. And when the Pharisees saw it, they said unto his disciples, Why eateth your Master with publicans and sinners?

But when Jesus heard that, he said unto them, They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick. But go ye and learn what that meaneth, I will have mercy, and not sacrifice: for I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance. (Matt. 9: 2-13.)

"FOREIGNER"

A girl born in Toronto attended Toronto schools to the very edge of the university. She is the daughter of an Italian couple who came to Canada before they were twenty and were married in this country.

The other day a contentious housewife nearby sneered at her as a foreigner, in a burry Scottish accent, the housewife having come to Canada long after her school days abroad were done.

Now there's a situation! Race prejudice, for all its seriousness, provides some moments of high humour.—Saturday Night.

PRISONERS IN CANADA

Proposals to send more Nazis prisoners to this country are reasonable. This is the logical place to accommodate them, where there is ample room, in sparsely settled districts, and adequate supplies of food and other necessities. These men perhaps do not constitute desirable immigration, but their accommodation is part of our proper contribution to the war effort.—Windsor Daily Star.

WHO WROTE IT?

The song books credit "O Canada" to Monsieur Calixa Lavallee. Actually it was written well over a century ago by one of the immortals in the realm of music, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart.

At first sight, then, this might appear to be a case of plagiarism, but actually it wasn't. It could not have been plagiarism, because Calixa Lavallee was an honourable man, and at no time in his career did he find it necessary to steal another composer's work.

There are various theories as to how Mozart's music became associated with "O Canada." The most logical explanation is that upon being asked to furnish the music for a patriotic song Lavallee's retentive memory recalled the theme of "The Priest's March" of "The Magic Flute"—a composition of Mozart's which had not enjoyed popularity.—H. Nelson Lochead in Canadian Home Journal.

All On A 10-Day Pass

(From the Mid-Pacifican, Hawaii)

Somewhere in the south Pacific area, a GI got a 10-day pass which he was supposed to spend in Australia.

He was one day late in returning, took a terrific bawling out from his commanding officer. When an explanation was demanded, he said: "Sorry, sir, I woulda made it, only we were held up one day in Chicago on accounta bad weather."

A man of no little faith, he'd planned a tight schedule. He hitch-hiked from the south Pacific to New Haven, Conn., on unidentified aircraft, spent a couple of days with his wife and would have been back on time if Chicago weather hadn't been unco-operative.

Apple Yield Down Little On 1943 Crop

TORONTO, Oct. 30.— (CP). — Weather and moisture conditions during October favored the size and color of the apple crop, the Ontario Department of Agriculture said Friday in its October fruit and vegetable crop report. Preliminary estimate of the total commercial apple crop in western Ontario was 469,000 barrels, 2,100 barrels above the September figure but still slightly less than the 1943 total. Best districts were Niagara, Elgin-Oxford and Burlington.

Preliminary estimates of the peach crop placed at 1,174,000 bushels, showed a 167 per cent increase over 1943 production, five per cent better than the September report.

Quality of later varieties of pears were excellent, but the estimate of 265,350 bushels represented a 20 per cent decrease from the 1943 figures, a 15 per cent increase from September.

Total plum estimate of 133,200 bushels, a two per cent increase over last year, represented 15,100 bushels of Japanese, 109,900 bushels, European, and 8,200 bushels prunes.

General quality of canning crops —tomatoes, corn, pumpkin and apples was superior to previous years. The pack of tomato juice, tomato puree and tomato paste, reached record proportions with 1,250,000 cases. Corn yield in general was larger than anticipated early in September, with the heaviest crop in the area around Cobourg, Bowmanville and Whitby.

Eleven factories were reported to be canning pumpkins, and both canners and producers were surprised at the large amounts being delivered. Only factories processing apples in Eastern Ontario were at Brighton and Cobourg where large quantities of apples were being used for the manufacture of vinegar stock, and for production of pectin and apple syrup.

Rebekah Lodge Instals Officers

MILLBROOK, Oct. 30 — (ENS). — Installation of officers featured a special meeting of Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, at the I.O.O.F. hall Friday evening, the guest of honor being the District-Deputy President, Maud Armstrong, who in her own Lodge completed the final round of official visits to the seven Rebekah organizations of the Peterborough jurisdiction.

The Deputy-Marshal, Zella Bentley, who has accompanied the D.D.P. on her installation work throughout the district, assisted with the ritual, and the installing staff was composed entirely of male members of the Millbrook Rebekah Lodge; they were: Deputy-Warden, Lavergne Fallis; deputy-secretary, C. B. Sutton; Deputy chaplain, Harold Tate; Deputy financial secretary, R. O. Larmer; Deputy-treasurer, E. L. Armstrong; Deputy I. G., P. I. Bentley; Deputy O. G., E. L. Morden.

In none of the other Lodges visited, had the District president found any men assisting with the installation ritual. The list for Golden Sheaf Lodge for the ensuing year is: N. G. Margaret Larmer; V. G. Beatrice Fallis; R. S. Mabel Fallis, P.G.; F. S. Ella Tate, P.N.G.; treasurer, Carline Harkness, P.N.G.; R.S. N. G. Irene Fallis, P.N.G.; L.S. N. G. Maud Armstrong, P.D.D.P.; R.S. V. G. Dorothy Challice; L.S. V. G. Mabel Payne; chaplain, Mary Rowling; Warden, Leona Fallis; conductor, Florence Ball; musician, Alda Stinson; I. G. Evelyn Donaldson; O.G. Z. Bentley, P.N.G.

A guest welcomed during the evening was Mrs. Garvey, Noble Grand of Port Rowan Lodge, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. L. Rowling. After brief addresses, Mrs. Armstrong was presented with a table lamp, with crystal base and rose shade, the local Lodge seeking in this way to show its appreciation of being honored in having the District-Deputy president chosen from its membership. This honor will not come to Millbrook again for seven years. Harold Tate read the address, and Mrs. Arthur Fallis offered the gift.

Adjournment was then made to the dining-hall where the social committee of Millbrook Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 308, served supper. The men were warmly thanked for their service during the Lodge session.

Marmora Farmer Dies Suddenly

MARMORA, Oct. 30 (ENS) — James Jones, well known farmer of Marmora township died suddenly at his home about 9.30 Saturday evening. He was lying on the couch at the time listening to a radio program when he died. With him in the room was his brother-in-law, Thomas Moffatt.

His wife had gone to the village on a shopping expedition where the sad news was conveyed to her. He had always enjoyed excellent health and had never complained of being unwell. Nazis Admit Can't Stop Reds

LONDON, Oct. 30 — (AP) — Martin Hallensleben, D.N.B. military commentator, cautioned the German people today in a Berlin broadcast against hoping that German counter-attacks, which he said had slowed the Russian offensive in East Prussia and Hungary could slacken completely the Russian autumn offensive.

"These German counter-measures have a limited task," he said. "Russian reserves, especially in East Prussia, are very great."

Another Berlin broadcast described the new German home guard in East Prussia as 40 per cent veterans of the First Great War, 20 per cent Hitler youth, and 40 per cent "men in their best years" who fought during the opening battles of this war. It said their equipment was "satisfactory".

Marines Form Bagpipe Band After Challenge Capture Third Place In Irish Competition

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28—(AP)—Eleven Marines swung down Connecticut Avenue in the Navy Day parade yesterday splitting the air with the darndest spine-shivering skirls ever heard.

It was the unveiling of the only bagpipe band in the United States armed forces, a band that started because some Irishman told a Marine there was something the Marines couldn't do.

The challenge was hurled one cold night in January, 1943. Marines and naval officers were shooting the breeze with members of the Royal Ulster constabularly in Londonderry, Northern Ireland.

"My Marines," said Capt. Van. Leer Kirkman, "can do anything."

"Everything but play the bagpipes," came a voice from the rear.

Kirkman turned to Lt.-Col. James J. Dugan and pleaded:

"I want a bagpipe band. I'll supply the instruments if you'll supply the men."

Eleven bagpipes were bought for $90 each. Volunteer pipers practised five months and then won third prize in the annual Port of Dormara Pipers' contest, famed Irish event.

Let's do it right, the jubilant Captain Kirkman decided and the order went out for purchase of kilts. For two days he couldn't find any of his pipers! (The order was cancelled.)

Now the bagpipers are at the Marine base in Quantico, Va., which will never be the same again.

TORONTO, Oct. 30—(CP)—Dr. G. H. Gardiner, 64, former Toronto Alderman and member of the Board of Education, died in hospital here last night. He had practised in Toronto for 30 years, served five years as Alderman and, when Infantile Paralysis threatened, proposed and obtained the purchase of Toronto's first "iron lung."

Thankoffering Held In Roseneath

ROSENEATH, Oct. 30.—(ENS).—Mrs. R. C. White was the special speaker on Sunday morning on the occasion of the Thankoffering service of the W.M.S. Mrs. White's address was based on the Thanksgiving theme, "I will bless the Lord at all times, His praise shall continually be in my mouth."

Members of the W.M.S., said the speaker, express their zeal in the spirit of thanksgiving." She quoted Donald Hankey, who said, "Our religion makes us thankful and our thankfulness should make us religious." Thanksgiving should be our normal attitude of mind and heart, said Mrs. White, not just an attitude at special times and anniversaries. Ingratitude discovers no mercies, but grateful souls can turn a hut into a palace, she declared.

The service was conducted by Mrs. Crego, W.M.S. president, assisted by the vice-presidents, Mrs. D. Brisbin and Mrs. A. Halstead. Apporpriate music was rendered by the choir.

Laurence Park Ekes Out Close Victory Over P.C.V.S.

A touchdown by Lawrence Park in the closing moments of Saturday's exhibition game at Riverside Park gave the Toronto students a 12 to 8 win over P.C.V.S. seniors, after the best football fixture of the season.

Despite the fact that both teams were guilty of some costly fumbles there was a lot of good rugby, and the battle was so even that it kept the crowd on its toes all the way.

P.C.V.S., down 7 to 0 in the early stages, fought an uphill fight to finally tie the score in the third period and flash in front 8 to 7 early in the last quarter, only to have Lawrence Park snatch the game out of the fire with an upset forward pass on the third down, with P.C.V.S. looking for a kick. The aerial move put the play close to the Peterborough line and Gerald plunged over for the five points that meant victory for the visitors.

The teams were very evenly matched and they staged a most interesting battle. It was a nice game for the Toronto youngsters to win and a tough one for P.C.V.S. to lose, after coming from behind as they had done.

Toronto had a big, fast team, with the best ball-carrier being the tall half back Gerald who was hard to stop as he sliced through the line. It was Gerald who crashed through for both Toronto touchdowns. Campbell kicked and forward-passed smartly and Connors shone as a receiver.

Outram Is Star

For Peterborough Collegiate Capt. Red Outram was the star. He ripped through the Toronto lines for big gains, threw forward passes effectively and defensively was a tower of strength, smearing many Lawrence Park plays. Jack Matthews was also brilliant and his 60-yard gallop in the second half was the outstanding individual play of the day. He was surrounded by tacklers when he took a punt near his own goal line but raced 60 yards before he was hauled down from behind. Quarterback Jack Sisson was also in the limelight and the wing line gave a good account of themselves.

Play in the first quarter was very even and was most confined to the territory between the two quarter-lines. Neither team could stage a prolonged offensive, largely due to fumbles. The visitors got the only point of the quarter when Campbell punted from the P.C.V.S. 30-yard line for a rouge. Near the end of the period, however, a fumble put the visitors in pay dirt territory when Reynolds dropped on a loose ball.

The First Touchdown

Lawrence Park had the ball 10 yards out when the second period opened and Gerald catapulted through the right side of P.C.V.S.'s line for a touchown which Carruthers converted neatly.

Soon after P.C.V.S. got a similar break when a long punt was fumbled by the Toronto backfield and P.C.V.S. recovered. Matthews went round the Lawrence Park left end for 25 yards on an extension run and on two plunges Red Outram took the ball the remaining 10 yards for a touchdown. He converted with a perfect goal from placement to make the count Lawrence Park 7 Peterborough 6 and the figures remained there until half time.

Thanks to a beautiful run by Jack Matthews, who took a Lawrence Park punt near his own goal line and ran it back in a dash in which he passed nearly every man on the Toronto team and was almost in the clear before he was hauled down from behind, the Petes pressed most of the third period. A little later Matthews kicked over the dead line to tie up the game at 7-7. Good plunging by Red Outram and an accurate forward pass by the same player to Sisson put the Peterborough students in striking distance again and Outram tried a placement which missed.

The Petes kept up the pressure however and early in the fourth period Matthews hoisted a long one to the dead line to put them in front 8 to 7.

Thanks of local football fans are due to the Toronto Lawrence Park Collegiate and Peterborough C.V.S. senior squads for a colorful exhibition of rugby at Riverside Park Saturday. True, there were fumbles but the errors were about equally divided and added to the excitement and mixed in with this loose football was a lot of smart stuff. Lawrence Park, a big team which plays clean, hard rugby, won 12 to 8 but it was anybody's battle. P.C.V.S., down seven points in the early stages, fought their way back until they finally found themselves in front 8 to 7 and that one point looked good enough to win until the closing moments. Then the Lawrence Park board of strategy spotted a weak spot in the P.C.V.S. forward pass defence and the visitors decided to shoot a few pitches down the centre slot. They clicked, carried the play into pay dirt territory and the visitors won the game in the next couple of minutes when they fired another forward on the third down, with P.C.V.S. expecting a kick. The surprise took play to the Peterborough 10 yard line and big Gerald who hits the line like a Sherman tank ripped over for the game-winning touchdown. Orchids to both teams for a nice game, played in a very sporting spirit.

That Port Hope junior squad is not as good as advance notices painted it to be—it's better. That is the opinion of the fans who watched the big fast squad from the "prettiest town in Canada" roll up a 48 to 0 score at the expense of a P.C.V.S. squad in a junior interscholastic group game at Riverside Park Saturday. The Port Hopers had a backfield studded with stars and a well-drilled forward wall that did better blocking than had been seen all season. In Brown and Walton, two tall lads on the half line who can really carry the mail the unbeaten High School outfit showed two of the fastest backs to appear here this fall. It has always been a pet theory of this column that when a ball carrier is really fast the simplest thing for him to do is to head for the wide side of the field and outrun his opposition rather than to try to dodge them. That is what Brown and Walton did. They got nice blocking along the line and their speed did the rest. They repeatedly broke wide for big gains and had the P.C.V.S. kids dizzy trying to stop them. The Peterborough youngsters gave all they had but it was too little and too late, against the fast-moving, hard-hitting Port Hopers who have scored 125 points in four games against six for their opponents.

Born Too Soon

One of the oldtimers in Peterborough football who was on hand for Saturday's double-header was "Buck" Asselstine who used to play a lot of useful rugby along the Peterborough wing line at the turn of the century when Dominion championships were objectives well within the reach of local squads. The thought occurred to this column that the same "Buck," watching forward passes float through the air must have regretted the fact that he had been born a decade or two too soon. For he had one specialty back in those long ago days. He could pick up a rugby ball in his big right hand—and remember the oval hadn't been streamlined for the pitchers in those days—and throw it 50 yards like an outfielder throwing a strike from the garden to the plate. It was an accomplishment that was not a great deal of use in that era for the forward pass had not come into the picture. If it had been Asselstine would undoubtedly have been in the limelight for he could toss the bigger ball used then half the length of the field without any difficulty.

* * * * * *

At that "Buck" was a valuable man in those days when wing players were rugged individualists and each of them battled all afternoon with his opposite number on the enemy line. No quarter was asked or given and the player who let his check leave the field without half his uniform torn off was considered what is popularly termed in the 1944 vernacular a panty-waist. Asselstine used to get along pretty well in that commando atmosphere. He had his own ideas about training, too. When the rest of the squad would go out on the road for a jaunt after a night practice "Buck" preferred to remain in Central Park, running 100 yard dashes. His theory was that football called for sudden quick sprints and abrupt stops and that road work did not supply the necessary training. The writer of this column was one of the youngsters whom he would inveigle into sprinting with him in those nightly drills. The once powerful wingman is badly crippled with rheumatism now but the thud of an instep against the pigskin is still sweet music in his ears and he generally manages to get over to Riverside Park to see the new generation demonstrate the modern version of Canadian football.

Favorites All Win

The three favorites in the National Hockey League, Canadiens, Detroit and Toronto have opened their season with wins, as was generally expected. The Leafs, in fact, began with two victories over the week-end and now lead the parade. They eked out a 2 to 1 win over Rangers in Toronto Saturday night, coming from behind on two goals by Sweeney Schriner and then hammered home a somewhat soft victory in Chicago Sunday night, beating the Black Hawks 11 to 5 in a free-scoring affair that was witnessed by the biggest opening night crowd in Chicago's history. Canadiens had a real battle on their hands to beat Boston Saturday night; in fact if the Bruins hadn't have run into a double penalty they might have won. Canadiens scored twice while the Rossmen were two men short. It was different at Detroit Sunday night where the Wings, at full strength in spite of Jack Adams' difficulty in signing some of his stars, ran wild to defeat the Bruins 7 to 1. Two veterans, Syd Howe and Mud Bruneteu scored a pair of goals each, Rookie Jud McAtee duplicated their feat and Flash Hollett fired the other one. The only Boston goal was an unassisted counter by Ken Smith.

Would Stop Players Moving From West

WINNIPEG, Oct. 30—(CP)—President Frank Sargent of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said Sunday it was the hope of his organization to "stop the influx of Prairie hockey players to Eastern Canada." He asserted the C.A.H.A. was "dead against" any western player moving east solely to play hockey.

The Port Arthur, Ont., sports leader told the annual meeting of the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association the C.A.H.A. would not grant a transfer to a player from Western Canada to the Ontario Hockey Association "without a might good reason." The M.A.H.A. had a perfect right to stop such transfers he said.

King George Blank Queen Mary

In the final game of the schedule, Queen Mary junior soccer team was defeated by a score of 5 to 0 by the King George eleven. The winners were a heavier team and held the advantage from start to finish although fouls cost the Queen Mary team two goals. This shutout gave Stock in the King George goal, a perfect season, not having been scored on during the regular schedule.

The goal-getters were, Calladine, Harding, Jensen and Rutherford.

Teams:

Queen Mary—Goal, R. Maloney; full backs, B. Wagar and G. Morley; halves, G. Cullen, M. Kellet, D. Clark; forwards, K. Reid, R. Wilfong, R. Lester, R. Wilson, H. Bertram; sub., G. Elcombe.

King Edward And Central Tied

After two keenly contested engagements in the local Public School senior soccer championship King Edward and Central are still in the same position as they were when they started the playoffs. In the first game King Edward scored early in the second period and held that meagre lead until half a minute to go, when Brooks centred the ball across the goal-mouth to Whitnall who made no mistake with a lightning drive in below the cross-bar for the equalizer 1-1. In the second game played at the Oval, the rivals failed to register any goals, although Byers missed a great opportunity when he skied the ball from a foul kick a few yards out. Here is a list of the goal scorers in the series which indicated that King Edward took their position in the league standing through their goal average and Central followed closely with each team the same number of points. The leading scorers were: Ken Lawson, King Edward, 3; D. Anderson, King Edward, 3; R. Beggs, King Edward 3; J. Dracup, Queen Alexandra, 3; R. Wyatt, King George 2; B. Killingbeck, Prince of Wales, 2; H. Grafstein, Queen Mary, 2; W. Dolan, Central; M. Chambers, King Edward; J. Whitnall, Central; G. Kimberley, Prince of Wales; R. Toronto Takes 2 Games Over Week-end

By ERIC SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Possibility that high - scoring games will be the vogue in the fifth wartime season of the National Hockey League was indicated during the week-end when all six clubs made their debut in the 1944-45 campaign for the Stanley Cup.

After the smoke of battle cleared away, Toronto Maple Leafs were left leading the League with two victories, one a 2-1 verdict over New York Rangers at Toronto Saturday night and the other an 11-3 decision over Chicago Black Hawks in the Windy City Sunday.

The defending Stanley Cup champions, Montreal Canadiens, had to go all out to hold off Boston Bruins before winning 3-2 at home Saturday and in the only other game Detroit handed Bruins their second loss by whipping them 7-1 at Detroit Sunday.

Altogether more than 55,000 fans watched the four opening games further indicating attendance records may be set before the 150-game schedule ends next Spring.

Schriner Stars

Led by the veteran Dave (Sweeney) Schriner of Calgary, who returns to the N.H.L. hockey wars after a one-year absence, Maple Leafs won a hard-fought opening game before 13,049 spectators Saturday. The 31-year-old winger, who is known for his trick stickhandling around the nets, sank the only goals of the match. Kilby Macdonald netted the lone goal for Rangers.

On Sunday, Leafs walloped Paul Thompson's Chicago Black Hawks before 18,618 fans. Once again, Schriner and his first-string mates, Gus Bodnar of Fort William and Lorne Carr of Calgary, led the pace. Schriner and Carr each netted three and Bodnar counted once and assisted in four. Other Toronto snipers were: Bill Ezinicki, Nick Metz, Bob Davidson and Virgil Johnstone. Chicago marksmen were: Earl Seibert, Bill Thoms, Bill Mosienko, Johnny Harms and Clint Smith.

Calladine Scores

Manager Art Ross sent out Harvey Bennett, goalie with Oshawa Generals, last year's Canadian Junior champions, to guard the nets in Boston's opening game against Canadiens Saturday. He turned in a first-class display in his pro debut before a crowd of 12,000 holding the Cup champions scoreless after the three-minute mark of the second period.

Canadiens scored the only goal of the first period, Fern Gauthier finding the mark. Bouch Bouchard and Toe Blake then found the range early in the middle session to give Montreal a 3-0 lead. Ken Smith and Norm Calladine sank the Boston counters.

Detroit Red Wings, who Manager Jack Adams announced recently are 50 per cent better than last season, took no pity on Boston as they ran up a 7-1 victory. Modere (Mud) Bruneteau, Rookie Jud McAtee and Veteran Syd Howe scored two each and defenceman Bill (Flash) Hollett sank the other. Ken Smith drove in Boston's only goal two minutes before the end of the middle session. A crowd of 12,021 witnessed the contest.

Pt. Hope Juniors Retain Perfect Record

Port Hope High's big, fast junior squad ran wild here Saturday afternoon to overwhelm P.C.V.S. seconds 48 to 0 in a junior interscholastic game at Riverside Park. The visitors carried far too much armament for the young Peterborough squad and the latter never had a chance. In fact Port Hope had them down 17 to 0 before they had an opportunity to make a play.

Unbeaten in four games this season and with a scoring record that now reads 125 points against six for their opposition, the Port Hope team ran the ends, plunged through the line and took to the air with equal success. An attack built around the fast running of two big speedy halves Watson and Brown, aided by beautiful blocking by the forward well proved much too effective for the Peterborough youngsters.

The visitors were in front by quarters 17 to 0, 22 to 0, 38 to 0 and 48 to 0 and the figures about indicate the run of the play. P.C.V.S. fought determinedly and especially in the second period made a real stand but they were beaten all the way down the field by a team that showed a lot of class.

Watson and Brown on the backfield were the outstanding stars for Port Hope. Both had a barrel of speed and both were hard to pull down. The little quarterback Mark ran off the plays in fine style and the wingline blocked splendidly and did some fine tackling.

"Wimpie" Borland was the most effective Peterborough player and shone especially by his fine tackling in the safety slot. He stopped Watson and Brown on a number of occasions when the Port Hope ball carriers had beaten the rest of his team. Menzies kicked well and the rest of the outfit gave all they had against heavy odds.

Visitors Score Early

Port Hope kicked off and the Petes lost the ball for interference at their own 25 yards line. On three plays Port Hope went over for a touchdown, Brown carrying the ball over, Watt converted with a goal from placement.

Port Hope came right back after the next kickoff and a beautiful pass by Brown ot Dotzko gave them a second touchdown which Watt converted.

Before the P.C.V.S. had a chance to handle the ball the visitors struck again with a drive that saw Watson romp over for a touchdown on a 25-yard pass by Brown. It was not converted.

The Peterborough students stiffened a bit in the second period and although Port Hope kept on the pressure P.C.V.S. made a goal-line stand to stop one dangerous march and intercepted a forward pass to stall another. Port Hope were not to be denied however and Brown dashed over for another touchdown before the period ended to make it 22 to 0.

Rolling Right Along

The third quarter saw the visitors rolling right along. Brown got away for another run around P.C.V.S.'s right end for a touchdown and a little later he threw a pass to Watson who ran 30 yards for another major score, neither of the tries being converted. Before the end of the quarter. Mark knifed through the centre of the P.C.V.S. line on a trick play for a touchdown and converted with an over-the-goal-line-pass to Dotzko. That made it 38 to 0.

In the last quarter Bissell plunged over for another Port Hope try that was not converted. From the kickoff the P.C.V.S. squad nearly scored when the boot from centre went over the goal line and Peterborough wings tackled the receiver before he could get out. Referee Young however ruled that the kick had gone over the deadline and therefore was no score.

Just before the end of the game Sidey, one of Port Hope's substitute halves ran around P.C.V.S.'s left end for the final touchdown to make it 48 to 0.

Ottawa Trojans Upset Balmy Beach

By The Canadian Press.

The unbeaten record of Toronto Balmy Beach in the Ontario Rugby Football Union and the last mathematical play-off chances of the Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes in the Ontario Armed Services League disappeared in single scheduled games in each of the leagues Saturday.

Ottawa Trojans came up with an unexpected display of power to defeat Beaches 14-9 at Toronto, leaving the Toronto team and the Hamilton Wildcats tied for first place in the O.R.F.U. standings with four wins and one loss apiece.

It was a day of misery for Hurricanes, who were defeated 13-2 by Wildcats in an exhibition game at Hamilton and then watched Hagersville R.C.A.F. crush St. Thomas R.C.A.F. in the second game of a doubleheader. The Hagersville win removed Hurricanes' last chance of gaining even a tie for the second-place play-off spot.

The Hagersville win put them in first place in the Services League, one point ahead of Toronto Navy which had an open date. Navy still has a chance to take over first place again in the final scheduled game Saturday against Camp Borden.

Although the first and second place positions in both leagues remain to be settled in this Saturday's games, the play-off teams in each are decided. It will be Wildcats and Balmy Beach in the O.R.F.U. and Hagersville and Navy in the Services League.

Western Unbeaten.

One Ontario team still remains undefeated — the University of Western Ontario Mustangs. Although they are not entered in any league the Mustangs have won three exhibition games this season, their third victory being scored Saturday over Navy, 20-14.

Arnie McWatters was the key figure in the Ottawa win over Beaches. The veteran quarterback who formerly played with the Sarnia Imperials in the O.R.F.U. scored seven points and gave a brilliant display as Trojans avenged the 33-6 setback they received from Beaches in Ottawa. Other Ottawa point-getters were halfback Red Edwards with a touchdown for five and inside wing George Fraser with two converts.

TORONTO, Oct. 30 — (CP). — That recent report from the United States that the President might be asked to appoint a successor to Czar Landis if the club owners could not agree, brought amused chuckles from many quarters. Al (Brantford Expositor) Rose draws a fanciful comparison of what may happen if the N.H.L. soon doesn't find itself a president.

'We can imagine a meeting between Prime Minister Mackenzie King and President Roosevelt to settle this grave problem," says Al with tongue in cheek. "The situation would be of some moment sandwiched in between the war conference held recently in Quebec City. Maybe Churchill should be interviewed on the subject."

Good aim:

Maybe it isn't a record, but 13 completed forward passes out of 15 attempts is a good mark in any football game. That's what Gail Egan, now a football official and sportsmaster in Calgary, did in 1933, Hal Dean recalls in the Edmonton Bulletin. Egan actually got 14 out of 15, but wasn't credited with the other through an oversight. His aim was bad on the fifteenth though, Dean remarks, because the ball hit the intended receiver on the head.

Mopping the deck:

They are giving the younger High School boys a break in London, Ont., and an excellent chance to play football. Boys who normally would just warm the bench, if they get that far, for their High School teams turn out every Monday for regularly scheduled games between the different High Schools. They get more good out of that than all the practice sessions they could hold in a week of Sundays......One of Quebec's best tennis singles players, Branden Macken, has left for a United States university, knocking a big hole in McGill's net hopes ....Joe March, Montreal boxer familiar around the circuits there and in Toronto, has been killed in action overseas......Reports from the West say there will be no Macdonald Brier bonspiel in Saskatoon next spring, whether war conditions would permit or not....Shades of Primo Carnera. St. Catharines Saints have a husky defenceman-centre ice pastimer lined up for this winter in the person of Pat Clemens, big Scot who hails from the Pembroke, Ont., area. At "fighting weight" he scales 250 pounds. but is reportedly as nimble as you like on the blades.

Hornets Retain League Lead

By The Canadian Press

After five straight victories, Pittsburg Hornets could do no better than draw with Indianapolis Capitals last night, but they maintained their lead in the American Hockey League standings just the same.

The Hornets were one of three teams to pick up three points in double games during the week-end, defeating the Caps 4-1 Saturday night before running into suddenly-stiffened opposition from the same quarter Sunday. Providence Reds whipped Cleveland Barons 3-1 Saturday while Hershey Bears were shutting out Buffalo Bisons, 3-0, and Reds and Bears split 3-3 Sunday.

The Barons atoned somewhat for their Saturday night loss by whipping Buffalo 3-1 Sunday.

The Pittsburg-Indianapolis clash Sunday night turned out to be the wildest game of the week-end, with Linesman Rabbit McVeigh suffering a foot injury in a wild mix-up in the second period, and Gordon Sherritt of the Caps suffering a head cut that bathed his neck in blood after a check by Art Knipfel.

The Caps tied the count mid-way through the third period on Johnny Sorrell's counter after Bill Gauf had shot the Hornets into the lead early in the game. The Saturday night encounter was tame by comparison.

QUEEN MOTHER — This latest portrait of dowager Queen Mary was taken at the christening of Prince Richard, younger son of the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, on October 20.

Memorial Service Held For Soldier

MARMORA, Oct. 30—(ENS). — A memorial service for the late Pte Johnny O'Brien, who died in Italy September 23, from wounds received that same day, was conducted in St. Paul's Church at 11 a.m. Sunday by Rev. J. M. Brownlie, L.Th., S.Th, newly appointed rector of the parish.

Included in the large congregation were relatives of the soldier and members of Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion. Flowers in the sanctuary and chancel in his memory were the gift of the Legion and former fellow-employees of the late Private O'Brien of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, Limited.

An eloquent speech was delivered by the rector, who spoke of Johnny O'Brien as a representative soldier, as one who went into service not for anything he could boast of, but to give his all in the cause of humanity. His text was chosen from Matthew 22, verses 37 to 39, which contains Christ's statement of the two great commandments. His theme was "The Purpose of Life." He declared at the outset that the greatest need in the world today is for a clear-cut purpose in life and later in his sermon emphasized that lack of faith in the world to come is always equated with lack of joy in the world that now is.

The remainder of the sermon was an elaboration of the three parts of the purpose of life: that we should glorify God; that we train our souls for eternity; that we put religion into practice. Prior to the recessional hymn, the Last Post was sounded by Comrade George Brooks.

Annual Dinner Held By Horticulturists

OMEMEE, Oct. 30.—(ENS).—Fifty-eight members and guests of the Omemee and District Horticultural Society enjoyed a pleasant time when they met in th basement of Trinity United church for their annual pot luck supper, at which they heard a fine address by M. H. Winter of Lindsay, agricultural representative for the district.

The room and the tables were tastefully decorated with flowers, candles and crepe paper, all carrying out the orange and black Hallowe'en colors. Between courses and following the meal Bill Weir led in community singing.

John Bent, chairman and president of the Society, began the evening program by proposing a toast to the King. Rev. R. M. Patterson welcomed the members and guests to the church, following which a report of the meetings held during the year was presented by the secretary, Horace Hill. Following is a brief outline of meetings held throughout the year: October 1943, pot luck supper; November, illustrated lecture on trees and roses; January, 1944, annual meeting; February, reports of Ontario horticultural convention by Mrs. H. Deyell and Mrs. W. D. Weir; March, talk on seeds by Mr. E. A. Cornell; April and May, illustrated lectures; June, picnic, including visits to two beautiful gardens in Peterborough; July, talk, "Arranging Flowers for Showing," by Mr. Ball of Peterborough; August, annual flower show; September, lantern lecture on bulbs.

Mr. Bent commended the members on their fine work in winning for the second consecutive year, the district cup for the highest number of points in the district show held in Bobcaygeon. The cup was on display for all to enjoy. A certificate of merit was presented to the member deemed most worthy of it for all round work in the society during the year, namely Mrs. S. H. Moyer. Special mention was also made of the youngest member, Miss Mary Evelyn Cornell.

The address by Mr. Winter on "The Calendar" proved to be extremely interesting. He traced the history of our calendar and explained several proposed new arrangements which are being considered.

The fall premium of tulip bubs was distributed to the members by Mrs. H. Hill, an an announcement was made regarding the November meeting which will be on "Plants," and there will be an exchange of potted plants by the members.

WHAT PRICE SAVINGS?

THE HOPES AND DREAMS of a lifetime, gone up in smoke! Wiped out in a few minutes before their very eyes! And it's too late to start over!

That little house was the symbol of their dreams, the result of years of saving. Then came 1940 and the blitz. They were lucky, then. Others lost, but their home came through the merciless pounding of those terror-stricken months. They're not so lucky now. Their dream has been smashed by a robomb.

MAYBE you're dreaming, too? Perhaps there's a growing balance in the bank, earmarked for a little home of your own. But, while you're waiting and working, are your dollars working, too? Are they working to put an end to a tyranny that is robbing millions of their dreams, their hopes, their lives?

The money you are putting by for your future can help now to bring peace to the world—help bring relief to those millions who have lived in peril for so long. Every dollar you invest in Canada's Seventh Victory Loan is doing double duty—giving you a stake in peacetime tomorrow, bringing Victory closer! Don't hesitate! FIRE REPORT

Firemen were called out after eight o'clock this morning to extinguish a small blaze in the city dump on Rogers street in Ashburnham. This is the third fire in the dump in four days.

GOING TO SARNIA

J. A. Jebson, chairman of the Peterborough Memorial Centre, is going to Sarnia for a meeting Thursday night at which he will answer questions and tell the story of Peterborough's successful subscription campaign, and also the broad idea of the Memorial Centre.

INDUCTION DR. JAMES TEMPLE

The induction service for Dr. James Temple will be held in George Street United church, Thursday evening, at eight o'clock, with Dr. E. W. Young, chairman of the Presbytery, presiding, and conducting the induction. Dr. J. R. R. Cooper will conduct the worship and Rev. E W Rowland will preach the sermon. Rev. E. D. Snelgrove will read the official record and Rev. George Murray will give the address to minister and people. Members of the Presbytery in the city and immediate neighborhood have been invited to be present.

Farmers Retain Victory Bonds

The observation of Ernie Pearson, deputy-reeve of Smith, that Peterborough farmers are holding on to their Victory Bands is endorsed by C. S. Cummer, manager of the Bank of Montreal.

Mr. Pearson is one of the Victory Loan canvassers in Smith township. He remarked to the Examiner the other day how deeply he was impressed by the spirit of many of the farmers buying Bonds.

"There are some not buying, but you can hardly expect much from the fellow who has his place mortgaged. Even some of them manage to take a Bond or two. They know if they come to the pinch they can turn it into cash just as easy as cashing a cheque. On the farm you have to have some money on hand. You never know what you are really going to need around the place. It seems to me that some of the farmers actually get ready months ahead for the Victory Loan, and they know almost to the dollar what they can invest. And they are not turning in their Loans for any foolish purpose. They are doing without some things that are of course not essentials to their living, and they are holding their Bonds, and they'll be glad they did one of these days when no one is asking them to buy any more Victory Bonds and they count up the total they bought."

Said Mr. Cummer: "In regard to keeping their Victory Bonds, I think our farmers are the most faithful class of the community. Probably they are a little slow in the participating in the first few loans, but the reason for that was their income was low; they had come through lean years, and they just didn't have the money on hand to invest. But, since then their share of the Victory Loans has been steadily increasing, and I know they are holding them. They won't convert a Bond unless they positively need the money, and of course that is exactly what the Government is asking them to do."

Smith Farmers Placed Fourth In Competition

Don Milburn and Burritt Mann of Smith returned Saturday afternoon from Guelph where they placed fourth in the swine judging competition of the junior farmer events which brought together teams from 47 counties of Ontario.

West Durham placed first in the swine judging event with a score of 1,033 out of a possible 1,200. Middlesex was second with 1,030, and a second Middlesex team third at 982. The Peterborough score was 979. Seventeen teams competed in the swine judging, and the local boys felt that they had given a good account of themselves in a strong class. East Durham was fifth.

York county was first in dairy cattle judging; West Durham in potatoes; a senior Durham team led in grain judging; Ontario county took first honors in beef cattle, Grenville in poultry and Middlesex in the foal class. The contest closed with a dinner Friday evening with an attendance of three hundred. The chairman was George I. Christie, president of the Ontario Agricultural College.

Peterborough Greeks At Special Service

Peterborough's numerically small Greek community was represented by Mr. and Mrs. L. Yeotes, Mrs. W Coros and son George and John Moussmoulis at the religious service of thanksgiving Sunday in St. George's Greek Church, Bond street, Toronto, for the liberation of the Hellenic fatherland from the brutal power of Germany. After the ceremony hundreds of men, women and children from Toronto and other Ontario centres paraded to the Cenotaph at the city hall where they placed a wreath in remembrance of the fallen.

Telegrams were sent to Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt, Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister King in which George Bulucon, president of the Greek community in Toronto, expressed the thanks of his countrymen for the aid which has been sent to Greece and for the fighting quality of those who had helped liberate his country. Hope was expressed that all Greece will be free again by March 25th, anniversary of liberation from the yoke of the Turks.

Payroll Savings Section Does Good Job

Canadian Flag Manufacturing Company at Brock and Chambers streets is only a minor organization in the city's list of industries, but in the Victory Loan campaigns it is usually up in the front ranks and top drawer. It is again prominent in the Payroll Saving section with 200 per cent of its objective, supported by all the staff.

Here are some more Group Payroll results:—W. R. Turner (estate) Simcoe street, plumbing and heating, 191 per cent of objective and 100 per cent investing.

Toronto Girl Dies In Crash

Margaret Gairns, 21, Toronto, was instantly killed early Saturday morning when the large Weston Bread Company tractor truck in which she was a passenger en route to Peterborough collided with a pole about three miles west of Welcome on No. 1 Highway, after a broken tie-rod in the tractor sent the machine out of control. Wally Taylor, 21, of Toronto, was the driver of the vehicle and it is believed he suffered several broken ribs in the accident. Police said the truck jackknifed against a large boulder.

The truck carrying a large supply of bread, cakes and pies, was making the daily trip from Toronto to Peterborough. It usually arrives in this city between four-thirty in the morning and five o'clock.

It is thought the dead girl was Taylor's girl friend, and officials here said it was believed the girl had made the trip with the young man several times in the past. The driver has been on the run from Toronto to Peterborough for about a year.

Although the bread in the truck remained intact, only small amounts of the cakes and pies were salvaged.

Walter Curtis Made Captain

As another step upwards in a steady rise since he enlisted in the S. D. and G. Highlanders as a private almost five years ago, Walter Curtis, whose wife, formerly Madeleine Doherty, lives at 705 Water street, has been promoted to the rank of Acting Captain, according to word reaching his wife. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Curtis, 50 River Road.

Commissioned a lieutenant in England, Acting Captain Curtis was with that group of S. D. and G. Highlanders who stormed ashore during the Allied invasion of France. He enlisted in 1940 when that unit was recruiting at the Armories here, and after spending some time in Ottawa, Debert, Kingston and Camp Borden, went overseas in 1941, during July.

A former employee of the Canada Packers Company, the 31-year-old soldier has never been wounded, in the time he has served with Canada's armed forces.

Four District Men On Casualty List

Four men from the Peterborough district have been officially reported casualties while serving with Canadian forces abroad, according to an announcemnet from the Department of National Defence today.

Two soldiers were listed as being "wounded in action". They are Pte. Carman S. Bushnell, with an Eastern Ontario Regiment, whose wife lives at 54 Charles street, Port Hope, and L.-Sgt. Carl T. Craig, with the Royal Canadian Artillery, and the son of Mrs. Lottie Craig, R.R. 3, Port Hope.

Pte. Walter G. Balfour, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Balfour, 23 Wolfe street, Lindsay, was reported wounded but remaining on duty, while serving with a Central Ontario regiment. Pte. Everett C. Boldrick, son of Mrs. Jane Boldrick, R.R. 2, Tweed, was listed slightly wounded, while serving with an Eastern Ontario regiment. Rfn. John Dalton Martin, whose wife lives in Lindsay, was wounded while serving with an Eastern Ontario regiment.

VICTIM OF WAR—This youngster is known simply as "Stoyan." He is just one of hundreds of refugees now being cared for in a United Nations relief and rehabilitation administration camp in the Middle East. Stoyan is a Yugoslav who lived for a year in the mountains while his mother and father fought the Germans. A victim of malnutrition, Stoyan has the physical proportions of a one-year-old child. He is three.

C.G.E.-Genelco Drive Said Best Yet

"The most successful Victory Loan campaign in our plant's record," to quote Ian McRae, works manager, closed at Saturday noon for the employees of C.G.E.-Genelco with total subscriptions of $538,400 as posted on the board this morning.

That was the official closing, but the canvassing committee is expecting that the last minute investing will carry the total to the $540,000 mark. Everybody in the big plant is happy about the surge of Victory Bond buying that boomed the plant response to nearly $90,000 beyond the minimum objective of $450,000.

"We have a fine canvassing committee and they deserve a lot of credit," saaid Mr. McRae, "but it was the employees as a whole who put this Loan across. They have done a wonderful piece of work, and the tributes belong to them."

Another member of the executive staff of the works said everybody was not only happy but also surprised at the volume of buying that appeared throughout the plant for this Seventh Victory Loan.

"If they hang on to their Bonds until after the war, they'll have a nice chunk of money to start the new period of peace with."

Every department in C.G.E.-Genelco, except two, had cleared their objectives, and canvassers reported that they had not given up hope for those two.

Delegates Attend UEW Convention

Meeting in Toronto over the week-end, delegates to the eighth annual convention of the United Electrical Workers, C. I. O., District Five Council passed a resolution urging the Federal Government to take immediate steps in the interest of full employment in the post war, that the new reconstruction Department include representatives of industry, agriculture and labour; make full and immediate plans for demobilization; that Government-owned plants (such as Genelco) set the example of full employment and good working conditions.

Other resolutions reaffirmed the unqualified and unconditional no strike policy of the Union which it was noted had been carried out 100 per cent; called for trade union unity in Canada, sought amendment to P. C. 1003 to include certification of a Union where it receives the majority of the votes cast, the outlawing of all forms of Company Unions, establismment of sub-regional boards to facilitate the operation of the Order.

The meeting further went on record in favour of $125 clothing allowance and a minimum gratuities figure of $300 retroaction for all who have served in Canada's Armed Forces.

The Ontario Government was asked to enact enabling housing legislation so that municipalities could build homes under limited-dividend housing corporation. C. S Jackson and George Harris were re-elected President and Secretary Treasurer of the Canadian District of the Union.

Delegates attending the Convention from Peterborough included Bert Buott, Ken Sliter and Harry Pearce of the Genelco Local, Mrs. Lundy, Mrs. Pearce, Mrs. Sliter and Mrs. Teasdale of the U. E. Ladies Auxiliary and Phyllis Blair and Bob Ward of the staff.

TORONTO, Oct. 30 (CP)—Dr. I. H. Erb, pathologist, will conduct a post-mortem examination upon the body of Mrs. Elsie May Lea, 22, of Toronto, who died late Saturday after being removed semi-conscious to St. Michael's Hospital. Coroner Julian Loudon investigated and ordered the post-mortem performed.

Just A Gag

BRIGHAM, Utah, Oct. 30 —(AP).—Residents of this town were excited when they received circulars advertising steel tricycles, steel runner sleds, electric trains and many other pre-war toys. But when they flocked to the store to buy Christmas presents, harried clerks explained that the circulars had been given to boys for the waste-paper salvage drive and the youths had distributed them as a joke.

Driver Is Unable To Recall Crash

Herbert McGee, Bobcaygeon truck driver, told Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning that he could not remember anything about an accident in which he was involved on the evening of October 23 on the Flat Road in Otonabee.

McGee received head injuries when his truck overturned in the ditch and called as a Crown witness this morning in a charge against Kenneth Thompson, member of the Mercantile Marine, of having stolen $37 and three gasoline ration books from McGee, said that from the time he started out that evening in company with two other men in his truck he could not remember anything until he was talking to his wife in St. Joseph's Hospital late that night.

McGee stated that he came into Peterborough that day to sell three cows. Early in the afternoon he said that he met a number of young men in the Grand beverage room and had some beer with them. He had heard some one say they were sailors but said he could not remember how they were dressed.

Asked if he could identify the accused McGee said that he could not.

Bought Beer.

When the beverage room closed at 2 o'clock, the witness said that they had gone to the brewery warehouse, bought a case of 12 quarts of beer on his permit and driven to some one's house where the beer was consumed. Later some of the young men and the witness went to the King George Hotel. Then two of them and himself started out in his truck, with one of the others driving, he said, and he could remember nothing else until he was talking with his wife in the hospital hours afterward.

McGee could not say positively how much money he had on him when he left in the truck with the young men. He thought he had $50 when he came to town, and finally said he might have had $30 or $40 when he started out with the men. Later in the hospital he discovered that his money was gone.

C. G. Frost, K.C., of Lindsay, who was looking after McGee's interests, pointed out at one stage of the witness's evidence that McGee was claiming the protection of the Ontario and Canada Evidence Acts.

Met Pedestrians.

Claud Bertrand, employee of the Duffus Garage, said that on last Monday evening while driving along the Flat Road he had seen a truck turned over in the ditch and picked up three men who were walking toward town. One of them was McGee. Asked as to the others, Bertrand picked out a sailor and a civilian in the audience as the two men who were with McGee, although he admitted that he had not paid much attention to them.

Provincial Constable Price Morris who investigated the affair, said that along with Constable John Morrow of the city police, that following the accident they had been searching for a sailor and another man in a brown windbreaker. Passing Courneya's refreshment booth Constable Morris said that he saw two men inside who answered the description. He noticed them go out the back door of the booth and return in a short time and he had placed Thompson under arrest. Later witness and Constable Morrow searched the ground back of the booth but found nothing. A wallet belonging to McGee had been found by the witness in the glove department of McGee's car with some of the paper scattered around the floor of the car.

To W. J. Arthur Fair who defended Thompson, witness said that, the truck had been left unguarded for some time after the accident.

Constable Morrow corroborated the provincial officer's evidence.

Search Near Booth.

Constable W. A. Clarke said that in company with Sergt. W. E. Wigg, he had searched the property back of the Courneya booth at 3 o'clock the next morning and found the three gasoline ration books that had previously been identified by McGee as his property.

After a trial within a trial as to the admissibility of a statment made by Thompson at the police station in which Sergt. Wigg and Constable Reg. McMillan were called as witnesses Magistrate Langley ruled that the statment might be admitted.

Constable Clarke said that in answer to questions Thompson had admitted being in the Courneya booth and going out the back door but when confronted with the gasoline ration books said that he had never seen them before. Thompson said, the witness swore, that he and his companion had walked to the refreshment booth after getting out of the truck near Chief Thompson's house.

The case was adjourned at this stage for luncheon.

The totals for the first week were $1,554,750 or 33.8 per cent of the increased present objective of $4,600,000; and at the one-third mark in the Spring campaign —$1,301,400 which was 29.9 per cent of the total objective of $4,500,000.

Amphibious Jeep To Show Tricks

Along with a convoy of mechanized army equipment, the much talked-about "missing jeep", otherwise known as the Duck, will arrive in Peterborough this evening, ready to go to work in the interests of Peterborough's Seventh Victory Loan campaign. Tonight, the convoy and amphibious jeep will be on display to the public at large at the Training Centre, from eight o'clock until 10 o'clock.

Although city residents have waited some time to see this amazing vehicle, which is loaned by the United States Government for use in Victory Bond shows, a special demonstration of its talents will be presented Tuesday evening on the shores of Little Lake, between five and six o'clock.

A parade Tuesday of all types of military mechanized equipment accompanied by the A. 11 Camp Borden Band, will precede the demonstration. The Duck will be in the parade, starting from Market Square at five o'clock, and covering the main business section of the city before going to Little Lake.

As much at home in the water as it is on land, it can travel from one to the other by a quick and easy shifting of controls. The rudder and wheels are guided by the same steeering apparatus. During one year, the Duck emerged from a secret Allied weapon to a battle-scarred invasion veteran. It is valuable for landing operations in assaults on enemy shores, and in hauling supplies from ships to shore. When the Duck travels a road in a shell-pocked country, lack of bridges or lack of roads does not impede its progress.

For the technical-minded, it is a combination of a standard two and a half ton, six wheel driver, military chassis with an all steel hull, propeller and rudder. Undoubtedly, the Duck was in action many months before the censors allowed it to be described. The British Eighth Army used hundreds of this type of vehicle in the crossing of the Straits of Messina during the Italian invasion, and since then, operations and amphibious movements in Europe have all been helped by the employment of the amphibious jeep. Large numbers are also being used in Pacific battles.

Among the mechanized equipment in the convoy, will be many weapons at war which will be seen by city residents for the first time. It is to include a tank, tank-transporter, a 25-pounder gun, a Bofors anti-aircraft gun, and a six-pounder anti-tank gun.

War Displays Shown In Store Windows

An impressive display in the interests of Canada's Seventh Victory Loan campaign can be found in the windows of many of the city's stores. In Kresge's main window, a large "V", decorated with the flags of the United Nations, is surrounded by a collection of weapons of war. The most interesting is the "Pathfinder" bomb-sight. A Browning gun, signal pistol, and models of modern warplanes complete the show.

In the C.D.S. side window, some of the wearing apparel soldiers need is displayed. Surrounded by appropriate posters advertising Victory bonds, the clothing shows that our soldiers are the best-dressed fighting men in the world. A suit of clothes designed for gas warfare is also a feature.

SERVING OVERSEAS — Tpr. Gus L. Yeotes, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Yeotes, 317 Boswell avenue, is serving overseas. With the tank corps, he enlisted just after reaching his 18th birthday. He worked with his father before enlisting.

Furnace Blast Causes Fire

Following an explosion in the furnace, of such intensity as to knock all the pipes down and lift the furance several inches off its base, fire and smoke caused between $1,000 and $1,500 damage to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Nelson, 364 Park Hill Road, Saturday evening.

Fire Chief George Gimblett said to-day the cause of the exploson has not been determined, and a heating expert will be called in to attempt to find a reason for the blast. Fire was confined to the cellar of the building, but heavy smoke seeped through the house and also caused property damage. Personal articles in the cellar were destroyed.

Firemen believe the explosion was of a powerful nature and the coal was blown out of the firebox, and the door of the furnace hurled across the cellar. The furnace had been fired with fresh coal about 30 minutes before the blast.

Twelve year old Barbara Nelson, in the house at the time, phoned her father, who was visiting a neighbor. Mr. Nelson called the fire department, and fire fighters had the blaze under control within a brief period. Arriving at the scene promptly, firemen called out renforcements from the department.

A New Plan

TORONTO, Oct. 30 —(CP)—Miss Mary Reilly, director of occupational therapy at Lovell General Hospital, Fort Devens, Mass., said Saturday that modified "commando" training given advanced patients who were convalescing was returning soldiers to the battlefields "faster and stronger than we ever dreamed of before."

MURDER TRIAL STARTS

A grand jury under Mr. Justice Ainslie Greene today at Cobourg will hear a charge of murder against Charles Francis Davey, 16, ward of the Boys' Training School at Bowmanville, Ont., He is charged with the slaying last July of Norman Beatty Lamb, four-years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lamb of Cavan township.

Former Citizen Supports Good Neighbors

In setting out to do works o[f] goodwill for others, no individua[l] or group can ever guage just ho[w] far the influence of their unselfis[h] deeds may spread, for men wh[o] think deeply on such matters hav[e] ever admired this trait, that ha[s] all the earmarks of a genuine de[-]sire on the part of anyone wh[o] gives of one's self, in order that les[s] fortunate people may benefit.

The Good Neighbors Group whic[h] commenced through the deeds o[f] two good neighbors living besid[e] each other on Ware street, and the[n] spread so as to take in other ladie[s] of like mind and purpose, to wor[k] on behalf of the Peterborough an[d] District British War Victims' Fun[d] may well come within this categor[y] for the relatively large amount o[f] money for a group of this size the[y] have now raised for this purpos[e] comes to a very large extent fro[m] the members themselves.

The story of their most recen[t] gift towards the special fund fo[r] Christmas now being raised, wa[s] noticed in a copy of this paper b[y] a former citizen now residing in fa[r] away Cincinnati, Ohio, whose inter[-]est was thus awakened, so that h[e] desired to be associated with th[e] Good Neighbor group in the sam[e] work, the result of which was th[e] forwarding of a cheque for $100.0[0] by him for that purpose.

As a friend of the late Lt. Co[l.] Joe Mills and Mrs. Mills, Bolton [S.] Armstrong has kept up a regul[ar] correspondence with them sin[ce] leaving this city many years ag[o] there having been former instance[s] of a practical nature, wherein h[e] has displayed a keen interest [in] other welfare efforts that were be[-]ing carried on here, and this late[st] evidence of his goodwill was als[o] received through Mrs. Mills.

The Good Neighbors group ar[e] naturally very elated over this gi[ft] from Mr. Armstrong, which incid[-]entally through the premium valu[e] on U.S.A. currency extends itsel[f] to $110.00, and it will greatly en[-]courage their further efforts fo[r] the good cause, which are proceed[-]ing apace in continuing to rais[e] money for the objects which hav[e] brought them together under tha[t] name.

Instances such as this of forme[r] citizens interest in the promotion o[f] good works in their once nativ[e] hearth, cannot help but stimulat[e] the efforts of those responsible fo[r] leadership in such, besides su[g-]gesting to others now far away wh[o] come within reach of reading thes[e] lines, their own potentiality to hel[p] in a similar manner.

With this latest contribution fro[m] Mr. Armstrong, the Christmas Fun[d] now has a balance of $2,063.51 o[n] hand in the bank.

Peterborough Man Wed In Toronto

A gown of baroque ivory crepe, fashioned from her mother's wedding dress, was chosen by Nora Jean Campbell, for her marriage to William Earl Leggett of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, in St. Andrew's Anglican Church, Grimsby, recently. Rev. A. Brooks officiated, assisted by Rev. H. H. Marsh of St. Timothy's Church, Toronto, in a church set with 'mums and gladioli for the occasion.

With her gown, which was made with a fitted basque and sweeping skirt, the bodice fashioned with long finely tucked sleeves and a portrait neckline encrusted with a bertha of heirloom lace, the bride wore a floor-length veil of matching ivory tulle, caught to a Sweetheart halo of shirred net, embroidered with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink roses, bouvardia, and swainsona. She was given in marriage by her brother, Donald A. Campbell.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Campbell and the late J. Alexander Campbell, formerly of Grimsby and Niagara, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Clement Leggett of Peterborough. He spent a year and a half overseas as a lieutenant in the Canadian Armored Corps before receiving his honorable discharge because of a lowered category.

Attending the bride were Miss Jean McKenzie of Chippewa, as maid of honor, and Miss Olive Cassellman of Kingston, as bridesmaid. They were dressed alike in moss green velveteen ensembles, fashioned with slim skirts and fitted jackets, accented with bustle bows. Each wore a little watteau hat of shirred matching velveteen with bronze and green bows, and carried a cascade of bronze and yellow 'mums with cream roses.

Flt. Lt. Frederick Staples Hiley, D.F.M., of Ottawa, was best man, and the ushers were Clement A. Leggett of Bolton, brother of the groom, William J. McGauley of Toronto, and Sgt. J. Garry Campbell of Trenton, brother of the bride.

At the reception held at the Anchorage, Grimsby, the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Globe, the bride's mother received the guests in a willow grey and winterberry ensemble, with corsage of pink roses and fuchsia gladioli petals. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore a wood violet gown, with a corsage of bright pink roses and bouvardia.

For a wedding trip to the north, the bride donned an ensemble of Gobelin green, a matching coat trimmed with a tuxedo of silver fox accented with black accessories, and a corsage of cream roses. On their return Mr. and Mrs Leggett will make their home in Toronto.

Flt. Sgt. M. Doran Wed In Alberta

A pretty wedding of interest took placerecently in St. Vincent's church, Clareholm, Alta., when Flight Sgt. Michael John Doran, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Doran, of Peterborough, took as his bride Nellie Mary Lamb, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Lamb, of Claresholm. Rev. Fr. Lambert officiated, and Mrs. D. Dickmier, the bride's godmother, sang "Ave Maria" during the signing of the register, and other hymns during the mass.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length dress of lime green bunny-wool, with brown accessories, and carried a bouquet of deep red roses. She wore a double strand of pearls, the gift of the groom. Miss Eileen Beaubier was her attendant, in rose-colored bunny-wool dressmaker suit, with dark green accessories, and carrying a bouquet of pink carnations. PO. Wilfred Crough, of No. 15 S.F.T.S., attended his cousin as groomsman.

At the reception, held following the ceremony, at the bride's home, the table was centred wtih the bride's three-tier wedding cake, flanked by vases of roses and carnations. Rev. Lambert proposed the toast to the bride and the groom responded.

For a wedding trip to Banff, the bride chose a cocoa brown dressmaker suit, with a corsage of roses. On their return, Flt. Sgt. Doran and Mrs. Doran will live in Watson, Sask. The bridesmaid's gift was a pair of silver earrings, and the groomsman received a leather billfold.

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

TEEN-AGE MARRIAGES UNWISE

After 40 Years of Warnings, Writer Finds Girls Still Try Them and Regret.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am 17 years old. Have been married almost two years. Have twin babies 11 months old and expect another one soon. My husband is 22 years of age and is in the service somewhere overseas.

I love my husband and babies very much, but I am getting tired of being tied down with babies and cooking and washing and long for a little freedom and the pleasures that belong to my time of life. My fate is sealed, but I want to warn other girls against getting married so young.

DARLENE.

Teen-Agers Go Slowly

ANSWER — My dear child, for forty years this column has been practically a megaphone shouting DON'T DO IT to teen-agers who are bent upon rushing into marriage before they are ready to accept its responsibilities and bear its burdens.

I have told them that a young girl's taste in men changed from day to day with her development, and that she knows no more what kind of a husband she would want when she was grown up than she knows what sort of a hat she will want four or five seasons from now. I have told them that marriage wasn't just a permanent date with a lad who was a good dancer and had a keen line; that it was work and worry, and crying babies and diapers, and putting somebody else's happiness before their own.

And, most of all, I have warned these poor, foolish little girls that if they married before they had any playtime in their lives, they would regret it; that before their trousseaux were worn out they would be tired of sitting at home every evening with a boy who was just as tired of them as they were of him, and that they would want to be running around and going places and doing things and having good times, as the other girls of their age were doing. For being married doesn't change a girl's desires. It only makes the things she wants to do more tempting because they are forbidden fruit.

I have told them that under Heaven there is no other figure more pathetic than the child wife and mother struggling with a job that is too old for her, and with which she has neither the wisdom nor the strength to cope. But teen-agers don't listen to advice. They are sure that nothing untoward can happen to them. And they go on marrying and filling the divorce courts.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — They say there is no cure for jealousy. My remedy for it would be for husbands to treat their wives like Lady Loves instead of household conveniences. A wife is bound to doubt her husband's affection if he never gives her a word of love and praise. My husband's cold silence has given me an inferiority complex that makes me fear every woman he sees, and fills me with an insane jealousy, but I would overcome this jealousy and be supremely happy if he would only pay me a compliment now and then.

GRACE.

Flattery May Cure Jealousy

ANSWER — I doubt if there is any cure-all for jealousy, for jealousy doesn't have to have anything tangible to grow on. It manufactures its own poison and can fatten just as much upon fancies as it can upon facts. However, any remedy is worth trying. And perhaps if husbands blarneyed their wives more, they would have to do less explaining of why their secretaries always happen to be good-lookers.

◆ ◆ ◆

DEAR MISS DIX — What is personality?

TOM AND BOB.

◆ ◆ ◆

ANSWER — Personality is the little intangible something about each of us that makes us different from anyone else in the world. And it is either our greatest blessing or our greatest curse.

North Monaghan Section Becomes Ward 1

The part of North Monaghan to be annexed to the city south of Lansdowne street and its extension becomes Ward Number One of the city in the effect of the Township of North Monaghan Act, 1944, embodying and giving authority to the agreement terms of annexation.

The present wards of the city which are numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5 "shall be respectively numbered Wards 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6.

Ward Number 1 becomes on January 1, 1945 an entirely new section of the city. The part of the township between the extensions of Lansdowne and Sherbrooke streets is attached to Ward Number 2 as redesignated. According to the present divisions of the city that part of the township becomes attached to Ward No. 1, and after annexation Ward No. 1 becomes Ward No. 2.

Ratepayers of the remnant rural part of the township had in mind at their recent meeting clause 9 (a) of the agreement, and thereby of the order of the Ontario Municipal Board, when they asked for early action in the adjustment of financial provisions. That clause directs that the township, the city and the Board of Education of the city shall be bound "to make an adjustment of assets and liabilities pursuant to section 23 of the Municipal Act and section 38 of the Public Schools Act shall apply as between the municipalities and school sections affected by this Order, and in the event of the parties hereto not being able to agree upon the adjustment of assets and liabilities then all such questions of adjustment may be referred to Judge Sheldon L. Smoke, or such other person or persons as the Board may appoint, who shall make enquiry and report to the Municipal Board upon the adjustment of assets and liabilities and all right and claims, liabilities or obligations referred to in clauses (a), (b) and (c) of subsection 8 of Section 23 of the Municipal Act."

Section 1 of the Board's Order provides for the determining and levying by the city, taxes, assessments, rents, water, school and other rates of the annexed districts, and that they shall be payable at the same time and in the same manner as taxes, assessments, etc., on the property within the old boundaries of Peterborough as they now exist; and the assessment of the incoming part of the city shall be on the same basis as the old. The only point of difference permits the city's assessment department may make its valuation of the part of the township to be annexed at any time "after the date of the confirmation of this Order by the Legislature of Ontario".

Has Become Law

The order has become law, and it is understood that assessment in the present rural area to be annexed has been finished.

Section 2 directs that the township shall allow the city access to its assessment roll of the part of the township to be annexed and to all local improvement bylaws, assessment rolls, plans and surveys.

Section 3 (a) affirms that all taxes imposed by the township in the annexed areas up to the time the Act confirming the Order (the date it received Royal assent) and all arrears of taxes owing in the said district shall belong to the township.

Clause (b) of the section: "The Corporation of the township of North Monaghan shall prepare and furnish to the Corporation of the City of Peterborough a special Collector's Roll showing all arrears of taxes or special rates assessed against the lands in the annexed areas up to the day which is fixed by the Act of the Legislature confirming this Order, and the persons assessed therefor."

Clause 3 (c) provides for the city to collect all taxes belonging to the township in "the said district" as set out in clause 3(a), according to "the said special collector's roll, including the right to distrain for non-payment of said arrears, of if necessary the right to sell the said lands, if any, for non-payment of such arrears, as fully as if the said taxes had been assessed and levied by the city", but the proceeds after deducting any expenses of collection shall be turned over by the city to the township within six months from the date of collection, "provided that the city shall proceed to collect said arrears of taxes shown on the special roll, in the same manner as if it had assessed and levied the same, and for that purpose the city shall have all the rights and powers conferred upon municipalities by the Assessment Act, or other Act in force regarding the collections of arrears of taxes in the annexed areas, but the city shall not be responsible to the township for any such arrears which it may be unable to collect."

Clause (d) provides that the township shall indemnify the city "and save it harmless" from all loss, costs, charges and expenses arising from any act or omission of the township or their officials or servants in connection with the said Special Roll.

Section 4 authorizes the city to set up polling subdivisions in the area to be annexed, and to prepare a list of voters.

Section 5(a) declares that all rights, title and interest of the township in the highways and streets in the area to be annexed, also rights title and interest in any franchises or agreements "insofar only as they affect the portions of the said highways and streets in the areas "shall vest in the Corporation of the City of Peterborough".

Clause (b) "All rights, title and interest of the township in any other lands and premises in said annexed area shall vest in the Corporation of the City of Peterborough."

Section 6—"Where any work has been constructed in the said areas and is defective or insufficient, the city may proceed with the construction of required works under the provisions of the Local Improvement Act, notwithstanding the lifetime of the first mentioned work has not expired."

Section 7 entitles residents of the several areas to be annexed to water, gas and electricity from the Peterborough Utilities Commission upon the same terms and conditions as the other residents of the city.

Clause 3 of the Legislature's Bill, incorporating the Municipal Board's Order, provides that: "Any lands of two acres or more, in the part of the township annexed to the city and now used for agricultural or gardening purposes shall, so long as so used, be assessed in each year for a period of five years at such amount as may be agreed upon by the city and the persons assessed, or failing such agreement as shall be determined by the Ontario Municipal Board."

Clause 4 permits the trustees of School Section No. 2, North Monaghan (Confederation and May's) and the Board of Education of the city, (the exact word is "may"), subject to the consent of the Minister of Education, enter into an agreement in respect of (a) the maintenance and control by the Board of Education, for the City of Peterborough, of the public schools in the area to be annexed as and from September 1, 1944 until January 1, 1945, in consideration of the payment to the Board of Education by the Board of S.S. No. 2 of a sum to be agreed upon by the said Boards in four equal monthly payments; and (b) the attendance of pupils resident within the remainder of S.S. No. 2 for such period as may be agreed upon.

SWIFT'S WEEKLY FOOD HINTS

Martha Logan

Martha Logan, Swift's famed home economist, who tells of the gay antics of "The Breakfast Club," this continent's most popular daytime radio show.

Don McNeill, jovial master of ceremonies, interviews a member of "The Breakfast Club" audience

Begins this week

On Oct. 30, Swift sponsors Breakfast Club on Canadian air waves

Want a hearty laugh first thing in the morning? Here's my prescription: listen to the gay, fast-moving Breakfast Club broadcast each morning, Monday through Friday, starting this week, over the Trans-Canada network! Sponsored by Swift's, the show is led by Don McNeill, the gay, goony master of ceremonies, who uses no scripts, but says and does the first thing that comes into his head. See the panel for times and radio stations in your locality and listen in each day.

"The Breakfast Club" is likely to feature anyone from the studio janitor to the cop on the corner, when Don starts out on his audience interviews. The whole show is scriptless giving Don unlimited opportunities to ring in the funniest gags, the craziest stunts and the biggest laughs without a moment's notice. This is one of the features that year after year has made "The Breakfast Club" top radio show when popularity polls are taken.

Remember, "The Breakfast Club" each morning, Monday through Friday . . . and remember too, food is a weapon of war. Buy it wisely; cook it properly; eat it up.

John Ruttan of Trent River, president of the association, presided for the meeting, the devotional period being conducted by Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, during which Rev. J. R. Bick, of Seymour, led in praper.

Rev. E. M. Cadigan, of Marmora, was the guest speaker, who said his address was not criticism but issuing a call for service, and dealt with the building up of both the Sunday school and church. He gave in detail a canvass system which had been used in a charge where he had served a minister in the west and the result was a great growth in the membership of all organizations. He strongly urged the need of deep concern among church members and Sunday school officers and said that God's Kingdom must be established where the people live and the responsibility was laid on each officer and member to render this important service.

The minister, he said, could not do it alone and that too much of the individual effort revolved about ourselves and too little around our neighbours. You invite your neighbors to attend the movies, parties and other classes of entertainment with you, he said, but how often do you give them the invitation to attend church with you. This he said was a matter for serious thought.

He wondered just what the result would be if Nazism or Fascism had as the Christian church has, some 400,000 salaried men in strategic points throughout America. The need to-day was to capture the zeal of the early church, he declared. In closing he said the responsibil- should follow in His steps."

Rev. G. Maxwell, of Campbellford, conducted a questionnaire of Sunday school problems. Miss Carolyn Archer of Campbellford, sang 'The Lord's Prayer' and a solo, "Sweeter as the Years Go By" was sung by J. W. Coggins of Burnbrae. The meeting was closed with prayer by Rev. Donald MacKay of Burnbrae.

WHO AM I?—Found suffering from amnesia in Baltimore, this boy is shown in the accident room of the Mercy Hospital. He can remember nothing about himself or where he came from. The name "Ernest Slosberg" on a silver identification bracelet is the only clue to his past. Because he mutters incoherently about a football game and the New York Giants, it is believed he may come from that city or nearby. He is brown-eyed, shock-haired, about five feet six inches tall and weighs about 120 pounds. A check in New York revealed that an Ernest Slosberg had been missing since October 24. He is the son of Beatrice and Joseph Slosberg of the Bronx.

Canada's Navy . . . guardian of a vital chain

JUST as the steady flow of Canadian and American-made war matériel to Britain was indispensable to the successful invasion of the continent, so final Victory depends on the maintenance of this stream of supplies from America to Europe, from factory to firing line.

The protection of these convoys is the specialized job of Canada's Navy. History will record the magnificent manner in which it has been performed

Indeed, in protecting convoy after convoy, Canada has forged another essential link between these two great comrades-in-arms, John Bull and Uncle Sam. And when tomorrow brings us Victory and Peace, surely Canada, of all nations, is best situated to further the continuation of goodwill between the British Commonwealth and the United States which is so necessary for a lasting World Peace.

In our hearts is the same concept of freedom!

CANADIANS, Americans and Englishmen share the same concept of freedom . . . share, too, one of the earliest defenders of freedom. He was a Calvert, a famous English statesman, Secretary of State to King James I.

In 1622 Calvert founded a colony in Newfoundland and, later, a colony in Maryland. Thus, over 300 years ago Calvert forged a link which has strengthened throughout the years...joining together the British Commonwealth and the United States.

In the new settlements, the principle of self-government was inaugurated and religious toleration was fully enforced. Thus, in the early 1600's, a Calvert established in the New World many of the freedoms we are fighting for today.

TORONTO, Oct. 30 (CP)—Melville F. Rogers of Ottawa was elected president of the Canadian Figure Skating Association, succeeding George M. Patterson of Montreal, at the Association's 31st meeting here Saturday night—marking the first such meeting ever held outside Montreal.

The Association, which has 40 member clubs from Halifax to Victoria—including two new members in the skating clubs at Prince Albert, Sask., and Kirkland Lake, Ont. —made a number of revisions in the constitution and rules. These will be issued shortly to member clubs.

It was decided to hold the Canadian championship competitions for both seniors and juniors at Varsity Arena, Toronto, Jan. 26 and 27. A North American championship competition for a senior ladies only will be held in conjunction with the national championship competitions of the United States Figure Skating Association if the proposal is acceptable to the latter body.

ing Sunday baseball in Detroit and ordered Windsor and London to replay a semi-final series which London won two straight. Biasatti, Canadian army corporal stationed at Chatham, played for London in both games.

The winner of the London-Windsor series for the Inter-County Baseball Association championship was scheduled to play Welland for the provincial title. Because of Biasatti's suspension the Inter-League announced they would not abide by the sub-committee's ruling and consequently London played a best-of-seven series with Welland, which London won, for what they termed the "real championship" of Ontario.

No. 3 Wireless School Bombers of Winnipeg Saturday night took a four-point lead in the two-game, total-point Manitoba Armed Services Rugby Football League championship series, defeating No. 1 Central Navigation School Pathfinders, Rivers, Man., 11-7.

A new world betting record for seven races was set Saturday at Jamaica race track in New York as a crowd of 34,046 wagered $3,461,406. The previous seven-race mark was $3,176,553, established at the same track last April 22.

until late in the game when Lawrence Park who had been firing forward passes to the side all afternoon without luck, shifted to tosses straight down the centre. Campbell heaved a couple to Connors for big gains and then the visitors tried a placement that failed to click. However they kept driving in as the minutes rapidly passed and finally pulled a long forward on the third down with P.C.V.S. expecting a kick. It was another Campbell to Connors play and the receiver was only 10 yards out when he was tossed into touch. On the second play Gerald smashed over for his second touchdon of the game. It was not converted but was ample to give the visitors a 12 to 8 win.

There was little time left but P.C.V.S. made a gallant attempt to save the day. Sisson fired a long forward pass that DelaPlante took on a sleeper play, for a big gain, but the receiver lost a big part of the gain for slashing the Toronto tackler and yardage penalty hurt. On the next play, the last of the game, Matthews fired a forward down the centre alley to Outram who dodged two or three tacklers and ran to the Toronto 15 yard line before being brought down. The final whistle ended the march.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

LOWER TRICKS NEEDED

FOUR ACES and four kings can take exactly eight tricks—no more. You can't make a slam without getting an adequate number of additional tricks with lower cards. That is a fact which the average fair player seems not to consider when he uses the Blackwood convention. That device was invented by Easley Blackwood primarily to prevent the bidding of slams which cannot be made, but its successful use depends on consideration of other factors than the possession of aces and kings which it discloses.

North redoubled that because he thought he had an absolutely sure thing. Seven club tricks, plus the ace and king of each other suit certainly adds up to 13, he reckoned. He couldn't imagine not getting seven tricks with that club suit.

East led the diamond 5, which the dummy won with the A. Then he led the club 10 to the A, and when the J dropped from East he feared for the worst. The club K then showed him that he was licked. The defenders were certain to get a trick—not East, who had doubled him, but West, with his lowly club 9.

North thought that was terrible luck. Actually, when his side had eight cards of the suit, the chances were 32 out of 100 that one opponent would have at least four and the other one or none. And, if South had not held that singleton, there would have been six out against him, with the chances 64 out of 100 that one defender would hold at least four and the other two, one or none. From South's bidding, North had no grounds for feeling too sure his partner had any clubs, as at least 10 cards were shown by South to be in the two major suits, and the showing of two aces located at least one diamond in his hand.

Capt. Brain Does Magnificent Job Tending Injured Dutch Civilians

By FREDERICK GRIFFIN
Toronto Star Staff Correspondent

IN THE BRESKENS CORNER OF HOLLAND, Oct. 30—After his Ontario unit had captured Hoofdeplaat on the Schelde estuary, Capt (Rev.) R. T. F. Brain, M.C., formerly assistant curate at St. John's Church, Peterborough, became known to the Netherlanders there as "the father of the family of Hoofdeplaat."

H.-CAPT. R. T. F. BRAIN

In this shattered town, where the Canadians withstood heavy shelling and a series of counter-attacks, the citizens underwent a fearful experience. Capt. Brain, an Anglican clergyman, who won his decoration at La Buisson in Normandy, and the unit's medical officer, Capt. Philip Rance of Toronto, did a devoted job for the people.

More than 70 seriously wounded civilians, men, women and children, passed through the regimental aid post in a former German concrete bunker. They were tended by the padre and the doctor with the help of three Hoofdeplaat women and 11 Hoofdeplaat men.

One of these civilians, a woman of 40, was magnificent, according to Padre Brain. "She organized and led," he said. "She never flinched from the danger or the suffering. Three times a day she gathered the people and led them in prayer."

Helping Refugees

When I talked to him yesterday in the mud and rain back of the lines, Capt. Brain, his face lined and pale with fatigue, was once more busy helping refugees arriving from a newly liberated town. "Somebody must help these poor, miserable people," he said. "My only complaint is that I have to neglect my own men to help these folk."

He was bitter because civil affairs officers were not right up with the troops in order to tackle immediately the problem of refugee suffering. "It was four days before the civil affairs turned up in Hoofdeplaat," he said. "The conditions—the wounds, the lack of food and housing and the need of transport out—were extreme. We of the army had to step aside from our own job of fighting a stiff battle and show pity."

The tired padre told me some moving tales of those terrible days of the fighting to hold Hoofdeplaat, with civilians still in the heart of the shattered coast town.

In one case a young woman was brought in on a stretcher wounded by shrapnel in the left breast. She was not only injured, but distraught. Her husband, she said, had been shot by the Germans and, even worse, her baby, just three months old, had been left behind in another house, which had been hit by a German shell.

"In the native language of suffering," said the padre, "she begged me to find her child and bring it to her."

He found the child still lying in in bed in the shattered house, alone, wounded in the legs, bleeding and crying. He took it in his arms and carried it through the debris of the streets to the aid post and its mother.

"Even before Phil Rance dressed and bandaged it," he said, "I gave it to the wounded mother. Crying with joy she placed her poor, hurt, hungry baby at her uninjured breast and its own crying stopped. Yes, both were fixed up and seemed to be doing well when they were evacuated."

Wore Clogs In Mud

For two days during his ministry in Hoofdeplaat, Capt. Brain wore clogs through the mud and thus further identified himself with the cause of these Netherland folk. From a smashed shop he rustled a jeep-load of clogs for refugees needing them. He and his Hoofdeplaat assistants organized shelters in German bunkers in the seawall. They set up army cookers to serve continuous meals. They sent out young natives to scrounge pigs and poultry in the battle area to help out with the army rations supplied by the Canadians.

"I buried five citizens by not burying them," said Capt. Brain. "That is, I just earthed them over where they fell and died. I gave the Christina burial, of course, and put a cross over them.

"Before burying them—remember, this was during the heavy shelling period, and there was little chance to check on them—I took note of any identification they might have. The identity of all five was established."

He mentioned once noting with pity at one time in the aid post six children on stretchers, five of them wounded children of a wounded mother lying on another stretcher.

Thirty-five In Cellar

"We came on a terrible scene in the first cellar we entered," he said. "It was a small place, not more than 10 feet by 12. But in it were 35 adult civilians. They had scarcely room to move. They cut poles to buttress the ceiling just to give them something to do. I had to be tough on such occasions."

He found on his travels an untended mother with a child three days old. He sent some of the Dutch people to give her assistance.

One grievious case was of a woman wounded in the leg five days previously, by German shellfire. The Germans had bandaged her and left her in a concrete bunker where she had lain suffering acute pain. Capt. Brain put her in a jeep and brought her to Capt. Rance for treatment. Gangrene had set in. "She will lose her leg, if not her life," he said.

He told of a woman of about 25 brought in with her left arm blown off who had great patience and great courage. As she lay on the stretcher she said: "Look after the more serious cases first."

During a period of four days he organized the evacuation from Hoofdeplaat of more than 7,000 people. The women and children and the older folk he sent out on Canadian army trucks. He made the youthful and able-bodied proceed on foot or on bicycles, in carts if they had them or pushing carriers.

"It was a question of survival for all of them," said the padre, "and I had to be tough. My purpose in telling you about all this is to let our Canadian people know how many of the Hollander folk in this Zeeland sector have suffered."

Graduates From Trinity

Born in Toronto, the son of the late Canon W. J. Brain, former rectory of St. Michael's and All Angels' church, Capt. Brain graduated from Trinity College, University of Toronto. He was ordained in 1934 and his first charge was St. Nicholas church, Lakeview. In 1936 he became assistant curate at St. John's church, Peterborough, and held this position at the time of his entering the chaplaincy in August, 1940. His first work in the army was done with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders.

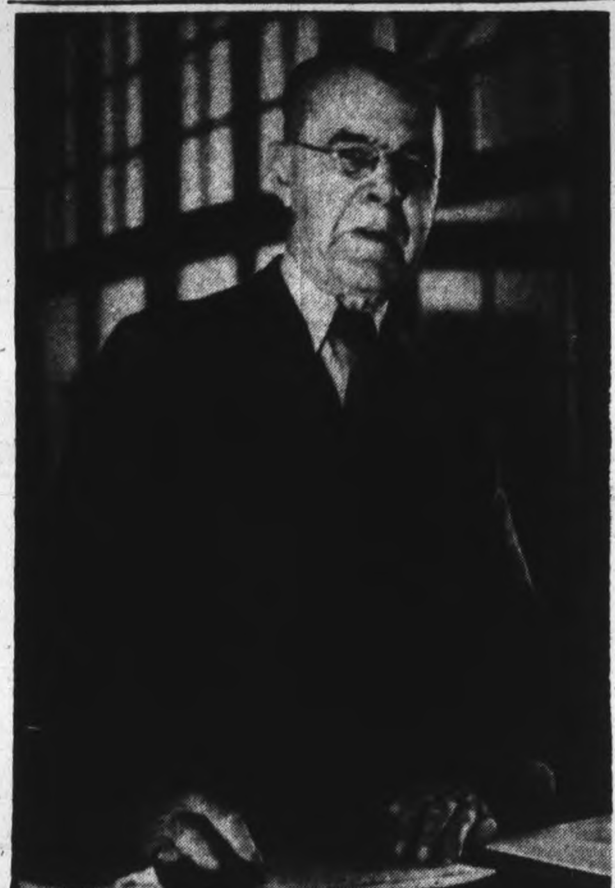
WAR MAY LAST 2 YEARS--CHURCHILL



DR. H. R. H. KENNER

Dr. H.R.H. Kenner, Retired Principal Of P.C.V.S., Passes

Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, retired principal of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, died at his home late Monday afternoon. The death of Dr. Kenner followed within less than a year and a half of the close of one of the most distinguished careers in the annals of secondary education in Ontario. It began and ended in Peterborough, an engagement of fifty years in the one Collegiate Institute, a provincial record of long and continuous service.

In September 1893 Dr. Kenner came to Peterborough from Orillia. For fifteen years he taught Classics, Greek and Latin, ancient history of Greece and Rome, and also for a time English history. On the resignation of the late Cortez Fessenden from the principalship when the Collegiate Institute was transferred from its old premises on Murray street, opposite Victoria Park, the squat structure dominated by the towering Central School from its higher location up the Court House hill, Dr. Kenner was appointed his successor in the new and then modern building overlooking Confederation Square. For the next thirty-five years he was its administrator, continuing also as teacher until the Collegiate was enlarged by the expansive addition of the Vocational School.

On a late day in June 1943, the Headmaster concluded his engagement of half a century, quitted his account with the profession he had long adorned and the trust he had faithfully fulfilled, returned his authority to the Board of Education and went his calm and dignified way into a retirement which a legion of friends, students of the day and graduates of the years gone by, sincerely hoped would repay him with leisure and the temporal reward of a work well done.

Warm Tribute

The citizens of Peterborough had paid Dr. Kenner golden tributes that afternoon, glowing words of appreciation from Mayor Hamilton as representative of the city's people, kindly and grateful memories recalled by students out of the past, and a memorable accolade of praise by Rev. Dr. Cody, then President of the University of Toronto. It was an occasion of splendid climax in a man's life time, and an auspicious recessional to the slippered years of ease.

Dr. Kenner was presented that day with a tall grandfather's clock, solemn and rather ominous of visage perhaps to one of the traditional three score years and ten, the Psalmist's promised span, and the gift was accompanied by the citizens' wishes that it would sound many hours linking months and years of comfort for him who had been one of the first among them for several generations.

That is what seemed, that official departure of H. R. H. Kenner from the institution that had grown great around him, in the numbers of his students, the successes he had already seen in their accomplishments after they had left him, the deeds they had done for their country and King and race, the sacrifices of

Americans Take Grave View Russia's Sudden Change

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (CP) — Russia's sudden and dramatic refusal to participate in the International air conference in Chicago has had the effect of a bomb shell on Washington diplomats and even the best informed today seemed at a loss to explain it.

The sudden decision to withdraw, after the head of the Soviet delegation had been named and some of the delegation had arrived, with others on the way, let in its wake speculation as to the future of proposed international co-operation in other fields.

Absence of the Soviet delegation from the Chicago Civil Aviation talks need not greatly handicap the progress of that conference, since Russia is not greatly interested in the field of inter-continental aviation, pending the provision of domestic services.

Other Explanation

But the political effect of the withdrawal was viewed with grave concern. Many were reluctant to believe the whole reason was that given in Russian communications—the fact that such allegedly pro-Fascist and anti-Soviet countries as Spain, Portugal and Switzerland had been invited.

However, even such doubters were unable—or unwilling—to offer any alternative explanation.

Undersecretary of State Stettinius said yesterday he was sorry about Russia's decision and expressed the hope it would not portend any difficulty in building, with full Russian co-operation, the proposed world organization for peace based on the Dumbarton Oaks agreement.

That document is expected to be discussed at a United Nations conference which the United States hopes to convene in this country early in 1945.

It is unlikely that any but the United Nations will be invited to the security conference.

However, the agreement provides that admission of other countries must be by vote of the security council and the unanimous vote of the permanent members of the council, which includes Russia.

Thus Russia will be in a position to veto the entry of the countries to which objection was taken as a basis for rejecting the invitation to Chicago.

Canucks Raid Last Fort On Estuary

South Beveland Island Taken, Hurdle Canal System

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN HOLLAND, Oct. 31 (CP-Cable) — Canadian and British troops today completely cleared the Germans from South Beveland Island north of the Schelde Estuary and on the mainland of Southwest Holland Gen. Gustav Von Zangen's 15th Army forces continued their hurried withdrawal to the Lower Rhine, chased by 1st Canadian Army and British 2nd Army forces.

In the collapsed Schelde pocket Canadian detachments have crossed the canal system screening Knocke and Heyst in Belgium just west of the Netherlands frontier and are closing in on these last enemy-held strongholds southwest of the Schelde Estuary.

One week ago the Canadian troops launched an attack along the causeway leading from the mainland of Holland onto South Beveland Island. Five days ago a British force landed on the southeast corner of the island. Now South Beveland has been overrun in an amazingly successful operation.

The Canadians have taken 1,500 prisoners from the German 70th Division and the British haul is 800. Considerable numbers of this division have retreated westward to Walcheren Island where the Germans' last stand in the Schelde approaches to Antwerp will be made.

Already Western Canada infantry are at the entrance of the causeway leading from South Beveland to Walcheren.

Heavy fog rolled over these islands from the North Sea again today, limiting air operations.

South of the Lower Rhine on the mainland, the Germans were falling back to the river so quickly that the Canadian Army has lost contact along practically the whole front—but Canadian, British, American, Polish and Netherlands forces are thrusting north rapidly to destroy as many of the enemy as they can before they get across the river.

The only semblance of a German stand on the mainland sector was on the Canadians' extreme left flank, where elements of the German 6th Paratroop Regiment were falling back slowly onto Streenbergen, eight miles north of Bergen Op Zoom. The Canadians at last report were within 2,000 yards of the town.

The Germans are so short on transport they are even trundling their belongings in baby-carriages stolen from Netherlands housewives.

1,000 Planes Batter Cologne

LONDON, Oct. 31 (CP) — More than 1,000 British and Canadian planes dropped 4,000 tons of bombs last night on Cologne, "the most heavily bombed of German cities," and Mosquitos made two raids on Berlin.

A Canadian communique said a sizeable force of R.C.A.F. Halifaxes and Lancasters participated in the sixth blasting of Cologne since Saturday. Airfields over a wide area of Germany also were attacked.

From all operations last night only two R.A.F. bombers are missing, the Air Ministry said, while all Canadian bombers returned from the massive Cologne operation.

The Canadian communique for the first time designated the big Rhineland city, now in the direct path of the U.S. 1st Army, as the most heavily bombed city of the Reich. Although it did not go into damage details, the use of this superlative recalled eye-witness descriptions of flattened Hamburg and the terrific damage done to other Allied targets.

An earlier R.A.F. communique said 1,000 heavy bombers had hit Cologne. The Canadian statement said that although clouds obscured part of the target huge fires and much smoke rose from the city after the attack.

Typhoon Blocks Americans In Philippines

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Associated Press War Correspondent

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Oct. 31.—(AP).—American infantrymen, battling a typhoon and desperate Japanese delaying tactics, drove ahead through Leyte Valley to-day toward the island's northwest coast and a possible showdown with cornered but sizeable enemy forces.

One unit was 10 miles from linking with another invading force on Carigera Bay, after capturing Jaro, last important inland road junction, in fierce battling Sunday.

Gen. MacArthur announced Japanese casualties on Leyte and Samar total 24,000, against a total of 3,221 for the Americans—706 killed, 270 missing and 2,245 wounded.

Japanese reinforcements from Cebu were landed in darkness at Ormoc, on Leyte's west-central coast. It was possible they were intended to bulwark forces who have succeeded in escaping to Carigara Bay, linked to Ormoc by a mountain highway.

Frontline dispatches also reported that between 4,800 and 6,000 Japanese were retiring toward the Bay from the Central Leyte Valley, where organized resistance has been smashed. Small enemy units were straggling through the hills toward Ormoc.

The Americans held a tight grip on escape routes, by controlling the main highways and maintaining a blockade of Carigara Bay.

Rain-laden typhoon winds, sometimes reaching 70 miles an hour, hammered the battle zones.

Around Dagami, in the Central Leyte Valley, some 1,500 Japanese were trapped. They were brought under one of the campaign's most comprehensive artillery barrages.

Japanese aerial activity has decreased sharply. Six enemy planes were shot down, without American loss.

British Army Reaches Maas River

Fog Saves Huns Fleeing North In Long Convoys

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Oct. 31 — (AP). — British troops chasing the Germans from South-western Holland reached the Maas River to-day, and they speared within half a mile of the Geertruidenberg Bridge, one of the main spans of the enemy's fog-shrouded escape over the river.

The British wing struck to the Maas due north of Tilburg, while Canadian forces westward nearer the coast lost contact with Germans fleeing to the river and the Hollandsch Diep.

Highways south of the river were black with German transports, and motor columns 6 to 12 miles long had formed up to the Moerdike and Willemstad bridge and ferry crossings 10 and 18 miles west of Geertruidenberg. Fog saved them from a lashing by Allied planes.

Heavy, see-saw fighting raged on the eastern flank in Holland, where strong German armored blows had been halted. British troops had regained part of Lieiseel, one of the towns lost to the German drive.

Victorious British and Canadian Armies harried the retreat as the battle of the Netherlands coastal corner and the related Schelde Estuary action reached the mop-up stage. The German defeat means the Allies soon will get the use of the great Belgian port of Antwerp for the flood of supplies to feed the coming drives into the heart of Germany.

Majority Escapes

A front dispatch said it was estimated that perhaps only 10,000 to 20,000 Germans had been left south of the Maas River line to attempt to slow up the pursuit of the victorious 1st Canadian and 2nd British Armies. A British spokesman has said the bulk of the enemy forces probably would escape across the water barrier.

East of Eindhoven, the strongest German counter-attack yet launched on the west front "made no headway" yesterday, Allied Supreme Headquarters announced, and failed to blunt the offensive north of Antwerp.

South of the Maas and its seaward outlet, the Hollandsch Diep, converging British and Polish columns sweeping up from Breda and Tilburg met in Oosterhout, drove forward and captured Raamsdonk, less than two miles from one of the main bridges over the Maas near Geertruidenberg.

Farther west, Roosendaal was abandoned yesterday by its German garrison, and British troops dashed beyond it to the vicinity of Oud' Gastel. Canadian units near-

Negro Vote Evenly Divided In Presidential Campaign

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—CP).—A survey of newspapers published in the interests of negroes indicates an almost even split of the estimated 3,500,000 negro voters in Northern States between President Roosevelt and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

In the last three Presidential elections the bulk of the negro vote has supported President Roosevelt.

If the negroes in the present election all voted for one or the other of the two candidates they would be able to swing the election, according to pollsters and other experts who foresee a close race in many of the Northern States.

It would seem, from the record, that the negroes have little to expect from either of the old parties, no matter how generously the leaders and their platform may promise.

States rights and the necessity of constitutional amendments to permit the Federal administration to ensure absolute equality of citizenship between whites and blacks are the stumbling blocks.

The bulk of the estimated 3,500,000 negro voters in the South have never cast a ballot. By intimidation or by local restrictions negroes have been pretty well kept away from the polls. There is an estimated negro population in the United States of 13,000,000, at least half of whom are believed to be of voting age.

Both the Democratic and Republican platforms promise equal treatment of all citizens regardless of color but the Republicans went as far as to promise efforts to obtain a constitutional amendment in their interests and the establishment of a permanent fair employment practices board to ensure that the negro is not barred from any occupation open to a white person.

There are an estimated 800,000 negroes serving with the American forces overseas.

Fire Hazard

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 31—(AP).—The stuffed buffalo in the New York Central railroad terminal weathered five years of admiration but was back in the Museum of Science today, its tail pulled off and whiskers pulled out. The railroad said the animal was removed because "travellers were putting lighted cigarettes in its mouth, causing a fire hazard."

Reds Capture 4th Largest Hungarian City

LONDON, Oct. 31 (CP)—Russian troops have broken into Kecskemet, fourth largest Hungarian city 50 miles southeast of Budapest, in their offensive aimed at the capital, the Berlin radio said today.

However the troops were declared driven out.

"The battle between the Danube and Lower Tisza Rivers is nearing a climax," the official Germans news agency D.N.B. said. "Although superior enemy forces have succeeded in squeezing back Hungarian lines, they were nowhere able to tear up the front."

The Germans asserted that nine Russian and three Romanian infantry divisions, a motorized corps and several tank brigades were attacking — perhaps upwards of 225,000 men.

Kecskemet is a straggling city of 83,000 lying virtually in the centre of Hungary and 20-odd miles west of the Tisza River, last water barrier before Budapest.

The Soviet communique did not mention the drive, but the Moscow radio broadcast a Geneva report that pro-Nazi Hungarian Premier Ferenc Szalasi, had hurried to Hitler's headquarters "to present a plan to remove the seat of the Hungarian government from imperilled Budapest to Berlin."

German broadcasts said the roar of German and Russian cannon could be heard in Budapest 50 miles from Szolnok, threatened stronghold on the Tisza.

Soviet forces have been astride several all-weather roads leading across the plains to Budapest. The Germans said the big Russian push came after weeks of preparation.

Spanish Rebels Oppose Franco

PARIS, Oct. 31 — (AP). — Approximately 2,000 Spanish Republicans and Russians, banded together under the insignia of a black skullcap, with a white death's head, have established a stronghold in the mountains in France's southern Dorognes department and are waging a private war against the French forces of the interior, an observer just returned from the region said today.

The band, he declared, is composed of fugitives from Spain, including veterans of the international brigade of the Spanish Civil War, and men who escaped from German concentration camps in France.

Their objective is to muster forces for an opportunity to strike across the border at the Franco regime.

Normally, like other anti-Franco campaigners, they would have been aligned with the F.F.I. in a common fight against the Germans. But the observer said this group has come into conflict with the F.F.I. because its members have been raiding surrounding farms and stores, occasionally shooting people who resisted.

Japanese Admit Situation Bad

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31—(AP)—Japan's armed forces, fighting a passive defence since the battle of Guadalcanal, have been forced to "withdraw gradually" and now face a situation which is "regrettably unfavorable to us," Premier Kuniaki Koiso told the Japanese people today.

Koiso repeated the Japanese claims of naval victories off Formosa and the Philippines and attributed the "unfavorable situation to a shortage of materials.

His statements, made at a mass rally in Osaka and broadcast by the Tokyo radio for domestic consumption, were recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

Suggests Summer Of 1945 To End German War 18 Months Later For Japs

Urges Retention Of Coalition Government Now Nine Years Old Wants No Election Till Nazism Dies

By ALEX. H. SINGLETON—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 31—(AP).—Prime Minister Churchill, urging pre-victory retention of Britain's war-born coalition government and nine-year parliament, cautioned the House of Commons today that war against Germany might last into next summer and against Japan until the end of 1946. In terms of caution he held out some hope that "political convulsions in Germany may bring the war to a speedy end at any time.

But, in almost the same breath, he warned that against that possibility "must be set the iron control of German life in all its forms including the army which has been established by Hitler's storm troops and secret police."

"This," said Mr. Churchill, "exceeds anything previously known among men."

May Come Earlier.

Saying that the present coalition government should "not be broken before Nazism is broken," the Prime Minister declared at one point that "I certainly would not predict—still less guarantee—the end of the war before the end of the spring or even before we reach early summer. It may come earlier, and no one will rejoice more than I if it should."

At another point, he asserted:

"On military grounds alone it would not be prudent to assume that a shorter period than 18 months after the destruction of Hitler will be required for the final destruction of the Japanese will and capacity to fight."

There were immediate indications the House would string along with Mr. Churchill. Arthur Greenwood, prominent in the Labor party's councils, endorsed extension of prolongation of parliament for a year, but he served notice the Churchill Government would not be free from controversy in coming months.

Mr. Greenwood also made it clear Labor's ranks would oppose extension of the coalition government until Japan was defeated. He argued it would be against national interest to prolong parliament "until the whole of this desperate struggle is tied up."

Rebuild Ports

Mr. Churchill touched only briefly upon military operations now under-way.

In Holland, he said, "a great deal of work has to be done to improve the ports and build up supplies and concentrate forward the ever growing Allied Army."

In Italy, he conceded the fighting "is also of the most obstinate character and the weather has broken."

He found a brighter situation on the eastern front where he declared: "Immense successes have rewarded the strenuous Russian military efforts and skilful Russian and Allied diplomacy."

Buying Spurt On Week-end Bolsters Loan

OTTAWA, Oct. 31.— (CP). — Ground lost in the last three days of the first week of selling was regained by accumulated week-end results as Canadians purchased $72,585,500 in bonds of the $1,300,000,000 Seventh Victory Loan, it was announced to-day. This brought the cumulative total to $501,469,750, as compared with $481,244,050 at the same stage in the Sixth Loan. Yesterday's purchases compared with $61,911,500 in the same day of the loan six months ago.

Individual Canadians were big buyers yesterday, with a total of $34,078,250. This brings their cumulative total to $231,746,850—an average of about $33,300,000 for each day of the loan. In the Sixth Loan the daily average for individual purchases was $35,700,000, but officials explained this includes a volume of late reports.

Yesterday's purchases are very satisfying," an official of the National War Finance committee said. "In one day, we have regained what was lost in the last three days of last week. It, of course, should not be forgotten that there is still $900,000,000 to be bought to equal the record of the Sixth Loan, but I think we may say satisfactory progress is being made and if the trend continues for the remainder of Loan, this Seventh Loan may equal, if not exceed, the all-time high of $1,407,000,000."

The armed forces continued to pull ahead with total subscriptions of $36,558,150, 76 per cent of their final figure of $47,853,200 in the last Loan. The army had $19,420,800, 92 per cent of quota, the navy $4,131,200, 86 per cent, and the air force $13,006,150, also 86 per cent.

Leading the National Army competition was Camp Borden, Ont., with $1,147,560 for 125 per cent of quota. Next were Military District No. 3, Kingston, Ont., 115 percent, M.D. 12, Regina, 110 per cent, and M.D. 10, Winnipeg, 107 per cent.

Canadian Push In Holland Called Superhuman Effort

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY, Holland, Oct. 31 — (CP. Cable). — The lightning advance of Canadian troops across south Beveland Island, on the north side of the Schelde Estuary, to the Walcheren Causeway tonight was described by the Canadian commander on Beveland as "a superhuman effort."

"Right from the Dutch mainland in the struggle up the long east Beveland peninsula, and then over the canal and across the main part of the island these troops have done a superb job under extremely difficult conditions," he said in a roadside interview near the town of Goes.

Goes had been liberated by his troops and now is bedecked with huge Netherlands flags and orange bunting, symbol of the Royal House of Holland.

I reached Goes late in the afternoon and went beyond toward the Walcheren Causeway on a long straight highway jammed with our trucks and guns streaming westward. Goes is the major town of south Beveland and scarcely was damaged as the fighting swept swiftly past it.

Great Welcome

The population was milling around the streets waving orange flags in welcome to the Canadians and in the main square a batch of collaborators were already lined up and having their heads shaved by people of the resistance movement.

To reach Goes you drive along the highway from the Netherlands mainland which was the axis of the Canadian advance. Five miles east of the town is a 100-yards-wide canal which might have stopped the Canadians for a week.

But Eastern Canada troops stormed over the canal at night in assault boats and French-speaking troops from Quebec moved across on the flank. Then Royal Canadian Engineers built a bridge over the canal.

For 18 hours the sappers worked under mortar and artillery fire but did the job. Later British engineers threw another bridge across the canal.

Supporting weapons were rushed across to aid the infantry as they fought their way right across the island, driving the Germans before them or taking them prisoner. Battalions fanned out through the island to link up with the British beachhead force and by tonight practically all South Beveland had been enveloped by our troops.

60 Jap Ships Final Toll In Sea Fight

Carrier Planes Seek Out Crippled Vessels

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 31 (AP) — High naval authorities today viewed Japan's still-growing fleet catastrophe off the Philippines—two bomb-blasted cruisers have lifted the total to 60—as rendering the enemy impotent at sea for many months, except for suicidal actions in opposing the Allied China-bound offensive.

Three naval battles off Leyte, Samar and Luzon imposed a crushing defeat on all Japan's navy "except two or three more units we can take in our stride," Admiral Halsey told Rembert James, Associated Press war correspondent, board the U.S. 3rd fleet flagship.

The dogged search of Halsey's carrier planes uncovered a previously-damaged heavy cruiser and two other cruisers in the Manila area Saturday and hits were scored on all three, Admiral Nimitz disclosed in a communique. The damaged warship probably sank and 1,000-pound bombs damaged the other two, adding them to the previously-announced total of 58 sunk or crippled.

Halsey, pointing up Japan's grave naval situation, said what enemy cripples managed to elude his planes and reach repair yards must wait their turn inasmuch as the enemy's repair facilities were "taxed to the utmost before this catastrophic beating they took."

Bomb Luzon

The three cruisers were attacked during a rising air offensive against big Luzon island, the next stepping stone 15 miles north of Gen. MacArthur's invasion army on Samar.

The 3rd Fleet planes roared on to Manila and increased Japan's shortage of escort warships despite efforts of swarming enemy planes to block the raiders' path at the south end of Luzon and to attack the aircraft carriers. Forty-five enemy planes were shot down in Southern Luzon, at least 12 were wrecked on Manila fields, 12 more were shot down over the carriers Saturday and two more Sunday.

The toll in cruisers sunk or damaged since submarines opened the first phase of the three naval battles Oct. 22 now stands at 24. That makes the cruiser category the highest of any in the still-incomplete toll of 60 enemy warships announced.

West of invaded Leyte, other carrier planes Saturday and Sunday shot down 19 enemy planes and destroyed three coastal cargo vessels.

Thousands of civilians were reported erecting breastworks outside Budapest.

The Russian communique was silent on the Red Army offensive in Western Latvia, where fresh Soviet gains were reported by Berlin.

Winter Comes

A Moscow dispatch said wintry storms are harassing the long Eastern front, miring in the mud the Red Army's mechanized attack.

The Soviet communique said Gen Ivan Petrov's 4th Ukraine Army, which has already won Ruthenia and is invading Slovakia to the west, had captured 10,160 Germans between last Friday and Sunday, bringing the 10-day total to 21,390.

Berlin acknowledged that Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2nd Ukraine Army had smashed across the Tisza River at many points, forcing the last natural defence line before Budapest.

Red Army forces driving across the north-east corner of Hungary on a 20-mile front captured Guyre, 18 miles south of Csap, the Czechoslovak rail junction taken on Sunday, Moscow said.

Capture of seven localities in Czechoslovakia was announced by Moscow. These included Cabulovce, four miles inside Slovakia from the Polish frontier south of Lupkow Pass.

patriotism they had paid in one war and were accepting in another. But the hopes of that afternoon ceremony, accompanying Dr. Kenner into his retirement, faded with reports of a decline in health which probably had begun in the last months of his work in directing the school. The rest of the way since then had been gradually a slow recession to the tired end of the way on Monday.

Life Sketch

A brief outline of Dr. Kenner's life and career was published in the Collegiate Echoes of the issue of April 1943. It was presumably written by himself with a recognizable reserve and diffidence as follows: "The subject of this short sketch was born in Cornwall, England, in the latter half of the nineteenth century.

When four years of age he set sail from historic Plymouth in a sailing vessel, and after a voyage of three weeks arrived in the province of Ontario, where he has lived ever since.

He received his primary education in Hamilton and London; his secondary education at Oakwood and Port Perry; and his university education at the University of Toronto.

Having decided to become a High School teacher he attended the Training College at Hamilton. The course at that time took only one term. There were no lectures. We had to read a few books chosen for us by the Department of Education. We did some practice teaching in the Hamilton Collegiate Institute.

Having obtained a High School assistant's certificate he taught four years as a third undergraduate at Listowel, Fergus, Caledonia High Schools, and the Orillia Collegiate Institute.

In 1893 he graduated from Toronto University with first class honors in Classics, and in September 1893 joined the staff of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute. In 1908 he was promoted to the principalship, which position he has held up to the present."

The members of the teaching staff of the old Collegiate Institute in 1893 were: Cortez Fessenden, principal; John J. Jeffries, later principal of Jarvis Street Collegiate, Toronto; James A. Fife, who became chief inspector of the schools of Alberta, and who died ten days ago, Saturday, October 21, in Edmonton; William J. Drope; Michael J. O'Brien, subsequently inspector Separate Schools, Toronto; Miss Sophia Marty and Mr. Kenner.

Had Many Honors

In 1936 the University of Toronto conferred on Dr. Kenner the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. His life was replete with professional, community, fraternal and church interests. He was president of the Peterborough Teachers' Institute and Ontario School Teachers' Federation; member of the Senate of the University of Toronto. For some years he was treasurer of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, and subsequently an elder of St. Andrew's United Church.

At one time and another he was President of the Peterborough Canadian Club; Chairman of the Public Library Board; Vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce Director of the Y.M.C.A.; and a charter member of Peterborough Rotary Club of which he was for years chairman of its special committee recommending loans to students.

H. R. H. Kenner was one of the most active promoters of athletics in the years when Peterborough was represented by lacrosse, hockey and rugby teams that won provincial fame around the turn of the century and later. He was president in 1902 of the starry hockey team that won the Ontario Intermediate Championship, and was rated as one of the smartest teams then playing hockey. Associates were the late Dr. Bradd, Harry Rush, Ed. Dillon, James T. McCabe, Dr. A. W. McPherson, Dr. Andrew Scott, and the players, sixty-minute men, were Ernie Wasson, R. M. Glover, Harold Armstrong, Harry Morgan, Fred Whitcroft, Chris Graham and Roy Armstrong.

Those were spacious days in Peterborough sports. Dr. Kenner finally retired to curling and was a president of the Peterborough Curling Club. Members of the Masonic Order will long remember his lectures on Masonry and its principles. He was a past Master of two craft lodges. He was Master of his mother Lodge, Corinthian in 1905 and on the formation of Royal Arthur Lodge he became its first ruling Master. He was a Past District Deputy Grand Master of the Peterborough District and held the office of Junior Warden in the Grand Lodge of Canada.

In Corinthian Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, Dr. Kenner was a Past First Principal and in Moore Preceptory he was the senior surviving preceptor up to the time of his death. He was also past officer of the Sovereign Grand Priory of Canada and a Noble of the Mystic Shrine.

Dr. Kenner is survived by his wife and one son, Hugh, a student attending the University of Toronto. Also three brothers, W. S. Kenner and J. H. Kenner, both residing in Manitoba, and Fred Kenner of Alberta, and one sister, Mrs. E. Foy, also in Alberta.

The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock in St. Andrew's United Church with interment in Little Lake Cemetery. The remains until the hour of the funeral will rest at the home, 396 Downie street.

Return True Bill In Cavan Murder

COBOURG, Oct. 31.—(ENS). — True bill was returned by the grand jury Monday afternoon in connection with the murder charge against 16 year old Charles Frances Davey ward of the Bowmanville Boys' Training School, which is to be heard in Assize court commencing this morning. The youth is charged with the slaying on July 16 of Norman Lamb, son of Mr. and Mrs Ernest Lamb of Cavan township.

Clifford Magone, K.C., of Toronto, representing the Crown, assisted by Crown Attorney Harry Deyman of Cobourg. Fred C. Richardson is defence counsel and Mr. Justice Greene is presiding.

Addressing the grand jury Monday, Mr. Justice Greene defined murder as consisting of two divisions of culpable homicide, one in which death was intended in the first instance or where the accused realizes that the injury occasioned will cause death and is indifferent whether death follows or not. In connection with the duties of a grand jury to inspect institutions, His Lordship suggested that in making recommendations the jury retain realization of the fact that expenses must be kept down.

Members of the grand jury are: Fred Bowen, Newcastle; Lorne Anderson, Cobourg; William Andrews, South Monaghan; James Brown, Alnwick; George Garnet, Port Hope; Donald Lowes, Cavan township; Edward Mountjoy, Cartwright township; Edward Nelson, Murray township; F. J. Skitch, Cobourg; Eric Thompson, Hope township; Gordon Orr, Murray township; John Waite, Colborne and Edward Hogan, Cobourg.

Only one civil action went on Monday, a divorce action brought by Alton Richards of Bowmanville, member of the Canadian Dental Corps, against his wife, Thelma Richards, also of Bowmanville, a decree nisi being granted. Arthur Greer of Oshawa, was counsel for plaintiff. There was no defence.

Examiner Carriers Take $3,300 In Bonds

The boys and girls who deliver the Peterborough Examiner have dipped into the Seventh Victory Loan for $3,300 of the nation's bonds. In the three preceding loans, their investment amounted to $4,450, and when they have all completed payments in their new deal, their total holding of interest bearing Victory Bonds will be $7,750.

Further accomplishments by the carriers include the selling of $42,500 of War Savings Stamps since December 1941. And as a reminder to their public it might be mentioned that these young business people still carry a stock of Stamps who are adding this investment to their Victory Bonds.

of parliament for a year was read formally twice without a divisional vote. It must be read a third time before being sent to the House of Lords. Lack of opposition today indicated that step would be a formality.

After Aneurin Bevan, Labor member for Ebbw Vale, remarked that Canada, Australia and New Zealand all had held wartime elections, Maj. S. F. Markham, Conservative member for Nottingham South, argued that Britain couldn't afford the luxury of party politics at present, although the Dominions the United States had been able to do it behind the comparative safety of long sea lines.

Urging qualified extension of Britain's nine-year parliament for another year, he said that "roughly speaking there is no likelihood of a general election for from seven to nine months from now," and warned that "those who force such a disaster would take upon themselves immense responsibility."

"It seems to me," said Mr. Churchill, "that unless all political parties resolve to maintain the present coalition until the Japanese are defeated, we must look to the termination of the war against Nazism as a pointer which will fix the date of the general election."

"Any attempt to estimate the date when the war with Germany can be officially declared over can be no more than a guess," Mr. Churchill said as he called the extension bill to the floor.

At the same time, however, he said, "it would seem that roughly speaking there is no likelihood of a general election for from seven to eight months from now."

"I do not place any dependence on a political uprising in Germany," he added.

"I certainly could not predict — still less guarantee — the end of the German war before the end of the spring or even before we reach early summer. It may come earlier, and no one will rejoice more than I if it should."

In estimating the difficulty of determining when the war might shift from organized resistance to the guerilla stage, he said he was "confident that all organized parties will see that business through to the very end."

As he called the measure to the floor, the Prime Minister said that various parties in coalition government would be holding conferences before Christmas and "while one can not forecast what will occur, the possibility that a desire for return to the party system will be strongly expressed cannot be excluded."

"On military gounds", he said. "it seems difficult to believe that the war could be ended before Christmas or even before Easter although many high military authorities with every means of forming an accurate judgment have expressed themselves more hopefully."

He told the House that "I have no hesitation in declaring that it would be a wrongful act, unworthy of our country's fame, to break up the present government instrument before we know where we are with Hitler's Germany."

"Those who force such a disaster," he said, "would take upon themselves immense responsibility and their action would be fiercely resented by the nation at large."

He added, however, that he was "thankful to say that there is no sign of any such desire in any responsible quarters."

He drew laughter with his quip that never in his 42 years in the House had he "seen any government to which I have been able to give a more loyal and confident support." Then he went on to say:

Wants Cooperation

"I should deprecate strongly the over-emphasizing of party differences now and recommend that we should all bend ourselves with unflagging energy and unbroken union to the national tasks."

He said he would "regret the breakup of the present highly efficient government which has waged war with unsurpassed success and shaped or carried within the last two years a program of reform and social progress which might well have occupied a whole parliament in the ordinary conditions of peace."

Although his chief emphasis was on the need for the coalition government to remain in office until Germany's defeat, Mr. Churchill called attention also to the difficulty of recording the soldiers' vote at this time.

"In my opinion," he said, "they have more right to vote than anyone else in this country. We should all be ashamed if anything were done which prevented them from taking their full part in deciding the immediate future of their country."

He declared also, in effect, that he did not believe the election should be held immediately after victory—"in a violent hurry or while we were all rejoicing together and rendering thanks to God for our deliverance. There must be an interim."

8th Army Over Another River

By LYNN HEINZERLING
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, Oct. 31 — (AP) — Indian troops of the British 8th Army increased the threat to the German stronghold of Forli astride the Rimini-Bologna highway today by throwing a bridgehead across the Ronco River near Meldola, seven miles to the south.

Allied Headquarters announced the foothold was quickly consolidated and extended to a depth of half a mile.

Less than five miles to the southwest Polish troops, who captured the mountain town of Predappio two days ago, ran into strong German positions at Caminato in the hills to the north in the direction of Forli.

Elsewhere on the Italian front activities yesterday were largely limited to local actions.

In the west coast sector Brazilian troops captured a peak 2,800 feet high against enemy machine-gun fire and other Brazilians occupied Calomini, about 15 miles east of Massa.

Along the Adriatic, 8th Army forces were advancing against only light opposition. The Germans apparently were swinging their line north to a more advantageous anchor somewhere north of Ravenna.

In one local action north of the Bologna-Prato road in central Italy, American troops of the Allied 5th Army took 100 Germans prisoner.

Weather again restricted bombing operations by the M.A.A.F., which flew slightly more than 400 sorties, attacking communication facilities in the Balkans and in areas behind enemy lines in Italy. Four planes were lost.

Outstanding success, with worth-while progress and achievement, is indicated by the ruling planetary configurations of this day. There is a sign of increase and expansion in all departments of life, with credit, finance, labor and the most cherished of hopes and wishes reaching high goals of performance.

There may be some tricky conditions, calling for alert, wary and clever manipulation, probably by unique, subtle or intriguing tactics. In romantic adventures there may be surprising or menacing circumstances.

Those whose birthday it is may have the benefit of excellent promises for a year of exceptional progress, promotion, prestige and popularity in a business, financial, professional and all-round productive way, although there is need for swift and subtle action in dangerous spots of treachery, misrepresentation and perhaps fraud. If such is met with sagacity, vigilance, cleverness and expedient change of plans, cherished ambitions and objectives may be spectacularly attained. In social, domestic or romantic affiliations, while there may be pleasant and joyous activities, yet discretion and circumspect behavior are enjoined.

A child born on this day may have much talent and efficiency for large and important accomplishment. It should be alert to treacherous alliances.

Orderly Retreat.

A spokesman at British 2nd Army Headquarters, however, said there still was no sign of a German rout. It is an orderly withdrawal, he said, screened by extensive use of mines and booby traps as well as elements of five or six enemy divisions acting as rearguards.

On American sectors of the western front, the French city of Maizieres Les Metz, six miles north of Metz, was cleared after three weeks of bitter street fighting.

Poles Move Up.

The Allied troops, including American and Polish units, now have pushed to from 1½ to 9 miles from the south bank of the Maas and that river's seaward outlet, the Hollandsch Diep. The Germans are stretched out for 40 miles along this water barrier. From east to west the main crossings for the enemy are by a bridge north of Geertruidenberg, by long road and rail bridges at Moerdike and by boat and ferry at Willemstad.

After capturing Roosendaal, the last major enemy stronghold in the Netherlands coastal corner, British troops advanced to positions only seven miles from Willemstad. Americans under Canadian command near the centre of the line were only six miles from the Moerdike bridges and British tanks on the east flank were four miles from the Geertruidenberg crossing.

Germans units getting across the water barrier were retreating beyond to Dorbrecht, 10 miles southeast of Rotterdam.

Court Dismisses Theft Charge

Declaring that the evidence could not justify a conviction Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Monday afternoon dismissed a charge against Kenneth Thompson of having stolen $37 and three gasoline ration books from the person of Herbert McGee, Bobcaygeon drover.

When the case resumed in the afternoon Sergt. W. E. Wigg was called to testify to statements made by Thompson in the guard room of the police station after his arrest He was the last crown witness.

W. J. Arthur Fair, who defended Thompson, moved for the dismissal of the accused, declaring that the crown had failed to make out a prima facie case against him.

Magistrate Langley announced that he would reserve judgment on that motion and in the meanwhile called for the defence. Mr. Fair said that no witness would be called by the defence.

In his argument Crown Attorney McElderry pointed out that in his statements to the police Thompson had admitted being with McGee and there was evidence as to the stolen gasoline ration books being found behind the refreshment booth where the accused was arrested and also of Thompson going out the back door of the place as the police came into sight.

Without calling upon Mr. Fair for his defence argument, Magistrate Langley dismissed the case. The police, he said, had apparently done their best to bring evidence before the court, but it had not been enough to justify a conviction.

A similar charge against Lawrence Dennie was also dismissed when Crown Attorney McElderry announced that he would not offer any evidence. "The evidence in this case would be exactly the same as in the Thompson case," he explained. During the whole case there was no suggestion of an assault being made upon McGee.

A fifteen-year-old boy who pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the store of Louis Yeotes and committing theft was allowed to go on suspended sentence for two years after it had been announced that he had no record.

In giving evidence Detective Sgt. W. E. Meagher said that the boy and another older lad had entered the building by forcing a skylight in the roof and then using a ladder to get down through the attic. When the boys home was searched $9.85, mostly in silver, two cigarette lighters, and 29 boxes of cigarettes were found.

Greek Patriots Take Arnissa

ROME, Oct. 31.—(AP). —Greek guerillas operating with British troops have captured Arnissa, about 40 miles north of Kozane and only seven miles from the southern border of Yugoslavia, Allied headquarters announced to-day.

The German garrison was wiped out at Arnissa, on one of the main escape routes for the Nazis fleeing from the Allies in Northern Greece.

Special praise for the guerilla forces was contained in the Allied Headquarters communique, which said the Greek fighters were "well represented" in the closely co-ordinated attack that liberated Kozane, capture of which was announced yesterday.

Home and School Association News

PRINCE OF WALES

A talk on "Citizenship" by Rev. E. J. Whan, highlighted the regular meeting of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association, Monday evening, in the kindergarten of the school. Rev. Whan said that a country is only as good as its citizens, and urged parents to take more interest in the direction of their children's lives, and not leave them entirely to the direction of the school. He also urged a closer link between the church, the school and the home.

Speaking of immigrants and immigration laws, Rev. Whan said that naturally Canada must allow immigrants to cross her borders, but said that they must be united, and brought about to the Canadian way of thinking, so that they will become true Canadians.

P. D. Windrem, the principal, introduced the new members of the staff, Misses Mary Falkner and Marjorie Oliver, Mrs. Grace Samson, E. Hancock, L. McNeil and Ross Rutherford, the vice-principal. The meeting opened with community singing, under the direction of Mr. McNeil, with Mrs. J. Foster at the piano, and Mrs. G. Hutchinson, the president, received reports of conveners. Norman Hurrie and Norman Lowes played two piano duets. Rev. Whan was introduced by Mrs. Hutchinson, and Mrs. G. Webb moved the vote of thanks to him and others taking part in the program.

Notice to Farming Community

From the opening of the Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic in Peterborough, men and women from the country have been consistent donors, with the exception of that time of the year when it is impossible for them to get in.

Now that the very busy season is over the Clinic is most anxious that they resume their blood donations, as there has never been a time in the history of the war that blood plasma has been more urgently required. If the rural community would pick up now where they were compelled to leave off last spring it would help amazingly.

Paratrooper Has Knee Injuries

COBOURG, Oct. 31 (ENS)—Piece of a shell fragment in his knee, Staff Sergeant Ray Keating, former Port Hope boy, is home on leave from overseas and will spend the next two weeks with his wife and family in Cobourg. A paratrooper, he has seen action in many theatres of war, and he hopes to get back into action again, but this will depend on the outcome of his present medical condition.

When war broke out he and his wife were in New Zealand, and while his wife and son were on their way back to Canada via the ill-fated S.S. Niagara, the ship as torpedoed in the South Seas. Mrs. Keating and her son, along with other survivors, spend 14 hours adrift in a life boat until spotted by a plane and later picked up by a destroyer. They were taken to Auckland. Later they went aboard the S.S. Aorangi and this time made the journey without mishap. Ray Keating arrived home some time later and when war broke out he enlisted with the Midland Regiment at Cobourg. He was stationed at various centres in Canada until 1942 when he transferred to the paratroops and underwent training in the United States, receiving his paratroop wings in August, 1942. More training followed and in June 1943 he was in the Aleutians. He left soon after for overseas, arriving in Africa in September of 1943, taking part in the Sicilian and Italian campaigns.

Four months ago he was wounded when a German shell landed on a house near where he was standing. The paratroop force to which he belonged comprised Americans and Canadians and it was the first to break out of the Anzio beachhead and the first to enter Rome.

"I'd like to get back in action with the paratroops, but I doubt it now," he stated, indicating the injured leg.

245 Mail Bags Burned In Port

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 — (CP). — A total of 245 out of 13,154 bags of overseas mail were damaged or destroyed in a fire on board a ship in the harbor at Saint John, N.B., Postmaster-General Mulock said yesterday.

Thirty-one bags were destroyed, 20 partially destroyed and damaged by water, and 194 damaged by water to a lesser degree.

"No evidence has yet been found that the fire was caused by matches or inflammables in any of the parcel mails, and while it is always possible that heedless mailers might have sent matches which ignited, there are other sources from which the fire could have originated," Col. Mulock said.

The fire, breaking out some hours after the mails had been loaded aboard the vessel, came only eight days after a fire in a ship in Montreal Harbor destroyed or damaged 213 bags of soldiers mail.

"Every effort is being made to repair and forward salvageable mails, and to advise the senders, where possible, of any damaged or burned parcels," said Col. Mulock.

His RHEUMATIC PAIN disappeared years ago

Many men and women, at the approach of their forties start to have various aches and pains which are attributed to "middle age". But not Mr. and Mrs. Patrick. They have enjoyed good health for 20 years. Mrs. Patrick writes:—

"For the past twenty years we have always taken a small dose of Kruschen in our early morning cup of tea — we never miss, not even on a holiday. My husband and I both largely owe our extremely good health to this treatment, and we are never afraid to say so. My husband, although 55 years of age, feels and looks no more than 45. He is a picture of health. Before he started with Kruschen, he suffered with rheumatic pain in his arm, but though this disappeared years ago, he will not give up his Kruschen."

Peripatetic Mr. Churchill

The British Prime Minister did not allow much time to pass between his return to England after the Quebec conference and his setting forth for Moscow; when he reported on the Moscow talks to Parliament he spoke of himself as "travelling from court to court like a wandering minstrel"; the outcome of those talks is the best kind of recommendation for Mr. Churchill's peripatetic method.

• • •

It has long been recognized, both by the United Nations and the enemy, that the only hope for a German victory, complete or partial, lies in a disagreement among the Allies which, in Mr. Churchill's words, "will mar the harmony of our counsels and consequently the symmetry and momentum of our converging advance". No single figure among the leaders of the world has done so much to forestall such a disagreement as Mr. Churchill himself. His friendship with the United States is of long standing, and he has been at all times an admirer of the native genius and character of the French people; but he was, before the war, one of the bitterest opponents of Communism in the world. When Russia entered the war, and showed unmistakeably that her cause and our cause were one, Mr. Churchill set aside his intense dislike of the Russian political ideology, and concentrated his attention of Russian courage, Russian practicality, and Russian enthusiasm. Slowly he has won the confidence of the Russian leader, and now the two men meet on terms of deep mutual respect and trust, tempered by the fact that one used to be a professional revolutionary and the other is a British Tory. The flexibility of mind and the goodwill which both Churchill and Stalin have shown in their relations with each other will serve as a model for statesmen for generations to come Russian suspicion, which was great to begin with, has now been all but dispelled. Consider the results of the recent Moscow talks. What Mr. Churchill calls "complete agreement" has been reached on all matters relating to the Balkans. There has been no agreement about Poland, save for the very general one that the Big Three "are all firmly agreed in the re-creation of a strong, free, independent, sovereign Poland, loyal to the Allies and friendly to her great neighbour and liberator, Russia". But it is remarkable that Mr. Churchill was able to discuss the Polish question with the Russians at all, for they and the Poles are now in a state of resentful stubbornness about everything relating to their mutual problem. Mr. Churchill has tried the role of peacemaker, and he has had some slight success in it. At any rate, he suggested that if Poland had taken the advice she was given by Britain and the U.S. early this year there would never have been a National Committee of Liberation; he also suggested that Premier Mikolajczyk should go to Moscow and compromise with Stalin — advice which has had no result as yet.

• • •

• • •

The part of wandering minstrel seems to suit Mr. Churchill. He has, in full measure, the British ability to argue without heat, to conciliate, to iron out small difficulties, and to make compromises for the sake of a good cause. His travels have not merely prevented any rift among the United Nations; they have hardened the cement which holds them together. Now that all Hitler's associates have fallen from him, the United Nations are more united than they have ever been. Mr. Churchill hopes that he and Marshal Stalin and the President of the United States—whoever he may be—may meet again before the end of the year, to keep their friendship in the best of repair. Everything depends on that.

The cigar store Indian is said to be coming back. Is he bringing any cigars with him?

H. R. H. Kenner

It is not long since we congratulated Dr. H. R. H. Kenner in these columns on the graceful termination of fifty years as a teacher; now that it is our duty to report his death there is little that we can add to what we said then. During his long life he gave hundreds of Peterborough boys and girls a love for knowledge, and a love for the wisdom which comes of the union of knowledge and experience. In hundreds of households in this city and outside his name has been a household word for years; his enthusiasm and his ways of thought and speech have been affectionately recalled; the standards of personal honour which he taught and which he exemplified have been accepted as the highest. These things being so, there will be many who will not mourn his death, for in the best and truest sense he still lives.

It is not a tragedy for a man whose years have been long and full to die; the greatest and commonest tragedy of all is for a man to pass through life without ever having been truly alive. Dr. Kenner lived fully, accepting duty as it was laid upon him, enjoying pleasure when it presented itself, and imposing upon his daily duties a form which was the outcome of his classical training and his inherently classical cast of mind. Because he was always vividly alive he was the inspirer of deeper and richer life in others; the influence which he spread will long outlive him, and will play its part in shaping the daily philosophy of generations to come. To say that he is dead, therefore, is true only on the most obvious level of truth; the greater truth is that such men do not die because their spirit lives after them.

The sympathy of the community will be extended to Dr. Kenner's family, whose private loss is heavy. But for the community itself, regret at his death will be tempered by gratitude that he lived here for so many years, and had so great an influence in the making of this city.

Morbid Electioneering

A political campaign is not a pink tea; candidates have to be able to take it and to dish it out, too. But we feel that a discussion of a candidates' life expectancy in speeches and in the press is hitting below the belt. Some astonishing articles have been appearing in American papers about Franklin D. Roosevelt, weighing his chances of living through a fourth term; there have even been pictures published for the express purpose of showing a supposed physical decline. The object of these displays, of course, is to throw into flattering relief the juvenile perkiness of Mr. Dewey. But it all seems morbid, sordid and nasty to us.

Canada is quick to reflect any American attitude, good or bad, and in the pages of the Winnipeg Free Press we find this passage, couched in the inimitable Prairie Byzantine prose of Mr. Bruce Hutchison:

> "The lines of history, the dark record of our times, are carved deep on the face of Franklin Roosevelt. The face, like that of Lincoln in the old cracked photographs, has been terribly changed by these latter years. Roosevelt remains the supreme actor of the world. His air is jaunty, his chin thrust out, his charm as warm as ever, his repartee sharp as an arrow. He says his health is pretty good also, and laughs at the current rumours of mortality. But even if he is fit to endure four more years of daily crucifixion you see, as you look at him up close, that he has felt the world's agony in his flesh and soul and is not the same man who sat in this chair three years ago. A better man, perhaps a braver man, certainly a matured man whose mind has cleared after a long night of doubt, but a man cruelly battered and bruised".

How Mr. Roosevelt feels about these attempts to kill him off we have no way of knowing; probably he does not permit himself to think about them. But they are cruel, though we are convinced that in the case of Mr. Hutchison the cruelty is unintentional; probably he thinks that Roosevelt doesn't read the Free Press anyway. But it is ghoulish to measure a man for his coffin before he is dead.

Canada's North-East Neighbour

(By B. T. RICHARDSON)

MONTREAL: The 99-year lease of right to control and operate Goose Bay airport in Labrador in the defence of Canada, coming in the midst of important aviation discussions, will make Canadians more aware of the relations that exist between their country and its north-east neighbour, Newfoundland and the Coast of Labrador. In the history of international relations, there is nothing comparable to the series of events extending back almost 200 years, in which Labrador became a part of Newfoundland rather than Canada.

Labrador has been bandied back and forth between Newfoundland and Canada, in days when high policy was made entirely in London. The full strategic importance of this last continental coastline of North America facing Europe has been suddenly realized. The boundary between Canada and Labrador was settled by a privy council decision in 1927 in such a way that there are still low grumblings about it in the Canadian parliament. If history were different, Labrador would have been part of Canada, as the geography of North America intended it should be, and there would have been no question of rights to operate a crucial airport on world aviation routes there. The 99-year lease of Goose Bay airport has come after three years of uncertainty about legal rights there, though the uncertainty has not interfered in any way with the use of Goose Bay in the war nor with Canada-Newfoundland relations in general. The fact that Canada spent $25,000,000 to build an airport in Labrador and was content to wait three years for a formal agreement on controlling it indicated much mutual goodwill between the two countries.

LABRADOR has been a long time coming to the world notice that it occupies today because of its valuable airport. The story goes back to the Treaty of Paris in 1763. That treaty defines the claim of Britain in North America after the defeat of France. In 1759, the British under General Wolfe captured Quebec. In the settlement of 1763, the question of Labrador was raised with British colonial officials at the instigation of the Hudson's Bay Company. In order to prevent the French traders, who conducted commerce with the Indians, from occupying the fairly lucrative trade along the codfish and whaling coast of Labrador, that coast was transferred to Newfoundland. The method by which this was done was simply to issue a new commission to the governor of Newfoundland, then Captain Thomas Graves, so that he became "Governor of Newfoundland and of the Coast of Labrador.' This royal commission, which the privy council studied in 1927 in its search of legal claims to the territory in order to define its boundary, defined the coast to include territory extending from Hudson Strait to the mouth of the St. John's River in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, opposite Anticosti Island.

IN 1772-3 trouble was growing between the French Canadian traders interested in the Labrador Coast and the Newfoundland government, over fishing rights. In April, 1773, an order in council was passed to transfer Labrador back to Quebec. This was the period in which acrimony was rising between the British government and the Atlantic colonies, which developed into the American Revolutionary War and the complete break of 13 colonies from Britain. There were reasons, therefore, for pacifying the claims of French Canadian interests. The Quebec Act of 1774 recognized Quebec's claim to Labrador. But Quebec's interests were confined to salmon and seal fishing in the Gulf of St. Lawrence as far as the Strait of Belle Isle, and Quebec neglected the important cod and whale fishing area of Labrador's Atlantic coast. Newfoundland, the centre of cod and whale fishing, regarded this neglect with hostility and agitated for the return of Labrador.

When the Newfoundland Act was passed in 1809, the whole of Labrador was again assigned to Newfoundland, and the British North American Act (Siegnorial Rights 1825 recognized this transfer. The boundary had never been clarified. If Newfoundland had joined in the Canadian Confederation in 1867, as seemed likely at one stage, the matter would probably have been settled as an internal issue. Finally, Canada and Newfoundland agreed to submit the Labrador boundary to arbitration by the privy council. The judgment was written by Viscount Cave.

ONE of the strange features of the case was that Sir John Simon, eminent British lawyer, participated in preparing the Canadian case; but later joined the other side. Newfoundland's case was upheld by the privy council. The point at issue was how much territory was involved in the description "Coast of Labrador." The privy council decided that it included "the watershed of rivers falling into the sea on that shore." That is why the boundary of Labrador represents a large segment jutting into the Province of Quebec, instead of, as the old history books used to show, a narrow strip of coastal territory.

Two days after the judgment was published, the late C. H. Cahan asked the government at Ottawa to purchase the Labrador territory. A flurry of questions arose in the Canadian parliament. One member estimated the territory assigned to Labrador to be worth $500,000,000, probably an exaggeration.

THE territory involved covers 110,000 square miles, of which 60,000 are timberland. There may be minerals, and traces of iron ore have been found. Biggest potential asset may be a 1,000,000 horsepower hydro development on Hamilton River. The privy council litigation cost Canada $80,000. Canada lost the case, and the only sporting thing to do was to accept it. This viewpoint has prevailed in Ottawa. The late Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, said on March 14, 1927: "It was not an ordinary case. Both Newfoundland and the Dominion of Canada found a troublesome question in regard to the boundary and agreed to submit it to the privy council, a sort of judicial tribunal and selected by both parties, and the losing party must accept the decision."

Yet Canada-Newfoundland relations, thrust into forefront of policy both at Ottawa and St. John's, are moving into a new pattern. The purchase of Labrador is one possibility, though nothing has been done about it since Mr. Cahan suggested it. If, at some future date, Newfoundland decided to join Canada, Labrador might be exchanged for a permanent grant. But none of the possibilities of the situation are subject of official comment. Ottawa feels the initiative should come from St. John's, and no public opinion appears to exist either in Canada or Newfoundland for union at present.

WASH DAY ON THE SIEGFRIED LINE

The Technique Of The Snarl

(By J. H. GRAY)

TORONTO: These are bitter days indeed for the followers of Dale Carnegie and the service-with-a-smile school of meeting the public. The technique of the smile has been replaced by the technique of the snarl. Once the consumer was king. Today he's a bum, leaped upon, kicked around, snarled at and sneered at wherever he pokes his head into the open on this continent.

He is brutally ordered about by movie ushers, pushed around by waiters, ignored by shop-girls and whenever anyone condescends to speak to him it is with a cultivated rudeness of tongue and manner.

One of the new tricks is to answer questions with questions.

Ask an elevator operator if she is going up and she'll likely answer:

"Does it look like I'm going to Jersey for the week-end?"

Ask a bus driver if he passes Radio City and he may reply:

"Why don't you blind people carry canes? Don't all Fifth Avenue buses pass Radio City?"

Then there is the bite-the-hand-that-feeds-you touch. A waiter when asked to serve coffee with the meal replied venomously:

"I ain't got time to chase after you, I got other people to serve!"

Of the ticket seller in the Grand Central Station who took time out to harange the queue at his window:

"Everybody wanting to go some place else. Why the hell don't people stay home. They got no business anywhere. All they do is get on trains and ride to Chicago and turn around and come home. Why don't you stay home in the first place."

The taxi-driver handed a $10 bill:

"Yeh, sure I got lotsa change. But why don't you guys remember to get change before you get in a cab. Think all I got to do is sit here and count out change for you?"

Complain about the quality of food and you will get this:

"Ain't you heard, dearie, they's a war on?" Indeed you will get that in answer to almost any question.

◇ ◇ ◇

For years we have been flattered by Americans who have said they like Canada because we were so polite. We remembered this with some embarrassment when we crossed the border returning to Canada. The first Canadian we encountered was an immigration inspector. He pounded on the door at 6 a.m. and when we answered he snarled like a movie policeman doing a third degree:

"Where ya from?"

"Canada".

"Where ya born?"

"Canada".

"How long ya been in the States?"

"Four days".

He banged the door and left. He was followed some minutes later by the customs man, who curiously enough for we have long distrusted and feared customs officials, was the first completely polite person we had met in 10 days.

Nazi Prisoners In Canada

(WINNIPEG FREE PRESS)

DISCUSSION of the problem of preventing a resurgence of the Nazi philosophy in the future, when Germany shall have been defeated and its Nazi government overthrown and destroyed, should not overlook the fact that a large group of Nazis will be released from war prison camps in Canada and elsewhere after the war and that they will be restored to Germany. "It is obviously a matter of considerable importance to the future of Europe what sort of ideas these German prisoners take back with them, and steps should be taken to reduce the risk that they might return to their homeland still full of Nazi ardor and serve the purpose of fanning into full flame again the philosophy of totalitarianism just as it was about to flicker out forever. If this should happen, history could scarcely afford an example of greater irony.

In Canada, war prison camps contain some 30,000 Germans. As it happens the problem of re-education of Europe's Nazis will be more urgent among the prisoners in Canada than among Nazis in prison camps in Europe. Canada has looked after the toughest, most unregenerate Nazis found in the bag of German prisoners taken by Allied armies in the Mediterranean theatre, in the Battle of the Atlantic and in the Battle of Britain. It was thought safer to send them here. If most of them should still remain strong in the Nazi faith, it should surprise no one. The Nazi prisoners in Canada, for the most part, were captured when Germany seemed still to be winning the war. They have expected to return to a triumphant Germany, and alternatively many of them will expect to participate in the resurrection of the Nazi party after Germany's total defeat.

The time has come for a bolder policy in regard to German war prisoners than Canada has followed up to now. The problem is full of difficulties. The binding terms of the Geneva Convention dealing with prisoners of war must be respected to the letter. But much can be done. The question of segregating the goats from the sheep has already been studied, and to some extent put into effect. German war prisoners are now classified as white, grey or black, the degree of dye representing the degree of arrogance remaining in their Nazi faith. But a great deal more should be done. The first objective should be to see to it that even the least intelligent Nazi in a Canadian prison camp has ever opportunity to realize the enormity of Germany's defeat when it comes. The hard facts that Germany's military power, and not the German home front alone, is crumbling and that Germany will be systematically destroyed as long as its Nazi leaders remain, should be forced through the barriers of propaganda that have been created around the Nazi mind and that have been brought to Canadian prison camps by German prisoners.

French "Trusts"

General de Gaulle has frankly stated that the policy of the new French Government is to prevent "concentration of interests which in England and America are called "trusts." He says that the French government will gradually take over complete control of the country's economy, that French industry will be kept in the hands of the French.

All of which has revived the old uneasiness regarding France's swing to Communism under de Gaulle and his associates. The general himself has never admitted that his ideology is influenced by Moscow. It may be that he is caught in a general current of opinion in his not yet consolidated country. There was a strong leftist body of opinion in France just before this war and the spirit of Leon Blum is mighty yet.

It will not facilitate the restoration of France if freedom of enterprise is to be restricted in the land of "Liberty, Equality and Friendship."—Vancouver Province

Scholarship Carries On

It is reassuring to note that not all of the finer endeavors of civilization have been brought to a halt by the gruff demand of war. Scholarship in many a field tightens its belt and carries on through all distractions, knowing that life will some day be normal again and have need for the gifts that only scholarship can provide.

One thinks of that in looking through Volumes 11 and 12 of the Yale Edition of Horace Walpole's Correspondence, issued this month by the University Press in collaboration with perhaps 300 schools, colleges and libraries in the United States. Here is one of the most notable literary projects of all time. Critics have already acclaimed it as ranking with the Variorum Shakespeare among great American editorial achievements. Virginia Woolf said: "To criticize it is impossible, since there cannot in the whole universe exist a single human being whose praise or blame of such minute and monumental learning can be of any value—if such exists his knowledge has been tapped already."

In the two latest volumes are Walpole's letters to Mary and Agnes Berry and Barbara Cecelia Seton and their letters to him. The correspondence and the abundant and scrupulously accurate footnotes transport us in time and space to Walpole's England, with its politics, its literature, its society and its gossip. They produce such a "feeling of the period" as no formal history, however painstaking, can possibly do.

Walpole was shocked by the French Revolution, yet through those years he kept his humour and his balance and went on writing his delightful comment on the persons, the events and the life of his day, with results for which posterity will ever be grateful. Just so the world is grateful for the devotion of the scholarly editors at Yale who, in a far darker revolutionary time, persevere in the task they have set for themselves. May they keep on until, perhaps in 1955, the long undertaking will be finished. Through their labours of love the world of belles-lettres will have been eriched beyond calculation.

In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth....

And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them....

And God saw every thing that he had made, and behold, it was very good....Thus the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them.

But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul. (Gen. 1: 1, 26, 27, 31; 2: 1, 6, 7.)

NEW SOCIETY

The London Daily Telegraph suggests organization of a "Society for Laughing at the Brick-Bats Which Frivolous and Prejudiced Folks in the United States and Britain Fling Across the Atlantic." That is fine as far as it goes. But, why not a "Society for the Enforced Settlement on a Desert Isle of the McCormicks and Cunningham-Reids?" Then they could toss their brick-bats directly at one another and the rest of us wouldn't have to pay the slightest attention to anything they say or do. As a matter of fact, sometimes it is very hard to laugh at their antics; mayhem seems more in order.

BRAZIL IN LIMELIGHT

An announcement from Rio de Janeiro states the Brazilian Navy has taken over the entire work of patrolling the South Atlantic. American warships, formerly engaged in this duty are being transferred elsewhere, presumably to the Pacific.

This announcement underlines once again the growing importance of Brazil in world affairs. The South Atlantic is a huge stretch of water, and across it run many of the most vital sea lanes of the United Nations. With its 41,000,000 people, its vast resources, its growing industries and its well-developed army and navy, Brazil is emerging as the dominant power in South America. It may prove a very handy counter-weight to the Fascist-tinged, militaristic Argentine Republic. In any event, its voice and influence are likely to be increasingly important in the affairs of the Western Hemisphere.—Calgary Albertan.

Birth And Bounties

The most recent social security scheme announced in Britain—this one in a Government White Paper—has a provision that certainly puts the kibosh on tradition—one of the most distinctive British traditions—primogeniture.

Under the new social security scheme there are to be "children's allowances"—but there will be no allowance for the first-born child. Under the feudal law the first-born male child was "winner take all," and still is sole heir of entailed estates.

For Americans as for the French, who got rid of surviving relics of entail in our respective revolutions, the question seems somewhat remote. But the partial "declassing" of the first born under the British scheme may not be a purely academic question for us if we also trail totalitarian schemes for increasing births by bounties. —Chicago Daily News.

Bergen Op Zoom Said Dull Town Canadians Find It Lively Spot

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

BERGEN OP ZOOM, Holland, Oct. 31—(CP Cable)—The guide book says Bergen Op Zoom is a "dull town (21,000 inhabitants) noted for its oysters and its sieges." But on Saturday, after the Canadians had taken the place, it was not dull and its burghers were thinking more of sieges than of oysters.

The Germans cleared out of Bergen when they had been out-manoeuvred by the Canadian attack on this western pivot point of their defence line south of the lower Rhine and a Canadian "Jock" column of tanks and infantry moved in swiftly to occupy the town.

I drove into Bergen in mid-afternoon and it was in an uproar with fighting flaming along its northern outskirts. The liberation celebration was abruptly halted by the return of war and the Canadians who had received a flag-waving boisterous reception when they took over the town soon found they had a stiff fight on their hands along the canal north of Bergen.

Snipers Left Behind.

Our Vickers machine-guns clattered in the park and medium and field artillery shells screeched over the town to hit German positions beyond it. Occasionally German mortar bombs banged into the streets and the odd sniper was still holding out in the ancient buildings of Bergen.

Bergen was anything but dull. Children wearing paper caps and holding the flags with which they crouched in doorways not knowing whether to laugh or cry about the end of their celebrations. Their parents hovered around them anxiously. Men of the Netherlands resistance movement were marching through streets armed with Sten guns and German rifles hunting out the last snipers.

In the central square were troops who had taken Bergen and from a hotel bedroom the battle for the canal was being directed.

A tank squadron commanded by Maj. Dave Currie of Moose Jaw, Sask., was first into the town.

The tanks had battled their way up the trail running from the southeast into Bergen. With them was a Central Ontario infantry battalion commanded by an Edmonton lieutenant colonel. Maj. Jim Swayze of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Maj. Jim Dandy of Sudbury, Ont., led two of the leading infantry companies. Maj. M. J. McCutcheon of Niagara Falls, Ont., was second in command of the battalion.

Booby Traps Galore

The thrust up the trail by his tank and infantry column had forced the Germans to give up Bergen. The enemy fought hard on this path which was heavily mined and covered with hundreds of booby-trapped trees which had been felled across the line of advance. On one stretch of 75 yards there were 25 Teller mines and 60 booby traps fixed to tree trunks. Royal Canadian engineers had either to remove or explode every one of them before the tanks could crunch forward.

The Germans covered these obstacles with machine-gun and rifle fire and it was a slugging fight right to the outskirts of Bergen. Then resistance folded up until the Canadians hit the canal north of the town. They found their way over it but were counter-attacked and had to fall back to the south side.

Allied Civil Affairs men have a difficult problem on their hands in Bergen and in every other Netherlands community thus far liberated where food shortages are acute due to German plundering.

Crackpot Club Crusades For Common Good Bewilders Officials Who Are Too Pompous

By KATHRYN UMPHREY
Associated Press Staff Writer

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 31—(AP).—The Grand Rapids Crackpot Club's latest innovation is "subnormal college" which will issue fancy Latin diplomas.

Dedicated to the purpose of seeing that people, particularly public officials, don't take themselves too seriously, the crackpots decided there are too many prospective employers overly impressed with diplomas and too many prospective employees without diplomas.

Figuring that a diploma is just a dilpoma, says club spokesman Floyd Mayo, the crackpots will give certificates granting bearers all courtesies. The employers won't know the difference, the crackpots contend, since the diplomas will be in Latin.

To get one of these you must make application to the club and answer three questions by mail—if you miss you get another chance.

Members of the club are 48 business men and one reporter. Every member is a vice president, so there will be no jealousies.

When the time controversy was rampant, the Grand Rapids City Commission was given a blanket crackpot award for confusing citizens by inaugurating a time different from both the standard and daylight times used in the area. The crackpots then proceeded to set up a still different time, based on half-hour intervals, and campaigned for people to carry three watches. The commission voted a standard time.

Last year when Canadian millionaire Harry McLean started tossing money out windows, the crackpots invited him to come talk to them and really let himself go. There was no answer. Not angered, understand, just irritated, the crackpots wired again with "dammit, we said please, didn't we?"

The crackpots started a campaign when they learned that a blind man's widow was about to lose a candy concession in a Grand Rapids factory. Each member called the factory three times daily. They enlisted help from their friends. The widow was given back her stand—after three days of chaos on the factory switchboard which seriously interrupted business as usual.

Rotary Urged Keep Moving By Governor

"Keep moving" was the message brought to the Peterborough Rotary Club at its regular meeting held at the Empress Hotel Monday evening by Rotarian Tom Rogers of Toronto governor of the 168th Rotary district who paid an official visit to the local club Monday.

Governor Rogers reminded his hearers that they were living in a static world and that it was necessary for them to keep pace with changing conditions.

At the beginning of the meeting Rotarians stood for a minute in silence as a tribute to the memory of Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, charter member of the club, whose death occurred a few hours earlier.

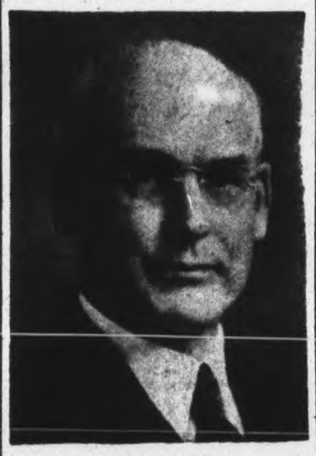
Welcome attendant at the dinner was Rotarian Dr. George C. Easton, who made his first appearance at a club meeting since his illness and was warmly received.

Introduced by Rotarian J. L. Gillespie, Col. J. A. Dewart was accepted as the newest member of the Peterborough Rotary Club.

Before the address Miss Helen Parkinson contributed two very enjoyable solo numbers in excellent voice, singing "Love is the Sweetest Thing" and "My Lindy Lou." Harry Northrop was at the piano.

Introduced by President Gordon S. Matthews, Governor Rogers began by pointing out that the world was changing and declared that he did not think it would be possible after the war to return to the old conditions. It was true that there were two men whose chief idea about the return of peace was that new automobiles, lots of gasoline and improved roads would be available but the speaker felt that they might have to change their viewpoint.

As for Rotarians he said he thought that the best possible title he could give his address was "Just Keep Moving."



TOM ROGERS

"If the first Rotary club" he said, "had been satisfied with the wealth of friendship it engendered among its own members it would never have spread beyond the borders of Chicago."

The speaker told how Rotary had expanded along the line of its four objectives, stressing the importance of not only bringing one's classification into Rotary but also of carrying the ideals of Rotary back into one's classification. He also emphasized the desirability of more community service and pointed out that it was a Canadian club which had been responsible for Rotary's fourth object, the development of a better understanding among the nations of the world.

Governor Rogers saw in the fact that after the war there would still exist 70,000,000 unreconciled enemies, a problem that would long defy solution.

"Some means must be found to solve that problem," he said. "Perhaps after all Rotary has the right idea, the development of better understanding through a world fellowship."

Pointing out the sacrifices that were being made by the youth of the land and the magnificent service they were rendering in the war, Governor Rogers suggested that there must be some contribution "we older men" can make toward better conditions after the war.

Rotarian Fred L. Roy expressed the thanks of Rotary to Governor Rogers for his address. He also thanked the guest speaker for the contribution he had made to Rotary and the sacrifice of his own interest that he had to make since taking over the position of district governor.

After the dinner Governor Rogers had a conference with the club directors and committee chairmen.

Eden Church Choir Presents Concert

MOUNT JULIAN, Oct. 31—(ENS)—The concert held by the choir girls of Eden United Church Friday evening provided a splendid program for those who attended. Cleveland Robb, who has charge of this mission, was chairman. The program opened with a recitation of "Welcome" by Dorothy Northey. Other recitations were given by Beverly Truswell, Marie Wilson and Ethel Northey. A number of anthems were sung by the chair. A playlet was given by the following: Misses June, Daphne, Dorothy and Ethel Northey, Marie Wilson, Beverly Truswell, Erma Lean, Mrs. Carol Cooper, Mrs. John Northey, Mrs. Theodore Wilson, and Mrs. Stanley Northey, also Cleveland Robb and George Booth.

Visiting artists from Peterborough were Mr. and Mrs. Max Pomeroy, who sang two duets, Mrs. William Hepburn, two vocal solos, and Miss Gladys Langton a solo, reading and monologue; a humorous reading was supplied by George Booth; Marie Wilson and Ethel Northey each sang a solo, with guitar accompaniment, as did June Northey with organ accompaniment. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Northey and their three daughters June, Daphne and Dorothy, sang a number with June playing the guitar accompaniment. Guitar acompaniment for the choral numbers was played by June Northey, Marie Wilson and Ethel Northey, with Mrs Stanley Northey at the organ.

A surprise feature was a lullaby by the choir girls, in which little four-year-old Edna Northey sat in a tiny rocker, rocking her dolly, but so effective was the lullaby that she fell asleep in the chair, still hugging her doll.

At the close of the program tea was served and lunches sold in paper bags at 10 cents each. The proceeds go toward the expenses of the choir.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Northey are spending a few days in Toronto.

Voluntary Workers Hand Over Profits

HARSHAM, Sussex, England, Oct. 31.—(CP).—Horsham's patriot engineers, a voluntary firm of spare-time workers, turned out 3,000,000 aircraft component parts without a rejection during nearly three years' production.

The organization, founded in 1942 after an appeal for all-out production, sent Sir Stafford Cripps, Minister of Aircraft Production, a cheque for £3,000 (about $13,500) representing the profits from their work.

High school girls and grammar school boys, retired admirals, colonels, doctors and school teachers were among the amateur factory hands, all of them unpaid.

Men who think of tomorrow
Invest in Victory today!

ONE day the whistles will blow, sirens shriek and bells will ring. It will be a day of rejoicing and a day of thanksgiving. We will have won our war.

Yes, we will win this war. We know that now. But the enemy has not yet surrendered nor has the fighting ceased. Canada's sons must continue to wage war on battlefields the world over. Here at home we, too, must carry on: building the ships and planes, making the guns and shells, producing the food on which our fighting men depend. And, we must continue to help pay for all these things through our purchase of Victory Bonds.

When V day dawns, when our boys come home, we all want to be able to hold our heads high—be able to say, "I did all I could."

Are you buying all the Victory Bonds you can? When we lend our money today we hasten tomorrow's victory.

Men who think of tomorrow invest in victory today!

Jud McAtee Becomes American

DETROIT, Oct. 31 (CP) — The discovery that he could become a United States citizen just by announcing that fact was the determining factor in bringing Rookie Jerome (Jud) McAtee to the Detroit Red Wings this season.

McAtee, who made an auspicious debut by scoring two goals and getting one assist against Boston Bruins Sunday night, has been the property of the Wings for years, and had two good seasons with the Indianapolis Capitols in the American Hockey League before he found himself frozen in his war job at St. Catharines, Ont., by Selective Service regulations.

Learns His Status

Then, last summer, he made the discovery that, although he was born in Stratford, Ont., he had a choice about his citizenship. His parents were born in St. Louis, and their children had the option at 21 of choosing between United States and Canadian citizenship. So Jud became an American and was immediately free to leave his Canadian war plant job and cross the border to Detroit. He previously had been rejected as medically unfit for service in the Canadian armed forces, and United States authorities also rejected him.

In addition to playing hockey with Wings, Jud has acquired a war plant job here.

He has two brothers who were on the way to hockey stardom before war interrupted their careers Phil, better known as Red, played with Pittsburgh in the A.H.L., and now is a Canadian Army lieutenant in Belgium. Norm, former right wing with Indianapolis, is a flying officer in the RCAF, and is stationed at Centralia, near London.

A game last season against a London services team, which had drafted Syl Apps from his training centre at Simcoe to assist them, gave Jud his greatest thrill. Apps tallied six goals for the services team, but Jud matched him—goal for goal.

STRAWBERRY GUAVA

Delicious, Sweet and Spicy

This is a luscious tropical fruit which makes a useful as well as a charming and beautiful house plant. It bears both flowers and fruit at the same time. The flowers are pure white and delightfully fragrant. The fruit is about the size of a walnut, of a beautiful reddish color, and of delicious, sweet and spicy flavor. Fine for eating out of hand, and unsurpassed for making jelly. These plants are usually grown from seed and begin to bloom and bear fruit while quite small.

Canadian Horses Return From U.S. Tracks

TORONTO, Oct. 31. — Tulachmore and Mugwump, handicap winners at United States tracks, arrived back in Toronto yesterday and are stabled at Dufferin Park.

W. E. MacDonald will send his string into winter quarters, with Tulachmore going on to the Harry Giddings farm at Oakville. The others will be quartered at Dufferin. Mugwump, owned by J. Kemp of Hamilton, will be shipped later on to Florida for a winter campaigning. The Rose Mountain stable also came along and will be transferred to the Merrill Farm at London.

Two New Additions.

Two new additions came along with the MacDonald stable in the three-year-olds, Count Double and Ples Pat. Count Double, a strapping son of Count Gallahad and China Tea, was not raced as a two-year-old. He started five times this year, winning two, was twice second and twice out of the money. MacDonald considers this one will develop into a handicap performer next season. Ples Pat is by Good Advice and is a sprinter.

The MacDonald racing stable for 1945 will consist of eight runners in Tulachmore, Sweepnito, Vice-Admiral, Patafryn, Count Double, Ples Pat, Bellcoda, and a King's Plate nominee Hemboss A division of the stable will again be raced in the United States next year. Black Market will be turned over to Gil Darlington to be converted into a jumper. The jumper Bright and Gay will be used as a pony. Hemboss, the King's Plater for next year will be sent to the Hemstead farm at Steeles Corners for the winter months. Poppy Time, owned by MacDonald, is in foal to Bunty Lawless and the mare is on the Darlington Farm.

Vice-Admiral, a son of War Admiral, purchased by the MacDonald stable during the Fort Erie meeting and a winner during Thistledown, caught the eye of several horsemen including Buckley and Cleveland, the former owners of the horse Cleveland offered the Toronto sportsman $2,000 more than MacDonald paid for the horse, and the bid was turned down. Cleveland gathered two carloads of horses at Thistledown and shipped them on to Mexico.

Pat Remillard, who missed being the leading rider during the Cleveland meeting by a single point to Jockey McCadden, arrived home yesterday. Bobby Watson is returning home this week. Watson received an offer to ride for a prominent stable this winter in California. Remillard is leaving on a hunting trip, and will likely remain here this winter. Charlie Henry, racing secretary at Detroit and Cleveland, congratulated Remillard and Watson for their riding during the Thistledown meeting, and invited them back next year. Henry went on to California.

Among those to race at New Orleans this winter are Doug Ness, with a large public stable; Jack Grilla, with Wise Chance, Pretty Lady and Shining Day. Harold Raines, with the stable of D. Lewis of Detroit, A. J. Halliwell and horses trained by M. Skillendar. M. Fishman sent Appas Tappas, Gypster, Deposit and High Honors on to Rockingham. C. Gentry, brother of Lloyd Gentry, is going to take Plucky Ray and the horses of the Duke Stable from Rockingham to Florida. Uragal, a mare raced around here with success two years ago, has been retired to her owner's farm in Kentucky, and will be bred next season.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

To the older generation of Peterborough sport fans the passing of Dr. H. R. H. Kenner means the snapping of a link with the past. The veteran educationist, in the golden period of local sport when Peterborough teams on the ice and on the gridiron were winning fame for their home city was for years one of the leading spirits in almost very field of athletic endeavor. As a sport executive he held an unequalled record over a long period in the closing years of the last century and during the first decade of the 20th century. He held office as president of the hockey team, president of the Peterborough Rugby Club, president of the Peterborough Ball Club, president of the old Athletics Lacrosse Club and president of the Peterborough Curling Club, besides serving as a baseball umpire in his earlier days in this city. In fact the name of H. R. H. Kenner appeared almost automatically in the position of president when sporting bodies were electing their officers and in that capacity he gave able leadership and inspiring encouragement in almost every branch of sport. When the famous Peterborough Colts were sweeping all before them on the ice Dr. Kenner was president of the club and held a similar office in rugby during a period in which championships were coming this way.

He was not only an energetic leader but he was a warm friend of the athletes of the city, one whom they trusted and admired and who accompanied them on many of their trips out of town and never failed to inspire them to their finest efforts when competing before hostile crowds. For the past several decades Dr. Kenner's active connection with Peterborough sport had ceased but up to the onset of the illness that finally resulted in his death he had never lost interest in or touch with sport in many branches. He took a great pride in the exploits of Collegiate football squads and until quite recently was a regular attendant at their games. And in the wider realm of sport activity Dr Kenner's interest never flagged. He followed the fortunes of Canadian hockey and rugby squads and of big league ball clubs closely at all times and was perhaps better posted in what was going on in the world of sport than many young fans. Tribute is being paid elsewhere today to what this grand old man of Peterborough education contributed toward the cultural development of this community. It is fitting, however, that in a column like this, devoted to the discussion of sport matters that the debt that Peterborough owes to Dr. Kenner for his magnificent contribution to the athletic growth of this city should be acknowledged. Few men in Peterborough's history have done so much in that direction as the very fine sportsman and gentleman who passed on yesterday.

Saturday's Battle

Peterborough juniors, with Toronto Balmy Beach juniors invading the city on Saturday to meet the local team at Riverside Park are putting in the toughest week's drill of the season for Coach Rich Jackson has called four workouts to put the team on edge for this battle. The local youngsters made some costly errors against the strong Toronto Vikings but they are determined that that kind of thing will not happen again and that in Saturday's game they will give the Toronto crew a real tussle for the honors. The Bammie juniors have some classy material and the Petes will have to be on their toes all the way to stay in the hunt against such a well-balanced outfit. The game is billed for 2.15 o'clock Saturday and it is to be hoped that there will be real crowd on hand for it costs money to pay the expenses of football teams from Toronto and this is the third Queen City club the Petes have brought down this season. They have been compelled to seek opponents in Toronto for there are no junior clubs in Eastern Ontario. It is an expensive proposition but there does not seem any other way for the local squad to get fixtures and of course they cannot keep rugby alive without being able to arrange a series of games. Fans who are genuinely interested in football should be on hand Saturday to help the club in the game effort it is making to get rugby on a firm footing here once more.

One reason why Oshawa has been going places in hockey for years can be found in the following paragraph by George Campbell in the Oshawa sport column: "The Oshawa Minor Hockey Association held its organization meeting for the 1944-45 season on Thursday night at the Hotel Genosha and made ready for another term of keen activity in helping to keep the young lads of Oshawa off the streets in wintertime, give them supervised healthy recreation and an opportunity of developing their hockey talents and in some cases commencing what will perhaps prove a sports career. Better known to Oshawa hockey fans and local lads as the "City League" this organization has been fostering hockey in "Canada's greatest Junior hockey city" for about fourteen years now and they have made improvements and advances almost every season. To our knowledge, this is the finest youth-sport organization in the country and has been a big factor in Oshawa's sport life for many years and incidentally has contributed a fair share of players to higher puck ranks, though most of them are now wearing the King's uniform in one branch of the service or another. "Army" Armstrong was again named president and most of the hard-working individuals who have "carried the mail" in the "City League" for the past few years, were also returned to their offices. Oshawa will be represented in the Ontario Minor Hockey Association playoffs this season, in Bantam, Midget and Juvenile ranks and at Thursday night's meeting the president, secretary and treasurer were named as delegates to attend the O.M.H.A. annual meeting next month."

A Friendly Argument

This column had a friendly argument Saturday with Coach Todd of the Port Hope High School squad as to whether or not it is possible to score a point from a kick-off. The Port Hope mentor argued that no score could be made but we have an idea that he has read that particular section of the playing rules rather carelessly for he has failed to note the exception mentioned in the C.R.U. code. It is quite true that it is not possible to score a dead line single or a touch-in-goal from the kick-off and if the ball, without being touched goes over the dead line on the kick or into the touch-in-goal area it is brought back and the kick-off taken again from ten yards further back. But if the ball goes into the goal area and not out of bounds the play is something else again. The rule says "A goal cannot be scored from a kick-off and no other score can be made from a kick-off unless the ball, after being kicked off touches a PLAYER within bounds." It will be noticed that the rule does not say a defending player but simply uses the word "player" and capitalizes it so that there is no doubt that it refers to players of either team. And of course "bounds" are defined as "the inside of the touch lines, the touch lines produced and the dead-ball line," in other words the playing field proper and the two goal areas.

* * * * * *

Reading that whole rule it is plain not only that it is possible to score a rouge from a kick-off but that it is also feasible to score a touchdown. If the kick-off goes over the goal line into the goal area and is there played by a member of the defending team he can be tackled back of the goal line for a rouge. On the other hand if the kick-off crosses the goal line and the defending side is foolish enough to let it roll around in the goal area without playing it there is nothing to prevent one of the attacking side from falling on it for a major score for of course the whole attacking team is onside on the kick-off. That may sound like a most unlikely play but it has happened right at Riverside Park and Gordie Young who refereed Saturday's game has good reason to remember it for as he recalled Saturday, he himself was guilty of not picking up a ball back of his own goal line when playing for Peterborough Collegiate against the University of Toronto Schools and one of the U.T.S. players promptly dropped on the

K. G. Juniors Win Kinsmen Soccer Trophy

Ideal weather prevailed on Monday afternoon for the first junior soccer cup final in Peterborough Public Schools when King George won by two goals over King Edward Juniors and gained possession of the Kinsmen Junior Cup which is emblematic of the city championship. The losers were without the services of their star player, Robinson, who was unfortunately sick

First Half

King George set the ball rolling and forced the issue with their effective combination that had King Edward off balance in the first half. From a scrimmage in front of goal L. Rutherford registered for King George. This was followed by H. Harding, who made no mistake with his parting drive that put the East City boys up two goals at the interval.

Second Half.

Encouraged with their two-goal lead, King George contented themselves with defensive style of play in the second half. King Edward forwards seemed to be lighter than the East City boys, making it easier for them to hold the attack in check for the remainder of the second period. Full time—King George 2, King Edward 0.

The teams:

King Edward—B. Ferguson, goal; H. Harris and G. Bennett, backs; D. Martin, D. Bigford, E. Woods, half-backs; G. Searles, B. Young, D. Whatley, T. Downer, and B. Batley, forwards; subs, J. Church, D. Langhorne.

School Soccer Teams Fail To Break Tie

After battling to the time limit in the third game of the best-of-three series in the Public School Soccer championship for possession of the Kinsmen Senior Trophy, King Edward and Central again failed to break the deadlock at King Edward Park on Monday afternoon, before a large crowd of spectators. Both elevens abided by the same teams that had drawn in the two previous tussles, 1-1 in the first, and no scoring in the second, and now no scoring in the third. Two well-balanced teams that relied upon cup-tie tactics with combination not being permitted to gain ascendency.

The fourth encounter will be played on Wednesday afternoon on King Edward Park. A few years ago the same named school teams played nine games and failed to get a decision.

First Half

There was no advantage in the selection of goals. In the exchanges mid-field tactics prevailed with the half-back divisions controlling the destiny of the attack. Chambers, King Edward, laterly opened up the play by outguessing the defense and centring the ball into goal Patterson, Central full back, quickly nullifed any success in front of goal by his clever anticipation of blocking Lawson who was in a favorable position. Patterson blocked and tackled cleverly to send Delahaye away on the wing, along with Whitnall who carried the ball into shooting range. Breadman, King Edward full back, robbed him nicely to frustrate a dangerous raid. Central hemmed King Edward defense right back into goal to gain two unsuccessful flag kicks. Byers ultimately gained possession outside the goal area to send Beggs away on the wing who beat three men in a row. Forbes, Central, kicking out to touch to save his charge. Self, King Edward, placed a throw-in nicely to put his forwards in an excellent position to score. Forbes was beaten nicely, but Patterson went in between Lawson and Anderson to clear up-field to Brooks who let Whitnall have a try at goal, but his parting shot went wide. King Edward forwards went right back again to gain two flag kicks that failed to reach their objective. Noble falling back in time to rob Lawson who was making tracks for goal. Beggs picking up the loose ball to miss by inches. Play run from end to end with each goal-keeper being called upon to save his charge. Just before the interval, Central opened up a steady attack that brought out the stable qualities of Riches, Byers and Self as they responded with definite tactics that finally broke up the Brooks, Whitnall, Hum pressure as they hovered around the goal. Half time—no scoring.

Second Half

After the customary respite, both elevens were very cautious in their method of attacks, thereby resulting in constructive defensive plays that failed to make any progress toward goal. Finally Byers gained possession from Whitnall, punted forward to Chambers, who travelled down the wing and centred in front of goal. Patterson again nipping the ball out of danger. Noble swinging the ball out to Dolan. He slipped the ball past Riches on the wing. Hum connecting with a first times that sailed past the upright to Grant's comfort. From the goal kick, Riches punted clear into Central territory to get a succession of corner kicks that only resulted in a continual scrimmage in front of goal, with Patterson and Forbes, full backs, went right back into goal to block any progress while the half backs kept punting clear. King Edward bombarded from every angle. In fact, Lawson had registered after a spectator had kicked the ball back into play. The referee gave a goal kick to relieve the pressure by King Edward. Quickly the same performance was enacted at the other end with Brooks in many individual efforts missing his mark by inches, while Dolan and Whitnall endeavored to pick the open space in the goal. Then King Edward came back into the picture with Riches being the most effective man along with Byers to hem Central inside their own goal area. With only five minutes to go, Central came back to pepper King Edward goal as Whitnall, continually watched by Byers kept swinging the ball out to his wing men, thereby gaining three flag kicks. Brooks placed the ball dead in the centre of goal. Grant, King Edward goalie, made a spectacular save as he with out-stretched arms cleared his goal. The referee awarded a penalty for handling, but changed his decision when he realised that it was the custodian who handled. It is customary that a custodian wear a white sweater, thereby eliminating any unfortunate ruling. Then two more corner kicks caused King Edward anxiety as Whitnall went right through, but he got the timely touch that threw him off balance and shot wide. One minute to go, McKenzie blocked Byers as he made tracks for goal. He sent a low grounder over to Brooks with an open field in front of him, he evaded the full backs nicely to test Grant in goal. They kept up the attack until the final whistle. Full time—no scoring.

Central—J. Hutchison, goal; J. Forbes and E. Patterson, full backs; H. Wilson, W. Noble and K. Delahaye, halves; W. McKenzie, D. Brooks, J. Whitnall, T. Hum and W. Dolan, forwards. Subs, G. Chambers, N. Howard and D. Campbell.

King Edward—J. Grant, goal; D. Downer and D. Breadman, full backs; A. Riches, J. Byers and R. Self, halves; M. Chambers, D. Buchan, K. Lawson, D. Anderson and R. Beggs, forwards. Subs, G. Robinson, J. Hooper and P. Ferguson.

Referee—Stan McLeod.

2 Teams Have Powerful Forward Lines

By The Canadian Press.

Early skirmishing in the National Hockey League's fifth wartime campaign indicates that at least two coaches—Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings and Clarence (Happy) Day of Toronto Maple Leafs—have found a successful recipe for a high-scoring forward line.

Both put a promising young player on a line with two veterans and the initial results have been gratifying to the hockey faithful of the two cities. Adams picked 21-year-old Jud McAtee as left wing on a line with two old Detroit reliables—Centre Syd Howe and Right Wing Modere (Mud) Bruneteau. Day put last season's rookie-of-the-year Gus Bodnar at centre between Lorne Carr and Dave (Sweeney) Schriner.

The Detroit combination paid off six of their team's seven goals against Boston Sunday night, each getting two of the counters. They had four assists as well, Howe getting two and the others one each, giving them a total of 10 scoring points.

The Toronto trio picked up 18 scoring points in their games against Rangers on Saturday night and against Chicago Sunday night. They provided both Toronto goals against Rangers and 7 of the 11 Leafs scored against Chicago.

The three Toronto players each collected six points. Schriner, on the comeback trail after a year in retirement, led in the goal-scoring department with five—including the two against Rangers. Carr had three goals and three assists and the 22-year-old Bodnar had one goal and five assists.

Next scheduled game in the league is Wednesday night when the Rangers visit Black Hawks. A two-game program is billed for Thursday night with Leafs at Canadiens and Rangers at Detroit.

NOW IN THE MOVIES — Pat Clark, former New York model, has been signed to a long term contract by Warner Bros. and will soon be seen in "Hollywood Canteen." She was dancing in a New York night club when a talent scout saw her and immediately signed her. Pat is the daughter of Maj. George L. Clark, infantry.

President Maurice A. Podoloff of the American Hockey League last night said at New Haven he had awarded a game played Oct. 25 between Indianapolis and Hershey to the latter by a 3-0 score because Indianapolis used three members of the Detroit National League club. Originally, Indianapolis outscored Hershey, 7-3. Podoloff said the use of the Detroit trio violated the American League's player loan rule.

Boston Bruins announced last night that they had purchased Right-winger Bill Jennings from the Detroit Red Wings, in exchange for Right Winger Pete Leswick and an unannounced sum of cash.

Harold (Jug) McSpaden, one of the United States' leading golfers, has resigned as pro at the Philadelphia Country Club to become national public relations and field representative for the Palm Beach-Goodall Company of New York. McSpaden said yesterday he plans to leave on a western barnstorming tour Nov. 8, and expects to play in the Canadian Red Cross Benefit tournament Nov. 17 and the $13,000 War Bond Open at Portland, Ore., Nov. 23.

Three Canadian fighters scored as many knockouts and another Dominion boxer drew in fights at Buffalo last night. Mike Marty, 145, St. Catharines, Ont., knocked out Chet Goodwin, 140, Lackawanna, N.Y., in the first heat of a four-rounder; Joe Genovese, 134¾, Toronto, knocked out Ted Finley, 129, Swain, Ont., in the first round of another four-rounder and Patsy Zacana, 137, Toronto, knocked out Johnny Virgo, 135, Rochester, N.Y., in three rounds. Cliff Beckett, 154, Sudbury, Ont., drew with Bobby Giles, 160, Buffalo, in six rounds.

Schoolboy Berthiaume of Montreal used one blazing left hook to the chin to knock out Al Stephany, New York Negro, at 1:02 of the second round of a scheduled eight round bout at Providence last night. Berthiaume weighed 175, Stephany 184. It took two full minutes to revive Stephany after the knockout.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 31 — (CP). — Hockey and football get the cold shoulder to-day, with Hallowe'en pranks the sport of the day among the young fry. Things have been very quiet in this realm of sport, and we haven't heard of one argument arising that could not be settled amicably. No moves have been launched yet to establish a Hall of Fame in honor of the apple-bobbers, nor has there been any agitation to appoint a Czar in charge of pinning tails on respective donkeys.

That's a refreshing situation in the current sport scene.

Battle of the sexes:

Male sportwriters, clinging tenaciously to one of the last refuges of their sex, the press box, are gradually being eased out of that once exclusive domain in Winnipeg. Bill Good wrote of the situation somewhat bitterly in the Winnipeg Tribune, telling how he and his colleagues were ousted from the choicest seats in the football and hockey press boxes by invading females.

Though we blush to admit it, one of the female usurpers was a colleague of ours, Miss Enid Nemy, of the Canadian Press staff in Winnipeg. Defending her reprehensible action in a letter to the Tribune's sport department, the girl was shameless in her insistence she and her girl friends would continue to sit in the press box as long as they were writing sport

The men will get used to it after a while, she remarked blithely, adding ominously: "If not, they have my profound sympathy—for I rather think they will have to."

Here to there:

Grant Warwick of Regina, member of the famous athletic family, is trying a comeback with the New York Rangers after fracturing his skull in the 1943 season. He's one of the very few hockey players able to attempt a comeback. His teammate, Goalie Ken McCauley, is another.....Doug (Windsor Star) Vaughan picks Detroit Red Wings to finish first in the N.H.L. this year, with Montreal Canadiens, Toronto, Boston, Chicago and Rangers trailing in that order. Many will disagree with that selection.

Oshawa Boxer Wins In Toronto

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—(CP).—Arthur King, Toronto featherweight, won a close five-round decision over Jimmy Rizzo of Hamilton last night in the headline bout of an amateur boxing card.

126 pounds—Alex Alexs of Port Colborne, won a decision from Jack McPhee of Oshawa in three rounds.

120 pounds—George Larocque, of Oshawa, won a decision from Tony Coco of Toronto in three hours.

Sports Spice

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—(AP)—Texas Pete Cawthon should have waited another day before he quit as Brooklyn Tigers coach . . . he couldn't have seen any more spooks on Hallowe'en than he did in Dodgertown . . . This year's Tigers have lost five straight games and not one by more than seven points—the last two were 17-14 and Washington's winning field goal hit the cross bar. Pete said he never had seen that happen before in all his coaching days . . . incidentally it wasn't the Ebbets Field fans who ran Cawthon out of Brooklyn but the other common complaint—front office interference.

Unsolicited Comment

Commenting on wartime changes in college football yesterday, Coach Carl Snavely of Cornell remarked: "The players have to take a day off occasionally to go and draw their pay. That's a little different." . . . Maybe he wasn't pointing the finger at anyone in particular but it sounded as if the difference came in taking a day off.

Shorts and Shells

When Tami Mauriello was handed an indefinite suspension the other day for pulling out of a match with Lee Oma, he walked out of the meeting room with a puzzled look on his face and asked: "What does indefinitely mean? Does that mean I can't fight anywhere else?"

No Yards Gained, Rushing

During the Iowa Seahawks-Fort Warren game the other day, the Seahawks' Randall Rushing couldn't get a pass away and tried to run instead . . . after great effort he got back to the line of scrimmage before being smeared . . . as he lay there, trying to regain his breath, halfback Bob Smith leaned over him and said, in dead seriousness, "Gee, Randy, I would have blocked that guy, but I didn't think you'd get this far."

Refuses $40,000 For Bon Jour

By APPAS TAPPAS

TORONTO, Oct. 31—An offer of $40,000 has been turned down by Charles Turner, Toronto sportsman, for his good handicap gelding, Bon Jour.

Hirsch Jacobs, leading trainer of America for a number of years, acting for Isadore Beiber, New York horseman, made several overtures to Tuner for the horse, and in the paddock at Laurel when Bon Jour was being saddled for the $25,000 Washington Handicap Jacobs flashed the marked cheque which Turner refused.

Bon Jour, beaten in the Washington, came out of the race all right and his next start will be in the $25,000 Riggs Handicap at Laurel on Nov. 20. Present plans call for Bon Jour being shipped to New Orleans to start in the feature race during the winter months of the Crescent City track.

Bon Jour is the first get of Sun Beau to win more than $100,000. The unsexed son of Sun Beau and Chaucrita so far has earned $112,560, to place him in the charmed circle of winners in America of more than one hundred grand. Second money in the Washington Handicap last Saturday was $5,000, and this figure brought Bon Jour's 1944 earnings to $80,370, with still a chance for the gelding to pass the $100,000 mark for this year's racing. Sun Beau when race by the late Willis Sharpe Kilmer, Binghamton breeder, earned a total of $376,744. When Bon Jour won this year's running of the Bryan and O'Hara Memorial at Laurel he was emulating the performance of his sire, which won the 1930 renewal of the handicap.

Turner is at present in Maryland. He is having a plaque made with a pair of Bon Jour's shoes gold plated. It is the Toronto horseman's intention to have the plaque auctioned and the proceeds donated to a Toronto Children's Christmas Fund.

Says Canada Embracing Totalitarianism

TORONTO, Oct. 31—(CP)—Hon. Solon Low, National leader of the Social Credit Association of Canada, in an address here Monday charged that the Bretton Woods and Dumbarton Oaks conferences foreshadowed "a world dictatorship with all effective power centralized in the international authority controlling finance and the armed forces."

The adoption of a central world authority to control monetary systems would constitute on a world scale "a system similar to the new order which the Nazis endeavored to force on Europe he told The Canadian Club.

Canada itself, under the stress of war conditions, was embracing totalitarianism in the form of a system of controls under centralized control.

"... fact we have resorted to state so...m as the base of our war economy," he said.

He said that if Canada is to meet the peace for which now it is "hopelessly unprepared" Canadians must call a halt to "this rapid drift towards the supreme state and internationl dictatorship" and establish a democracy based upon the freedom of the individual.

Mrs. G. Bitten Named Treasurer For I.O.D.E.

NORWOOD, Oct. 31—(ENS)—At the regular meeting of the I.O.D.E. Mrs. G. Bitten was appointed treasurer filling the vacancy made when Mrs. R. E. Lemon moved to Brighton.

Letters were read from the following local boys who had received cigartes: Irwin Buck, Jack Munro, E. D. Girven, Alex Lumsden, Eric Ennis and Frank Gill. Mrs. G. Gibson had also written thanking the chapter for a parcel.

The treasurer reported the sum of ... had been derived from the last paper drive and the tag day had been a huge success, $169 being the amount received.

The wool convener reported 161 pair of socks, 1 sweater, 1 helmet and one scarf had been sent overseas during the last month when 100 boxes were shipped overseas. Mrs. D. H. G. Carleton of Peterborough packed four boxes for nursing sisters and these contained some lovely articles. Mrs. R. E. Lemon wrote the chapter an interesting letter stating that as there is no I.O.D.E. in Brighton she would continued her membership with the Norwood branch and they would hear from her.

The Regent reported the phonograph and a lot of new records are ready for the ship H.M.S. Ironbound and will be sent immediately.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

Need Hangers and Records

A special appeal has been received from the canteen at the local Training Centre for a number of wire or wooden coat hangers for the use of the troops during the winter evenings. The cardboard coat hangers are no good as the weight of the coats break them in two days.

The Padre would also like to get some good march or orchestral numbers and some religious records for the use in the canteen. The boys down at the centre are a long way from home and many weary nights have to be spent there. Maybe your boy is doing the same thing at some distant station. If you have some coat hangers or records you would like to donate to this cause please get in touch with the Scout master of the Troop in your Church, and he will see that these are collected. Scouters are requested to get in touch with Mrs. Langhorne when they have sufficient quantity to be picked up.

St. John's

Hallowe'en was the spirit of the evening as the Cubs and Scouts made one big happy family with most of them dressed up, making a colorful picture around the camp fire.

The evening started with a grand parade at which A. Hope and Mrs. F. Ford were the judges for the best costume. Then they played musical chairs. It was a picture to see the many apples hanging from the ceiling and the faces the lads made as they tried to get a bite at the elusive fruit. Some forty odd boys were all at work and soon there were but empty strings dangling down. The game of musical plates caused lots of noise as the lads tried to get rid of the articles rather than be caught. Next many white faces were seen around as the youngsters went to work for pennies buried in flour.

The Charades was popular with each Six doing their part and the Scouts being divided into two sections to carry out their end of the game. Songs were enjoyed during the games and a story from the Skipper brought the program to an end. The Mother's Auxiliary then served chocolate milk and doughnuts, coffee being served to the parents present. The winners of the evening were: Best Fancy Costume, Tommy Cuff; Best Comic, Gerry Cousins; Musical Chairs, Stewart Brooks; Apple eating, Bruce Dobson, Bobby Rogers; Pie Plate, George Coros.

St. Luke's

The spirit of Hallowe'en went dancing along the jungle path with the Cubs last Tuesday evening. Commissioner Hope accompanied by the Rev. A. Arthurs and Mrs. Arthurs, judged the costumes as the Cubs came tripping by. Peter Rose was awarded first prize with Hewitt Hamilton coming in a close second. Games were played, apple eating contests, musical chairs, guess who, try your luck and the most thrilling of all "the ghost walk". This game was played in the dark when their only guide was a cord that took the Cubs along many unknown paths, over squeeky bridges, under dripping water falls, midst the banging of cannon fire until at last they reached the safety of the Council Rock. Here it was that ghost stories were told by Mr. Hope and Akela. Then came the best part of the evening as hot dogs, chocolate milk and homemade candy were served. Then as each lad left for home a gaily coloured basket containing nuts and kisses was handed to him.

On Friday evening there was a special going up ceremony at which Hugh Rose, Harold Burns and Doug Britnall said farewell to the Pack and went into the Troop to start on the Scout Trail. The Pack meeting will be held on Wednesday this week instead of Tuesday to give the Cubs a chance to enjoy Hallowe'en activities. Every Cub is asked to attend the meeting on Wednesday as the Sixes are to be re-arranged.

Scouters Club

The Scouters Club are holding their meeting one week ahead this month in order to choose the representatives on the Local Association. The meeting will be held Wednesday evening at 8 p.m. in the Dixon House at the Park Hill Wartime Housing. This is the home of the Park Hill Community Group.

Chins Up Tea

The St. John's Mother's Auxiliary are holding their semi-monthly Chins Up Tea in the home of Mrs. Lemmings, 64 Auburn street on Wednesday afternoon. All Cub and Scout mothers are cordially invited to attend.

Local Association Meeting

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Peterborough District Boy Scout Association will be held in the Hooper Palm Room George street, on Wednesday, November 8. All reports of Scout and Cub groups should be presented by the chairman of the Group committees at this meeting. Also all group committeemen and any one interested in Scouting in Peterborough are invited to attend. Every Scout and Cub officer should make it his or her business to attend if it is at all possible.

Census

I think that every Cub and Scout leader has received a census card this week through the mail. All that has to be done, is put a few numbers on the card and return it to the nearest mail box. It is already stamped. Check up your books and fill in the number of Scouts and mail at once. Give the secretary a chance to compile his figures and get them in to the provincial headquarters.

Time is Passing

Let us forget our little individualities and remember that we are in Scouting for the growth and betterment of the movement. Let us pool our thoughts and ideas and go ahead to make 1945 the best Scouting year in the history of Peterborough.—The Skipper.

Flag Presented People Of Dover

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Oct. 31 — (CP) — The people of Elmira, Ont., nearly got the sword and the flag of the commander of the Cap Gris Nez garrison and the German cross-channel guns there.

The sword and flag were part of the booty grabbed by L. Cpl. Ken Rupple of Elmira, Ont., who was with the company of the Highland Light Infantry which captured the commander, Capt. Schilling.

His first thought was to send them home. Then he talked it over with the boys, and it was decided these trophies would best be appreciated by the people of Dover who had so much shelling from the Cap Gris Nez guns. Next thought was how to get them there and in the end the sword and flag were sent by dispatch rider to Boulogne and the British naval commander there sent them across the Channel.

Maj. T. R. Prest of Kitchener, Ont., was the commander of the company which captured Schilling and his knick-knacks.

Made An Error Becomes A Hero

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press War Correspondent

SOMEWHERE IN GERMANY, Oct. 31 (AP)—Sgt. Thomas J. Gibbons has no idea he would capture 500 Germans singlehanded.

This military Pied Piper from Elmhurst, N.Y., became one of the heroes of his division—the infantry—by an error.

He simply made a wrong turn in the road.

Gibbons was speeding down a road in a captured German vehicle when he absent-mindedly took a wrong fork. He was jolted rudely out of his day dream by coming face to face with a tiger tank and 15 German soldiers.

Without noise or fuss the ownership of the vehicle reverted abruptly to the representatives of Hitler and Gibbons became a prisoner.

The Germans dispatched him toward their rear lines. But here his captors ran into difficulty. For they no longer had any rear. They had been encircled.

American artillery pocked the fields around them. Planes strafed them.

Gibbons went to work on an escape plan. He got a German soldier to talk two guards into helping him. At the first chance the two German soldiers killed two other German guards and Gibbons took charge. He raced across a field leading other prisoners and such German soldiers as were met and overpowered on the way.

Looking back, he noticed that his little army was growing steadily in size—and that the addition in personnel was all German.

"I didn't know whether we were being followed or chased—but I just kept going," he said.

What was happening was that as he passed through the fields little groups of surrounded German soldiers tagged on to his "army," thinking it was the safest way for them to surrender.

When Gibbons turned over his group of prisoners he found the number had increased from the original 22 to just over 500.

HIGH AVERAGE

D. A. Maciver, county engineer, and Robertson Davies, editor of the Examiner, were appointed to the town planning committee by the council Monday night on Alderman Dutton's motion seconded by Alderman Sands.

DITCHED IN THE FOG

An automobile driven by George Rutherford, 580 Reid street, rolled into the deep ditch on the west side of Monaghan road at the foot of Albert street this morning. Rutherford, who was not hurt, said that he had driven too close to the right side of the road in the dense fog.

FLYING BOMB

One of the more interesting displays to come Peterborough way during the present Victory Loan campaign, will be that of a genuine robot bomb, expected to be here sometime in the near future. The bomb was reconstructed by engineers from bits and pieces of the actual Nazi robots overseas.

BAGS NAZI PLANE

Pilot Officer M. Reeves, of Madoc, in a dogfight with German Focke-Wulf 190's over, Venlo, Holland, Sunday, damaged one opponent, lost him, then attacked another, shooting it down.

DEMONSTRATION

Peterborough is reminded the amphibious jeep will give demonstrations of its abilities on the shores of Little Lake this evening between five and six o'clock. The demonstration will follow a parade including military mechanized equipment, which will leave Market Square at five o'clock.

IMPATIENT DEMANDS.

The two Ashburnham members of the council put in an insistent word for neighborhood demands Monday night. Alderman Swanston reported Lisburn residents waiting impatiently for promised gravel, and Alderman Curtis relayed a peeved enquiry as to why both sides of Mark street, in a short stretch, did not get gravel treatment, filling holes and that sort of maintenance, when one side was fixed up.

Committee Has $574,000 In Sight For Proposed Civic Hospital

The Civic Hospital fund has grown potentially to $740,000, Alderman Sands stated at Monday night's council meeting. Recent increment in expectation are two sums — $300,000 from the City Trust Commission and $48,000 from the Ontario Government.

Previously listed was $150,000 from the County Council and $242,000 from the Nicholls Hospital Trust.

"Subtract that $740,000 from the estimated cost of $1,400,000, and you have $660,000 to be raised by city debentures. I have a feeling that possibly that sum might be reduced to $600,000. I wish it could be. I feel we can get $600,000 by the vote of the people."

A long parenthesis of discussion probed the prospects and likelihood of electoral favor especially with the hospital by-law companioned by two others peering into the city treasury. Were such circumstances propitious and had ample time been taken to inform the public fully about the hospital enterprise.

The motive inspiring this discussion was a desire to provide the most favorable conditions for the hospital by-law when it goes before the people. As to the costs, Alderman Glover said he appreciated the fact that the hospital committee had obtained "outside figures", probable maximum outlay, and that for the next two or three years only a guess could be made of trends in the building industry. "All the committee could do is to give a figure of what you think the cost will be."

Alderman Sands said that all the available information had already been given to the public together with the facts of Peterborough's hospital needs. "If the council agreed to the $600,000 figure we would have to find some way of paring off $60,000."

The chairman of the hospital committee announced that Hon. Dr. Vivian had guaranteed $48,000 on the basis of $1,000 a bed for chronic and psychiatric cases. The committee had been hoping for a grant of $100,000 from the province, and Alderman Ovens pointed out that the statement from Dr. Vivian had been received prior to the action of the Cabinet in setting aside a substantial sum for hospital purposes.

"I believe that decision was reached after Dr. Vivian phoned us," Alderman Ovens said. "It might be that he is in a position to increase that."

Alderman Dutton said that transfer of the provincial labratory from the city hall to the new hospital could warrant further consideration by the provincial government. "I believe the public atmosphere is very favorable to this by-law, and that is all the more reason for great care being taken in the time and preparations for submitting the by-law to the people."

Details which he thought might be helpful to the public were suggested by Alderman Bradburn in a motion requesting City Treasurer Shaver to prepare a schedule of estimated cost of the hospital translated into mills in the tax rate for twenty years on the basis of four totals of estimated requirement from the people—$660,000, $600,000, $550,000 and $500,000. "Let us find out in dollars and cents what it is likely to cost the ratepayer, and that should give us something to work on."

Instructions to City Solicitor Huycke to prepare a hospital by-law authorizing the issuing of debentures were recorded in a motion by Aldermen Sands and Dutton.

Pte. A. Bailey Suffers Wound To Right Eye

Pte. Alfred Bailey of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, wounded for the second time since the invasion began, is suffering from shrapnel in and around the right eye, according to a letter his wife, 326 Water street, received from him today.

He was fighting with the unit in Holland and was driving a flame gun carrier when he was injured. Hospital authorities have indicated that in a short time he should be in good shape and may be sent back into the lines. He has been overseas more than three years.

His family also received a few souvenirs. He enclosed money samples, which included a German mark, a Dutch gilder and a 100 franc note, the latter worth $2.24 in Canadian money. He mentioned that he had had another box for them, but he lost it in Holland. Prior to enlisting he worked at the C.G.E.

WOUNDED IN BELGIUM—Cpl. Richard M. Cooke, son of Mrs. R. J. Cooke, 257 Romaine street, was wounded in the head October 17, while fighting with the S.D. and G. Highlanders, in Belgium.

Peter Wallace Plumber Dies At Age 53

Prominent in the plumbing business in Peterborough for more than 26 years, and an active member of the Canadian Legion with the welfare of soldiers always in his heart, Peter G. Wallace, 187 London street, died in his sleep of a heart attack early this morning at his residence. He was in his 54th year.

Mr. Wallace was one of this city's best-known citizens. He was born here, the son of the late John and Izobel Wallace, and except for a four year period during the First World War when he served in France has lived in this city all his life. He owned a plumbing business, which he carried on since returning from overseas in 1919.

A firm supporter of the welfare of soldiers, the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion counted Mr. Wallace as one of its most valued members. Only Monday evening, he attended an executive meeting at the Legion, and the many friends and business associates whom he spoke to then have been deeply shocked to learn of his sudden death. For a number of years, he was a member of the executive of the Legion, along with being chairman of the entertainment committee, and in charge of the Last Post Fund.

During the First World War, Mr. Wallace served with the 21st Battalion for four years, through the battles of France and Belgium. Wounded only once, that being a slight wound in his heel, he returned to Peterborough after being honorably discharged, and took up his duties here, beginning the business which has flourished in the years that followed. It was not long before he became a member of the Legion, and in the past 20 years, has established himself firmly in the hearts of all "old soldiers."

Past President

Among the other posts held by Mr. Wallace, was a past-presidency of the 21st Battalion Association. He was on the advisory committee of the Soldiers' Dependents Board, and an enthusiastic member of the Independent Order of Foresters. For many years he has belonged to George Street United Church, and was an elder in that organization.

In his younger days, Mr. Wallace held a great love for active sports, and with a membership in the Young Men's Christian Association for some time, he competed in all types of sports and games. His one favorite, perhaps, was running, and once he won the first honors in the Peterborough-Lakefield 10-mile run, beside other awards for this form of athletics.

Mr. Wallace's friends and business associates feel they have lost a staunch friend in his death. He was a hard-worker, but he knew how to have fun. Under his direction, the entertainment of the Legion has been of the best.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, a daughter, Norma May, and one son, Gordon, who is now serving overseas in the best family tradition with the R.C.A.F.

Also surviving are three sisters, Mrs. W. Watson, of Orono; Mrs. Gillbank, Charlotte street, Peterborough, and Mrs. W. Hopkins, of Peterborough; and one brother, John, of Kinmount, Ontario.

The funeral will be Thursday at 3:30 o'clock, from his residence, with interment in Little Lake Cemetery.

Bus Line Head Wants To Buy Car Barns

Frank Mitchell, head of Peterborough bus lines, proposed purchase of the car barns on King street to the property committee of the council, Alderman Swanston, chairman, reported Monday night.

"The heating system is so unsatisfactory that Mr. Mitchell wants to put in a new system," Alderman Swanston said. "He estimates the cost at around $4,000 to $5,000, but to undertake the expense he would like to buy the barns. At the end of the present ten year agreement between the bus company and the city, the council could buy the property back at a figure to be agreed upon if at that time the city wants to recall the franchise. We decided to get an appraisal of the property."

$50 Given Fund By Group At Stewart Hall

The Red Cross has ever symbolized mercy, goodness and kindness to other people in distress, this being demonstrated to a very large degree in recent years by many groups of individuals who have become associated for this great humanitarian purpose.

In the nearby community centre of Stewart Hall, a Red Cross group has been operating for a considerable period of time, and their adherence to these principles for which the Red Cross stands has been amplified in a great many ways, among which the giving of practical aid to relieve the distress of air raid and robot bomb victims in Britain have found quite a place, through the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund operating for that purpose.

Having been told of the special donations now being gathered together by the fund to send over for Christmas, this group at once sought the means by which they could raise money to have a share in this good work as they have done in former years, and having had the opportunity to cater to the dinner requirements of the ploughmen's annual meeting held on October 18, they used this as the medium for so doing.

Having set up a large tent on the meeting ground about one and a half miles west of Stewart Hall, with a really splendid crowd in attendance, they had a really successful venture, from which their treasurer, Miss Marion Patterson, was enabled to bring in the fine sum of $50.00 which is credited in their name today, and in speaking of the donation thus made, they stated they were very glad to be able to help in this manner, thus once again fulfilling the true mission for which the Red Cross stands.

Mark Street Church C.G.I.T.

A newly formed group of C.G.I.T. at Mark Street United Church directed by Mrs. Easson wanted to branch out in welfare endeavor beyond their own circle, so they decided to hold a sale of potted plants on the farmers' market last Saturday to help along the special Christmas donation now being raised.

Composed of Marie Derry as president, Anita Mason as treasurer, Marguerite McNeely as secretary, and Marilyn Pomeroy, Muriel Rome, Betty Jaquith, Beverly Hopcroft, Alice Johnston, June Finnie, Phyllis Curry, Joanne Hawkins, Jean DeNure, Joan Evans, Eleanor DeNure, Theresa McFee, Helen Thompson, Peggy Noyse, Iris Pollock, Frances McQuade, Joan Parnell, Barbara Rowe, Phyllis Vyse, Agnes Lowe, Eleanor Thompson, Berdeen Atchison, Helen Anderson, Shirley Andrus, Joan Ellis, Helen Leckie, Geraldine McFee, Loretta Lentz, Fay Neal, Patricia Wyllie, Theresa Lowe, Ruth Brand, Joan Leahy and Barbara Starr as members, this group potted their own plants, and made $8.70 credited in their name today.

Next Saturday, the Fairview War Workers' group who have already raised and given $381.90 to the fund, will have a stall on the market with quite a variety of farm and garden produce with some home-made baking for sale, to raise money for the Christmas donations also.

A penny box located at Welch's Barber Shop on Hunter street is also among those contributing today in an amount of $1.25 from a collection made by the secretary of the fund over the week-end.

Murder Trial Gets Underway

COBOURG, Oct. 31 (ENS)—Selection of the jury panel in the trial of Charles Francis Davey charged with the slaying of four-year-old Norman Lamb, took place this morning at the commencement of the criminal work of Assize Court.

The initial panel of 20 jurors was exhausted before a complete jury could be called and 15 more jurors were called to complete the 12 jurors, eight of the jurors are farmers all of whom reside in the eastern part of the county. Members of the jury are as follows: Frederick Armstrong, Colborne; John Bell, Colborne; Delbert Carr, Brighton township; Charles Ingleby, Cobourg; Frederick McGee, Percy township; A. E. Naylor, Cobourg; Edward Noonan, Haldimand township; Gerald Nicholls, Murray township; Claude Phillips, Haldimand township; Peter Russell, Cobourg; Oliver Reed, Murray township; W. J. Ross, Seymour township.

Following the selection of the jury, Clifford Magone, K.C., special Crown prosecutor outlined the circumstances of the case to the jurors.

He pointed out that on Sunday July 16 the accused and his employer, Joseph Fee, who is grandfather to the deceased, were at the Lamb home for dinner. After dinner the two boys were seen playing out on the lawn. Late in the afternoon the grandfather and Lamb's hired man found the body of young Lamb in a swamp at the south end of the farm after a search for Davey and Lamb. Davey was not to be found at the time and was not located until he walked into Peterborough police station late the same night.

The trial is continuing this afternoon.

Plant Over Top By $94,450

Final posting of C.G.E.-Genelco total subscriptions of the Seventh Victory Loan announced the literally grand total of $544,450 against the minimum of $450,000. The response of the employees to the visit of Hon. J. L. Ilsley, Minister of Finance, was $94,450 more than was assumed.

Although there may be a few more bonds bought here and there throughout the plant during the remaining two weeks of the campaign, the shop committee is going to be content with their present announcement. Their campaign is over, reflecting again the spirit of the employees of the big shops.

4 Money Bylaws To Be Placed Before Electors

Three questions were framed by the council Monday night for assent by the electors on Peterborough's new municipal voting day, Monday, December 4. And this trio will be joined by another Friday as they begin moving on to the booths of ballots for the yea or nay of the citizens.

Briefly titled they are: $75,000 for Peterborough's Community Memorial Centre; a grant to St. Joseph's Hospital; withdrawal of $300,000 from the City Trust Commission's funds for the proposed civic hospital. Those three passed the council Monday night, and the Civic Hospital bylaw is slated for drafting Friday night. Four money bylaws at one voting session by way of celebrating the change in the municipal year, together with the probability of elections for Council, Board of Education and Utilities Commission, is an exceedingly rare reference of responsibility to the electors.

The council carefully read again the revised agreement between the councils of tomorrow and the trustees of the Memorial Centre. Alderman Bradburn conducted the agreemen through this final scanning and pondering. It will be published and explained in November in order that voters may thoroughly understand that they are being asked to do in contributing to the proposed form of Memorial project which is now being endorsed to the people of Peterborough by the broad interest which the plan has aroused in quite a number of the cities of Ontario.

Must Have $175,000 Credit

A primary condition to the citizens' grant toward the Memorial Fund requires that there shall be a minimum of $175,000 to its credit, as shown by a certificate of the city treasurer, before any public money is paid into the Fund.

Another salient fact is that the proposed arena is only a part, perhaps more exactly the nucleus of the Memorial Centre. It becomes entirely the property of the citizens, and the council in its discussions finally concluded that it had rounded out a working basis for the proposed Memorial Centre Commission in its relation with the councils of the future.

A digest of the agreement will be published as soon as the revised draft is available.

The Council passed a bylaw providing for the taking of a vote of the electors on the Memorial Centre question, and also a bylaw authorizing the issuance of $75,000 granting aid to the centre. It has the by received the Council's approval and now passes on to the electors. The proposed debentures will be issued for the years at 3 per cent.

"I don't think we'll need to issue them until 1946," Alderman Bradburn said.

Alderman Ovens was in charge of the diversion of City Trust monies for the purposes of a civic hospital. "We had a very friendly meeting with the City Trust Commission, and have their blessing on this question of asking the Legislature for power to amend the Commissions Act providing authority to divert $300,000 from the surplus funds of the commission to be used helping defray the cost of the Civic Hospital." This bylaw will be prepared for Friday night's meeting.

"At our meeting with the Ontario Municipal Board a short time ago," Alderman Ovens said, "it was agreed that the Council was not required to submit this question to the people, but it was felt that it would be the nicer thing to do, the more courteous. If the people vote in favor of this diversion of trust funds for the hospital they will be thereby strengthening the hands of the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature. If they made a general amendment of the Municipal Act for this purpose it would affect every municipality in the province."

Mayor Hamilton said the Municipal Board felt that the expression of the people that they wished this amount of $300,000 to be taken out of the surplus funds of the commission and placed in the fund for the Civic Hospital would be a clear-cut declaration of assent.

Alderman Bradburn set a little "if" question to probing about among possibilities. "What would happen if the hospital bylaw was defeated and this bylaw carried?" he asked. And a kindred question, "What would happen to the $300,000 if the hospital bylaw was defeated." To that Alderman Ovens replied: "It would be hard to conceive of anyone voting against this (diversion of City Trust money).

The other question receiving the Council's assent was the request of St. Joseph's Hospital for an annual grant equivalent to the interest on $250,000, the estimated cost of a projected 52-bed addition, at 3 per cent. for twenty-five years. That payment for the first year would be $7,500, but would gradually diminish with payment of principal, and spread over the twenty-five years would average approximately $3,750.

In moving this proposal, Alderman Ovens also suggested that a meeting be held at once with the board of management of St. Joseph's Hospital to prepare the bylaw details for Friday night.

Report $137,800 Behind In Daily Total

A deficit of $137,080 in Peterborough's subscriptions to the Seventh Victory Loan at the end of the first seven days, Monday night, meant essentially that the early surpluses, built up by the payroll deduction and group payroll divisions, had been overtaken by the daily requirements to maintain progress percentage.

The day's cumulative percentage was 38.88, and the actual percentage credit to the city and county was 35.9, a minus element of 2.98 per cent.

Payroll savings and civil servants were substantially ahead of their required totals, followed by three rural sections, but all the others had fallen into a lag.

Details of the total subscriptions to Monday night were:

City canvass	$ 577,600
Rural canvass	203,150
Payroll savings	528,150
Special names	300,000
Total	$1,651,500

Rural Percentages

The rural percentages of objective were: Belmont-Methuen, 48 per cent; Havelock, 47.8; Harvey, Burleigh, Anstruther, Chandos, 44.8; Dummer, 39.1; Otonabee, 38.5; North Monaghan, 38.8; Lakefield, 29.3; Norwood, 28.:5; Asphodel, 26.4; Douro, 20; Ennismore, 8.

Actually the response of Peterborough City and County is appreciably larger than at this stage of the Sixth Loan last spring.

Seventh Loan, seven days—Objective, $4,600,000; subscribed to date, $1,651,500; percentage, 35.9.

Sixth Loan, seven days—Objective, $4,500,000; subscribed, $1,377,-750; percentage, 30.6.

Court Gives $10 Fine For Careless Driving

Pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving on Highway 7 on Sunday, October 15, Elwood Dowdall, of Havelock, was fined $10 and $2.50 costs when he appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning.

Provincial Constable Archie Grayling, Havelock, who laid the charge, told the court that Dowdall had driven his car into Highway 7 from the north and had collided with another car travelling west along the highway. The latter automobile was damaged to the extent of $125 and Dowdall's car suffered $15 or $20 damage.

One girl, the officer said, had sustained an abrasion on her cheek.

Jack Keogan, Hastings, was fined $10 and $8.35 costs on a written plea of guilty to a drunk charge, also laid by Provincial Constable Grayling.

Max Redmond pleaded guilty to being drunk on October 25, and as he also admitted a previous conviction in August, was fined $50 without costs or a month in jail as a second offender.

Bruce Bolton, who had previously pleaded guilty to a vagrancy charge, was defended this morning by P. D. Scollard, who asked that his client should be allowed to change his plea to not guilty. The request was granted, and the case was dismissed when Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., announced that he would offer no evidence.

Man Suffers Shock Following Accident

Arthur Riddle, an elderly man, living at 646 George street, is suffering from bruises and shock as the result of being knocked off his bicycle in a collision with an automobile at Murray and Water streets.

His wife reported the accident to the police saying that her husband had arrived home in a dazed condition and could not remember hardly anything about the affair. He thought that it had happened at Sheridan and Hunter streets and recalled that the driver had stopped and given him his name but Riddle could not remember what he had been told.

The driver of the automobile involved in the accident made no report to the police.

Gliders Landed At Arnhem In Wrong Place

TORONTO, Oct. 31 —(Special to Examiner) — A mistake in the locating area assigned a number of the glider troops sent in to Arnhem, got them off to a bad start, Lieut. Phil Turner, one of two Canadian officers to escape the crushing Nazi pincers, has explained.

"Somehow or other the landing area chosen was the wrong one and as the gliders settled neatly on the ground, toward evening, German artillery blazed away, and there was nothing our men could do but flee for cover and hole up till dark. We had only Bren guns then, which did not have much effect against their heavier weapons."

The men remained in their position until the morning, intending to make a break to reach their planned postion, but when they awoke, they found themselves cut off by a heavy defence of German tanks, which they were unable to budge. In spite of increasing pressure, the men hung on grimly for two days, as help still did not come.

"Our food supplies began to run very short at the end of the two days and it was an unbelieveable thrill that day to see British planes come steadily over dropping their life-giving supplies by parachute. We lay there, thrilling with anticipation, which turned to bitter disappointment, as the wind blew them away from us and into the enemy lines," he related.

While fighting with the "Red Devil" Airborne Division, Lieut. Turner said he climbed out on top of a slit trench and was hit in the back and the head and fell back unconscious into the trench, later realizing how lucky he was to be alive. His injuries were fixed up there and he continued his duties as officer.

"Then it was decided we had to break out of the trap and there was only one way to do it — by swimming the Rhine. We got over and as soon as we were picked up, I was taken to hospital and later flown to England. The sight of London from the air is something I will never forget or cease to be grateful for," the young officer declared.

Lieut. Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Webber Turner, 548 Gilmour street, joined the Prince of Wales Rangers (C.A.) in February 1943 and after going overseas he was attached to the British South Staffordshire Regiment, as one of a group of Canadian officers loaned to the British Government.

SALE! Dollars at Half Price!

Sounds like a sure-thing bargain. But how many of us realize that in Canada we're getting dollars at less than half the price of other years .. at a fraction the price in many other countries to day. Here's what we mean. A dollar is worth as much as it will buy. And to day your dollar buys at least twice as much as it did in the last war. For instance, your 5¢ buys a bar of laundry soap that cost 15¢ in those days. To day, you can buy the same quality felt fedora for that set you back then. Truly your dollar is half price since it buys twice as much. Price ceilings and other anti-inflationary measures have kept its value HIGH! And you protect your dollars worth every time you buy a bond .. pay off a debt .. refuse to hoard goods or frequent black markets. That's how to make dollars count MORE!

Make This Pledge Today!

I promise to give my support to keeping the cost of living down. I will buy only what I need. I will observe the ceiling whether buying or selling goods or services. I will pay off old debts, save for the future, invest in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. And I will support taxes which help lower the cost of living.

Keep Your Dollar Value High!

Lieut. D. Diplock Praises Medical Corps

Men of the medical corps, who are always at the places where their skill is most needed, and padres, whether kneeling in prayer over a dead Tommy or quietly helping men suffering battle exhaustion, are the two outstanding beacons of hope in a country ravaged and torn by modern warfare, in the opinion of Lieut. Donald D. Diplock, 286 Hunter street, who has returned to Peterborough after serving in France, as one of a group of Canadian army officers on loan to the British Army. He was with a Welsh regiment.

He was wounded in action twice, during those hectic days in France when the battles that led to Paris, and beyond, were being fought.

Lieut. Diplock was with the British Second Army that, together with crack Canadian units, played the leading role in engaging large and powerful Nazi forces in the sector containing Bayeux, Caen, Esquay, and Carpiquet, while American armoured columns made the record-breaking advance on Paris. The full brunt of German power in that section of France was the opposition to these British-Canadian fighting men, and the events since that date have made it clear they won a strategic military battle of large proportions.

Fights Hitler Youths

It was in these parts of France that the infamous Hitler Youth regiments fought. Fanatical young Nazis, under the belief a firing squad was awaiting their capture, they were in the battle solely to die for the Nazi cause. Most amazed were they, Lieut. Diplock said, when after being taken prisoner, expert medical attention was theirs, and good treatment at the hands of their supposed executioners.

About the individual British fighter Lieut. Diplock described the Tommy as being an excellently-trained, well-equipped fighting man, and gave an intimate slant on the life of the little-publicised Britisher.

One of the things he noticed while fighting in Normandy, was the indifferent attitude on the part of most of the Normandy population, although in other parts of France, the invading Allies have met with great welcoming. The reason for this might be explained in the fact that most of the Normans were wealthy farmers, and as they were making money under conditions before the invasion, they did not take kindly to war again destroying their property. This was not the attitude taken in other parts of France, however, and invading forces cared little about the Norman viewpoint!

Carpiquet Fight Tough

Lieut. Diplock landed in France two weeks after the initial invasion, at a point near Bayeux. Delayed by bad weather conditions and a choppy channel, the beachheads in that section were cleared of Germans by the time of his unit's arrival. The fact a coastal battle did not come their way immediately did not set a pattern for future events though, and shortly after, they were involved in one of the war's fiercest combats. In his opinion, the fighting at Carpiquet was the toughest! Dug-in tanks, .88 mm. anti-tank guns and mortars were used by the Germans liberally, and the combination made up a stiff resistance that meant days of heavy fighting.

Carpiquet is near Caen, and while the Peterborough soldier did not actually enter Caen....that being the task of Canadian units, he did see action at Hill 112, part of the Caen battle, and one of the hot spots at that time. It was near there that he was wounded, and returned to England, to spend considerable time in the hospital. Featuring excellent medical treatment, this general hospital, "operated like a factory." Cases were always either coming in or going out, and the entire scheme worked on a "last word in efficiency" basis. It contained 1,200 beds.

Formerly known as "shell-shock," but now identified and treated as "battle exhaustion," there are a great number of cases which must be treated immediately if the soldier is going to stay in the fight, he said. Described as a temporary mental lapse, agitated by battle conditions and artillery barrages, men afflicted are taken from the lines immediately, and whisked back to hospital for care, and for the main antidotes, simple peace and quietness. When suffering from battle exhaustion, men shake, and sometimes have spells of hysterics. Unlike conditions in the First World War, permanent injury to a man can be prevented, and modern scientific aids are being used extensively.

Lieut. Diplock, who attended McGill University and attained a Bachelor of Arts degree, held high praise for not only the British with whom he served, but also for Canadian soldiers, and Americans, who, he said are doing an obviously wonderful job in France Belgium and Holland. Do the British like Canadian officers? Lieut. Diplock said yes; they find it something new and different, but they seem to like having Canadians as officers. There were 640 of them with the British at the time!

Sleeps In Barn

A pouring rain greeted him the first night in France. Through the darkness and mist, he and several others found an old barn with an obsolete roof. "I'll never know why the roof didn't collapse," Lieut. Diplock said. They were glad to find temporary respite from rain. The only place to sleep seemed to be in a pile of damp hay, and it was comfortable, he said. Other nights, soldiers sleep in slit-trenches of their own making, and the size and features of the trenches depends upon how much time they have to build one. Rain or shine, this is where you sleep, he said, adding that a small cover, even if only at one end, never fails to create an illusion of safety from falling shells.

As a rule, slit-trenches are four feet deep. In the winter, he said, soldiers still sleep in them, kept warm by their heavy clothing. Most of the time he was in Normandy, it rained, and once, he was forced to stay in a trench for some time, with water up to his waist. During front-line fighting, seldom does a soldier get a chance to change his clothes, and one outfit stayed on Lieut. Diplock for over a month, without even a minor change.

Paint Faces Yellow

Rocket-firing Typhoon planes are a real thrill to watch, he said. The missiles have a tremendous explosive effect when they land, and the use of these powerful shells paved the way for many gains. Another sight worth seeing, he said, is the faces of Nazi soldiers, painted yellow, with which they lie at the side of roadways and feign death. When Allied soldiers pass, the Germans attempt to shoot them in the back; it hasn't taken the British, American and Canadian soldiers long to "catch on" to this gag, and it doesn't work very well any more. The enemy soldiers usually augmented the yellow-covered faces with gruesome facial contortions.

Now at home on a 30-day leave, this young lieutenant said he is not sorry he took his part in a global war. His wife is the former Barbara Scott, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Diplock, 512 Weller street.

Look younger in 14 days! Each time you wash, (use a face cloth) massage warm, rich, vitalizing Palmolive lather thoroughly into your skin for one full minute. Now a quick rinse and pat dry. French Couple Fool Germans

CASTRES, France, Oct. 31—(AP)—A young French girl and her English-speaking husband provided information that enabled American forces to maul and almost destroy a German armored division north of Avignon in Southern France it was learned yesterday.

The names of the two may not be disclosed at present because relatives are prisoners in Germany.

During the four years of occupation 38 German officers were billeted in their home. What their uninvited guests never learned was that the two were in constant radio communication with London.

The radio transmitter was concealed in the bedroom of the house next door and its operator was a special agent from London.

Different From Iron Duke's Day

A FORWARD AIRFIELD IN HOLLAND, Oct. 31 (CP)—Air Secretary Sinclair, addressing photo-reconnaissance and Typhoon dive-bomber pilots of the R.C.A.F., said:

"The Duke of Wellington once said that fighting a war was a matter of guessing what goes on on the other side of the hill. Our generals don't have to guess. You show it to them in black and white with your high-level and fighter reconnaissance while our fighters have blindfolded the German generals."

The pilots in his audience were from wings commanded by Group Capt. E. H. C. Moncrieff, Winnipeg, and Group Capt. Paul Y. Davoud, Kingston, Ont.

L. W. Brockington Returns From War Fronts

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 — (CP). — L. W. Brockington, well-known Ottawa lawyer, back from a tour of the European battlefronts for the three Defence Departments, said at a press conference to-day that the people of liberated lands honored Canadian soldiers by calling them gentlemen as well as fighting men.

He brought home with him a German swastika flag which had flown in Calais; a white flag flown by the Germans at the same place; a German Iron Cross captured in Calais, and a Gestapo uniform badge. He also had George Bernard Shaw's latest book autographed by the author, and the chair in which Robert Burns wrote "The Cotter's Saturday Night" is being shipped to him by Ayrshire Scottish friends He plans to give the chair to the Parliamentary Library.

He brought back, too, these war impressions:

Next to Poland, Italy knows best the horrors war can bring, with almost every village devastated.

Canadians are in good heart and in good health.

He said Lord Tweedsmuir, son of a former Governor-General of Canada, is liaison officer between the Canadian forces and the Eighth Army in Italy.

The publication and distribution of the Canadian Army newspaper, The Maple Leaf, in Italy and Belgium, deserved tribute. Press services were organized up to the front line, and Canadian correspondents were doing notable work.

Mr. Brockington said that some day "a great story" would be told of Canadians, both English and French speaking, who had worked with the underground forces in France in assisting the fight for freedom.

Mr. Brockington, who will make a series of broadcasts for the CBC returned yesterday to Canada by air from the United Kingdom. He saw the fighting at Calais, Aachen and along the Adriatic.

Howard Osler Injured In Truck Collision

BANCROFT, Oct. 31 — (ENS). — Howard Osler, of Hermon, suffered severe facial lacerations and a badly bruised chest and shoulder as a result of a head-on collision with a truck driven by Murray Prentice, of Boulter, on County Road 14, 17 miles east of Bancroft, Monday afternoon. The injured man was taken to Bancroft, where medical attention was given by Dr. S. S. Lumb.

Driving a half-ton truck, Osler had turned out on Bessmere Road, when the head-on accident occurred. Prentice was driving a truck loaded with 3,000 feet of lumber, and the impact of the crash drove the smaller vehicle backwards for a distance of 40 feet.

Provincial Officer S. W. Palmatier, of Bancroft, is investigating.

Rocket-Laden Boats Pack Fearful Power

LONDON, Oct. 31 — (CP) — The fire from one of Britain' rocket-fitted landing craft is roughly equivalent when falling in a small area to the fire of 30 regiments of artillery or 30 cruisers each mounted with 12 six-inch guns, when related to the time over which the bombardment takes place.

This was one of the recently revealed secrets of this invasion weapon, used first in Sicily and again in Normandy. Combined operations headquarters developed the craft, which can fire all its rockets in 30 seconds, to give close support to troops approaching a beach.

Bingo Gambling Montreal Claim

MONTREAL, Oct. 31—(CP)—Bingo is a "gambling game," Recorder A. Thouin today told 170 persons who appeared before him charged with being found in a gambling establishment last night when the city's biggest bingo game was raided by police.

Members of the armed forces, women with babies in their arms and 'teen-aged youngsters were found in the spacious bingo room where police staged what was said to be the largest single raid on any gambling establishment here during the past 10 years.

WOMEN'S JOBS COST PLENTY

Husbands Play Around With Wolverines and Children on the Streets When Mother Works.

WHAT price a fur coat? Or a diamond ring? Or a closet full of swanky clothes? Or new furniture? Are they worth the wreck of a home? Are they adequate compensation for the loss of a husband? Do they pay for a young daughter's shame, or for a son belonging to a hoodlum gang?

Women are notoriously poor traders, but you don't have to be an efficiency expert to figure out what a losing bargain so many of them are making in abandoning their homes and families to take high-priced jobs in factories. But while you deplore their folly and their short-sightedness, your heart is torn with pity and understanding of the feminine urge for the hitherto unattainable things that has driven them to it.

To these thousands upon thousands of women their fat pay checks are a dream come true. All of their lives they have longed for the kind of clothes that the heroines wear in moving pictures.

They have yearned to bedeck themselves in lace negligees instead of wearing bungalow aprons, and to repose on ornate gilt and brocaded couches instead of wrestling with the pots and pans in the kitchen.

Counting the Cost

Hence when the opportunity of getting the things they have wanted so long came to them, it is no wonder that they leaped at it, without stopping to count the cost. Perhaps in their excitement they forgot the inexorable law that there is a price tag on everything in life and that for what we get we have to pay. They deluded themselves with the belief that they could manage their husbands and children by absent treatment and conjure up good meals for their families by wishful thinking, and that the money they made would be just pure gain.

But it hasn't worked out that way. To husbands and children home means Mom. It means a house with a woman in it who keeps things tidy and cheerful and comfortable; who gives her family good food to eat and clean clothes to wear; who is always ready to listen and sympathize and advise and help when anyone is worried or in trouble, and who loves and jollies and coerces Pop and the kids so artfully they don't even know that she is managing them.

But with Mother off on her job there is no home. There is just a house with unswept floors and unmade beds and dirty dishes, where a hungry man and children eat out of cans and from which everyone flees as soon as possible to some place where there are, at least, bright lights and some sort of companionship. For Mom isn't Mom any more. She is just a tired, overworked woman, too weary to do anything but to throw herself down on the bed and drop into a sodden sleep when she comes home.

Perhaps the husband should return after his long shift at work to a wifeless home and spend the evening cleaning up the house. Perhaps the children should rush straight home from school, even if there is no mother there to welcome them and keep tabs on them, and put in their afternoons studying their lessons. But human nature isn't made that way. Only too often the lonely and bored husband takes to roaming and playing around with the little wolverines, and the children get a head start on the road that leads to perdition.

After the war all that many a woman will have to show for her big pay check will be a mink coat, and a wrecked home.

IN MEMORIAM

TROTTER, George Alfred — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, who passed away four years ago, October 23, 1940.
Time changes many things,
But love and memory ever clings.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife and family.

ELLIOTT — In loving memory of Flt.-Lieut. E. Burke Elliott, who lost his life a year ago, while serving in the Middle East.

By JEAN STENTON

To the men of the Black Watch Regiment, Sgt. "Bud" White, B.E.M., who was killed in France, was a hero. The outstanding work he did as a platoon commander, earned the highest praise from his men and officers, and this has been passed on in a letter from Major Ralph Honey, with the Canadian Fusiliers.

"I was talking to a Sgt. Oxley of the R.H.C. (Black Watch), who had been wounded in France and was recuperating in a hospital in the south of England. While he was there, a stretcher case was brought in, the patient having received head wounds and was not expected to live. The patient, "Bud" White, died shortly after.

"Oxley told me that "Bud" White had been posted to the Black Watch just before the break-through at Caen. During that show they had lost nearly all their officers, and Sgt. White took over as number seven platoon commander and did an outstanding bit of work during the following four or five weeks. They (the unit) had several bitter engagements during that period and it was at this time that Sgt. White made a name for himself. He proved himself to be both a fighter and an outstanding platoon commander.

"It was while carrying out the final assault on the German garrison at Dunkerque that he received his fatal wounds. He was quickly evacuated to England where he was given the best of medical treatment, but in spite of this, he died.

"News of his death soon spread around the area, and in no time, a guard of honor formed entirely of Black Watch sergeants was detailed for his funeral. Sgt. White was buried in the new Canadian plot at Brookwood Cemetery, with full military honors. One of the guard was asked after the ceremony, who it was they had just paid tribute to, and his reply was:

'His name was White, none of us knew him personally, but they told us at Headquarters that he was a hero. That was enough for us, and it didn't take long to collect a voluntary guard. You see, in the Black Watch, we always give such guys full military honors.'

"Bud was a grand lad. He was in the company I brought over and I always considered he and Floyd Alton, my best sergeants. He had received the British Empire Medal for doing a rescue job in Northern British Columbia and I wasn't at all surprised to hear Sgt. Oxley's story."

Sgt. White is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. White, 319 Burnham street.

Fighting Chaplains

What do men in uniform think of God and the Church, and how important is the work of the chaplains overseas, are two questions which have been thoroughly discussed by Canadians at home. Hon. Capt. John Hodgson, now at Trinity, and recently discharged from the Army, has some of the answers. He was assigned to the Royal Regiment of Canada the day they went into Dieppe. He met them as they returned to England, battered but unbeaten, and helped them in the months that followed.

"The finest piece of work in Canada's chaplaincy service is the personal work among the men. The padre, who gets "in" with his units has a unique opportunity to be of service to his boys. If he's accepted as one of them, the bunch depend on him for a hundred and one things," he declared vigorously. "There are no aetheists in fox holes. When a chaplain is posted to a regiment, he is looked over thoroughly by the gang and the boys quickly decide if he is genuine or phoney. If they decide you're phoney, you might as well pick up your bag and leave, for they will never come near you.

"The love and confidence given by the boys, is reward enough for any chaplain. I am sure the personal touch helped a lot in my work. I often had 25 or 30 boys waiting outside the office in a day to discuss their problems with me, and some of them had hair raising ones. But a resourceful padre makes his own place in the regiment, without having to get orders from anyone."

Went As Combatant

Capt. Hodgson tried to enlist as a chaplain, in 1939 and when he was not called up after a time, he enlisted as a combatant and went overseas in the RCASC of the 2nd Division. Before he joined the Royal Regiment he was adjutant of his RCASC unit, and when the shortage of chaplains became acute, he switched to that branch of the service. His experience as a soldier in this war and the last, has been of great value to him in understanding the problems of his men.

The Padre's Hour, which has been adopted from the British Army, has become very popular, Capt. Hodgson said. It is held for both Protestants and Roman Catholics for an hour, once a week, and from these talks, the chaplains know how much interest their men take in the spiritual things of life.

"The boys have no time nor liking for frills. They want everything straight from the shoulder and that's what I gave them. I used to talk for about 20 minutes, and then for the next 40, the gang would tear it apart. It was a perfect safety valve, and there was no danger of anything they said being reported.

"In my talks, I discussed God, man, the church, and rehabilitation, among other things. Under the latter, I divided it into three subjects, discussed at three different periods and they were (1) what is rehabilitation; (2) the Government's concrete proposals to date; (3) what do you think about it and have you any better ideas. I have often had 400 officers and men come to these weekly talks and instead of the allotted hour, we often ran 25 or 30 minutes overtime, when they got blowing off steam. It was always strictly informal, and I left cigarettes that I had scrounged, on a table, and the boys always saw that everyone got some. Once I had my spiel, minus embroidery and fancy phraseology, I acted as chairman and sat back, letting them go to it. They are very much interested in the real thing.

Remember In Battle

A Canadian officer, a friend of mine, who was attached to a British unit in North Africa, was amazed at the importance religion held in the troops' lives. Shortly after he arrived, the Company O.C. was wounded and he took over. He received a notice from Headquarters that the next morning a chaplain would arrive at a certain time, and all the men who could be spared from the guns, were to be allowed to attend service, if they wished.

He left the necessary instructions for the hard pressed unit, and then slept late the next morning. When he awoke, he was amazed to find that every man who could get away, was attending a service held in a little wadi, just back of the lines. There's no irreligious man overseas."

Citing another instance of what a padre can mean to the serviceman, Capt. Hodgson told of an experience he had before coming back to Canada, when he was sent back to a reinforcement unit. It was his duty to meet drafts arriving from Canada, and see them off, and he had one group which were in England, only a few days before they sailed for Italy.

"I knew where they were going, and that battle would be new to most of them, and I was going over for a last chat at their billets. Just outside, my office, I thought of some testaments I had, and that someone might like one. I went back and got seven, and as I had never made a habit of asking people to take them, I was a little afraid of being taken for a gospel spieler. That night I got a badly needed lesson in faith. When I finished talking with the lads, I mentioned casually that I had some Testaments, if anyone would like one. Eighteen huskies, the toughest in the room, rose and came over to me for their books. I had to go back to my office on the double for the other eleven.

Praises Red Cross

The ex-chaplain was enthusiastic in his praise of the Red Cross. He said that they were invaluable in a padre's work and no matter what they were asked for, if they had it, it was gladly given. He told of a friend who came home on a hospital ship with him. He was an officer who had been machine gunned in both legs, during a hot engagement in Italy, and he lost everything, and was lucky to be carried out himself.

The day they were ready to leave Africa, the stretcher cases were lying out on the dock waiting to be loaded, and some of them were feeling pretty blue, the officer told him. Then a girl came along and said she was from the Red Cross, and if there was anything they wanted they had only to name it. There was no questions asked, nor money involved, and if they had it in their supplies, the men got it.

Although he's back in Canada, Capt. Hodgson's heart is still overseas with his lads in the Royal Regiment, which he thinks are the finest there are. He is bending all his efforts now to create understanding between those at home and their loved ones overseas.

Do We Fight

At war and not at war, was the puzzling situation encountered by Pte. Ted Moore in Italy, when his unit went through the little republic of San Marino, hidden away on the Adriatic coast, and liberated by the Allies. He has since been reported seriously wounded.

"As reported in the papers, San Marino is a small state which declared war on Germany before the last war and until the Germans took over the "protection" of Italy, it was still in a state of war with them. The problem when we went in, was whether we should fire on their buildings, because they had never declared war on Britain, and were still neutral.

"Everything is back to normal now and they claim to be the first government freed by the Allies, to print stamps that are in ure. So I am sending you a collection from start to finish. It would likely be a good thing for a collector to have. Right now, we are living in a nice building and we have rigged up showers, a real luxury.

Jug McSpaden Resigns As Pro

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31 (AP)—Harold (Jug) McSpaden, one of the United States leading golfers, said today he had resigned as pro at the Philadelphia Country Club to become national public relations and field representative for the Palm Beach-Goodall Company of New York.

McSpaden said he plans to leave on a western barnstorming tour Nov. 8. He will play in the Canadian Red Cross benefit tournament at Vancouver Nov. 17 with his old rival, Byron Nelson, who also resiged his pro job recently to become vice-president of an umbrella manufacturing company. McSpaden said he also plans to enter the $13,000 war bond open at Portland, Ore., Nov. 23.

Attacks Teachers

TORONTO, Oct. 31—(CP).—Hon. Solon Low, leader of the Social Credit Association of Canada, said yesterday that teaching bodies throughout Canada were "shot through and through with embittered, frustrated intellectuals whose only satisfaction seems to have been to turn to authoritarian collectivism as a means of escape from the backward conditions under which they have so labored."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

PREPARE THE GROUND

MANY A HOPEFUL attempt to make a lead-throwing end play proves a failure because the declarer threw a defender in before making thorough preparation first. In the case of a No Trump lead-throwing play, it is necessary to strip the victimized opponent of everything except the suit or suits you want him to lead into your tenace or tenaces. In the case of such a play at a suit contract, sometimes the stripping process must consist of getting rid of certain suits in your own hand and the dummy, so that the defender will give you a ruff-and-discard if he makes certain returns.

You couldn't want a better example of the desirability of a No Trump game contract for nine tricks instead of a minor suit bid for 11 tricks, but that is neither here nor there. The point that really counted was the way that South diagnosed the situation properly as calling for a lead-throwing end-play—and then bawled it up.

He won the diamond K lead with the dummy's A, cleared hostile trumps with the A, led to the heart A, back to the club K, scored the heart K for a diamond discard and then decided he was ready to throw West in. He led the diamond 8, which West won with the 10. The latter returned the heart Q, which South had to ruff with one of dummy's clubs. His end-play effort was wasted, for West had not led back a spade to make the K good, or a diamond, which would have furnished a spade discard while dummy ruffed. By firing back a heart, West had thwarted South.

West would have been made helpless, however, if, before the diamond was led to him, South had ruffed his own last heart in the dummy. Then, when West was in with the diamond, any red card return would have brought a ruff and discard, assuring the game.

Elevator Men Protest Tax Exemptions

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 — (CP) — A delegation of the North-west Line Elevators' Association Monday presented a brief to Finance Minister Ilsley stating that more than 60 per cent of the grain handling industry is threatened with destruction due to income tax exemptions granted co-operatives.

"The inequitable income tax situation which has been permitted to continue for more than 14 years in the grain handling industry of Western Canada threatens to create a grain handling monopoly through destruction of more than 60 per cent of the industry," said the brief.

While line elevators paid income taxes, the three pool elevator companies in Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba, operating 40 per cent of the country elevators, had not paid income taxes in the last 14 years, said the brief. The elevator association represented owners and operators of 3,400 country and terminal elevators with a total capacity of 260,000,000 bushels and an investment of $65,000,000.

The brief said the estimated tax liability of the three pool elevator companies now exceeded $15,000,000. They had claimed exemption from income taxes under a section of the Income Tax Act which exempts certain types of producer-owned co-operatives from payment of such taxes.

The Justice Department had ruled the pool elevator companies did not qualify as co-operatives within the meaning of the Act. The "failure" of the income tax branch to enforce the law had permitted the pools to carry on trade practices, as a result of being able to withhold tax moneys, with "the object of endeavoring to create a pool elevator grain handling monopoly in Western Canada." Yet 60 per cent of the farmers had preferred to do business with the line elevator companies.

The collection of income taxes from the entire grain business faced a complete breakdown if one section was permitted to continue to escape payment of taxes.

"I Take Syntona Whenever Feel Rundown" Says This Man

Improves Appetite; Aids Digestion, Relieves Constipation, Tired, Fatigued Feeling and Rheumatic Pain. "Always Feel Better Afterward," He Says.

MR. HOLGER PEDERSEN

At this season of the year many people feel tired, easily fatigued, wornout and nervous; appetites are lost and they have no energy to do anything; bowels become constipated, with suffering from indigestion, dizziness, headaches, and rheumatic aches and pains. Now is the time to take Syntona for effective aid like that experienced by Mr. Holger Pedersen, Smithville, Ontario.

"I first used Syntona four years ago when I was recuperating from a serious accident," says Mr. Pedersen. "My nerves were so upset that for three weeks I hadn't had a good night's sleep and I was badly rundown. I'll never forget the sore, aching pain in my hips and down through my limbs. I could hardly walk. I had lost all desire for food, and the little I did eat gave me gas and indigestion with hot, sour liquids rising in my throat for hours afterward.

"After reading about Syntona helping other people, I bought some and it really fixed me up fine. In a very short time I was enjoying my meals with no gas, acid risings, or sour stomach after. I was feeling pretty good about this, and life seemed brighter. Then, as I kept taking it, the aches and pains gradually went away so that I could get around easily. My nerves calmed down and I could get sound, restful sleep at night. Since then I take a treatment of Syntona whenever I feel rundown, which usually happens around this time of year. I always feel better afterward.

"I've recommended Syntona to a good many people and know from experience that it can be depended on to give good results."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store.—(Advt.)

Germans Building Defences On Rhine River

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

British and Canadian armies have been doing a workmanlike job during the week-end in ousting the Germans from bitterly-disputed southwest Holland, and the task nears completion.

This means that the great port of Antwerp in neighboring Belgium shortly will be available for the movement of much-needed supplies to support the Allied assault on the Siegfried defences. Thus far the Nazi heavy artillery has been able to block shipping by commanding the estuary of the river Scheide on which Antwerp lies.

There also has been an unusually heavy bombing of the German defences, communications and industries in the Cologne-Arnhem sector—the type of bombardment which precedes big offensives. So on the whole the week-end developments have been in effect reaffirmation that our Allied High Command intends to launch a major drive at the earliest feasible moment. A lot, of course, depends on the opening of Antwerp.

The Germans are continuing their tactics of hanging on for time, and these delaying actions—Holland is a prime example—are producing stiff fighting. However, Hitler's effort to stall off going to the dentist is merely piling up pain or him on the inevitable day when he has to give in. Germany is enduring terrific punishment.

Still, there's no sacrifice the Nazi dictator won't demand to save his own skin. Under his directions the German Command is rushing work on fresh fortifications west of the Rhine in preparation for the Allied assault. Hitler's idea is to hold this river and so protract the war into next year. That's the most formidable line of defence still facing the western Allies.

Nevertheless, once the United Nations forces have reached the west bank of the Rhine they will be in position to exert a new and terrible pressure on the Germans even before the crossing is made. They will be by bombardment of vital war industries.

Veritas, British official commentator who has just made a personal survey of the fighting front, in calling attention to this prospect, points out that the Allied artillery will "be within easy range of almost all the important industrial centres of the Ruhr and the Saar. These two regions together represent between 60 and 70 per cent of Germany's heavy industry and over four-fifths of her coke supplies." And he reached this grim conclusion:

"The arrival of the Allied armies on the Rhine will entail the total destruction of a high proportion of Germany's heavy industry, upon which all her war production ultimately depends. In addition, Silesia and the great industrial centres of Czechoslovakia are now indirectly threatened by the Russian offensive."

Weldon Young Dies At Age 71

COLLINGWOOD, Ont., Oct. 31—(CP).—Weldon C. Young, a legendary figure in Canadian mining and a one-time hockey player in his native city of Ottawa, died Friday at his home here. He was 71.

Mr. Young started his mining career by taking part in the Yukon gold rush of 1898, serving there as assistant gold commissioner. He was prominent in the Cobalt silver camp in Ontario in its rich days and was in the Porcupine in 1909 and the Kirkland Lake area in 1911.

He was president of Young-Davidson mines, president of Weldon gold mines and vice-president of Matachewan-Hub pioneer mines. He had other interests as well

Cobalt silver mines in which he had an interest were said to have produced more than $9,000,000 in a few years. He once was in partnership with the late Sandy McIntyre, discovered of the rich McIntyre mine. He is reported at one time to have owned a three-quarter interest in the Wright-Hargreaves mine at Kirkland Lake through his assistance in early financing of that property.

In 1915 he and his partner, Jake Davidson, opened the Matachewan district by staking the Young-Davidson mine which came into production in 1934.

His widow, the former Jessie Willams, survives.

Escaping Bear Panics Crowd

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 31—(AP)—A 300-pound black bear escaped from a Fish and Game Commission exhibit on a crowded downtown parking lot Sunday.

Attendants said the bear, Bootsie, was struck so[illegible]y in the schnozzle by her cage companion, 400-pound Blackie, in a fight over an apple. Blood spurted and Bootsie flew into a rage.

A keeper cautiously opened the cage door and tossed in another apple in the hope of placating Bootsie, but she rushed for the door, bowled over the attendant and escaped. Bootsie made her way through the squealing crowd, including many children.

M. C. Wade, Richmond, a spectator, cut down a rope and looped it over Bootsie's neck just as she reached the street. The bear turned, jumped on Wade with four feet and started clawing. Attendants and police swarmed in and got her under control.

Poles Victors In Cow Battle

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE POLISH TROOPS IN HOLLAND, Oct. 31—(CP)—Maybe this frontline vingette should be entitled "To bully beef or not to bully": we don't know. But here are the facts of the victorious six-hour battle waged by a Polish armored company for the edible remains of a Dutch cow.

It seems that the cow, which the Germans had been using for mine detecting in these flooded flatlands, made the mistake of stepping on an "S-mine." It fell dead between two dykes in full view of (a) the Poles and (b) the Germans.

Editorialists may say that this is a war between ideologies, but both Poles and Germans decided they needed that cow and what was left of its fresh meat.

The Germans attacked first, but a burst of Polish mortar sent them back.

Then the Poles attacked but were repulsed by Moaning Minnies.

For six hours there was a stiff fight for the potential steaks and finally our side won.

When I happened to be in the neighborhood I was treated to a nice medium-done steak. "That was worth fighting for," said the beaming Polish sergeant.

Leyte's Last Base Under Fire

Fight To Finish Appears Likely Near Mountains

By C. YATES McDANIEL
Associated Press War Correspondent

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Nov. 1—(AP)—Two American forces closed on the strategic coastal village to Carigara today, massed for a climatic battle and braced for a possible Japanese counter-attack.

Having cleared the rest of Leyte Valley of organized enemy resistance, the Americans were within eight miles of the village on the inland route from Jaro and only five miles away on the coastal road from Barugo. The Japanese must stop both legs of the American advance or lose their last strategic base northeast of Leyte's heavily-jungled hump.

If they fail to stop the attacks, which might reach the village today, they must drop back along a single escape route skirting the coast to Pinamopoan, only spot from which they might negotiate a winding trail over the mountains to the south.

This trail has been the route of Japanese reinforcements brought from Cebu via Ormoc Bay, and the forces in the north must reverse their travel on it or face annihilation. No good port lies west of Pinamopoan on the north coast.

A delayed dispatch from Leif Erickson, Associated Press War Correspondent on Leyte, disclosed for the first time that United States Marine artillerymen are participating in the reinvasion of the Philippines.

Throughout the American area, enemy aircraft continued harassing raids, losing 11 planes by last count.

MacArthur's communique outlining the day's developments, was supplemented by a headquarters spokesman who predicted either a fight-to-the-finish at Carigara or Ormoc, with the added possibility that new enemy troops might be used to cover evacuation of the remnants of the 16th Japanese division, organizers of Bataan's "March of Death" and original defenders of Leyte.

A prisoner told an American general the 16th had "been here so long we are soft."

Mystery Unsolved

Chinese Troops Lacking In Proper Training

By LLOYD STRATTON
Associated Press Staff Writer

While I was in various parts of unoccupied China last January and February, the statement was made to me that it would be largely up to the American forces to win the war in China, with the aid of Britain and China in that order.

It was explained that this was not because of any lack of bravery, devotion or ability on the part of the Chinese armed forces. It was chiefly the inability to obtain for proper training and equipping the number of Chinese troops that would be necessary to make those forces an effective full partner in the campaign that would have to be waged before the Japs were driven from China.

It was frankly stated then, as I heard it repeated in many quarters thereafter, that the basic reason that a relatively paltry amount of Chinese manpower was made available was President Chiang Kai-Shek's reluctance to permit any large number of Chinese to be foreign-trained or commanded lest these same Chinese troops might turn against him at some future date.

Tragedy Two-Fold

The tragedy of this type of planning and fighting is two-fold. It envisages a continuance of the type of sectional government by warlords that so long has kept China dismembered. It is being done without the knowledge of a people, who already have proven the most patient, sacrificial, courageous and long-suffering of any free people on earth.

Recognized reports of military, economic and financial fraternizing on the part of the Chinese with the Japanese, and vice-versa, were common in Chungking. This ordinarily incomprehensible conduct was justified for reasons of strategy or economic relief by persons in both military and political positions.

How long the main features of this situation have existed is problematical. But long before early 1944 there was evidence in the whole atmosphere hanging over the Chinese capital. General gloom, distress, frustration, dissatisfaction, dissension, disappointment and criticism were voiced or observed everywhere. While the clash between Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek and Gen. Stilwell strikes at the core of the upheaval and much is being made of its significance, actually it seemed to be much more than simply a disagreement from a military standpoint or a difference in personalities as between two leaders.

Murder Trial Upset At Cobourg

16-Year-Old Youth Charged With Death Of Boy 4

COBOURG, Nov. 1 — (ENS). — The murder trial of 16-year-old Charles Francis Davey, which has been taking place in Cobourg at the Fall Assizes, has been traversed to the next Assizes Conrt, on order of the Supreme Court Judge, after he found that the constables had not kept the jurymen together since Tuesday. The action was taken at 11 o'clock this morning.

A constable left 10 jurors standing unattended on a street corner. The constable had gone to get two other jurors from a barber shop where they had been taken by another officer.

Mr. Justice A. W. Green, in ruling it a mistrial, said he "could not assume nothing happened while the jury was unguarded."

COBOURG, Nov. 1 (ENS)—Evidence of Dr. J. B. McKay, pathologist of Belleville, revealed yesterday at the murder trial of Charles Francis Davey, that four year old Norman Lamb, whom he is accused of slaying, died from asphyxiation due to throttling. The boy's body was found in a swamp on the farm of his father, Earnest Lamb of Cavan township on Sunday afternoon, July 16 of this year.

Charles Davey, ward of the Bowmanville Boys' Training School, was later charged with murder after he gave himself up at Peterborough police station on the night of July 16. Davey is 16 years of age and was employed on the farm of Joseph Fee, grandfather of young Lamb.

Father and Mother Present

Mrs. Emma Davey, mother of the accused, and her husband, arrived at the hearing yesterday and entered the court room during the recess. Mrs. Davey had brought her son a parcel containing some cake and things for Hallowe'en. She handed him the box as he sat in the prisoner's dock, during court recess and then burst into tears as she embraced him. Davey wept with her. During the ensuing session of court, she sat beside Fred C. Richardson, defence counsel, a few feet from the prisoner's dock.

Joseph Fee told the court that he and Davey went to the Lamb home for dinner on Sunday, July 16.

Battle Raging Inside Kesckemet City

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Nov. 1 — (AP). — Russian motorized infantry is clearing scattered enemy detachments from three sides of Kesckemet, while other Red Army troops are battling fiercely in the streets of the city, 44 miles southeast of Budapest, late front dispatches said today. Soviet tanks, artillery and infantry are pouring into a 60-mile wide break in the enemy's defences between the Danube and the Tisza Rivers, the dispatches added. At captured Izsak, 17 miles southwest of Kesckemet, the Russians were only 43 miles south of Budapest.

Thus far the offensive has swept up 200 Hungarian cities, towns and villages, more than 4,000 prisoners and control of several hundred square miles of new territory, the Russians declared.

Front dispatches said the Hungarian 23rd Infantry Division was virtually destroyed, its commander killed and the deputy commander and most of the staff captured as Soviet armor and a wave of tommy-gunners broke into Kesckemet.

The army newspaper Red Star disclosed that the new offensive aimed at Budapest got under way at least three days ago, and overran a defence zone where the enemy concentrated as many as 20 anti-tank guns to the mile.

A correspondent for Izvestia reported that Soviet forces increased the fury of their assault toward Budapest "tenfold" after they discovered bodies of four Red Army prisoners tortured and slain by the Germans and Hungarians.

30 Tanks Wrecked

The Russians also pushed toward Budapest on a front 120 miles northeast of the capital. They captured 50 places, including the large town of Hajdunanas.

More than 30 German tanks were wrecked or burned in the fighting southeast of Budapest, the Russian communique said. It described the Red Army operations as "impetuous outflanking manoeuvres," and said Soviet forces hurled back repeated enemy counter-attacks that were reinforced with fresh troops.

In the capture of Nyiregyhaza, a district centre northwest of Debrecen 1,500 Germans and Hungarians were killed while the Russians advanced 12 miles, the communique added. The Soviet forces retook the town after being pushed out of it.

Pincers Drive Gaining On Last Fort

British Commandos Storm Ashore In Surprise Landing

LONDON, Nov. 1 — (CP). — British Commandos under 1st Canadian Army command stormed ashore to-day on the southern and western coast of Walcheren Island, and were making good progress to-night in a pincers drive to smash the last Germans barring the sea lane to Antwerp.

The sea-borne forces landed as Canadian forces burst across the shell-torn causeway on to the eastern edge of the island, establishing a small beachhead there despite heavy Nazi resistance.

A dispatch from Field-Marshal Montgomery's Headquarters said the Commandos were biting inland across the flooded island.

Berlin earlier said Allied amphibious forces had landed near Vlissingen (Flushing), Walcheren's biggest city, with strong aerial and naval protection.

The Berlin radio said to-night: "German reconnaissance planes have observed a battleship of the King George class, four cruisers,

Large Buyers Boost Loan

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 — (CP). — Canadian Victory Loan buyers yesterday subscribed $74,343,750 — an amount slightly above what was subscribed for the same day in the last loan, it was disclosed today.

The cumulative total of the $1,300,000,000 loan now stands at $575,813,500, compared to $553,617,550 at the same stage of the last loan.

Yesterday's increase, came from the large corporate buyers, with individual purchases down a little from the same day in the Sixth Loan. The total for individual buyers yesterday was $31,404,700 bringing the total individual purchases in the first eight days of selling to $263,151,550. In the same day of the Sixth Loan the purchase of individuals was $33,446,550.

"Average daily purchases of those who buy for cash, out of their pay envelopes and from savings, in the last loan, were about $35,700,000," an official of the National War Finance Committee said. "In this loan, so far, the average daily purchases are about $32,900,000. About 45 per cent of our canvass time has elapsed and the individuals have purchased a little less than 41 per cent of what they bought in the last loan. Delayed reports, of course, will take up some of the slack, but it should be remembered by every Canadian, that their objective is $100,000,000 higher than it ever has been. It is not a total which can be achieved without real effort."

Cabinet Crisis Over Zombies

Special to The Examiner

OTTAWA, Nov. 1.—The military manpower crisis enters the eighth day today. There are many signs which indicate that the discussion in the Cabinet is reaching the end and that a decision may not be far off. Every aspect of the situation appears to have been canvassed in minute detail. Equally, there is no indication that the division of opinion has been materially narrowed. This, of course, may change when the final Cabinet poll is taken. So far, however, indications rather point the other way. There is endless speculation in the newspapers regarding the crisis. It is the fact, however, that there is not a line of official information to go on. All the facts with respect to reinforcements are held in strictest secrecy.

Bearing this in mind, it is impossible to do more than to outline, fairly clearly, the division of opinion within the Cabinet.

It is understood that those who favor the application forthwith of over-all conscription do so for the following reasons:

It is true that there is no apparent shortage of men in the overseas army. Broadly speaking there are upwards of 400,000 men in this army, all active service volunteers. The actual front line units do not account for more than, say, 125,000, and the casualties at 42,000 men are only some 10 per cent. of the total.

But a modern army is an exceedingly complex machine, the troops are specialists. The present difficulty arises because the casualties have fallen very heavily upon the infantry and not so heavily upon the other branches. Admittedly the casualties in total have not exceeded the estimate. But the infantry casualties have greatly exceeded expectations.

Infantry Shortage

There has arisen a prospective shortage of infantry reinforcements — a shortage which may become acute towards the end of the year and in January and February. True, there would probably be no difficulty after February because recruiting is going forward and the allocation of recruits into the various parts of the army has been changed to meet the situation created by the casualties. But there is this problem of an infantry shortage for a period of say two months.

How can this shortage be met?

To Discharge Some Sailors When Germany Is Defeated

OTTAWA, Nov. 1—(CP).—The Canadian naval contingent that will go to the Pacific will be raised on a re-voluntary basis with a partial demobilization after the defeat of Germany being made on a "first-in, first-out" basis. This was disclosed here today by Capt. H. McMaster, naval director of personnel, as he outlined the Navy's plans.

1. Full naval effort until the defeat of Germany.
2. When it has been ascertained what categories and what numbers of personnel are required for the war against Japan, the contingent will be selected from men who re-volunteer.
3. These men will enjoy a leave of unspecified length in Canada before going to the Pacific.
4. Certain key men will be retained in the service "regardless of their wishes."
5. The remaining naval personnel will be released on a general "first-in, first-out" demobilization plan.
6. There will apparently be no special campaign pay but a navy statement points out that those who serve in the Japanese campaign will through their additional length of service qualify for higher mustering-out benefits.

The R.C.A.F., which like the Navy, is believed ready to use a third of its strength in the Pacific, has already announced the re-voluntary plan and the partial demobilization of a "first-in, first-out" basis.

The Army, said to be contemplating using a division in the Pacific, has not yet announced its plans.

With the Navy planning to give its Pacific fighters a leave in Canada before they take up the war against Japan, it seems possible they will enter the conflict across the North Pacific possibly to bases in the Philippines rather than return across the Atlantic and accompany British forces to Indian bases.

The statement said that during the transition period following the

Heavy Battles Flare In Italy

ROME, Nov. 1 — (AP). — British 8th Army troops on the Adriatic front have improved their beachhead across the Ronco River, Allied Headquarters reported to-day.

Enemy troops have been cleared from the town of Meldola on the west bank of the Ronco, the communique said.

German troops facing the Allied 5th Army on the central sector south of Bologna made a series of heavy counter-attacks yesterday in an effort to wipe out several Allied salients. American forces, sometimes fighting hand-to-hand, hurled them all back.

Only patrolling and artillery duels were carried out elsewhere.

Medium bombers attacked bridges in the Po Valley and lighter craft shot up enemy concentrations and communications. A small force of heavy bombers attacked targets in Yugoslavia.

Along the Adriatic coast 8th Army patrols worked their way forward toward Ravenna, driving Germans from the outpost positions north of the Bevano River.

Tokio Jittery B-29 Over City

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1—(AP)—Tokyo radio spluttered for hours today about a B-29 Superfortress raid on the Japanese capital, but the War Department in Washington said it had "no information about any aerial operations over Japan."

Tokyo has not been hit by American bombs in more than two years.

In a series of conflicting reports, Tokyo radio said a B-29 apparently from a newly developed base in the Marianas Islands appeared over the capital but left "without attempting attacks;" that several four-engined planes were over the city; that at least one plane raided a factory district throwing workers into confusion.

The reports all agreed that an enemy plane or planes were over the Tokyo area around 1 p.m. Wednesday (Tokyo time).

One broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, giving detailed instructions on combatting fires in inflammable Tokyo, said "an enemy plane suddenly raided part of the Kanto region," an important industrial area covering the entire area around the capital and embracing several prefectures.

At the time of the Marianas invasion there was much speculation that engineers would build a huge base on Saipan for Toyko-raiding B-29s. There has never been any confirmation that such a base was developed.

A Tokyo announcer warned the Japanese people that "there is now an ever-stronger possibility of sudden raids," adding, "from now on, no matter what happens, one must devote strenuous efforts toward air defence."

Chinese Weaknesses Shown In Recent Action Of Chiang

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The over-all picture of the events surrounding President Chiang Kai-Shek's successful demand for Gen. Stilwell's recall (on charges which Washington doesn't accept) is that of the generalissimo gambling heavily with the international relations and prestige of the globe's most populous country.

Chiang's insistence on Stilwell's recall appears to have been incidental to broaden issues involving American attempts to strengthen China's war effort.

No longer ago than the recent Dumbarton Oaks conference to lay plans for a world peace organization, China was accorded the position of one of the "Big Four"—along with Britain, the United States and Russia. The idea was that China, with her 500,000,000 people, would assume leadership in the post-war Orient.

Now the Chinese weaknesses which have been emphasized by the present imbroglio immediately give rise to the question whether China can expect to qualify for membership with the Big Three. That's something which we shouldn't answer hastily, pending developments. It depends on China's further attitude.

It's perhaps unfortunate that Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek is ill in New York at this moment of crisis for her country. This brilliant woman—often referred to as "the brains of China" — long has been her husband's closest political adviser. Indeed she has for years taken an active hand in government, and is reported to have been at once an inspiration and a steadying influence for the talented but sometimes rash generalissimo.

Wife Is Ill

Judging from past events, if she had been in Chungking during recent trying days she would have persuaded her husband to a wiser course.

So far as concerns the war against Japan, the Anglo-American Allies can adapt themselves to existing conditions. Fortunately American progress in conquering the Pacific has put them in strategic positions from which to knock out Japan. However, perhaps Chiang will remedy his own position.

One of the greatest dangers is that of an upheaval between the generalissimo's forces and the powerful Chinese Communist armies of the north. They've been working under a truce—frequently broken by bloody encounters—because fo the Japanese war.

Claims Lend-Lease Goods Being Hoarded By Chinese

By THOBURN WIANT
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 1 (AP) — The Kuomintang party regime, headed by President Chiang Kai-shek, has been—and is—more concerned with the inevitable civil war against the 80,000,000 Chinese Communists than in the struggle against Japan.

As far back as early 1943, one observer coming out of China asserted that lend-lease material were being saved up for the civil war; that approximately 1,000,000 of Chiang's troops were in Northern China, watching and sparring with the Communists.

He said that Chinese in many sectors were resisting only on a token basis, that goods were passing freely in many areas from the Japanese to the Chinese, and vice versa. That letters could easily be sent in and out of Japanese-occupied centres such as Shanghai and Hong Kong, that the money market seemed to be manoeuvred for the benefit of those in power.

After nearly two years in the China-Burma-India theatre as a war correspondeneto, I am convinced the Generalissimo and his party leaders are primarily interested in perpetuating themselves.

Democracy does not exist in China. There probably is no more effective dictatorship that that of the Kuomintang party. There is no freedom of speech, or of press, or of much of anything else.

German Troops Flee Salonika

ROME, Nov. 1—(AP)—The German high command announced today its forces had evacuated Salonika, principal Balkan seaport and second city of Greece.

Allied Headquarters disclosed earlier that British patrols had reached the city, which had a population of 240,000 before the war. A pall of smoke was hung over Salonika several days as the Germans carried out demolitions there.

The Germans said "Salonika was evacuated in the course of our disengagement movements in the Balkans, unimpeded by the enemy."

The communique was broadcast by the Berlin radio.

Salonika lies less than 50 miles from the borders of Yugoslavia and Bulgaria. Known also as Thessalonike, the Aegean port was used as a base by Allied troops in the last war. A pro-ally revolution which broke out there helped impel Greece into that war in 1917.

Six Candidates In Election Seeking U.S. Presidency

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—(CP). — Little is heard of any but the Democrats and Republicans in the United States presidential race but there are six national tickets offering candidates for top honors in next Tuesday's voting.

The Democratic candidates, President Roosevelt and Senator Harry Truman of Missouri, and the Republicans, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, and Gov. John Bricker of Ohio, will have their electors' names on every state ballot.

But four minor-party organizations plan to have presidential and vice-presidential electors listed on many state ballots or provision for them to be written in.

These are:

The Prohibition party (which leads all other minor parties in number of candidates, with Dr. Claude A. Watson of Los Angeles and Andrew Johnson of Wilmore, Kentucky, as candidates for president and vice-president.

The Socialist party with its perennial candidate, Norman Thomas, New York, and Darlington Hoopes, Reading Pa., heading the ticket.

2,846 Planes Destroyed In 2 Months

American Air Ace Bags 9 On One Mission

PEARL HARBOR, Nov. 1 — (AP). — United States navy fliers, paced by an ace who downed nine enemy planes on one mission to Manila, destroyed from 2,594 to 2,846 Japanese planes during the two months American troops invaded Palau and the Philippines and the navy crushed the enemy's imperial fleet.

The Aug. 31-Oct. 31 scourge of the foe's air power in sweeps extending from the Philippines north to within 200 miles of Japan virtually nullified work of the enemy's assembly lines for the period and cut deep into his store of battle-tested pilots.

Admiral Nimitz, issuing this "conservative recapitulation of enemy aircraft losses," said the cost was approximately 300 carrier planes — a ratio of better than eight or nine to one in favor of U.S. fliers.

These achievements are those of 3rd and 7th fleet carrier fliers alone. They do not take into account for the same period a noteworthy bag by army fliers over such hotly-defended spots as the oil centre of Balikpapan on Borneo.

Showing the way for the navy is Cmdr. David McCampbell of Los Angeles with 30 planes to his credit, including nine he got in less than two hours Oct. 24 when he helped chase a numerically superior group of Japanese all the way to Manila. His bag that day also included two probables.

Underscoring Japan's deterioration as an air as well as a naval power, the carrier raiders blew up 1,132 of the enemy planes before they could get off the ground.

2 Staff Officers Are Retired

KINGSTON, Nov. 1—Two staff officers of Military District No. 3 headquarters have retired. They are Lt.-Col. C. H Ackerman, District Auxiliary Services Officer, and Major G T. Walmsley, E.D., Assistant Judge Advocate General of M.D. 3. Both are returning to their civilian occupations.

Major Walmsley, former Crown Attorney at Picton, before the war was a company commander with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Immediately war was declared he enlisted for active service, but his medical category prevented him from proceeding overseas with his unit.

Prior to his appointment as A.J.A.G. in the fall of 1940, he was posted for a short time at No. 3-A District Depot, Fort Frontenac.

Col. Ackerman, whose home is in Peterborough, was appointed District Auxiliary Services Officer in October 1940.

Appointments are to be made shortly to fill both vacancies caused by the retirements of Col. Ackerman and Major Walmsley.

Jury Ordered Treat Youth As Adult

COBOURG, Nov. 1 (CP)—Crown Counsel C. R., Magone, addressing the jury at the murder trial of 16-year-old Charles Francis Davey, accused of strangling Norman (Buddy) Lamb, four, said that despite Davey's youth, he is to be dealt with as an adult.

"He is in exactly the same position as any person who is charged with murder," he said.

Trembling and pale, Davey seemed bewildered by court proceedings.

He answered "Guilty" when the charge was read, but his counsel Fred C. Richardson jumped to his feet and told his client to "Answer not guilty."

The charge was re-read and Davey changed his plea.

The Lamb boy was found dead in a swamp after playing with young Davey. Davey had been employed by the grandparents of the slain lad and had previously been a ward of the Bowmanville Boys' Training School.

Pioneer Woman Dies In Cavan District

CAVAN, Nov. 1 — (ENS) — The funeral service was held Sunday for Olivia V. B. Gardiner, from the home of her brother, Harry Gardiner, Cavan, with interment in the family plot in Gardiner's Cemetery. In her 80th year, Miss Gardiner was a daughter of one of the pioneer families.

One of six daughters of the late Matthew Gardiner and Jane Carr, she lived at the family homestead her entire life, except the past year when she made her home with a brother Harry, at Cavan. A member of Millbrook Presbyterian Church from an early age, Miss Gardiner was active in church work until poor health intervened. For fifty-six years a member of the Church Missionary Society, last summer she was presented with a life membership certificate. A kind, cheerful disposition endeared her to a wide circle of friends, and the large attendance at her funeral and beautiful floral offerings gave testimony of her popularity.

She leaves to mourn her loss a brother, Harry, Cavan, and one sister, Mrs. Joseph Burns, now living on the homestead. Two brothers, Charles and Sydney, and one sister, Mrs. Thomas Hunter, predeceased her.

Pallbearers were O. Ball, Springville: W. Fallis, Millbrook; R. Matchett, W. Pritchard, T. Douglas and H. C. Argue of Cavan.

Examiner Carriers Take $3,300 In Bonds

The boys and girls who deliver the Peterborough Examiner have dipped into the Seventh Victory Loan for $3,300 of the nation's bonds. In the three preceding loans, their investment amounted to $4,450, and when they have all completed payments in their new deal, their total holding of interest bearing Victory Bonds will be $7,750.

Further accomplishments by the carriers include the selling of $42,500 of War Savings Stamps since December 1941. And as a reminder to their public it might be mentioned that these young business people still carry a stock of Stamps who are adding this investment to their Victory Bonds.

Apple Harvest Proving Good

"Excellent fall weather has helped the harvest of a big crop of apples. Many orchards are nearing the finish, but in others, Spies remain to be picked."

That is a quotation from the Northumberland representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in the weekly crop reports. Victoria farmers are busy with the turnip crop and have a large number of cattle to be sold off the ranches. Leeds adds the note that the prices offered for dairy cattle "are much below those of a year ago, especially for cattle not freshening immediately."

Farmers are stabling their herds at night. Hastings pastures "are short" and the milk flow is "falling off." Harvesting of all crops in Prince Edward is practially completed; storage space and containers are at a premium. Some of the counties mention prices generally as showing some decline from the last quarter of 1943. Some Glengarry farmers are reducing the number of their dairy cows "due to the feed shortage."

South Simcoe says "farmers are alarmed over the beef cattle situation. They have been advised to withhold marketing, and this is causing them considerable inconvenience and expense. Fall wheat is looking good."

Bruce county farmers have had a good year, but the turnip yield is an exception. Middlesex contributes another uneasy note: "Many farmers are perturbed over the condition of the beef cattle market. There are quite large numbers of finished and feeder cattle for sale."

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Nov. 1 — (CP). — Peacetime production wil be resumed by McKinnon Industries Limited three months after the "go" signal is given by the Government and full production should be reached in another three months, T. J. Cook, McKinnon president and general manager, said in a review of wartime progress and reconversion plans of his company and its parent organization, General Motors.

Raps Military Camp

ST. THOMAS, Nov. 1 — (CP). — Herman Bechard of Windsor told Magistrate E. D. Smith in county court yesterday that he would rather spend "four months or a year in reformatory" than return to Ipperwash military camp, near Sarnia, Ont. He was given a further remand when he appeared for sentence on a theft charge. He is alleged to be absent without leave from the army camp.

Child 3 Dies Instantly In Truck Mishap

Three-year-old Wayne Manley, youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. George Manley, Downer's Corners was killed instantly just before 6 o'clock Tuesday evening when he was hit and knocked down by a truck, almost in front of his home on Otonabee street. The dual back wheel of the motor vehicle ran over the boy's head crushing it badly.

The little fellow with another boy had been playing at the south side of the road and started across toward his home just as a truck driven and owned by Louis Freeburn, Norwood, loaded with hogs, came along from the east.

Freeburn told the police that he had been travelling at a moderate speed and that when he saw the little lad run into the road he had put on his brakes and then released them and tried to swerve to the left to avoid hitting the boy. However the front bumper struck the child and knocked him down and the rear right wheel passed over him. Death was instantaneous.

Coroner Dr. Herbert Young, Detective Sergt. W. E. Meagher, and Constables Gordon Trennum and Allan Edmison investigated the accident. Measurements taken by the officers showed that from the point where the boy had been struck to where the truck was brought to a halt the distance was 137 feet.

The father of the dead boy is Gunner George Manley who enlisted with an anti-tank unit in Peterborough and has been overseas since 1941. He was wounded in France some time ago, suffering an injury to his eye. Before enlisting he was a driver for the Canada Bread Company.

Louis Freeburn, driver of the truck, was brought to the police station after the accident but was eventually allowed to go home for the night.

This morning he appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court charged with reckless driving. He was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., asked that the case be tried as an indictable offence. "There was a child killed in the accident" he told the court.

"We are reserving our plea and election" said Mr. Carley.

"In any event I am going to take this as a preliminary inquiry", remarked Magistrate Langley. "I believe that his is the course that should be taken where there has been a death."

Freeburn was remanded until Thursday of next week with bail fixed at $2,000.

the Neder Rhine.

Pursuing British and Canadian armored forces already have fought through to the Maas (Meuse) River north of Tilburg and are within a half-mile of the Geertruidenberg bridge, one of the enemy's main escape routes. These Allied units are approximately seven miles south of the Waal, southernmost outlet of the Rhine.

To the east the original Allied salient in the Netherlands running from Eindhoven through Nijmegen to the vicinity of Arnhem outflanks the lower Waal but not the parallel Neder Rhine.

As a result of the triumph of the 1st Canadian and British 2nd Armies in the southwestern coastal corner the Allies now have a broad front extending across southern Holland in place of the original narrow salient.

and numerous landing vessels, which indicates that other attempts on Walcheren are to follow.

The German D.N.B. Agency asserted the first wave of forces landing in Flushing Harbor were wiped out, but reinforcements fought to the outskirts of the town.

"The enemy used about 50 to 60 landing boats," the announcement said.

The German Trans-Ocean Agency said the landing was made by Canadian and British forces, while the enemy communique attributed it to "Allied" forces.

Under Hail of Fire

The Canadians cut out a foothold several hundred yards deep on the eastern edge of the island, eight miles north-east of Vlissingen, after crossing the 1,100-yard-long 100-yard-wide causeway from conquered Beveland Island under a hail of bullets and shells.

Resistance on the south shore of the Schelde Estuary weakened perceptibly, Supreme Headquarters said and Canadians in a three-mile advance fought into the coastal town of Knocke. Perhaps less than 3,000 Germans remained in this pocket, south-west of Vlissingen; 7,900 had already been captured.

The enemy communique said the landing in the Vlissingen area was supported by naval units and added there was "heavy fighting" for the town and harbor.

A Berlin Trans-Ocean agency broadcast said the landing was made after an artillery barrage directed from the south shore of the Schelde Estuary only recently cleared by Canadian forces of Germans.

There was no immediate Allied confirmation of the landing report.

Mostly Flooded

Adjoining South Beveland Island, however, had been captured in the same kind of squeeze attack, with Brtish forces landing on the southern coast while Canadians pushed across the land causeway.

Commenting on a council report to the effect that the City Trust Commission had expressed approval of diversion of its funds to the civic hospital project, Vincent Eastwood, chairman, said today: "The Commission has no authority to approve such payment; they can do only what the Municipal Act empowers them to do. The only means by which approval of transfer of Commission funds for purposes outside the duties of the City Trust, is by provincial legislation."

In their office of trustees of the funds placed in their care and management, the members of the City Trust Commission could only be Trust Commission could only by neutral on any other proposals relating to those funds unless specific authority was obtained by way of legislation, Mr. Eastwood said.

Murder Trial

"After dinner the two boys went out in the yard and I could hear Buddy (Norman Lamb) laughing as they played. Then they disappeared and towards the latter part of the afternoon we decided to see where they were.

We went down the lane, the hired man and I, and once when we heard the dog barking, we went back to the house thinking that the boys were back but found we were mistaken and retraced our steps In the swamp I came upon Buddy's little shoes. Futher on, about 75 feet I came on the little body lying face-down under a bush, just as if he had been thrown there. I picked him up and handed him to the hired man and then hurried back to the house to phone for the doctor," related Mr. Fee.

Questioned by defence counsel, Fee said that he had employed the accused for something over a year. Fee said that he couldn't remember what he paid the boy for working for him. Pressed for an answer he admitted he paid him fifty cents a week when asked for it. Witness said that the training school officials had told him that the boy had been committed to the institution because he played hooky from school.

Dr. Charles Temple of Millbrook said that he was called to the Lamb home and arrived around ten to five that afternoon. From the condition of the boy he believed that death had been due to suffocation. The boy had been dead for about three hours, he estimated, at the time he examined it.

Earnest Lamb, corroborated Fee's evidence as to the visit to his farm for dinner that Sunday. Lamb said that after dinner he saw Buddy and the accuse, go down the lane together. He was not sure whether they were hand-in-hand or not. He joined in the later search but did not find any trace of his son until he returned and learned that Buddy had been brought back to the house and was dead.

Dr. J. B. McKay gave a detailed report of his autopsy findings. He fixed death as due to asphyxiation caused by throttling. There were particles of earth on the boy's nose, right temple and above the right brow. The face was blue in color. Five small scratches were on the neck, a little to each side of the Adam's Apple. There was also evidence of slight hemorrhaging over the right eye.

Internal examination, continued Dr. McKay, showed a fracture of the small bone structure above the Adam's Apple, the tip of the bone being broken off. The piece would be about one-quarter inch in size, he stated. This indicated that considerable pressure had been brought to bear on the part in question, witness said.

Towards the latter part of the afternoon yesterday, the jury retired while evidence to an alleged statement by the accused after his arrest, was given by Constable Andre Dalton and Wellington Beatty. Defence counsel objected to the admissability of the evidence and Mr Justice Greene reserved his decision until the opening of session next day on that point.

Cabinet Crisis

By remustering wherever possible from other branches of the army, by the newly trained men who are constantly maturing, by lowering standards of physical fitness and so on. But if, when all these adjustments are made there still remains a highly probable shortage, what then? Obviously the only source of supply is the fully trained zombie infantry, who can be sent forward to fill this temporary gap.

This is the case of the advocates of over-all conscription.

The opponents of this policy, it is understood, argue as folows:

It is unreasonable to say that with such vast reserves of men in the active service army, there can be a real shortage anywhere. At most this can only be a case of the efficient handling of men.

The technicians here—the general staff—have obviously miscalculated the situation and as a result we have scores of thousands of troops but not enough of the particular kind required.

The difficulty should be overcome by an effective remustering of the available active service men and the bald statement that this cannot be done—made presumably by the same General Staff which failed to appreciate the war situtaion until it became critical—is not good enough.

Being comitted to a policy of conscription if necessary but not necessarily conscription, is it right, now, to say that conscription is the only answer to a temporary difficulty of this kind?

The argument apparently is flowing in these channels and until the final decision is reached it is impossible with any confidence to speculate upon how the individual ministers will line up.

If, on the other hand, Mr. King takes the ground that he still thinks the voluntary system is adequate, and refuses to act, the resignations of Defence Minister Ralston, Navy Minister Macdonald, and possibly of Messrs. Crerar, Gibson, McLarty and some others, will be almost certain. In that event, either one of two things would happen: Mr. King might resign and ask the Governor General to call upon Mr. Ralston or Mr. Macdonald, or somebody else to form a Cabinet; or Mr. King might dissolve Parliament and go to the country on his stand.

In informed, responsible circles today the belief was that Mr. King would shrink from both of these drastic courses; that, in the end, he will decide to send the Zombies overseas, even though reluctantly.

It was felt today, too, that Mr. Churchill's speech at Westminister Tuesday, when he held that the war might go on until early next Summer, will greatly strengthen the demands of Messrs. Ralston and Macdonald, no one believing that the existing flow of voluntary recruits could possibly meet reinforcement needs until that time, especially in the light of possibly heavier casualties.

The next day or two may well bring momentous news from Parliament Hill.

Demand that the "Zombie" army, or part of it, be sent overseas, where it is needed as reinforcements, is being made by Defence Minister Ralston, backed by Navy Minister Macdonald. Supporting their view are Minister of Resources Crerar, Minister of National Revenue Gibson, Secretary of State McLarty, Minister of Commerce MacKinnon, and Minister of Finance Ilsley. Minister for Air Power, also believed to be standing with his associate defence ministers, is not in the city.

Monday night the lights in the Cabinet council room in the East Block burned until nine o'clock; ministers had been locked in discussion and debate all afternoon and through the dinner hour. In the end no final decision was reached: only temporary escape of agreement to examine once more the figures of possible reinforcements outside the Zombie army.

Origin of this Cabinet crisis is in a pledge which Defence Minister Ralston gave to Parliament last session. Mr. Ralston said that if or when need arose for reinforcements beyond the capacity of the voluntary system to meet it, he would recommend to the Cabinet an Order-in-Council sending the Home Army overseas. Mr. Ralston has now decided that that need has arisen. He has been to the battlefronts, has talked to the Generals and troops, has studied military needs at first hand. Back in Canada, and convinced that in the light of casualties, the voluntary system, on basis of existing yields, cannot provide needed reinforcements beyond the end of the year, he wants to carry out his pledge to Parliament—demands, as a minimum that a deadline be placed on overseas disposition of Home forces.

Prime Minister King's precise position is not known. What is believed, however, is that Mr. King is not yet satisfied that necessary reinforcements are lacking, and that he is pressing the Defence Ministers to provide him with fuller information on this point before he reaches a decision.

If, in the end, Mr King decides that the voluntary system can no longer supply a flow of trained troops, and that the time has come to carry out the mandate given him by the plebiscite of two years ago, his course will be to summon Parliament, submit to it (but not necessarily for prolonged discussion) an Order-in-Council to despatch the Zombie Army overseas — or a part of it.

defeat of Germany it is expected "to release some personnel for civil employment."

At the moment the Navy is endeavoring to formulate a plan for the interim release of personnel which will be fair to all and give recognition to those who volunteered early in the war as opposed to those who were slower in coming forward.

The statement said that as a general principal the "first-in-first-out" scheme will be applied.

Work Out Details

Detailed personnel requirements for the war against Japan will be worked out. Announcement then will be made that personnel who request to do so will be considered for service in the Japanese campaign.

"It is hoped that sufficient numbers with the required qualifications will ask to stay in the service," said the statement.

It will be made clear, however, that the purpose of the announcement will be to ensure "that the keenest men will be given an opportunity to serve."

"Where a man's services are required he may be retained regardless of his wishes."

The statement said that all persons who volunteered for the naval service did so "for the duration of hostilities which includes the war against Japan."

Priority Listing.

When it had been ascertained what category and what numbers of personnel were required "the balance of the present navy who wish to go and could be spared will be given a priority listing according to their length of active service. They then will gradually be returned to civil life."

Naval headquarters said it was stressing the advantages which would accrue to those who serve in the Japanese campaign. In the first place, as the length of service increased so would their gratuities, bonuses and rehabilitation grants. Also those who are proceeding into the actual theatre of war in the Far East will be granted leave before they go.

"It is hoped that the naval service plan when it is finally crystallized and put into practice will provide for smooth and equitable re-allocation of personnel, due consideration being given to the interests of the individual and of the nation as a whole, both from the military and economic points of view," said the statement.

Plan Amateur Show

More than 25 acts are scheduled for El Jones Amateur Show, which has local firms scurrying to get their acts into shape in time for the big contests, Thursday, November 9. Already, C.G.E.-Genelco have 20 acts, and this Thursday evening, are conducting their own elimination contests. It is being held in the interests of Peterborough's Seventh Victory Loan Campaign.

Prank Causes Woman To Break Leg

Most serious feature of the city's Hallowe'en celebration Tuesday night was an accident to Miss Mary Deannard, 479 Donegal street, who is in St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from injury to her leg as the result of a fall when she went outside to examine the damage done to a fence. Boys had pulled down a section and Miss Deannard was hurt when she apparently fell over part of the fence lying on the ground.

City police were all on Hallowe'en duty assisted by a detachment of A.R.P. police and all sections of the city were patrolled.

The police reports are that while there were many children out and large numbers of masqueraders, property damage done was not serious and did not come anywhere near the volume it used to attain years ago.

One prank that might have had serious results was that all the manhole coverings on several blocks on Brock street were torn off and tossed to one side.

At the home of L. F. Adlam, 588 Bolivar street, youths released the bolts holding a flag pole in the back yard, allowing it to drop to the ground with the result that the top of the pole was broken off.

What appeared to have been the attempt of amateur chemists to fabricate a stink bomb was tossed on the verandah of a Monaghan Road house.

Delivery wagons owned by Sunshine Dairy in Ashburnham were hauled from the sheds to the street and one was parked at the door of Lift Lock Candy shop a block distant.

Cpl. Gawley Wounded Fighting In Tank Unit

Cpl. Norman Gawley, with the Ontario Tank Regiment overseas, has been reported injured in action October 23, according to information reaching his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gawley, 41 Park street. His injuries were described as lacerations of the fingers on his right hand. In August of this year, the young soldier was made a corporal, and appointed commander of a tank unit. He is now in hospital.

Formerly employed at the Standard Electric Comany in Toronto, he enlisted in February, 1943, and went overseas in November of the same year. At the time of his enlistment, he qualified as a wireless operator. Some time before joining the tank corps, Cpl. Gawley worked in the punch press department at the C.G.E. His father is a veteran of the last war, when he served with a machine-gun unit.

Weatherman Plays Surprise On Citizens

Local news feature today, November 1, in the church calendar the feast of All Saints, was the weather with sunshine blandly warm, clear skies and a lift in the air with the tangy buoyancy of late autumn that seemed to give wings to mere pedestrians.

All Hallows is an ancient name and likewise its eve on October 31. Probably there have been other first days of November that suggested a lingering of summer, or probably that indefinite and movable period known as Indian Summer in Canadian weather lore, but even the oldest citizens can hardly recall from their long memories such a goregous day as this.

The usual atmosphere of All Saints Day is sharp frost, or flurries of light snow, occasionally frost seizing the ground. All these harsh heralds of winter were missing today, with its afternoon holiday in the retail district.

Drunken Driving Case Given Adjournment

Garfield Emery, 32-year-old manager of a garage on Highway east of Peterborough, was arrested on George Street on Tuesday night by Constable Gordon Trennum of the city police and Harold Banno of the A.R.P. police on a charge of drunken driving. The arrest was made after the officers had noticed a car driven by Emery collide with the back of a parked automobile.

Emery appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in the Police Court this morning, and pleaded not guilty.

He was allowed to go on adjournment until November 7.

SOAP-WRITTEN SIGNS.

Window washers in Peterborough are busy to-day removing the signs Hallowe'en pranksters had written with soap on many downtown windows on Tuesday night. This form of celebrating the occasion seemed to be decidedly popular judging by the number of signs that made their appearance.

DRIVE TO BLOCK NAZI ESCAPE—The Allied capture of the Dutch fortress of Breda (1), followed by a swift advance of some ten miles, now threatens to cut off the escape route for the estimated 40,000 German troops north of Antwerp now seeking an escape corridor from Holland.

service has not received the limelight it deserves, he said. Then he told of Bermuda's war effort and how after these hard years it still retains its name of "The Keeper of the Gate".

In Bermuda the method of transportation is by bicycle, everyone young and old must ride a bicycle. There is also a little train crossing the island at the rate of two or three miles an hour. Now there are a few jeeps.

There are no wells in Bermuda and the drinking water is caught from the rainwater on lime washed roofs. Stirred up occasionally with gold fish added to eat up anything that shouldn't be there, he explained. Bermudians eat watermelons and the kiddies chew sticks of sugar cane.

Loan Drive Is Slow In Northumberland

COBOURG, Nov. 1 — (ENS). — Victory Loan officials in Cobourg have expressed concern that the drive, county wise, was not progressing as favorably as expected with regard to the amount which had been raised to date with one third of the loan period over. They anticipate that a renewed effort during the second week of the loan will pull the county ahead to a higher position in comparison with other Victory Loan units in the province. Some units in Ontario have raised nearly 50 per cent of their quota in the first week of the campaign.

Of the 14 canvassing districts in the County only three districts were up to schedule. These districts were: Colborne with 106 per cent of its quota obtained, South Monaghan with 36.83 per cent and Haldimand Township with 34.31 per cent. In order to obtain the County objective in the three week period about $90,000 has to be raised each day.

Earth Tremors Shakes New York

CANTON, N.Y., Nov. 1 — (AP). —Residents of Canton and nearby Messena, both of which have felt earth tremors of varying intensity since a sharp shock centring in Cornwall, Ont., last Labor Day, reported they were awakened by another quake to-day. No damage was noted.

Eye-witnesses said buildings were shaken by the tremor, about 4:40 a.m., E.D.T. They related the shock lasted about 10 seconds, and shook houses, and was accompanied by "a loud, roaring noise."

Several thousand dollars' damage resulted in the September quake.

Public Speaking Contest Held By Pupils

MILLBROOK, Nov. 1 (ENS)—Material that was well-written and well-prepared, a surprising lack of nervousness, clear enunciation, and an excellent command of English in presenting modern characters and events of outstanding importance, featured the annual public speaking contest held in the school library, Monday afternoon, with competitors from the three rooms of the public school taking part.

Principal Percy Hamilton presided, and announced the contestants, those from each room being judged separately, War Saving Stamps constituting the prizes. From the junior room, Miss Gladys Williamson, teacher, four small pupils competed: Charles Smith, who spoke on "Gathering Carrots," the information being from personal experience; Leona Ball, "The First Bow and Arrow"; Vivian Chapman, "A Visit to the Farm," and Max Manley, "How the Red Cross has Helped in this war."

The entrants from the intermediate room, Miss Jean Burnham, teacher, came next, Ann Dawson giving a talk on "Manners," her suggestions having a practical value for the younger element of today; Marlene Richards chose a fairy tale, "The Honest Woodman" for her theme, the dialogue being quite naturally spoken; Paul Sanders presented information on "Stone Buildings and Carving in Egypt"; and Elizabeth Olan followed, "What Canadian on the Home Front are doing to win the war." Very little prompting was needed, and undoubtedly the training which these children have received will prove a stepping-stone to higher achievement another year.

Repeat Performance

Previous to introducing the contestants from the senior room, Edith Elson, winner in the Cavan township competition, by special request repeated her talk on "The Life of Queen Elizabeth," and was warmly applauded for a clever presentation of her subject.

George Ingham was the initial speaker from the older group, and he spoke on "The Life and Works of Beethoven," covering a lengthy subject fully, in good voice and without hesitation; Betty Wright chose "Canada at War" for her address, the timely material being presented clearly and with the forcefulness of manner which its importance demanded. The third entrant was Hazel Rowe, who spoke on the Chinese Generalissimo, Chiang Kai-shek, while Margaret Dawson brought the accomplishments of the UNRRA (United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration) in detail before her hearers; Norma Ball spoke out well as she told of General A. G. L. MacNaughton's career, and Kathryn Bigelow completed the senior group with interesting information on: "The War Effort of the Diamond."

A sing-song was enjoyed while the judges, Mrs. Franklin Bannister, Miss E. L. Hetherington, and Mrs. Edmund Ball, arrived at their decision, Mr. Hamilton announcing the following winners: Junior room: Charles Smith, with Max Manley second; Intermediate room: Paul Sanders, with Marlene Richards in second place; Senior room: Betty Wright first, with Kathryn Bigelow second; the latter two were also adjudged the winners out of the whole group. The winners received their prizes, and all the other contestants were given a War Saving Stamp. There was a room prize in each case, as well as the individual awards.

Plainville Y.P.U. Holds Banquet

PLAINVILE, Nov. 1 — (ENS). — One hundred members and friends of the Plainville Young People's Society enjoyed the annual banquet sponsored by that society in the church basement. The tables were pretty with Hallowe'en streamers and decoration and a delicious dinner was served by the young women. Edgar Buttar acted as toast-master for the evening, acting for the president, Miss Evelyn Brisbin.

Glen Cole with Miss Brisbin at the piano led in community singing and a splendid program interspersed the various toasts. Warren Buttar played as a piano solo, "Dance of the Fairies". Glen Hogg with Mrs. Garnet Isaac accompaning, both from Harwood, sang two comic numbers, "I Didn't Get Enough For To Pass Around", and "I'd Give A Thousand Dollars To Be A Millionaire". Misses Doreen McKinlay and Evelyn Brisbin, with Mrs. Kemp accompaning sang, "When You Wore A Tulip". Mrs. Lynn MacDonald of Gore's Landing also sang a solo with Miss Brisbin at the piano.

The toast to the King was proposed by the toastmaster and to the women by Jack Buttar, to which Miss Olive Taylor replied. W. Cole made the toast to the church. In his remarks Mr. Cole stressed the part which the church has made to the status of womanhood, to the destiny of the aged and infirm, to the prisons, and the influence the church at Plainville in particular has had down to the third and fourth generations.

This toast was replied to by the guest speaker of the evening, Rev. R. C. White of Roseneath, who has been previously introduced by Rev. M. C. Fisher. Mr. White has come to the Roseneath charge recently from Bermuda, where he spent five years. His talk was about that Island.

France Sets Her House In Order

Now that the government of General Charles de Gaulle has been given official recognition it is proceeding with great vigour to set its house in order. As is not uncommon in some forms of house-cleaning, a great deal of dust is being raised and a certain amount of bad temper is being displayed. The French have endured the ignominy of defeat and occupation for four years, and now that French affairs are in French hands once more there is a tendency for the French to exaggerate their own importance in the Allied scheme, and to complain that they are being slighted. They insist that French forces were almost as active in the liberation of France as the Allied invasion army, and would have been even more powerful if the Allies had given them adequate supplies of ammunition and weapons. They want a more important place in diplomatic and strategy councils than they have at present. And they want to say their say about the postwar occupation of Germany, in which they are determined to play a leading part. They want all these things, and they are not ready to wait even a few weeks for them. They want them at once, and they are huffy because the Allies have not hurried to gratify their demands.

• • •

This zeal, this haste and even this huffiness may be pardoned, for France is still very far from sure of herself. But the Allies are engaged in the absorbing and difficult task of attacking the German Reich, and have little energy or thought to divert to other problems. The French have always complained that they did not get enough arms for their underground movement from the Allies; but unbiassed opinion says that the French underground got all that the Allies could possibly spare. We have never, at any time during this war, had as much small equipment as we have needed to fulfill all demands; the French have had to take what could be given to them, which of course was not as much as they wanted.

• • •

The French are now willing and eager to take part in the battle against Germany. But the French forces are largely untrained and unorganized, and it would be strange policy indeed to cut down supplies to our own well-trained and well-organized forces at a time when we need everything we have for the job in hand. Naturally the French want to have a hand in defeating Germany, but we cannot risk prolonging that battle in order to gratify them.

• • •

Politically, the French government seems unfriendly toward Russia. One of de Gaulle's first moves after his government was formally recognized was to disarm some forty thousand Spanish Loyalist refugees, who had fought with the French guerrillas in the South of France, and to deny the Spanish Loyalists the use of the Toulouse radio. He has also sought to disarm the French Forces of the Interior, who were the friends and sponsors of the Loyalists, and who number about a million fighting men. And de Gaulle refused to allow Maurice Thorez, the pre-war French Communist leader, to return to France from Moscow. All these moves are clearly aimed at the Communists, and although Moscow will not take any official notice of them — having dissolved the International and forsworn proselytizing—the Russians will not fail to understand the snub. It is clear already that Russia thinks that the action of de Gaulle's government is a move to bolster up the Franco regime in Spain, which of course would be highly objectionable to Moscow. Altogether, General de Gaulle has caused a great deal of stir in his brief tenure of power. Whether the good which he will do will outweigh the harm which he has already done remains to be seen.

The 'Seventh Cross' Controversy

This week Peterborough has had an opportunity to see The Seventh Cross, a moving picture which has been widely criticized on the ground that it creates sympathy for the German people, and is therefore propaganda in favour of a 'soft' peace. We have seen the picture, and we do not agree.

It is true that The Seventh Cross is based upon the assumption that there are a certain number of decent people in Germany who work in an 'underground' movement, and who assist fugitives from concentration camps to escape. But is there anything startling about this? Have we not known that it is true for several years? Nobody in his right senses believes that every individual German is a cruel monster who delights in the villainies of the Gestapo and the Nazi regime. If all Germans were monsters our task in making the peace would be comparatively simple; it is the fact that they are stupid, misguided and childish which complicates the job.

Like all moving pictures, The Seventh Cross is founded upon a sentimental attitude toward life; the movie manufacturers make their movies in this way because that is the way the public likes them; when a more realistic and philosophical attitude is demanded, we shall get it. The movie-goers of this continent are just as gullible and sentimental as the German people themselves, though not so cruel; The Seventh Cross was made to appeal to them, and it does. But does it do harm?

We do not think so. The peace which will follow this war will not be made by the movie-going public, but by statesmen who know how the Germans have tricked us for fifteen years, and how miserably and inhumanly they have behaved as fighters and as occupation troops. The Seventh Cross is good entertainment, but it is not a film which will have any profound or lasting influence.

In post-war Germany the innocent will have to suffer with the guilty, for the peace will be made among nations, and not among individuals of widely differing guilt. But it is stupid over-simplification to say that all Germans are villains, and that mass-murder is too good for them; that is as untrue as it would be to say that everyone in Canada is an intelligent democrat who uses his vote wisely and thinks always of the good of the state. The Germans, as a nation, are guilty of war-mongering and brutality: the British, as a nation, are guilty of feeble appeasement and wishful thinking: the U.S., as a nation, is guilty of shirking moral responsibility and of complacency: the Russians, as a nation, are guilty of opportunism and cynicism: the Chinese, as a nation, are guilty of the scatter-brained dissension which attacks all Oriental peoples when they forsake Oriental ways: and the rest of the United Nations, including Canada, are all guilty of burying their heads in the sand during the years in which Germany and Japan were preparing for war. But the German guilt is greatest, and the German punishment will be greatest; the United Nations have been punished for their guilt by this terrible war, which their own lack of insight brought upon them.

We do not think that Germany will be able to wheedle a 'soft' peace from the Allies, however she may twist, squirm and whine. And certainly we do not think that The Seventh Cross—a melodrama designed merely as entertainment—will gain sympathy for the German case.

NOTE AND COMMENT

At the cafeteria of the OPA in Washington they are now serving square doughnuts, because they are said to pack better. The austerity of war is beginning to affect even the civil service.

A broadcast of Bing Crosby's crooning hypnotized a snake 10,000 miles away in New Guinea, thereby saving the life of an American officer. Apparently the snakes in the Orient are as susceptible to Bing's treacly mooings as the geese in the Occident. Has Sinatra any record as a snake-charmer?

Clarence Jackson of the United Electrical Workers recently denounced the Hon. C. D. Howe as "an enemy of labour"; shortly afterward he was hobnobbing with Mr. Howe on the friendliest terms. What we like about the Labour-Progressives is their adaptability.

When Shirley Temple visited Ottawa, there occurred what the Citizen describes as "an unpleasant stampede". Human nature is inexplicable: the capital viewed Churchill, Roosevelt, Madame Chiang, Charles de Gaulle and Anthony Eden with well-controlled enthusiasm, but when the Golden Moppet of the Silver Screen appeared—Whoopee!

You Can Live To Be 100

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

HAVE you any idea how many people there are in the world who are centenarians, or older? Their number runs into the tens of thousands, and they are not, as you might think, senile nuisances who should have been tactfully murdered years ago; the majority of them are happy, busy and active because they have learned how to adjust themselves to old age. You can live to be 100 or more yourself if you make up your mind to it and if you have reasonable luck. If you want to know how to do so you must read "You Are Younger Than You Think," by Dr. Martin Gumpert (Collins).

◇ ◇ ◇

IT is a pity that Dr. Gumpert gave his book that catchy but rather shoddy title, for it suggests a dozen other 'self-help' books which are markedly inferior to it. The author is a distinguished German Jewish physician who escaped from Germany some years ago, and who has now settled in New York, having become an American citizen. Dr. Gumpert was highly regarded in his profession in his native land, and he has rapidly built a new reputation for himself on this continent. He has made a particular study of the diseases of old age and of the normal inversion which must be looked for during the later years of life. What he has to say will give new hope and courage to the old, and his book is a valuable popular contribution to the strong modern movement to increase the life-span. But the book is not particularly for old people: Dr. Gumpert insists that if you wish to live to be old, you must start young.

◇ ◇ ◇

OUR ideas about old age are remarkable arbitrary. When we think about it at all (which we do infrequently, because we find the subject distasteful) we are apt to quote the words of Moses from the Ninetieth Psalm, "The days of our years are three-score and ten," which Dr. Gumpert dismisses as "one of the most irresponsible utterances of history." But the 'threescore years and ten' idea is deeply rooted in our folk-wisdom, with the inevitable result that every man or woman of seventy is looked upon as old, whether they give evidence of age or not. Chronological measurement, rather than biological measurement is our fetish. Insurance companies, also, have frightened us with their actuarial tables and their estimations of life expectancy; if an insurance company makes the flat statement that the average man may expect to live for 66 years there are plenty of timid and feeble-minded average men who feel that they are living on borrowed time as soon as their 67th birthday has been reached. Our economic system, too, makes us old before our time; when a worker of fifty is dismissed as too old, he understandably considers himself useless, and he may die as a result. And, finally, our tax system and our lawyers conspire to kill off a fair number of the population, for any man today who has any money is constantly worried about making his will and arranging for his death duties in such a way that his family will not be impoverished by his demise; under such circumstances, is it any wonder that many men die of sheer weariness and depression?

◇ ◇ ◇

MANY people dread old age because they think of it as a period of physical ugliness and disease. It need not be so. There are diseases w... occur chiefly in old age, but they are not inevitable; the foundations for most of them are laid during the years of middle age, or even of youth. The man who strains his heart playing football as a boy must not be surprised if he has cardiac trouble when he is 70. And the woman who eats unwisely from the day after her wedding for the next 30 years need not curse blind fate if, as an old woman, she has a bad liver. Moderation is the secret of longevity, and it should begin long before old age is in sight. But Dr. Gumpert does not think that moderation should be carried to excess: eat well, stay up late, drink moderately and get drunk now and again if you like, smoke, worry about your business or your private affairs, have emotional outbursts and 'scenes' if they appeal to you—do anything you like, in fact, but don't carry it too far, and have the good sense to rest when you feel that you need rest. You will not arrive at 80 with the constitution you had when you were 20, but if you have learned how to live with yourself you will still be in good shape, and should have another 20 good years ahead of you.

◇ ◇ ◇

DR. Gumpert insists that work is an essential to long life. People who have no interests die of boredom, and have too much spare time for catching diseases. If your daily work is dull, find some spare-time work which is not dull. And never stop working. The man who retires—that is, the man who stops work in order to be idle for the rest of his life—has not many years to live. If you retire from one kind of work, take up another, and stick at it. The old, says Dr. Gumpert, are not mentally incapable; they can learn new things, they can memorize, and they can carry a mass of detail in their heads if they feel that they must do so. It is idleness and desuetude which kills.

◇ ◇ ◇

DR. Gumpert has an admiration for old age which the reviewer shares. The old have lost the fire and most of the creative quality of youth, but they have gained experience, judgment, thoroughness and wisdom—that miraculous distillation of knowledge and reflection. The old have a most important place in every government, and in every significant movement. Of course it must not be expected that a man who was a fool when he was young will become a sage with the passing of years; but the truly wise old man will be cherished and honoured by every wise young one. People who love life are reluctant to leave it before they must, and the observation and reflection of the last 20 years of the centenarian's life may be among his keenest pleasures. We begin to grow old the moment we are born; it is worth while to see that the inevitable is accomplished as skillfully and gracefully as possible. And remember the third verse of the sixth chaper of Genesis: "And the Lord said, My spirit shall not always strive with man, for that he also is flesh: yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years."

WHY GIRLS LEAVE HOME

Letter to the London Express

Sir,—When my elder daughters, 15 and 16, started to stay out until 12 o'clock I warned them to be in by ten, otherwise they would be caned.

The 15-year-old disobeyed me three times and I caned her. There has been no disobedience for over three months.

The older girl was a little more defiant and I had to cane her five times before I got obedience.

Glass For Special Purposes

(By ALLAN P. SARGENT, B.Sc.

TO most people glass is a commonplace material with two outstanding qualities—transparency and brittleness and its composition is imagined to be as uniform as its familiar properties. To the chemist, the physicist, and the engineer, on the other hand, the word glass stands for a complex group of substances, each made to a particular formula and serving a specific purpose. There are, in fact, almost as many varieties of glass as of the plastics which have taken the place of glass in certain directions. And although glass making is one of the most ancient of crafts new forms are still being developed. For example, the firm of Chance Brothers, Limited, which has been making glass for over a century, has lately produced, as the result of intensive research, new optical glasses to give results hitherto regarded as impossible, and this innovation is only one of many which prove the varied potentialities of an apparently simple product.

◇ ◇ ◇

ORDINARY glass, besides being brittle, melts or cracks under heat and is affected by certain chemicals. Nevertheless Chance Brothers have developed a special glass free from all these disabilities. It finds a wide field of usefulness in chemical laboratories and also for illuminating glassware which is subjected to intense heat. This glass, which owes its special virtues chiefly to its high silica content, is composed of silica, alumina, boric oxide, ond sodium oxide, with small traces of lime, ferric oxide, and titania. Its coefficient of thermal expansion is low, and as a result the glass is extremely resistant to thermal shock. Standards of "thermal endurance" have been laid down by the British Society of Glass Technology on the basis of determining the average sudden temperature drop necessary to cause fracture in vessels 1 mm. thick and of standard size and shape; by this test the value of Chance heat-resisting glass is 320 degrees Centigrade. Resistance to chemical action is tested by exposure to acids and alkalis of known concentration for a certain number of hours; under the most severe conditions no tarnishing or etching of the surface occurs. The mechanical strength of the glass is also high. In short, this special material behaves in a radically different way from glass in general, except so far as transmitting light is concerned.

◇ ◇ ◇

ANOTHER special glass has been evolved for the purpose of excluding heat. A window of ordinary glass is an efficient heat-trap; it freely transmits the heat rays from the sun but prevents the heat thus transmitted from escaping. This property is an advantage in glass-houses for the cultivation of plants at high temperatures, but it is often a serious drawback to the health and comfort of human beings, especially in tropical climates. As far back as 1909 the famous British physicist, Sir William Crookes, attacked the problem of protecting glassworkers from the infra-red and ultra-violet rays emitted by molten glass. Later his researches were continued on a broader basis in the laboratories of Chance Brothers and resulted in the production of various ray-absorbing glasses, including one known as "Calorex" which combines the apparently irreconcilable qualities of admitting light and excluding heat. Actually the glass passes about two-thirds of the light and only about one-fifth of the heat rays of the sun. It owes this selective power to its peculiar composition. This enables it to transform the heat waves, which are of relatively short length, into waves of much greater length and of negligible penetrating power. Thus the bulk of the heat rays, instead of warming the interior of the room, warm the glass itself. The warm glass radiates a certain amount of heat, but as the radiation is of long wave-length it has little effect. The adjacent air is also warmed by convection from the glass, but by providing natural ventilation the convected heat is readily dissipated.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE efficacy of Calorex under tropical conditions was demonstrated by the Assistant Astronomer of Colombo University in a series of tests which showed that while ordinary skylight glass allowed 68 per cent. of the heat radiation to pass, Calorex transmitted only 24 per cent. Experiments carried out by the Entomology Department of the Imperial College of Science and Technology in London showed that the special glass had a deterrent effect on insect pests. Flies, bees, wasps, and moths were used in the experiments; the insects were imprisoned in cages illuminated in part through Calorex and in part by ordinary glass, and bait in the form of fermenting raisins was employed in certain tests where one end of the cage was open to the air. Under a wide variety of weather conditions the numbers of insects under the ordinary glass sections were mush greater than those under the Calorex glass. Careful analysis of the results indicated that the special glass acted first by shutting out heat rays and second by affecting the light rays, the former effect being more marked and tending to mask the latter. The fact that temperature is not the only factor involved was demonstrated very clearly by experiments with bees in a glass clyinder. When the glasses covering the cylinder were changed there was an immediate reaction, the bees moving at once from the Calorex section to the clear glass. The results established by these laboratory experiments have been amply confirmed by experience in abattoirs, where the numbers of flies infesting the premises have been greatly reduced.

Fourth Verse

(Manchester Guardian)

In the wardroom of one of H.M. ships, with Mr. Churchill on board, a sing-song was in progress. Prime Minister and officers joined in singing 'Rule, Britannia," but after three verses there came a pause. 'What about the fourth verse?" said Mr. Churchill. Nobody seemed to know it, so Mr. Churchill sang it himself.

What is the fourth verse of "Rule, Britannia?" Mr. Richard Tobin of The New York Herald Tribune, writing the story for his paper, made many inquiries, but nobody was able to quote the verse. So he wrote to No 10 Downing Street, and recently received a courteous reply with all four verses of "Rule Britania,' neatly typed.

The missing fourth verse, as sung by Mr. Churchill, is:

The Muses, still with freedom found,
Shall to thy happy coast repair,
Blest isle, with matchless beauty crowned,
And many hearts to guard the fair.
Rule, Britannia, etc.

About The Senate

"The Canadian Senate is a workshop, not a theatre," said Senator J. J. Bench today, to the members of the Lions' Club, in a very informative address. It was probably real new to many of those present when the Senator mentioned, specifically, amendments made in the Senate to acts passed in the House of Commons, which had saved the taxpayers large sums of money. As a matter of fact, this is the true function of the Senate of 96 Members appointed for life under the British North America Act. The Senate was designed by the Fathers of Confederation for the specific purpose of providing a check on hasty and ill-advised legislation in the popular House. It can do so with freedom, because its members are not dependent upon votes for re-election. Thus there obtains a judiciality and impartiality which transcend to the greatest degree possible the mere exigencies of party.

The chamber does not need to be defended, but it needs more to be explained. A Senatorship is not a $4,000-per-year sinecure, and Senators are not supernumeraries, nor a fifth wheel on the State chariot. In times of political turbulence, the Senate can, and no doubt would, be an anchor of security. Senator Bench made a strong point when he said that Confederation in Canada would not have been possible had not the demands of the Maritimes and Quebec, that such be created, been met.—St. Catharines Standard.

Trail's End

Even now science is making progress in atomic disintegration, which, in the hands of future madmen like Hitler or Tojo, could just about mean the end of everything. It must be no catch-phrase to declare that this present struggle must be "the war to end all wars." World peace we must have if we are to endure. "But," says the defeatist, "there will always be wars; you can't change human nature." There is only one answer. We have arrived at the stage when human nature must change or man will perish.—Halifax Herald.

A Bible Message

And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed. And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food; the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of knowledge of good and evil.... And the Lord God took the man, and put him into the garden of Eden to dress it and to keep it....

And the Lord God said, It is not good that the man should be alone; I will make him an help meet for him.... And the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept: and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof; and the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman, and brought her unto the man. And Adam said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man. (Gen. 2: 8, 9, 15, 18, 21-23.)

ANOTHER GERMAN BLUNDER

The diversion of material and man-hours to the manufacture of the flying bomb involved a decision which cannot have been taken without the consent or limited approval of the Army, and the existence of launching sites as far west as the Cherbourg Peninsula suggests that the High Command were persuaded that the flying bomb was a weapon with which to disrupt or even prevent preparation of a seaborne invasion from the ports of Southern England; but what seems astounding is that the diversion should have been so considerable as to stop the production of nearly all tactical types of aircraft with the exception of fighters and fighter-bombers. And, thanks to the activities of the strategic bombing squadrons of the R.A.F. and the American Air Forces, there have been few enough of those.—Glasgow Herald.

AGAINST ISOLATION

Even the most pessimistic, in the light of mankind's age-old propensity for mutual slaughter, must admit that the world is becoming civilized. Readiness to do something, and indeed a whole lot, to eradicate the barbaric institution of war seems now to be about as thoroughly ingrained in the American public mind as, for example, belief in the excellence of the Federal Constitution.... We should guess that, if Detroit now is 85 per cent for doing something on a world scale about war, the Middle West taking it by and large, would not be far behind. And if that is so, it would pretty well follow that any failure this time by mankind to do something effective about war is not likely to be the fault at least of the American branch of the species. —Detroit News.

Unconsidered Trifles

M.P.s and others who propose a maximu charge of 3s 6d for restaurant meals remind m of the man who ordered a Manhattan cockt at the Holland House in New York at a ti when that place was the last word in ho equipment and decoration.

When he put down 10 cents in payment t bartender coldly informed him that the pr was 25 cents. The customer protested that cents was the charge for a Manhattan all ov New York.

When the manager was sent for he explain that the customer had, thrown in with his coc tail, the artistic pleasure of seeing the pictur tapestries and other luxurious appointments the Holland House.

The customer next day appeared again, g the same order and, after drinking his cockt tendered the same humble coin. "Didn't I you the price was 25 cents?" said the indign bartender.

"That's all right", was the cool reply. "I the pictures yesterday".

Huns Still Hold 4 French Ports; Problems Grave

By PAT USSHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Today, 10 weeks after the liberation of Paris was accomplished, the administration of Gen. De Gaulle has made important strides towards the re-establishment of the French Republic after more than four years of German occupation.

Four-fifths of the country has been turned over by Allied military authorities to Gen. De Gaulle for civil administration and the De Gaulle government has been recognized by the United Nations as the provisional government of France.

A consultative assembly is to meet in Paris Nov. 7 for the task of evolving the fourth republic.

But France still is handicapped by grave military and political problems.

Militarily, German forces still hold some of key ports in the Bay of Biscay and Dunkerque on the North Sea, as well as a big section of eastern France lying between Luxembourg and Switzerland.

Ports still in German hands are L'Orient and St. Nazaire in Brittany, and La Rochelle. In addition German forces control the sea approaches to the big port of Bordeaux on the Garonne River. Bordeaux itself is reported to have been freed by French forces of the interior.

Truces were declared this month in St. Nazaire and La Rochelle to permit evacuation of civilians from those cities. Gen. Edgar de Larminat has been named commander of French forces operating against these German-held ports and presumably this appointment foreshadows a move to drive the enemy out of these holdings.

Politically, the French forces of the interior pose a delicate problem for Gen. De Gaulle. His government has just decreed that all persons except the regular army and the police must be disarmed. This measure — aimed at Communist Partisan elements who defied the government's authority, especially in south France — has been challenged by the national resistance council demanding that the Patriotic Milice (militia), an anti-Vichy guerilla organization which is largely Communistic — should be given "a definite legal status."

Relations with the Franco regime in Spain also are awkward. A Spanish Maquis force of 40,000 has been reported to control a mountainous corner of southern France adjoining the Spanish border. But George Tucker, an Associated Press correspondent, in a dispatch this week from Bourg Madame in southern France said he found no evidence to support reports that Spanish battalions of the F.F.I. has crossed the border to clash with Franco's troops within Spain.

Cabinet Meeting Routine Business

OTTAWA, Nov. 1—(CP)—Speaker J. A. Glen, chief officer of the House of Commons, said yesterday he was visiting Ottawa on "routine administrative business" and had received no request that a special sitting of the House be held.

The cabinet was in session again yesterday, after meeting on four days last week. Parliament Hill sources said that discussion of the status of the home defence army of men called for compulsory military training had been held by ministers, but there was no indication of a change in the policy which provides that overseas service shall be on a voluntary basis.

No statement has been made on the course of the cabinet discussions, but authorities said that a wide variety of subjects required the attention of ministers, many of whom had been out of town since the session ended in August.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Lois Fraser; vice-president, Florence Ellis; secretary, Reta Dafoe; treasurer, Berniece Ellis; press reporter for Havelock Standard, Mildred King; press reporter for Peteborough Examiner, Dorothy Salter.

The next meeting will be held November 4.

Japanese Near Kwangsi Capital

CHUNGKING, Nov. 1 — (AP) — Japanese troops advancing on a wide arc against Kweilin, defence pivot of Southeast China, have hammered to within six miles east, six miles northeast and 9½ miles southeast of the Kwangsi province capital, the Chinese acknowledged tonight.

The Chinese continued attempts to disrupt enemy supply and communication lines, the high command said, with counter-attacks toward the important town of Tungan on the Hunan-Kwangsi railway, 90 miles northeast of Kweilin. The defenders claimed capture of one strongpoint about four miles northwest of Tungan and another 12 miles northeast of it.

On the Salween river front in Yunnan province, the Chinese said all positions except one strongpoint three miles northeast of Mangshih were taken in the area of Mangshih astride the Burma Road, in a daylight attack supported by American bombers.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 1 — (AP). — Mrs. Lucille W. Shaeffer wasn't familiar with court procedure. So she appeared punctually, but found the court-room dark. The officer, arresting her on a speeding charge, had written the time for her hearing: "1.30 a.m. Monday."

Britain Stops Sale Of Bonds

LONDON, Nov. 1—(CP)—Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Anderson announced in the House of Commons today the sale of National War Bonds would be discontinued after November 6.

Sir John said that, from November 7 and until further notice, a new security known as the 1% per cent. exchequer bond, 1950, would be on sale. The bond is to be issued at par and repayable at par February 15, 1950.

He said Britain's total expenditures during five years of the war up to September 2 were £24,000,000,000 ($112,000,000,000) of which war services totalled £20,000,000,000.

Of the total expenditures, £11,234,000,000 was raised by taxation and other revenue, and £12,659,000,000 by borrowing.

The total national debt as of September 30, he said, was approximately £21,200,000,000, an increase of £12,800,000,000 since the beginning of the war.

You Can Have Brighter Teeth!

Impartial laboratories made hundreds of tests. Scientists checked their findings with photoelectric measuring devices and authorized this statement: PEPSODENT POWDER PRODUCES A LUSTRE ON TEETH TWICE AS BRIGHT AS THE AVERAGE OF ALL OTHER LEADING BRANDS . . . BRIGHTER THAN ANY OF THEM—BAR NONE! These results have been double-checked by identical twins who made practical in-the-home tests . . . by technicians in dental clinics . . . by dentists in their own offices. The result is always the same: Pepsodent Powder with Irium makes teeth far brighter.

You Can change a child's face!

This young boy, for example, had badly-arranged "baby" teeth that made his lower jaw protrude . . . threatened to affect his future looks. But modern dentistry, by corrective treatment, improved his looks . . . made the permanent teeth come in properly, too. Yes, dentistry can do wonders in straightening crooked teeth. Or, like the movie stars, you can have chipped or broken teeth recapped. So watch children's teeth carefully. Visit the dentist regularly. For it's the truth . . . a child's personality and future may depend upon the condition of his teeth and how bright and clean they're kept!

Says Write—And Often

To the men and women in the active services, the arrival of mail is undoubtedly one of the brighter spots in their lives. Letters from home unquestionably tend greatly to bridge the gap that lies between them and their loved ones. So we must write, and write often—that is one way in which we can assist in keeping them in good spirits and help them over the "rough spots." As of course "letter writing" is more often than not accomplished in moments fitted in between our more active duties and pursuits, it is sometimes rather embarrassing and annoying to find an insufficient or unsuitable supply of the necessary writing material on hand. So inasmuch as our good intentions will by no means replace that expected letter, may we suggest that care be taken to ensure the availability of an adequate amount at all times. Your Tamblyn Drug Store can be depended upon to provide these requisite needs as their stock comprises a large and comprehensive variety, including special light weight papers for overseas use, as well as a large assortment of the more standard weights in both pad and papeterie form. The University of Nevada football team will fly from Reno to Edmonton—1,650 miles—this week-end for a game Sunday with the Alaska Clippers, a team made up of players serving with the U.S. Air Transport Command in Alberta.

The Nevada coach, Jim Aiken, is taking a full varsity team, 22 players.

At Edmonton last night, Lieut. Ray Arjo, Clippers' coach, wouldn't predict the outcome. Clippers have lost three out of five Sunday games before sell-out crowds in Edmonton.

Hollywood Park racetrack at Inglewood, Cal., re-opens today after nearly three years of inactivity imposed by the war. Top event of the 34-day meeting is the $10,000 Hollywood Premiere Handicap in which possibly 25 are expected to start.

At Baltimore today it's Twilight Tear against Devil Diver in the $25,000 Pimlico Special, weight-for-age Classic featuring the Pimlico opening. Eddie Arcaro will ride Devil Diver. Those who don't like the two favorites will plunge on Megogo, winner of the Washington Handicap at Laurel. Only the three are running. Twilight Tear has won 17 of her 22 races in two years.

By FRED D. CRAIG

Peterborough juniors expect to field their best team of the season and also the best-conditioned outfit that has represented them this season when they play the Balmy Beach juniors at Riverside Park at 2:15 o'clock Saturday afternoon. With four workouts under their belt this week Coach Rich Jackson's lads hope to be hitting on all eight cylinders when they tackle the classy Toronto twelve in what should be one of the best games of the season. As this column pointed out yesterday it takes real money to bring teams down from Toronto and as this is the third Queen City team to show here this season it will be appreciated that the task of financing such a season is a problem. Fans can help materially by providing a real turnout at Saturday's game and thus replenish the treasury. The game will be well worth a trip across the big bridge and a big attendance at the battle will mean a helping hand to an outfit that by it courage in trying to carry on football in the face of great odds deserves the backing of sport-loving citizens. Make it a date to be on hand at Riverside Park on Saturday.

* * * * * *

Coach Bev Goulding's senior P.C.V.S. squad have an all important game coming up this Saturday when they meet Mac McIlveen and his Bowmanville High team in an interscholastic battle at Bowmanville that will have a lot to say about the group championship. A win for the Peterborough students would put them in the driver's seat and Red Outram, Jack Matthews. Jack Sisson and Company are determined to come through with a triumph over the strong Bowmanville outfit before the latter's own fans. Bowmanville were tough enough to knock off here, P.C.V.S. outscoring them at Riverside Park by 8 to 6 in a really hard battle that might quite easily have gone the other way. Since then P.C.V.S. have been improving steadily and in their game with Toronto Lawrence Park here Saturday they played about their best football of the season. The games of the next two Saturdays will settle the group title, and P.C.V.S. hope to take it all by winning in Bowmanville this Saturday and knocking off the strong Oshawa squad here a week later.

Clearing The Record

Ever since a Peterborough rugby team, senior O.R.F.U. champions in 1907 managed to absorb a tremendous lacing at the hands of Montreal M.A.A.A. in the Dominion finals folk have been misquoting the score Even the C.R.U. annual publication lists it as 77 to 6 in favor of Montreal. To put the record straight the correct score was 77 to 9, and we refer to the sad occasion now because Mike Rodden in his Kingston sport column the other day gave the score as 72 to 2. That was the year in which Peterborough had won the Ontario senior title and had been prepared to call it a season when the Ottawa University team, intercollegiate champions defaulted to the Montreal outfit in the Dominion finals and the Montrealers not anxious to win the Dominion title without a game made Peterborough a most attractive financial offer to go to Montreal. The Petes had broken training but they accepted the offer, made the trip and were soundly beaten on a frozen gridiron in winter weather.

* * * * * *

The odd feature about that one-sided Montreal win was the fact that Peterborough scored the first touchdown of the game within two minutes of the start. The M.A.A.A. team had not had a try scored against them all season and when Dr. Vic McWilliams, brother of Lieutenant Governor R. F. McWilliams of Manitoba, who accompanied the Petes to Montreal offered to bet $50 before the game that they would score the first touchdown he was nearly mobbed in the grandstand by Montrealers eager to cover the wager. The bet was no sooner made and the money put up before Dr. McWilliams had won. On the second play of the game Tom College, Petes' kicking half got away a long punt, it was fumbled by a Montreal back, and Peterborough players dribbled the loose ball over the M.A.A.A. goal line and dropped on it for a touchdown which was converted neatly and the invaders were in front 6 to 0. That was all they got except a field goal by College late in the game that has apparently been lost in the shuffle for it does not appear in the official records. Montreal with one of the strongest twelves in M.A.A.A. history ran up a total of 77 points in the hour's play.

Sweet On The Wings

Naturally Doug Vaughan of the Windsor Star is sweet on the Detroit Red Wings but anyway his sizeup of Jack Adams' team will be interesting to hockey fans. Here is how he sees the Wings: "At the start of the 1943-44 campaign, the Detroit club lacked balance It had goal-tending problems; it needed another defenceman; it had only one forward line that had been proven under fire of N.H.L. competition. This year Manager Adams has no such problems. His team is sound from goal out. In addition to all the players with which the team finished last season, with the exception of Adam Brown, now in the Canadian Army, the Wings were able to parade four new men last night who look as if they may stick around. They are Larry Thibeault, a sturdy backchecking right winger; Jud McAtee, a really good looking left winger; Ted Lindsay, fresh out of junior company where he played with St. Michael's College and Steve Wochy, a stickhandler of rare ability who played in Winnipeg last winter. Of the four McAtee and Wochy shape up as real finds. Used on the No. 1 line along with Syd Howe and Mud Bruneteau, McAtee bagged two goals and an assist against the Bruins. Husky and hard going, McAtee knows how to start and how to finish a play. Wochy, although he didn't figure in the scoring against Boston showed enough to convince anyone that he's already quite a hockey player. He's got a deceptive shift that is going to fool enemy defencemen plenty and, in addition, he can really manipulate a puck."

Says George Campbell in the Oshawa Gazette: "Throughout the N.H.L. this year are players on almost every team who are well known to Oshawa hockey fans, who have seen these lads in action during the past two or three seasons. Some are St. Mike's, Galt, Stratford and St. Catharines' players but as a matter of fact, a vast majority of the newcomers to pro ranks this year are boys who wore the uniforms of the Oshawa Generals in Junior company, at one time or another. Just a few we can think of right now are Bill Ezinicki, Goose Hewson, Jud McAtee, Ted Lindsay (St. Mike's and Oshawa C.H.A. playoff selection), Harvey Bennett, Kennie Smith and then there's Orville Smith down in St. Louis (along with his brothers, Nakina and "Winkie" both of whom played Senior here), Ross Knipfel, Frankie Eddolls, Leo Lamoureux, Chuck Scherza and that covers such teams as Toronto Leafs, Canadiens, N.Y. Rangers, Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins. We may have missed one or two at that but it's readily seen the list is an imposing one. Oh yes—and before somebody else points it out—every one of the above-named was an "import" to Oshawa. Roy Sawyer and "Wally" Wilson, a couple of our "homebrews" who graduated to pro ranks, are now in the Navy and Air Force, respectively."

Sporting Chili Con Carne: Boston Bruins are already sending out an S.O.S. call for reinforcements..The Rossmen are short of manpower. ....Twenty-two candidates are working out with Al Murray's Galt junior squad and they are from all over the map... Other junior outfits are being built up in the same way which causes some natural wonder as to what Selective Service thinks of this jumping around....Pittsburg Hornets, leaders in the American Hockey League got a bump last night when the St. Louis Fliers knocked them off 3 to 2.. .Bobbie Rosenfeld says that Alma Wilson, Toronto Crofton pitcher stands out like a laughing pallbearer as a candidate for the Norman Craig Memorial Trophy for Ontario's outstanding girl athlete....We rather fancy that Chick Appel of the Stratford Beacon-Herald will be able to make out a good case for Greta Harmer the Kroehlers' pitcher who didn't lose a game in the Ontario playoffs.

Rangers Ready To Take Hawks

By ERIC SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York Rangers have an opportunity tonight to prove claims they have been "rejuvenated" over last year's cellar-dwelling team which won only 6 of their 50 games in the National Hockey League schedule.

They clash with Paul Thompson's Chicago Black Hawks in the latter city at better than even odds to win as a result of their strong showing against Toronto Maple Leafs last Saturday, although they did lose 2-1. Chicago received an 11-5 shellacking on home ice Sunday night from the Torontonians.

Rangers, confident after a four-day rest, meet their opposition with added offensive power and a prediction from Coach Frank Boucher that the team will finish the schedule next spring at least in fourth position.

Added scoring punch and an improved defence in front of Goalie Ken McAuley will face the Hawks, who have been reported strong offensively but weak defensively.

Leading the Ranger challenge will be Boucher's new forward line of Kilby Macdonald, Fred Hunt and Fred Thurier.

Two more mid-week games are scheduled for tomorrow night with Leafs meeting Canadiens at Montreal and Rangers playing Red Wings at Detroit.

Manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins said last night that four players released by Montreal Canadiens—Bob Filion, Nils Tremblay, Rosi Rossini and Johnny Mahaffey—will be given tryouts for his team in drills in Toronto this week.

There have been reports in Toronto that Bruins might be interested in a player deal for Mel (sudden death) Hill who hasn't come to terms with the management of Toronto Maple Leafs. Hill has balked at a $4,500 contract with a $1,000 bonus clause. He drew $5,000 last season.

Toronto Coach Clarence (Hap) Day said last night that Hill isn't a holdout but at the player's request feelers had been put out to other N.H.L. clubs regarding a possible trade. Best offer came from Chicago Black Hawks, who were willing to trade Fido Purpur.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Nov. 1 — (CP). — If willingness to try out new ideas and change the game to meet new conditions means anything, lacrosse may really be in for the revival that its fans hope for. The Canadian Lacrosse Association intends to try out six-man lacrosse next year, and if the trial balloon is successful, the old, seven-man game may be dropped for good.

That's the latest from the head of the C.L.A., scholarly A. A. Barnes of Vancouver, as relayed by Maurice Smith of the Winnipeg Free Press. Teams in the Quebec area will be asked to play one round using the six-man game, and then report on their preference. The six-man game has a great many boosters in Quebec, which is a logical place to try the new system.

Even if no change is made, it is still a good sign that the men behind the sport now are at least thinking about its change or improvement.

Juniors anxious:

Youthful football enthusiasts and their backers at St. Thomas, Ont., are anxious to revive the Junior Ontario Rugby Football Union, reports N. D. Whitmore in the Times-Journal. Secondary and Public Schools there are giving the game great support, and they would like to see the Ontario League resumed as soon as war conditions permit it.

Fun for all:

There must be something wrong with the race track bettors in Mexico City. Lou Davies, summertime form-caster for the Western Canada racing circuit, reported on the goings-on at the Hipodromo De Las Americas south of the border, where he is looking them over now. When the meet opened, three (count 'em) 50-piece bands and a hi-hi-hi Mexican screen beauty were on hand as extra added attractions. Up this way, they could probably fill the mutuel machines without even advertising the races.

Incidentally:

Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle reports with satisfaction that hockey apparently "has been given back to the customer," after last season's red line regulations and the lengthy pass-outs. But he adds we can't be sure stickhandling really has returned to its lawful place until we "see what step the Black Hawks and Red Wings will take to circumvent this projected return to hockey normalcy." The Winnipeg Navy hockey team has turned down an Army-Air Force offer to bolster the Sailors' lineups with players from the other services. The Tars will stand or fall on their own merits, they declare.

Early Christmas

DENVER, Colo., Nov. 1 — (AP) — Santa paid an early visit to the Carson home, where a brightly lighted Christmas tree has been glowing in a window for two weeks. The oldest son, John L. Carson, a seaman, is home on leave, and since he may not be back next December the whole family exchanged presents and had turkey dinner.

Draft Whittles Good Men From Baseball

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 (AP)—Major League baseball officials, many short of outstanding stars because of the Selective Service draft measure, were ready for their own draft business today—taking their picks of Minor League talent—admittedly scarce.

"There doesn't seem to be much left that is worth $7,500," said veteran Connie Mack of Philadelphia Athletics, referring to the price tag on any player drafted from a class AA league. "Previous drafts and the military draft have weeded out just about all of them," he added.

While Lou Boudreau of Cleveland echoed Mack's sentiment, Harry Grabiner, vice-presiden of Chicago White Sox said there "are several" he had his eye on. But he didn't name any players.

There are 589 players available for the draft in the country's organized leagues, including 340 class AA players carrying the $7,500 price tags. For A-1 players the price is $6,000; Class B, $4,000 and Class C, $2,000.

Under draft rules, Philadelphia's Phillies—last-place club in the National League—get first choice of available talent. Then comes Washington, American League cellar-dwellers, the National League seventh-place team, American League seventh-placers, and so on, with the process repeated as often as there are players any club wants. The draft has averaged only 14 players a year, and it appeared, from the magnates' comments, it might be less than that this year.

Rugby Season Schedule Ends Saturday

By The Canadian Press

The schedule season in Ontario's two senior football leagues comes to an end Saturday, with the feature a battle between Hamilton Wildcats and Toronto Balmy Beach at Hamilton for first place in the Ontario Rugby Football Union. It is one of two scheduled fixtures, the other being an Ontario Armed Services League game in Toronto between second-place Toronto Navy Bulldogs and Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes.

Indications point to nearly 10,000 fans for the Wildcats-Beach battle. Each team has won four games and lost one this season. Wildcats loss was a 10-4 score to Beaches in Toronto. The Beach loss was to Ottawa last week, 14-9. Coach Eddie McLean said yesterday he expects his team, 1943 Dominion champions, to be at full strength. The game will provide a preview of the O.R.F.U. play-off series between these two clubs. Big Abe Zvonkin and Red Hickey, both of whom were injured in the previous meeting with Beaches, are expected to be in action.

New Signals.

Wildcats will use a new set of signals and their drills this week have been secret. McLean said that if his team blocks properly they should have no trouble beating Beaches.

In Toronto Beach Coach Alex Ponton said he expects that 19 year old Billy Myers, out of the Ottawa game Saturday because of injuries, will be ready for the Hamilton game. Myers, the team's ace forward passer and a fleet runner, sparked Beaches' first four victories.

Ponton set at rest any rumors that his club was out to "get" Joe Krol, the starry Hamilton halfback, or anyone else. "We'll play clean, hard football and we'll try to stop Krol but we won't try to put him or any other player out of action."

In the Services game Navy can take over first place in the league with a win. But if they lose, the Bulldogs still will be in the playoffs as they would then wind up the season in second place in the standings, one point behind the Hagersville R.C.A.F. team.

St. Louis Flyers interrupted the Pittsburg Hornets' winning stride last night scoring a 3-2 victory over the American Hockey League leaders in the Missouri capital. It was the Flyers' second home game of the season and 7,079 fans turned out to see the triumph.

Red Doran, hard-hitting defenceman, fired two of the tallies. Billy Kendall netted the third, while Max Bennett and Bob Gracie collected for Pittsburg.

Doran settled the issue in the final period when he drove a high shot from the blue line past Roger Bessette. Evanshen and Hergert drew assists on the play.

Dufferin Races Start Saturday

TORONTO, Nov. 1.— It won't be long before the dust of little Ol' Dufferin will be flying and the reverberating hoof-beats of the trotters and pacers sounding familiar music to the ears of the harness horse fraternity.

Saturday is opening day and all indications point to one of the grandest extravaganzas of speed performance witnessed at the west-end oval since the lateral and diagonal gaited steeds commenced strutting their stuff 40 years ago over the track.

The free-for-all pace has everything that goes with providing keen contests, and with the various distances which go to make up the event there isn't anything that could be prognosticated with any degree of certainty.

Free-for-All: Purse $500— Hollyrood Belwin (Milton), Fred Hamer (Harvey), Peter Brooke Jr (Lutman), Rip Harvester (Tilden), Lorne Lee (Guchan), Cyrus Martin (Chapman), Worthy Ermine (Harvie), Chuck Worthy (Bisson), Brownwood's Hal (Fields), Josedale Director (Hillock).

2:20 Pace: Purse $300 — Linna Lee (Harvey), Peterene Dazzle Henley (Tolhurst), Audrey Scott (Scott) Billy Patch (Thompson), Amber Light (Finnerty), Del Peters (Brough), Una Henley (Chapman), Denfield Dick (Hales), Bendonna (Fraser), Captain Kinder (Hodgins), Eldale (Hillock).

NEW YORK, Nov. 1 — (AP). — Few baseball fans knew Leo Bondy, vice-president and treasurer of the Giants, who died Sunday, but the men who run the big league clubs will miss him greatly....So will the fellows who hang around Eddie Granick's office during the winter trying to cook up occasional baseball stories for the papers...Bondy was the kind of a man who is content to remain in the background, but his knowledge of law and of baseball made him invaluable both as an advisor and as a news source ....Leo always knew what was going on (except, perhaps, at odd moments on the golf course), whether the club owners' plans were sound and why not....The last time we saw him, Bondy was tearing apart some of Jack Zeller's anti-farm proposals and threatening, "I may present a plan of my own. If I do, it will be one that will work."

Speed and deception:

When Clark Shaughnessy first introduced the modernized "T" formation to West Coast football, he relates, the Southern California coaching staff assigned two scouts to cover his Stanford team....When they reported Coach Jeff Cravath of U.S.C. asked: "What does that man in motion do?"......"Why, coach," replied one puzzled scout, "he does everything but run up in the press stand and serve coffee and doughnuts to the scouts."

Can't Work Alone

TORONTO, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Hon. Dana Porter, Ontario Minister of Planning and Development, said in an address last night that no sufficient program of soldier rehabilitation can be thoroughly carried out by any one government alone. Such a program must be the responsibility of all levels of government.

25,000 Aircraft Fly Atlantic In Four Years

By HAROLD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

MONTREAL, Nov. 1 — (CP). — Twenty-five thousand aircraft have been flown across the Atlantic from North America within the last four years, in the snowballing development of an idea which was considered impractical yhen the war began.

The variety of planes flown to the fighting fronts in running up that amazing figure—almost half of it within the last year—range from Mosquitos that make the Newfoundland-Scotland hop in 6½ hours to Liberators which fly regularly from Montreal to North Africa 3,700 miles non-stop.

Yet the outstanding part of the story of No. 45 (Atlantic Transport) Group, R.A.F. Transport Command is not this conquest of a one-formidable water barrier, but rather the extension of flying routes to the point where the trans-Atlantic hop has become a routine prelude to mightier flights more than half-way around the world.

Splendid Plan.

The story of No. 45 Group is also the story of No. 231 Squadron, the squadron composed largely of the original Atlantic-beaters, who in conjunction with British overseas airways, have built up a tremendous ferry service so that the crews who fly the fighting planes to their battle-front destinations can be brought back to their starting point in the shortest possible time.

Once the Trans-Atlantic eastbound flights had become established, the big problem was getting their crews back. To do this quickly, in readiness for further eastward flights, No. 45 group set up its return ferry service, and within the framework of that service they grouped the top-notch distance flyers of all time. Thus was born No. 231 squadron—a single squadron which now is so large it ranks as one of the great air passenger, freight and mail services of the world.

As many as 100 trans-Atlantic delivery planes have been started on their way out of the Montreal base and its out-stations in a single day. That scale of operation is possible because 231 squadron has overcome the problem of getting entire air crews back to their starting base in record time, so that as fast as planes are ready for the hop there are crews ready to fly them.

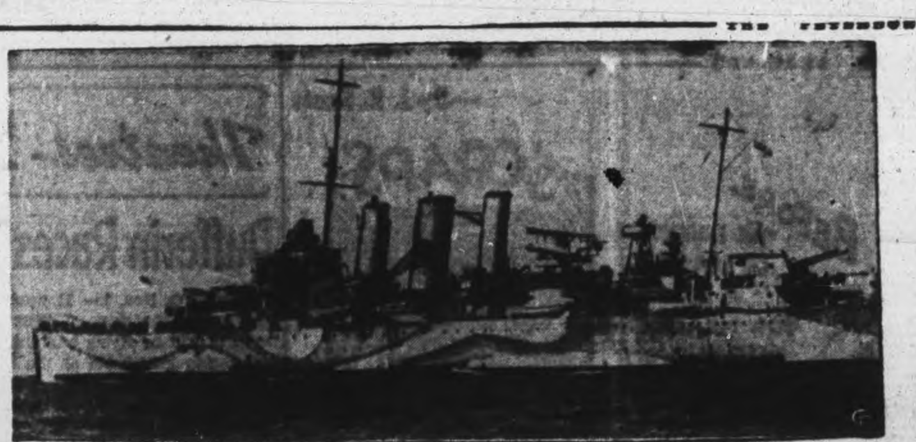
Shuttle Service

Due to that job, 231 squadron now operates a shuttle service to Labrador, Newfoundland and Elizabeth City, N.C.; to Bermuda, Nassau, Trinidad, Brazil and across the South Atlantic to the Gold Coast; a daily service through the Azores to French Morocco and thence to Cairo; and a flying boat service to Legos and Freetown in West Africa.

Linked with all that is the return ferry service of British overseas airways, bringing crews back from the United Kingdom.

The result of the inter-locking service is that ferrying crews flying to the Azores are back in Montreal 21 hours after they set out; crews to Rabat, French Morocco, are back in 45 hours after their takeoff from Dorval airport; crews flying big fellows to India are back at their starting point in six or seven days after 17,000 miles of flying.

Not content with this achievement in an eastward direction, No. 45 group is turning its eyes westward. It is an open secret that survey flights are being completed and that soon aircraft from Montreal will be flying direct to California and thence to Australia via Honolulu and New Zealand.



AUSSIE CRUISER SUNK IN LEYTE BATTLE — Among the Allied losses in the battle of the Leyte Gulf was the H.M.A.S. She carried a complement of about 700 officers and men. No details of the sinking, or of survivors, were given in the announcement made at Pacific fleet headquarters.

Congress Plans To Unionize City Employees

TORONTO, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Organization of a national political action committee within the Trades and Labor Congress is under consideration as a result of action taken yesterday at the final session of the 60th annual T.L.C. Convention.

The Congress reaffirmed its policy, adopted last year, of recommending the formation of any political party and several of the speakers who supported the resolution urged that the Congress stay clear of definite alignment with any party.

The resolution said political action offered a means of putting into effect policies — and particularly a post-war plan — which had been approved by the eight-day convention.

The final convention session also saw approval of a resolution condemning racial discrimination and instructing the executive to set up a special committee to encourage Canadian unity and combat racial discrimination.

Announcement was made by Percy R. Bengough. T.L.C. president, of plans to organize a National Union of municipal employees. The basis of an organization had been formed at conferences held during the convention. After some discussion the convention gave approval to a resolution opposing the taxation of public utilities.

Afternoon Tea Held By Cavan Club Girls

CAVAN, Nov. 1 — (ENS) — The Girl's Club of Cavan, under the leadership of Mrs. M. Kinsman and Mrs. E. Snider, held a successful tea Saturday afternoon at Mrs. Snider's home.

Mrs. F. Walden, Bowmanville, the coach for Durham County, was present and gave a talk on club work and also gave them valuable points on their project this year which is, "Dressing Up Home Grown Vegetables". Lunch was served by the senior girls. Mrs. Chas. Smith poured tea from a silver service placed at one end of a daintily appointed table, the centrepiece being a pumpkin container filled with garden vegetables. The girl's mothers, and several friends were their guests.

Drew Explains His Attitude

MONTREAL Nov. 1—(CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario said in an interview last night that the position he took in regard to family allowances was that "all security, domestic and otherwise, depended upon the outcome of this war, and our attitude is that obligations and opportunities must go hand in hand."

He added: "Obligation to maintain the state by military service must be shared equally, if equality of privilege is going to be claimed. The figures show that the province of Quebec has not contributed its proportionate share of manpower.... The solution of that problem rested within Quebec itself.

"I pointed out that we want national unity based upon equality of service which will justify full co-operation in extending advantages equally throughout the whole country."

Christmas Fund Gets More Personal Gifts

Personal giving was, and never can be more fully revealed than that which the remembrance of Christmas each year personifies, in the wondrous birth of the Babe of Bethlehem who became the Redeemer and Saviour of all mankind, amid circumstances which will at that time be repeated to the alluring wonderment of millions of children, and the joy of just as many of their elders.

There is a great fascination in this story, that reveals the greatest mission of all in this life as a service for others, which grips and holds the attention of far larger numbers of the human race, than any other event in the history of this world.

With personal sacrifice, the outstanding motive as a reason for this greatest gift of all to mankind, its teachings have been more widely exemplified among the members of the human family as between one another at this particular time, than at any other season of the whole of the calendar year. What is more they find great joy in so doing, suggesting that real personal happiness does truly accrue from the act of personal sacrifice to make others happy.

This rises to a far higher plane when this personal act is to benefit people whom one has never seen, superceding that for one's own friends, because it displays the true significance of the spirit engendered by the fact that the gift of the Great Creator in the birth of His only begotten Son was for all men, and not just a few selected persons.

As a unit, this city and district has exemplified the real spirit of Christmas during the past four years, by sending a nice sized contribution to the sufferers from enemy air raid attacks in Britain at each succeeding Christmas, which also took into consideration quite some thought in a practical sense to give the children in these war torn localities some real cheer.

And in this, personal giving has played a considerable part, being far more in evidence at this time, large numbers of donations being specially marked as being given for the Christmas Fund.

During the past few months it has been the plan of the Peterborough and District Briish War Victims' Fund to allow personal gifts to accrue, so that a number of them could be acknowledged in an entire list of such, since all of them come into this particular high class of giving to help the fund along.

Today sees the 17th list of personal gifts to appear recently, almost all of whom have been noted on the records on previous occasions, some of them having appeared quite frequently, particularly Mrs. William Shannon, and the lady who gives under the initials of "E.M.F."

Bird Sanctuary Being Made Near Lakefield

The property east and southeast of Lakefield, known as the Buckley Lake area which formerly belonged to the Canada Cement Company and from which marl was excavated for years, has been purchased by Charles Kingan and Harold R. Scott, M.P.P., for the purpose of turning it into a water birds' sanctuary.

Development toward this end began early in 1944. In all there is about one thousand acres, chiefly swamp land. Running through it in various directions, like a series of canals, are the numerous marl excavations, filled with water. Here several kinds of fish are found, many varieties of birds, including geese may be seen along the shores, in the water and in the thickets on the higher ground and beavers can be discovered building dams.

At the present time birds are being attracted by food placed at various feeding stations scattered throughout the property. Later wild rice is to be planted.

In the near future it is the intention of the owners to renew the dam at the lower part of the property and raise the water to its former level and thus attract more and larger water birds, including ducks and geese.

Members of the Peterborough Nature Club, 50 strong, who visited the spot earlier in the fall found much there to appeal to the naturalist.

Entertainment galore is in stire for Peterborough citizens Saturday evening, when in the interest of the city's Seventh Victory Loan campaign, Mart Kenney and his Western Gentlemen, and Bert Pearl, comic M.C. of the "Happy Gang" radio show will be here to stage a variety show and dance. Devoted exclusively to promoting the sale of Victory Bonds, with the maximum of fun, the program will be presented in the Drill Hall of the Training Centre, through the kind permission of Lieut. Col. The first big feature will be a variety entertainmenut program, to be presented in the Drill Hall from 9 to 10.30 p.m. For those unable to attend the program will be broadcast over CHEX. During the fun and games which will ensue during this period, pledges for Victory Bonds will be accepted over the telephone, and a jeep will call at the houses and pick up application forms, and the entertainer will play a request number. Arrangements are being made to have some of the entertainers themselves come to the houses in the jeep to pick up bond applications. The telephone number to call is 4625.

Then, from 10.30 until midnight, Maestro Kenney will swing his baton, and the Western Gentlemen will give out with music, sweet, hot or however you like it, and dancing will proceed until the stroke of twelve.

For the entire show, the admission tickets are selling at 50 cents each. A local sorority group, Beta Sigma Phi, are handling the sales of tickets.

Had Raccoon Skins Out Of Season

Possession of two raccoon skins in the closed season proved costly in police court this morning for a 16-year-old Otonabee boy, Donald Turner, who pleaded guilty to having the pelts illegally. He also admitted that he had no license.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., fined the boy $10 and $2.50 costs. Turner said that he did not know that he had broke the law. He had trapped the raccoons, he told the court.

The charge was laid by Fish and Game Overseer Stanley Windsor.

LINDSAY COUPLE MARRIED 63 YEARS—One of Lindsay's oldest couples, Mr. and Mrs. John Richards, both 80 years of age, are today celebrating their 63rd wedding anniversary. The pair were born in the Lindsay district and have spent their lives in that section.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Richards Observe 63rd Wedding Anniversary

LINDSAY, Nov. 1.—(ENS).—Mr. and Mrs. John Richards of Duke street, Lindsay, celebrated the 63rd anniversary of their wedding today. They have resided in Lindsay practically all their lives and are both 82 years of age.

"Yes, we were married very close to the date of Hallowe'en," said Mr. Richards, "but this was no prank or jpoke—it was a solemn, sacred ceremony which I remember well and we have had sixty-three years of happiness and contentment."

The groom of sixty-three years is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Richards, while his wife is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Moore, who resided at Powles' Corners in Fenelon township.

Recalling old days, Mr. Richards remembers when the southern part of Lindsay was a veritable swamp. "It was very muddy and it was common to see wagons and horses mired in deep mud. I had to bring the cows in and for this job I received 40 cents a week. I used to work on the farm for 25 cents a day and thought I was being well paid. Besides the work, we had plenty to eat and had warm clothing. It was hard work, but there seemed to be something about farming in those days that you enjoyed — something that is apparently missed to-day."

Farmers Different.

"Those were the days when Lindsay had coal oil lamps and the foot crossings on Kent street were made of big long piles driven down into the ground with only the ends protruding above the surface.

"I think farmers on the whole were more kindly, considerate and charitable in those days than they are to-day. For a time I was hostler at the Mansion and Central Hotels. It was no uncommon sight to see about 300 horses in the hotel sheds in those days and there seemed to be a dozen hotels. The farmers paid for the storage and keep of their horses in the barns and sheds."

Mr. Richards can recall the early days of the Salvation Army in Lindsay. He also speaks of the early lodge life, especially the Orange, the Foresters' and Oddfellows' lodges.

They have two children, Walter of Lindsay and Mrs. W. J. Miller of Rosedale.

Ghosts, Fairies And Pirates Have Real Evening's Fun

If you saw a bold-looking pirate walking down George street hand in hand with a trim Spanish maid, Tuesday evening, or a little old woman skipping gaily along with a big round pumpkin, or a befeathered Indian exchanging comment with a white-shrouded ghost, you weren't having hallucinations, because it was Hollowe'en, that night that comes once a year, and ranks second only to Christmas and the last day of the school with the youngsters.

Although war has thrown a shadon this festive night as it has on all others, one of the more noticeable changes appeared to be the large number of older people taking part in the night's fun, and along some of Peterborough's main streets, middle-aged fairies and superannuated ghosts could be seen. For the children, one of the effects of the war was to help them to help others through the Kinsmen's Club "Shell-Out-For-Milk-For-Britain" plan. Hundreds of special tickets which sold at one cent each were returned to the children, who will take them to school and vie for the honors of getting the greatest number of tickets. Hallowe'en, by this plan, has sent quantities of healthful milk to children in Britain. Of course, candies, fruits and nuts were in much smaller quantities than in former years, but few complaints were heard from the kids, who seemed to take the shortage of good things as a war casualty, not to be helped. Prominent enthusiasm for helping the children in Britain by collecting Kinsmen's Club tickets occupied a top spot on the night's agenda for most children, too.

A few householders interviewed said they were amazed at the fact no tricks were played on their property during the night. Admitting they were harried last year considerably, they breathed a silent prayer that perhaps the children have grown tired of tricks, and intend to play them no more. One woman said she had surprised one young trickster in the act of soaping one of the front windows in the house, but to her great astonishment, instead of running away, the childr apologized and even offered to clean the window. "After that," laughed the woman, "I can say, 'Now I've seen everything'"!

Arthur Thomas, of 376 Water street chose a Chinaman's costume and make-up for the evening. It was complete in every detail. At one house, when a particularly attractive girl offered him candies and nuts, he replied, "Thanks, and I sure hope I'll see you again." All of which came as a surprise, because Arthur is only three years old!

With 21 Milk for Britain tickets in his pocket, six-year-old Paul Loescher, 450 Sheridan street, hopes to have the most of anyone in his class at Central School. Paul dressed as a devil, with the proverbial horns.

Little Joyce Black, 377 Queen street, completed her costmue as a wild Indian with a big feather in her hair, and Elizabeth Joan Parton, Water street, explained that her pert little cap and apron meant she was a house-maid.

Two funny-acting clowns were found to be three-year-old Judy Robertson of 265 Bethune street, and Jerry Cousin, of 417 Sheridan street. Jerry collected more than 43 Milk for Britain tickets during the night. Jean Hill, 245 Rubidge street, said she was just a "lady", Eleanor Oke, 181 Stewart street fooled everyone when she came dressed as a man, and Douglas Patterson, eight-year-old, of 93 Hunter street, was disguised as a pumpkin.

Clothed as a farmer, Jimmy Hefferman, also of 93 Hunter street, collected 25 Milk for Britain tickets. Donald Robertson, 265 Bethune street, fixed up an outfit that left no doubts but that he was "Mickey Mouse."

Betty Doughty, 906 Water street, dressed as an old, old woman, Rose Marie Barker, Water street, also was an old woman, and Jerry Black 377 Queen street, was what he called a "gentleman," with all his men's clothing looking spic and span.

Abundance of Fairies.

Odd though it may be, the elder people on their way to masquerade parties or just out for the fun, seemed to choose more extraordinary costumes. An abundance of winged fairies was about, along with a considerably large number of ghosts, pirates, devils, and animals.

A little girl aged around six or seven, was dressed in a long, red gown, a black pointed cap, high-heeled shoes, and black stockings, was asked by an Examiner reporter whom she supposed to be. She lisped, "A Fairy!" Not wishing to break the illusion, although the girl might pass for anything but a fairy, the reporter nodded in agreement and passed on.

That was Hallowe'en, 1944! Much the same as in other years, but also outstanding different, in that children of Peterborough and Canada devoted much time to helping the children of another country across the ocean, by sending milk to British boys and girls, who have suffered total war at first hand for more than five years.

Although throughout Canada Hallowe'en night, and its accompanying celebrations were tinged by the undercurrents of a world at war, for the moment at least, the children were concerned only with the froth.

Loan Campaign Passes Two Million Mark

With Tuesday subscriptions of $396,550, Peterborough city and county moved into the two million dollar brackets of the Seventh Victory Loan.

The total beginning the ninth day of this campaign, the half-way mark, was 44.5 per cent, fractionally higher than the required 44.44 per cent for the eight days ending Tuesday night. The cash amount was $2,048,050.

The elements of that bulky volume of Bonds purchased Tuesday were: City General canvass $91,700; Rural general canvass $36,050; Payroll Savings section $166,000; special names $100,000.

An interesting fact in the records of this year's two Loans is this—Subscriptions for the first eight days of the present campaign amounted to $2,048,050 as compared with $1,663,100 for the first eight days of the Sixth Loan. The difference is $384,950. And the comparative percentages of objective—44.5 Tuesday night and 37 per cent for eight days in the Sixth Loan.

These are reassuring figures, but here and there are noticed subscription percentages seeming to indicate some decline in the number of persons subscribing. However, those may be the exceptions.

General Increase

Increases are shown in every section of the subscribing divisions, as compared with the Sixth Loan, and their totals Tuesday night were:

City General	$669,300
County	239,200
Payroll Savings	696,150
Special Names	400,000
Total	$2,048,050

Rusti Canvass

In the rural-returns Belmont and Methuen are still pacing the townships and villages with 51.4 per cent of their objective as compared with the required 44.4 per cent for eight days.

Harvey - Burleigh - Anstruther - Chandos are second with 49.4 per cent; Havelock third 47.8 per cent; Otonabee fourth 45.6 per cent; Dummer fifth 43.1 per cent; North Monaghan sixth 41.5 per cent; Lakefield seventh 35.5 per cent; Asphodel eighth 33.3 per cent; Douro ninth 31.4; Smith tenth 29.6; Norwood eleventh 28.5; and Ennismore twelfth at 8 per cent.

BIRTHS INCREASE

Vital statistics for October as reported at the city hall today were: Births 95; marriages 27 and deaths 29; and in October last year: births 85; marriages 33 and deaths 28.

$50,000 Is Voted By Utilities For New Hospital

From their waterworks reserve account the Utilities Commission made a grant of $50,000 Tuesday afternoon to the Civic Hospital fund on the request of a deputation from the city council, Mayor Hamilton and Aldermen Ovens and Sands.

G. S. Matthews presided with Commissioners G. A. Macdonald and Fred Hills present, R. L. Dobbin, Utilities manager, and also Edward Humpage, city auditor.

"The city council find themselves up against a problem of serving the people with adequate hospitalization," said Mayor Hamilton, introducing the application. "It is not a problem the council wanted to take on. It was practically forced on us, and about the first thing we found was that he would have to build a new hospital. We find that the cost will be around $1,400,000 to give the city a plant such as we feel Peterborough is going to need."

Mayor Hamilton said a similar appeal was made to the City Trust Commission for $300,000 from their surplus, and had met with a favorable reply. "We want to reduce to as low an amount as possible the sum we have got to ask the people to vote for the new hospital. People feel that the two Commissions have no right to keep on hand large surpluses which really belong to them, and they are going to say to us, 'why don't you use those surpluses'?"

Alderman Ovens: "We have to pass the hospital bylaw Friday night, and we felt that your Board would help us out. We are trying to bring the amount required from the people down as low as possible."

Mayor Hamilton said that half the tax money collected by the council was used for social services, including education. "We have got to get some other means than taxing property for the raising of money if social services are to be extended, and that is the trend today."

Mr. Matthews stated that in regard to any contribution by the City Trust Commission, part of whose earnings had accrued from Utilities debentures, the Utilities Commission was willing to waive any claim on the City Trust grant from its surplus funds, which was to be used for a civic hospital. As for the electrical department, Mr. Matthews said the Utilities was governed by the Electrical Power Act and was in a large measure under the control of the Hydro-Electric Commission as to diverting any part of the surplus in the electrict department."

"Arbitrary Power"

Mayor Hamilton commented rather vigorously that it did not seem to comport with democratic methods, "and seems very arbitrary that the Hydro should have such powers."

"It is something like the Ontario Municipal Board and its relations with municipalities," Mr. Macdonald commented. "That Board has more control over municipalities than they had twenty years ago."

Mr. Matthews: "If the Hydro will allow us to use our funds for the hospital purpose it will be all right with us." He explained as an example of Hydro direction that if the Utilities Commission wished to make a $50,000 extension to its plant "we can't do it without their approval."

Referring to the gas department, Mr. Matthews said that prior to the war it was losing money, "and it appeared that we would have to call on the city to help us before the gasworks bonds matured." Consumption of gas had increase during the war years, with an improved financial showing, "but in our judgment it would be foolish to touch any part of the funds of that department, for the reason that after the war its conditions may change back to what they were. Besides, we are hoping to lower the electricity rates next year on the one hand, and on the other the cost of oil and coal for gas has increased."

Mayor Hamilton said the council was not thinking of getting any help

Chinese Youth Must Join Army

Stewart Chong, a Canadian-born Chinese, 19 years old, pleaded guilty in police court this morning to a charge under the National Service Mobilization Act regulations of having failed to notify the divisional registrar of a change in his address.

The charge was laid by Constable R. J. Cherry of the Cobourg detachment of the R.C.M.P., and Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., followed the usual practice in such cases, suspending sentence and turning the accused over to the R.C.M.P. to be taken to the nearest military training centre.

Harold Brooks, charged with being drunk and who pleaded not guilty the other morning, asked for another remand and was informed that his case would be finally dealt with on Saturday.

ATTENDING TRIAL

Proaincial Constable Price Morris, and Constables Ernest Beatty and Andre Dalton of the Peterborough Police Department, have been attending the murder trial at the Cobourg Assizes, as witnesses. The trial has now gone over to the next Assizes, and that will mean more visits to Cobourg for the Peterborough officers.

The Dewart staff doubled their objective at 200 per cent of the amount proposed to them and with 100 per cent of the personnel investing.

The employees of Stedman Brothers, Charlotte street, have also maintained in this campaign their fine record from other Victory Loan drives. Their standing on the score sheet is 165 per cent of their objective and 100 per cent of staff subscribing.

Ferguson Dyer and Cleaners are also far up in the list with 154 per cent of objective and 100 per cent of the staff buying Bonds.

Wm. Lech & Sons' staff, 145 per cent of objective and 83 per cent of the staff investing.

Peterborough Automotive Supply, 106 per cent of objective, 91 per cent buying.

The staff of May's School comes into the Victory Loan for the first time with 100 per cent of objective and 80 per cent investing. James Burns is the principal of this suburban school which is the second staff of teachers to pile up their objective of Bonds bought.

Four District Names In Casualty List

Four soldiers from the Peterborough district have been reported casualties while serving with Canadian armed forces overseas, according to an official announcement by the Department of National Defence today.

Tpr. John Herbert Hardy, son of Mrs. Hazel E. Hardy, 39 Glenelg street W., Lindsay, was listed as killed in action, while serving with the Canadian Armoured Corps overseas. Two men from an Eastern Ontario regiment were reported wounded, Pte. Clifford J. Douglas, whose wife lives at R.R. 1, Port Hope, and Pte. Wallace J. Pigden, son of Mrs. Mary Pigden, of R.R. 1 Madoc. Pte. Ronald L. Hepburn, son of Mrs. Hazel Hepburn, 57 Glenelg street E., Lindsay, was reported "slightly wounded", while serving with an Eastern Ontario regiment.

Lieut. Harry Welch Holland Casualty

Serving with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders through the bitter fighting in Holland, Lieut. Harry W. Welch has been reported wounded in action October 22, according to information reaching his wife, formerly Mary Mulholland, who lives on Monaghan Road. No details as to the extent or nature of his wounds were given.

Lieut. Welch received his commission at Brockville, and before going overseas was with the Prince of Wales Rangers (C.A.). He enlisted in 1942, and went overseas in March, 1943, and was later posted to the Highlanders. Before enlisting, he was employed as an accountant in his father's office, Welch-Anderson Company, in Toronto.

Peter Scollard Age 16 Drowns In Canal

Missing from his home since early Sunday morning, the body of 16-year-old Peter Scollard, son of Frank Scollard, R.R. 9, Peterborough, was taken from the canal between the C.P.R. bridge and the Maria street bridge late Tuesday afternoon, after two children had seen the drown boy submerged in the water. The children notified a passing cyclist, who had it reported to the city police. Fire Chief George Gimblett estimated the youth had been in the water for at least 48 hours.

Mr. and Mrs. William O'Neil. 182 Armour Road, told police they heard shouts for help from the direction of the canal around 25 minutes to four Sunday morning. They said an investigation was fruitless, and they returned to bed.

Mr. Scollard said Tuesday night that the last time he saw his son was early Saturday evening, when the boy dressed to go into the city, to a party. It is believed he left the party close to two o'clock Sunday morning.

When the youth failed to return Saturday night, Mr. Scollard said he became worried, and Sunday morning, he reported his son missing to the provincial police.

Dr. R. A. Kelly, M.O.H., made a preliminary examination of the body at the side of the canal, and Dr. Herb Young, Coroner, attended. The dead boy was removed to Belleghem's Funeral Home.

A first cousin of young Scollard, Gordon Scollard, Armour Road, was at the scene of the drowning, and told police he was almost certain of the dead boy's identity.

Lieut. J. Briggs Killed Overseas

Lieut. Joseph Stair Briggs, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Briggs, 115 Lock Street, was killed in action in Belgium while serving with the Canadian Postal Corps, October 23, his family has been informed.

Lieut. Briggs, whose wife and six-months-old son live in England, is formerly of Galt, where he left a post office position to enlist. His father is agent of the Canadian National Express here.

Twenty-eight years of age, the Postal Corps officer received his commission overseas about four months ago. He enlisted in 1939, and went overseas early in 1940. In November, 1942, after two years in England, he married Yvonne Burton, who lives in Hastings, England.

Mr. and Mrs. Briggs, who came to Peterborough from Galt about two years ago, received a letter from Lieut. Briggs on Tuesday, dated October 19, and sent by ordinary mail, in which the young officer described some of the conditions in which work went on in France and Belgium. His letter indicated he was travelling immediately behind the troops, and connected with delivering the mail to the fighting men in the front lines.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, six-months-old son Michael, both in Hastings, England, his parents, and a sister Mary Elizabeth, also of Peterborough.

General Stilwell Removed From China-Burma Job As Face-Saver For Chinese General Chiang

By PRESTON GROVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW DEHLI, Nov. 1—(AP)—The removal of Gen. Stilwell as commander in the China-India-Burma theatre, it can be reported today, resulted from a combination of strategy and diplomacy such as could arise only in the Orient.

It is possible only today to get further details passed through censorship.

The abrupt new shaping of the whole American position in this part of the war front began with the arrival in Chungking two months ago of Maj.-Gen. Patrick Hurley and Donald M. Nelson, both carrying vast powers designed to get from China some solid commitments for increased co-operation with America in the war against Japan.

The Associated Press is informed that the commitments were given virtually under threat of American withdrawal of her support of Chiang's government.

Face Saving Policy

In turn, The Associated Press was informed under circumstances leaving no doubt as to the report's accuracy, a last-minute softening in the American attitude resulted in an agreement for the withdrawal of Gen. Stilwell as supreme commander in the C.B.I. theatre as a face-saving and pacifying gesture demanded by the Chinese president.

As related to the Associated Press Gen. Hurley and Mr. Nelson explained to Gen. Chiang that there was much disappointment over the failure of the Central government to come to an agreement with the Communists in the north so that both they and the Central government troops now blocking them could be brought against the Japanese in China.

Among the requests were:

1. That Chiang should re-organize his cabinet and eliminate reactionary obstructionists and anti-foreign members.

2. That an American General be placed in command of Chinese operations not only in Burma but elsewhere in major operations against the Japanese.

During early conversations, it evidently was assumed on both sides that Gen. Stilwell was to be American commander.

Gen. Stilwell was no party to the negotiations although he evidently was kept informed of the major steps.

Stormy Session.

The terms were put to Gen. Chiang forcefully, in some instances backed by specific messages from President Roosevelt. Some stormy scenes followed. Chiang, as was expected, refused to dissolve or reorganize his cabinet, although he accepted other conditions with tacit admission that some of his commanders on the major fighting fronts were not so hot.

Then came an odd change in the proceedings.

Gen. Chiang himself became stubborn an... was discovered that H. H. Kung, his finance minister, visiting in the United States, was telegraphing him that President Roosevelt was not supporting the stern position taken by his two representatives in Chungking.

Usually well informed sources, whose reports the Associated Press believes reliable, stated that Kung telegraphed Gen. Chiang that Harry Hopkins had informed him that there was no cause for alarm in the American attitude and that if Gen. Chiang would hold out determinedly, he would win all points.

Learning of these reports, the American negotiators evidently obtained a flat statement from the President in a message that he was not fooling and backed the negotiators at that point fully.

Chiang Capitulates.

As their part in the bargaining, the Americans had the power to withhold lease-lend supplies and to withdraw Maj.-Gen. Claire L. Chennault and his U.S. 14th Air Force from China.

Finally, an agreement was reached which included among other things that an American would be given command of Chinese field forces. It was a large pill to swallow, but in the interests of harmony all around, Gen. Chiang evidently agreed at one stage to take it and keep the war going at top speed.

Then a reaction set in. To the amazement of all the negotiators, Gen. Chiang declared Gen. Stilwell must go. He cited charges. For security reasons the nature of the charges can not be disclosed.

The Chinese President was adamant and the United States representatives were faced with capitulation on this point or a break in the policy of supporting General Chiang's Government. A few days ago, Gen. Stilwell was relieved of his command and left for the United States. But Gen. Chiang was specifically informed the United States did not accept his charges against Gen. Stilwell.

In China, Gen. Chiang evidently gained great "face" by the manoeuvre which is looked upon in many Chinese and American quarters as capitulation.

Generally it is recognized that much time has been lost through the disagreements and that the American hope of close and harmonious realtionship with the Chinese Central Government has been greatly shaken.

Lt. Tom Stanley Directs Fire Of Ontario's 'Hot' Highland Unit

By FREDERICK GRIFFIN
Toronto Star Staff Correspondent

IN THE BRESKENS CORNER, Holland, Oct. 29.—Rain was accentuating the mud, melancholy and open-roofed misery of a tumbledown village through which our men fought to liberate the Schelde; when I heard the sound of pipes playing "Bonnie Dundee." Shortly around the corner came the pipers, kilts aswing, as they trudged skirling through the muck and mire of the streets.

Led by that redoubtable, hard rock miner, Pipe-Major Bob Wishart, to whom Canada is home, they were followed by an enchanted straggle of sombre Netherlands children, who believed no doubt that in this mad war the Pied Piper of Hamelin had come to life as for the first time they heard the pibroch and for the first time saw bare-kneed soldiers in skirts.

Bob also led in playing "The Road to the Isles" and other famous Highland tunes. All through my visit to this Ontario unit today the music of the Highland glens rose and fell with haunting effect through the thick, brooding drizzle of this soggy land where there are no hills and

Gay Fighting Unit

A great, gay fighting unit are these men from Ontario, a "hot" unit. No infantry outfit in the Canadian army has won a higher rating on the long, hard road of blood from Normandy to this drowned-out patch of Zeeland along whose Schelde coast they fought from Hoofdeplaat to Fort Frederik-Henrik beyond Breskens.

I chatted with a number of officers and men and heard of some outstanding incidents. Lieut. Tom Stanley of Peterborough was in command of the unit's six-pounder anti-tank guns in their new role of knocking out pillboxes, smashing at farmhouses, setting fire to haystacks and otherwise, by direct action, uprooting the enemy from his hide-outs. Also how Sgt. M. B. Jamieson of Pembroke had run his gun into position and within a range of 400 yards had knocked out a 20-millimetre gun and its crew which had pinned down a company. The crew with Sgt. Jamieson were the driver of the carrier, Cpl. Gerald Leigh of Brockville, L.-Cpl. G. B. Bradley of Westboro, and Pte. W. J. Beaven of Belleterre, Que.

Salvaged Gun Under Fire

Joe Dziarmaga and Corp. Fred Crowe, of Cobourg, on one occasion got their gun over a dike and into position to shell it almost noseon, when they drew machine-gun fire. They had quite a time getting the gun back out over the dike behind, but managed it under heavy fire without hurt.

Sgt. J. A. Pope, who does the trigger work on a flame-thrower, is also credited with a grand job for five days hand running. Often out in front of the infantry, he went zigzagging along dike tops to shoot short, sharp, scorching bursts at every German he saw.

From Lieut. F. M. Groff of Toronto and Sgt. Sterling Begg of Kingston, I learned of the remarkable exploit at Breskens of Corp. A. W. Hawkins of Peterboro. He was on guard one misty, pitch-dark night on a dyke approach, when he heard the movements of what turned out to be a patrol of 21 Germans creeping up single file.

Captured Patrol Of 21

It was a nervy spot to be in, but Hawkins was equal to his spooky role. He did not shout and he did not shoot. He waited, silent and tight in the dark until the first German got close. Then with the butt of his rifle he knocked the German's automatic rifle out of his hand.

Still showing great nerve in the blackness, he shouted "Okay, come on, the rest of you, with your hands up," or words to that effect, and believe it or not, the other 20 Germans dropped their weapons and surrendered.

"If Hawkins had started shooting instead of doing what he did, the Germans would naturally have scattered and got away," I was told. "Instead, single-handed he bagged the whole ruddy patrol and quite an arsenal of weapons, too."

There is the very special case of C.S.M. D. A. (Frosty) Campbell, of Ottawa, who wears the ribbons of the last war in which he served with the Fourth Canadian Mounted Rifles. At Breskens, this veteran sergeant-major, with a Bren at the hip, led an assault on a pillbox with Lieut. Fred Wilson of Kingston, and relieved the pinned-down platoon of Lieut. Groff.

Capt. G. W. Keeler, of Ottawa, told me what a fine job a pioneer section had done at Hoofdeplaat, where they smacked out a German captain and 35 other ranks from a pillbox. But this was not before Cpl. Roy Boyd and Pte. Lawrence McRae had advanced through the smoke to the strongpoint and set off a heavy T.N.T. charge against the steel door, which blew it in.

Robot Bombs Raze Several Buildings

LONDON, Nov. 1 — (CP) — A crowded hotel was demolished by a flying bomb in Southern England early to-day and searchers combed the ruins for a number of guests, some of whom were believed to be children.

Houses nearby were blasted and windows blown out of an orphanage from which all children had been removed three months ago.

Anti-aircraft guns threw up a terrific barrage as the bombs came in from the North Sea. Thousands of families in East Anglia took shelter as the ground shook from the concussion of the guns. Several bombs were blown up in flight.

When is it time to call quits?

ON a soft, spring night in April, 1944, P/O J. L. Webb, Hamilton, Ontario, was set to fly his first sortie as captain of an aircraft destined to bomb Montzen. Crossing the enemy coast, the aircraft was hit by anti-aircraft fire, tearing several big holes in the fuselage. P/O Webb flew on to Belgium in his crippled craft, as scheduled.

In the bombing run over the target, it became apparent that the hydraulic system had been damaged. The bomb doors could not be opened. P/O Webb made another circuit of the target, while his engineer struggled to open the bomb bay doors by hand.

On the second run in, the aircraft was attacked by a fighter. This was beaten off, and the bombs were released on Montzen. Coming up from the target, three more fighters closed in on the damaged aircraft. Two fighters were successfully evaded, but while fighting the third, P/O Webb's aircraft was riddled by enemy bullets. One engine was destroyed. The port aileron and mainplane were damaged.

With controls severely damaged, P/O Webb flew back to Britain, landing with only two engines but bringing his aircraft and his crew to safety. Because of "superb skill and exceptional devotion to duty in the face of heavy odds", P/O Webb received the D.S.O.

When you think you may have bought all the Victory Bonds you can possibly afford, ask yourself if you may be "calling quits" too soon. How does your perseverence, say, stack up against the stick-to-it-iveness of any one of our fighting airmen, men like P/O Webb?

Our assignment on the home front is not over yet. We still must back our fighting forces until our mission is completed, till we can bring the last man safely home. It is vital that we, too, stick with our task until this is accomplished.

In this Seventh Victory Loan we are asked to buy more bonds than we bought before, to bring complete Victory—quickly.

Roosevelt Makes Clean Sweep Recalls Several From China

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—(AP). —President Roosevelt is making a clean sweep of top American personnel in China, including Ambassador Clarence E. Gauss, in a supreme effort to reinvigorate the Chinese war effort under leadership of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek.

Doubt that the move will succeed is already apparent in military quarters here where United States' strategists speak with less and less confidence about China's future war role.

Diplomatists are still hopeful Chiang may be induced to shake up his government and army command and reconcile himself to the Communists in North China in order to strengthen his government.

Apparently to save what he can in line with American policy of building up China as a power now and a great post-war nation, President Roosevelt has made these moves thus far:

1. Recalled Gen. Stilwell from his triple China-Burma-India command at the request of Chiang and replaced him with Maj.-Gen. Wedemeyer.

2. Announced at yesterday's news conference the resignation of Ambassador Gauss. Close official associates of Mr. Gauss had said virtually up to the time of the announcement that they knew of no plans for him to come home.

3. Stated that Maj.-Gen. Hurley, his special roving envoy, was still in China. Hurley, by most responsible accounts, went to China to try to help step up the war effort and get Chiang reconciled to the Communists. The fact that he is still there suggests a belie. in the continuing possibility of some success.

No Connection

The President told reporters there was no connection between the recall of Stilwell and the resigntaion of Gauss. He said Stilwell's return was purely and simply a result of a clash of personalities between the general and Chiang Kai-Shek and had nothing to do with strategy or policies.

For himself, Mr. Roosevelt said, he thinks that Stilwell has done supremely well, he likes the general personally, he considers that he has an excellent record. The President left no doubt that while he heeded Chiang's request to replace Stilwell he did not thereby intend any reflection on the general.

Mr. Roosevelt did not go into the background of differences between the general and Generalissimo but it is common knowledge among reporters who have served in China and military and diplomatic men here that the two had been at odds since the battle of the Burma Road two years ago, that Chiang had ever since favored a more cautious strategy than Stilwell considered desirable.

The case of Ambassador Gauss is somewhat different. He and the Chinese leader have never been more than formally friendly. He has wanted to come home for a long time.

To Honor Soldier

HAMILTON, Nov. 1 — (CP). — City council decided last night to hold an "Earl McAllister Day" as a tribute to L. Sgt. Earl McAllister, 21, of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders of Canada, who captured 160 Germans in Normandy in August and since has been reported killed in Holland. No date was mentioned for the event.

A SAUCE WITH REAL FLAVOUR

A FEW drops of H. P. Sauce over the meat while it is still cooking, will "better" the flavour beyond your imagination. Or season the gravy with it, and you'll notice a delightful difference in flavour.

H. P. Sauce is a welcome relish with all meats, fish, fowl, soup, gravy, egg and cheese dishes, salads and sandwiches. It's economical too because only a few drops of this fine English type sauce imparts a zestful tang to your cooking.

If you haven't acquired the "H.P." habit, give your family a new thrill in flavour. Use it in cooking and on the table. Your neighborhood grocery store stocks it. Buy a bottle of H. P. Sauce today.

CANTERBURY, England, Nov. 1 —(CP-Reuter)—The body of Dr. William Temple, Archbishop of Canterbury who died last week, was cremated Tuesday following a simple funeral service in stately Canterbury Cathedral where he was enthroned 2½ years ago.

Burial of the ashes in a cloister adjoining the Cathedral took place privately today.

Eight non-commissioned officers lifted the coffin to the high trestles before the altar as the Cathedral clock struck twelve. Before and during the service, Bell Harry, the great bell in the central tower, tolled.

Archbishop Lord Lang of Lambeth, the first Primate to outlive his successor in the history of the Church of England, spent his 80th birthday at the funeral of his intimate friend of 40 years.

Odds Favor F.D.R. In Election Bets

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1.— (AP). — Odds on the Presidential election which have increased in favor of President Roosevelt could be shifted to favor Gov. Thomas E. Dewey by wagers totalling $200,000, Betting Commissioner James J. Carrell said to-day.

"There is a limit to the amount of money bet on an election," Carroll said. "If $200,000 were wagered on Dewey's election we would have to reverse the odds completely to attract sufficient money to cover the bet.

"Bettors determine the prices and the money that has put the odds where they are is coming from professional sources in large blocks for President Roosevelt and not from any widespread belief in these odds by hopeful Democrats. It is confusing because the odds are not in accord with political polls. In my opinion this race is an even bet."

Current odds quoted by Carrol are 17 to 5 for President Roosevelt, meaning the bettor must put up $17 to win $5, and 1 to 3 for Dewey, meaning $1 must be wagered to win $3.

START MACHINERY FOR WAR GRANTS — Another wheel, in Canada's soldier rehabilitation machinery was set in motion at Ottawa with signing of the first award to be made under the new War Service Grants Act. The award, amounting to $1,065.24, is in favor of a Toronto ex-Eighth Army private who served in the Canadian Army for 1,623 days—1,516 of them overseas. He is the first of more than 150,000 discharged Canadian soldiers now eligible to benefit under the Act, and will receive the money in regular monthly payments not exceeding the monthly total of his Army pay a. d allowances for the month preceding discharge. Although the Act does not become effective until January, 1945, and mailing of cheques cannot begin until then, every effort is being made to put through as many awards as possible by that date. Watching, as Brigadier Mortimore signs the first award, are: Colonel B. J. W. Spink, O.B.E., Deputy Paymaster-General (Right) and Major S. L. Wellwood, officer in charge of the War Service Gratuity section of the Paymaster-General's Branch. (Canadian Army Photo)

Irish Company Vanishes In Enemy Sector

By DOUG. HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC FRONT, Nov. 1 — (CP). — "It was," said Cpl. Charles Caswell, Toronto, "just as though we were on home and they were on second base, we were that close."

For days the Irish Regiment of Canada and other battalions were that close to the Germans in the weeks that the Canadians idled in the bogging soil between the Uso-Rubicone and the Fiumicino-Rubicone Rivers. His was the 2½ week period in which the Irish lost a company under Capt. Murrough (Pat) O'Brien, Toronto, in trying to establish a bridgehead over the Fiumicino, then withdrew behind the river and shared days of static warfare's bitterness with battalions on their right and left.

O'Brien's company as last heard of 36 hours after the regiment was committed. They had passed, 72 strong, through a company commanded by Maj. Bill Armstrong, Toronto. They crossed the river and early one morning O'Brien called back by wireless set with the message, "It's hot as hell here. We will need help."

Under Heavy Fire.

Maj. Armstrong's company was sent across behind them. Under heavy artillery and mortar fire, they worked forward to the river against infantry taking advantage of the ditches and houses for cover. Tanks of the New Brunswick Hussars, supporting them, knocked out one German tank. Another rumbled off after small arms fire forced its crew to close the turret top.

Across the river they found several bodies in a house, one wounded man, a pile of Canadian small arm weapons, an Irish bonnet. The rest of the company had vanished. The wounded man said German tanks had overrun them.

With Maj. Armstrong's company were C.S.M. Norman Corkem, of Windsor, Ont., and Sgt. J. L. Graham, Bowmanville, Ont.

From that withdrawal dated the static warfare of shelling, patrolling, and existing in mauled farmhouses and village homes while the autumn rains came down.

Lakefield Man Cuts Foot Badly With Axe

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 1 — (ENS).— Fred Northey of Lakefield will be confined to Nicholls Hospital for a week, due to an injured foot, caused when his axe slipped as he was cutting wood.

An employee of the Lakefield Creamery, Mr. Northey accompanied by Roy Farrow, a fellow worker, was cutting wood in a wood lot near Burleigh. His axe slipped and cut two cords leading to the left big toe. Mr. Farrow brought his companion to Lakefield in the creamery truck, and he was attended by Dr. Alexander Fraser. He was later removed to Nichols Hospital, Peterborough, where he was attended by Dr. Fraser and Dr. A. G. Howson.

High Death Rate

TORONTO, Nov. 1 — (CP). — Arthur Roebuck, Liberal member of the House of Commons for Toronto Trinity, said here last night that even were the Ontario taxpayers to contribute to the payment of family allowances in Quebec, "he would be a hard-headed individual who, knowing of the high death rate and malnutrition in Quebec, would begrudge a dollar or two" to its families.

Travel Display Feature Of St. John's Tea

An interesting and instructive travel display, featuring most of the methods of transportation, a hand-made old-fashioned coach, and several model airplanes, highlighted an afternoon tea, on Tuesday, sponsored by the afternoon branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. John's church.

Explaining the various features of the display was Mrs. John Mills, who with Miss F. Gladman, supervised the arrangements. The miniature carriage, complete to handles on the door and velvet-lined interior, centred a table filled with models of modern modes of transportation, including planes, cars, jeeps and boats, and a full-size bicycle was also on display. Another section dealt with the methods of transportation in snow-bound countries, and had skates, skis, dog sled, horses and snow shoes. A model of a cabin cruiser, roller skates, and even miniature elephants showed the varied countries which the exhibit covered.

Also lined around the room were pictures showing characteristic scenes from several countries, England, Scotland, Ireland, Holland, France, Italy, China and Switzerland. In charge of a tempting home-cooking display was Mrs. R. Crocker, assisted by Mrs. J. Cochrane.

Receiving the guests was Mrs. G. S. Cameron, president of the branch, and Miss M. English was treasurer.

Centring the dainty tea table, set with a hand-crocheted cloth, was a bouquet of autumn flowers, flanked by yellow tapers in large silver holders. Pouring tea were Mrs. W. P Robertson, Mrs. F. M. DelaFosse, Mrs. A. Stevenson and Mrs. F. D. Kerr. Members of the W.A. assisted in serving and in the kitchen. Mrs. H. Welch was in charge of the tea table.

Special Care Protects Hands From Winter Cold

Fall is here, and winter is just around the corner, bringing cooler days and nights, and biting winds, that play havoc with a woman's fine complexion, and start to work making her hands chapped and red again. It's surprising now easily chapped hands develop, and yet roughness and redness can be avoided with a little extra care.

Business girls, office and salesgirls, who recognize the value of dainty, pretty hands, have evolved a simple procedure which keeps hands in condition throughout the week, with just one real manicure a week. To keep their hands soft and dainty, they make a habit of keeping hand lotion or cream in their locker at work, and near the sink at home. After each washing, the hands are treated to a thorough protective coating of lotion, which is "wrung" in, to stimulate and exercise as well as softening and whitening them.

To save time, so that one manicure will last a week, they take especial care with their weekly manicuring job. Cuticles are softened with cuticle remover, and carefully pressed down with an orange stick. No scissors or scrapers, please! Old polish is removed with polish remover, and nails are filed, taking care to trim the corners, so that they will grow naturally, giving them greater strength with a firmer foundation.

For a smoother finish to polish, and a better-lasting coat, take a tip and try buffing the nails before putting on the polish. Remember too, that polish should "flow" on smoothly, without blobbing. For longer wear remove a tiny hairline of polish at the tip, and after the polish has thoroughly dried, seal it with a coating of colorless polish or special polishields.

If nails have a tendency to break or split easily, try coating the underside of the nail with polish too, for added strength. Dry, easily broken nails are generally helped with a regular application of cuticle oil. Try putting it on at night before retiring, so it can really get to work without the chance of being removed for a few hours.

KnoxYoungPeople Visit Trinity Club

Members of Trinity Club entertained the Knox Young People at a gala Hallowe'en and masquerade party Tuesday evening. Practically everyone was in costume, and the evening's festivities got under way with a grand parade, and judging of costumes, with Misses Dorothy Mitchell and Anna Edmondson taking first and second prize among the girls, while Bill Donaldson and Dick Clayton were winners in the men's competition. Judges were Mrs. G. S. Easton, Mrs. H. T. Rehill and Rev. H. J. Mahoney.

Gaiety and good fellowship marked the evening's activities, with all joining in the spirit of the party, enjoying group and other games, including musical chairs and ghost stories, conducted by Gordon Minty and Misses Lily Brown at the piano. The musical program included four guitar selections presented by Misses Milburn and Mrs. Dobson. Members of Trinity Club presented an amusing skit about "Li'l Abner."

Decorations, in appropriate Hallowe'en motif, were supervised by Mrs. Bill Donaldson. Guests were received by Miss Isabelle Taylor and Mrs. Don Holmes. At the close of the evening, refreshments were served, in charges of Mrs. H. Gray, with members of Trinity Club assisting.

DOROTHY DIX

TELL HIM LOVE HAS COOLED

Soldier Suffers No More From Change In Wife Than If Kept Ignorant of Facts.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I married a boy I didn't really love because he was going overseas, and he was in love with me and I felt sorry for him and didn't want to hurt him. But I find it was a great mistake because I am not the type of girl to settle down with one boy. I am too fickle. I like to have many dates and to go around and have a good time, and being married cramps my style.

What must I do? Must I hurt him by getting a divorce and free myself now? Or must I wait until after the war to tell him that I want to be rid of him? Or must I spend the balance of my life with a husband I don't care for and who bores me to tears?

G. E. H.

Today's Common Mistake

ANSWER — Many thousands of other young girls, carried away by war hysteria, made the same tragic mistake that you did of marrying boys for whom they had no real affection just because all the other boys were doing it, or because it seemed patriotic to be a soldier's wife, or because they thought a military wedding would be so romantic, or because they couldn't say "no" to the scared and homesick lads who were starting off to defend their country, or because Johnny's uniform and brass buttons gave him a glamor he had never had before.

And, also like you, thousands of these war brides have found out that with Johnny out of sight he is out of mind and out of heart. Their little flicker of love died out for want of something to feed on. They got tired of sitting at home knitting sweaters and writing letters to men to whom they had really nothing to say, and posing as anxious wives.

They wanted to be girls again, free and unfettered, and to go about and have good times. And many of them, without intending it or desiring it, fell in love with other men with whom they knew they could be happy as they never could be with the men to whom they were married.

All of this raises a war problem that no board of strategists knows how to handle. Shall these young wives who have suffered a change of heart tell their husbands of it now, or wait until they come home to impart the bad news? It seems cruel to add one more sorrow to the men who are already enduring all the agonies of war. But, on the other hand, is it not even more unkind to let a man go on nursing a dream that can never be realized, and loving and trusting a wife who has been faithless to him?

We can but shed a tear at the thought of G.I.Joe getting a letter in which his war bride asks for a divorce, but the picture is not quite so gloomy as it seems, for perhaps G.I. regrets his hasty marriage just as much as his girl wife does, and is just as anxious to be free.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am 19 years old. I live at home with my mother and sister and my sister's small child. Have two married brothers and one single brother. For two years now I have run our home on my salary. None of the other children contribute anything to the upkeep of the family. While I am willing to do my part, I do not feel that I should bear the whole responsibility.

One of my brothers is a lieutenant colonel, one a sergeant, one a corporal. All have bigger incomes than I. Am I wrong in expecting their help?

SUE.

Girl Victimized by Older Brothers

ANSWER—You are certainly under no obligations to qualify as the family goat, and you will be very foolish if you let your selfish brothers wish the role on you. And it is entirely unnecessary for you to be victimized any longer. Your brothers would come across rather that have it known that they were letting a 19-year-old girl support the home without any help from them.

◊ ◊ ◊

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I married a bachelor and, although I am all that any man could expect of a wife, he seems discontented. But when I try to find out what is the matter, he just doesn't know. It is only that somehow he doesn't feel as he thought he would. Naturally I sense his disillusion and though I try to be cheerful about it and overlook it, it hurts me deeply.

Is there anything I can do about it?

◊ ◊ ◊

ANSWER—The trouble with your husband is that he is expecting to experience all the thrills of a boy bridegroom, and they are impossible at his time of life. Romantic love belongs to the teens, not the forties or fifties. Tell him to be his age.

Army Show 'Baby' First Winner Of Scholarship

TORONTO, Oct. 31 — Pte. Lois Hooker, the "baby" of the Army Show, has won a two-year scholarship at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art in London and has been granted her discharge from the army.

Not yet 18, Miss Hooker enlisted when a few months past 16 and went overseas with the Army Show. She is the daughter of Capt. William Hooker of the British Ministry of Information, London, and Mrs. Hooker, 350 Brookvale Ave., Toronto and a cousin of Mrs. R. L Hale, of Peterborough. Always interested in the stage, she took lessons in acrobatic and ballet dancing form her 10th birthday until she was 14 and then took training in dramatic art at the Toronto Conservatory of Music.

When she enlisted she was still a student at Lawrence Park Collegiate and persuaded Jack Arthur, when he was casting for the Army Show, to give her a test. Her work was good and despite her age she was admitted to the Army.

She is the first winner of this scholarship in London, one administered by the Kinsmen Fund. The principal of the Academy, Sir Kenneth Barnes, is so pleased with her work that he states he will either put her on the London stage or in movies when she finishes her course at the school.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Today we will give you two nice pastry recipes. When you have baked a pie shell, you are about through with the oven part of the cooking, as both fillings are made in a double boiler and poured into the already baked pie shell.

Cream Pie

4 tablespoons flour, or corn starch, 1-3 cup granulated sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2¼ cups scalded milk 2 egg yolks, 2-3 teaspoon vanilla, 1 tablespoon butter, baked pie shell cooled.

Measure into a bowl and mix together thoroughly the flour, sugar and salt. Gradually stir in part of the scalded milk, stir back into the remaining milk in double boiler and stir and cook until smoothly thickened. Cover and cook with occasional stirring until no raw flavor or flour remains. Beat the egg yolks slightly, keeping the two egg whites for the meringue. Gradually stir hot mixture into beaten egg yolks, stir back into double boiler and cook, stirring constantly for one or two minutes longer. Remove from heat, stir in vanilla and add butter. Cool filling and turn into baked pie shell. Cover with meringue and brown slightly in a slow oven. Chill pie before serving.

Pineapple Pie

2 cups crushed pineapple, 2 tablesoons cornstarch, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup sugar, juice of ½ lemon, 2 egg yolks.

Scald the pineapple. Mix cornstarch, salt and sugar and stir into pineapple. Stir and cook 10 minutes. Add lemon juice and beaten yolks slowly. Cover and let cook five minutes. When cool, turn into baked pie shell and cover with whipped cream or a meringue made from the whites of the eggs or ornament with baked circles, crescent or other figures cut from remaining crust.

Pie Paste

11 tablespoons flour, 5 tablespoons shortening, 3 tablespoons salted cold water. Mix well and roll out very thin.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, November 2.

There may be prospects of the ultimate fulfilment of major and much cherished goals, in which affiliations with large corporations, diplomatic, political or fraternal bodies, may involve secret agreements or other intriguing factors. Persistent effort and shrewd analysis of peculiar or irregular situations may be necessary to place the affairs and fortunes on a sound, enduring and lucrative basis. There may be temptations to make radical changes with prospects of more influential associations, yet these may be beset with hazard and curious or unorthodox phases. The romantic or family life also seems involved in this strange predicament. So "stop, look and listen before deciding."

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is while being confronted by a year of most alluring and lucrative prospects, in which advanced position, increased profits and influential associations seem in sight, yet there may be a peculiar, subtle and intriguing undercurrent to make the whole situation perilous to peace, progress and family happiness, unless particularly sagacious and shrewd tactics be employed. In a bid for sudden and perhaps spectacular change in which public relations are at stake, it may take keen analysis, deep insight as to underlying factors, sustained by persistent and confident application, and along well-systematized lines, with far reaching plans, to eventually place matters on solid foundations. The spading-up might also affect family or romantic affairs adversely. Ponder carefully before decisions.

A child born on this day should have much creative ability and ingenuity with fine intuitions and inner urges, yet may be activated by its emotions or sensational lures to its detriment. Shrewd analysis and logic are recommended for ultimate success and happiness.

To Relieve Bad Cough Quickly, Mix This at Home

Does the Work in a Hurry. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home mixture your mother probably used, and, for real results, it is still a most dependable medicine for distressing coughs. Try it once, and you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking is needed. (Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) Anyone can do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really splendid cough medicine—more than you could buy for four times the money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time. Children take it without the usual struggle.

This splendid home mixture has a three-fold action. You can feel it take hold at once. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. This explains why it gives such quick relief.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Larger Families Being Raised In Britain

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 — (CP). — The war has brought about many changes in Britain and one of them is in the attitude toward raising large families, Dr. George F. Buchan, medical health officer for Willesden, a borough of London, said Tuesday in an interview.

"Before the war there was a certain reluctance among women and even among some men to raise large families, but now that reluctance, for some unexplainable reason, appears to be disappearing," said Dr. Buchan, in Canada to outline Britain's social security program and to study the Canadian program.

He will visit various points across the country and is scheduled to leave here Thursday for Toronto.

The birthrate in Britain had risen from 16.5 in the last year for which statistics were available to 19.5 in the first quarter of this year.

"I assume the Canadians and Americans are doing their part," said Dr. Buchan jokingly when asked if the presence of Canadian and American troops in Britain would account for the increased birthrate.

The general health of the people in Britain is good considering the conditions in which they had to live during the blitz, the blackout and the robot bomb attacks.

Tries A Bribe

LONG BEACH, Calif., Nov. 1 — (AP). — Ellis Scates, a 76-year-old widower who died last December 16 included in his will a bequest of $250 to a church with this notation: "St. Peter, take note."

RUSSIAN DELEGATION WILL NOT ATTEND PARLEY — Here is the Russian delegation which was sent to the international aviation conference in Chicago, photographed on its arrival from Moscow at headquarters of the Alaskan division, air transport command, A.A.F., Edmonton, Alta. In a last-minute shift of intention, the Soviet government has announced that Russia will not participate in the conference. The reason given is that nations hostile to the Soviet Union have been invited to participate. Left to Right in above group are Maj.-Gen. A. I. Perminov, Maj.-Gen. I. M. Mararov, Maj.-Gen. Paul F. Berezin, N. V. Novikov, charge d'affaires of Soviet Embassy in Washington; Lt.-Gen. Alexander A. Avseevich, and Lt.-Col. M. I. Mokonin.

Large Crowds Enjoy Exhibition Given By "Duck"

A group of Peterborough citizens went through a novel experience Tuesday afternoon, as passengers in the amphibious jeep, commonly known as the Duck, while it displayed its abilities in the Otonabee River, Little Lake, and along the city streets. Demonstrations of this amazing vehicle before hundreds of sight-seers lining streets and sections of the shore of Little Lake, followed a parade of mechanized military equipment, in the interests of Peterborough's Seventh Victory Loan Campaign.

Long before five o'clock, when the parade was timetabled to leave the Market Square for a tour of the business section, crowds of people inspected the machines of war of which they have read so much, but have had little opportunity to watch at first hand. It is difficult to decide which piece of mobile equipment was the most popular with the adults, but the Duck caused a minor sensation among the children right from the start. Dozens of youngsters, clambered aboard the vehicle, patiently listening while the drivers explained some of the interesting points about it.

A cruiser tank, technically known as a MK I., but popularly known as a "Grizzly", ranked next in popular appeal. A large sign on the outside of the "Grizzly" revealed it takes $80,000 to build one, and in war, hundreds are needed.

The parade left the Market Square at five o'clock, with the A. 11 Band of the 48th Highlanders from Camp Borden at the front. Marching along Water street to Brock street, it swung from Brock over to George street, and continued south on George to where the jeep went into the river, near the C.N.R. foot-bridge. Included in the mobile equipment on display, were a jeep and tank, a large tank transporter, which costs $20,000 to produce, and which has left its mark on modern mechanical warfare by its task of carrying tanks to and from the battle-fronts, a 25-pounder gun, used extensively in the present war and famed for the part it played in halting Rommel's armies at El Alamein; a Bofors anti-aircraft gun, and a six-pounder anti-tank gun.

But the highlight of the entire parade was the Duck, which has added a new place-name to the list of cities and towns that have acclaimed it the most interesting exhibit. Actually, the Duck is a combination of a standard two and a half ton, six-wheel driver, military chassis with an all-steel hull, propeller and rudder.

Takes to Water

After a circuit tour of some of the city's streets, with the group of guest passengers, the jeep went into the water near Canada Packers, sailed under the foot-bridge, navigated for a time in Little Lake, while hundreds watched from the bridge and shores. Before going into the water, a flick of a lever deflated the tires to prevent the Duck from capsizing, and on its way out, another automatic control inflated the tires again. A quick and easy shifting of controls converted the machine from a land travelling vehicle, into a water-going vessel. The rudder and wheels are guided by the same steering wheel. Previously announced as a slow-travelling machine on land, the Duck presented a surprise to many people by its speed. In the water too, the Duck could not be called a "slow-poke".

Outside of Sunnyside, at Toronto, Peterborough is the only city on the Duck's schedule of Victory Bond shows where it has been able to give a water demonstration.

Mrs. M. Holt, of the public relations staff of the Victory Loan office here, had the honor of being the only woman passenger on the Duck's land and water journey. Among the guests, the majority on the staff of the Victory Loan campaign in Peterborough, that were aboard, were Ian McRae, works manager of the C.G.E., Lieut.-Col. James Turnbull, Officer Commanding the Training Centre, Hal Cooke, manager of radio station CHEX; Ross Dobbin, chairman of the Selective Names Committee; Paige Rowell, of the Publicity Committee; A. L. Stedham, on the office staff of the Victory Loan Campaign E. W. Simpson, Peterborough unit organizer; Rev. H. J. Mahoney; W. S. Rose, a supervisor of Bond salesmen; Major William Dalton, Public relations supervisor; Gordon Shier, and Gordon Matthews, chairman of the War Finance committee. Other guests, including an Examiner reporter, were also aboard.

A second trip out in the water by the jeep had as guests men of the military convoy, from Camp Borden, and among others, Clare McGillen, of the Police Department, who went along for the ride.

Bing Is Maligned

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Nov. 1 — (AP). — Bing Crosby, here for the pheasant hunting season, said he found on his recent trip to England that Bob Hope had beat him to the draw. "I found Hope had libeled me pretty extensively in London and England," Crosby told a reporter. "In the station a cockney circled me three or four times, and when I inquired what was up he said 'that 'ope told us you were a little short fat fellow'."

Pacific Program To Be Released At Early Date

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 — (CP). — An outline of Canada's Pacific effort and a kindred program of partial demobilization may be announced shortly.

Usually well-informed sources said last night the announcement might disclose that a third of the Navy and Air Force would be enlisted for Pacific service on a revoluntary basis after leave in Canada and with campaign pay on a basis similar to that being offered British troops.

One source who indicated the announcement might be made within 48 hours by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, said he understood it would contain no reference to home defence troops.

If, as has been noted in some Washington reports, the division of command in the Pacific War is split to give British, American and Chinese commanders separate spheres of responsibility, it is possible Canadian contingents will fight under British overall command.

Would Forego Leave.

This might mean Canadians would forego home leave in order to accompany British forces through the Mediterranean to Indian bases. It would not seem logical that the Canadians be brought home on leave only to recross the Atlantic for the long journey to Pacific service.

Service demobilizers and planners have long been waiting word of the definite size and nature of Canada's Pacific effort so they could start the job of planning for the switch-over and the partial demobilization that is likely to follow.

As for adopting the British plan of providing special campaign pay for Pacific forces, it has been pointed out that Canadian service pay already is on the highest scale among Allied fighting powers, whereas British pay is among the lowest.

British Program.

The British Government has announced a program which includes campaign pay for operations against Japan and a partial demobilization determined on age, length of service and usefulness in industry.

The allowance for operations against Japan will range from 7 shillings (about $1.54) a week for privates to £3 17s weekly for top ranking officers.

It is believed Canada's partial demobilization would be based on a "first-in-first-out" system with some sort of a compassionate court ruling on exceptional cases. In fact, the R.C.A.F. already has embraced such a plan.

Salvationists Plan Revival Campaign

Brigadier Mrs. Emmeline Green, who will visit Peterborough for a revival campaign commencing on Sunday next, has been engaged in evangelical work for many years. Entering the International Training College of the Salvation Army in London, England, she with her husband, the late Thomas Green, commanded a number of the largest corps in Britain. In this country they undertook divisional work in which they were signally successful throughout the Dominion and in many parts of the United States conducting revival meetings and the number of people she has led into the truth by her happy spirit and earnest presentation of the old-fashioned Gospel is incalculable.

Mrs. Brigadier Arthur J. Smith, who was formerly stationed in Peterborough, will accompany and assist Brigadier Mrs. Green.

Community singing will precede each week-night meeting, at 7:45. The Band, the Songsters Brigade, and special vocalists will be heard.

KING'S SURPRISE VISIT

LONDON — (CP). — The King paid a surprise visit to the Savoy Theatre to see Frederick Lonsdale's play "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," and during the intermission received the stars, Jack Buchanan and Caral Brown.

WHAT'S IT ABOUT—This was one of the best pictures taken in the liberation of Greece. This landing craft-stoker, Jim Funnel of Lansdowne, Ont., had just poked his head out of his stokehold to see what was going on when he found out—the easy way. This pretty Greek girl was just doing what happened all over Athens the day Canadian sailors arrived as the vanguard of the liberating force in Greece. The sailors were from H.M.C.S. Prince David.

DEPLORES VIOLENCE

LONDON — (CP). — The New Zionist organization has asked the colonial secretary, Col. Oliver Stanley, for an interview to "demonstrate the unjustness and wrongness of linking up the organization' with recent outbreaks of violence in Palestine.

Board Eases Paper Controls

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 — (CP). — The prices board announced today that restrictions on the manufacture of certain types of printed matter had been lifted and that quota controls on periodicals and publications had been revised. Mill quotas, however, will continue to limit any increase in paper consumption.

The board said there was "little prospect" of an immediate improvement in the general paper supply position, but each purchaser of commercial printing now will be "free to make use of the paper available to him as he sees fit."

Restrictions have been removed on the end-use of newsprint and fine paper for display and other advertising printed matter, posters, catalogues, price lists and other business forms and records. Under restrictions introduced last December, extensive economies were affected. The board said, however, that it was "anticipated that many of these savings will be continued voluntarily."

Effective tomorrow, publications and periodicals in which advertising provides the principal revenue and which are published by non-profit organizations may obtain, on application, certificates of exemption provided they do not use more than four tons of paper each calendar quarter. The previous exemption was one ton of standard newsprint a quarter.

Other publications and periodicals under permit control may, on application, be granted an increase of four tons a quarter in their current quotas. New publications may be granted a similar tonnage on application.

INVEST IN VICTORY

By ALENE HOLT
Victory Loan Headquarters

Home, Sweet, Home.

Maurice Pringle, local Victory Loan canvasser, comes through today with a very interesting story. He tells about being greeted very graciously by a lady customer. When he knocked, she opened the door with the remark "Well, come on in — you are just the man I want to see. You have my refrigerator under your arm." Needless to say he was more or less surprised by that remark, however, he went on in and then the lady hastened to explain. "You see," she said, "I have been buying a Victory Bond every time there is a Loan Drive, and so far I have my new electric stove and washing machine all rolled up in the form of paper Victory Bonds, and now you are going to sell me the Bond that will take care of the refrigerator." This enterprising person has even gone so far as to place her orders with the different merchants and has arranged for delivery as soon as possible after V-Day.

Another angle in connection with the same family is that the husband and children are buying through the Payroll Savings and War Savings stamps respectively, and their savings are ear-marked for a new car.

"The Maple Leaf Forever."

Soldiers' wives are doing their bit on the home front by buying Victory Bonds. John Lee, canvasser reports selling a share in Victory to one wife who has six children at home to care for. The husband is stationed at Camp Petawawa and she has been able to buy a Bond every time a canvass has been held.

Stan Darling reports on one of his customers, also a soldier's wife with two children. Her husband is overseas and she has come through again by buying her Bond towards Victory.

"Faith of Our Fathers"

No Victory Loan would be complete without a word of appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. George Dinesen of 257 Carlisle street. Mr. Dinesen was born in Aalborg, Denmark and Mrs. Dinesen was born in Aachen, the latter city having become quite a theatre of war in recent weeks. Woodie Roberts, Victory Loan salesman, said Mrs. Dinesen was quite worried at the present time as her brother was living in Aachen and from all reports the city is now nothing but shambles. In spite of all their own worries about loved ones overseas, they are always faithful customers and help all they can on the Victory Loan canvasses.

Their son, LAC. Jens Kai Dinesen, who is a very well-known artist, was in the R.C.A.F. but recently was honorably discharged and is now able to give all of his time to his talent. This young chap has won many awards recently for his pictures and about six months ago while he was still in the Air Force, he was invited by His Excellency the Governor-General to display one of his paintings at the Air Force art exhibit under the auspices of the Royal Art Association.

First Star Award

J. A. Troke, is the first Victory Loan canvasser "over the top." As of the seventh day of the Loan he had a percentage of 100.3. Congratulations are being handed out to this very fine canvasser, not only for being the first over the top, but for his complete co-operation with those in the various departments at Victory Loan Headquarters. Lionel Browne, supervisor, said when he was asked for a statement, "He was perfect in every respect. Not only is he a good salesman, but his reports are letter perfect and he follows instructions, to every minute detail. I can't say too much for him."

Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue

John Troke is not only a good canvasser, but he has certainly been a help to this column. He just seems to sense when their is a human interest angle and takes time to pass it on so that others may read what is happening and how many sacrifices are being made. This is a story about a soldier, Thomas L. Griffin, 333 Sherbrooke street, as told by Mr. Troke.

"I called to sell a bond by appointment with Mrs. Griffin. When I called I was told that her husband was home from Camp Borden but that he was very sick and was just waiting for the Doctor, so naturally I promised to call back at some other time. However, Mr. Griffin heard us talking in the hall and told his wife to bring me upstairs, as he wasn't too sick to sign for a Bond and it would save the salesman a trip back and he could perhaps be selling someone else instead of making another call back. This soldier bought a bond on the monthly savings plan. That is what we call real co-operation", Mr. Troke said.

Have you seen the many very smart and attractive window displays by the various local merchants? All three theatre, the stores and factories have been most co-operative in displaying the Seventh Victory Loan publicity and Services' displays.

Modify Zinc Quota

OTTAWA, Nov. 1 — (CP). — Regulations covering the sale of zinc have been modified to allow unrestricted sale and use of zinc and zinc oxide in amounts not exceeding 5,000 pounds a month, the Munitions Department announced last night. The order restricts inventories to amounts not in excess of sales or consumption in the previous two-month period. It also calls for monthly reports.

Commission Projects

Explaining the position of the Utilities Commission, Mr. Matthews said certain major works had to be considered in view of the increase in population and the annexing of a large area of North Monaghan, and also to maintain the efficiency of the water services to the manufacturing plants.

"We shall have to lay mains and services and install hydrants in the annexed area," Mr. Matthews stated. "Our estimate of that cost is $65,000. Because of the growing population news pumps will be required at the pump house. That will cost $25,000. Filtration of the city's water is going on at a higher rate than the beds are rated, and we must be prepared to add two new filtration beds to the filter plant. They will cost $100,000. And we must complete the four mains to the pump house. We could not get pipes to complete the main on Bethune street, and that work had to be suspended, but the need is there and increasing. That work is estimated at $120,000. The total estimate for these improvements which the Commission must keep in mind is $310,000."

Mayor Hamilton replied that the Commission was a money-making body and could collect in revenues the amounts it required. "The council is not in favor of Commissions setting up reserves to be spent in later years."

M Matthews: "If we could have got the materials and labor we would be doing now the work mentioned."

It was suggested to the chairman, that probably a decision could be obtained from the Hydro Commission before Friday.

"I don't think you get it that soon," Mr. Matthews said. "This matter does not apply to Peterborough alone. It affects all municipalities in the province.

Duties of Commission

Incidentally the chairman said the responsibility of the Utilities Commission was to operate efficiently the services in its management, and to use their earnings for the improvement of the systems or to lower the rates charged to consumers, and not for the reduction of taxes.

Mayor Hamilton said the mayor of North Bay had recently told him that city received from its utilities "about two mills in the tax rate."

Houses are being taxed to death, and a lot of it is for services that have little to do with property," His Worship said. "It should pay for fire and police protections, streets and sewers and so on, but not for other services for which it is being taxed."

Mayor Hamilton mentioned the duplication of families in what were actually single houses, with water rates being charged only to one family.

"Waterworks money belongs to the water users and not to the taxpayers," Mr. Matthews said. "About as many tenants are paying water as are property owners."

Mayor Hamilton said that the opinion was growing that if a tax could be collected on electric and water services, the consumers would be bearing a more equitable share of the taxes that were being needed for social services.

Mr. Macdonald suggested that probably property owners took these matters into consideration in their rents.

R. L. Dobbin gave the information that the Utilities were giving more attention to the condition of two and three families using the one water supply in a house than perhaps the council was aware of.

Returning to the deputation's request as applying to the electrical department: "I don't think we have the authority and that we could get it," Mr. Matthews said.

Suggests $200,000

Alderman Ovens said he was going to ask for "a couple of hundred thousand" for the hospital fund.

"We haven't that in the electrical account," Mr. Matthews replied, "and our surplus in the waterworks is not large."

Mayor Hamilton. "You have about $50,000. You could give us that."

His Worship interjected a passing compliment to the Commission. "The people of Peterborough are not dissatisfied with their water service, but I think you are sometimes carried away with the idea of service at cost. When new industries come here we are always glad to quote to them our water rates."

Mr. Matthews mentioned that the Commission had paid to the city more than $50,000 in the last ten years. "If we make a grant for the hospital we will have to issue debentures for work we have to do."

Mayor Hamilton: "We feel the services should carry themselves from year to year, and that you should not build up surpluses."

On behalf of the Commission, Mr. Matthews said the council's request would be fully considered, and that an immediate effort would be made to communicate with the Hydro-Electric Commission.

BREAK UP THAT SQUEEZE

DEFENDERS who understand the structure of squeeze plays are frequently in position to break them up by leading the suit which will destroy an entry required by the declarer into the dummy, or vice versa. Unless the player essaying a squeeze has some kind of entry into the hand opposite him, he cannot possibly make a squeeze work if the defenders discard correctly.

With all his honors, West didn't dare try to force his side into the position of becoming declarer at such a high level, without any knowledge at all of what his partner held in suit lengths. So he consoled himself with a double.

After scoring his diamond K, J and Q without having any of them ruffed, West led his heart K, feeling that there was the best chance to pick up the setting trick, by establishing his heart Q. But just see what that caused!

South won with the heart A, and had a made-to-order squeeze available. He ran his seven consecutive spades. Just before the last, he held also the club 6 and heart 9, and kept in the dummy the heart J and the club A-J. West had discarded down to the heart Q and the club K Q. But on the last spade he had to discard one of them, if the heart, he would make the dummy's J good; if a club, the A could drop his K and the J would take the final trick. South had him!

Notice how different if West had understood his squeezes and had returned the club K to the fourth trick instead of the heart. Seeing that hearts could not furnish an entry to the dummy, but that the club A could, his club lead would have appeared obligatory to a star player. By thus destroying communication between the declarer's two holdings, he would have made a successful squeeze impossible.

Millbrook Cadets Hold Annual Church Parade To St. Andrew's

MILLBROOK, Nov. 1 — (ENS) — The Millbrook Cadet Corps, about forty strong, under Cadet Captain Donald Edmunds, and Cadet Instructor, Percy Hamilton, marched from the Armouries to St. Andrew's United Church Sunday morning for its annual attendance at divine worship.

The choir sang, during the offertory, an arrangement of "Take My Life And Let It Be", and following the sermon, a duet "More Like The Master", was sung by Mrs. Reginald Edmunds and her sister, Cpl. Beatrice McDowell, R.C.A.F., who was home for the week-end.

Rev. A. L. Sisco, based his sermon on I Peter 2:5, the importance of building character on a solid foundation, with Christ as the chief corner stone. He developed it in detail by using the five letters of the word "Cadet". C—cleanliness, inside and outside, body, mind, and spirit; A—adoration; since worship is a part of our natures, let us choose the best types particularly in those whom we would emulate, keeping in the forefront the Man of Galilee; D—daring, meeting with courage the day's duties, and doing the right under any circumstances; E—endeavor, with willingness to struggle under any stress, letting difficulties but spur us on to more determined endeavor; T—truthfulness, making it a pactice neither to tell nor live a falsehood.

The male quartette of St. Andrew's choir went to Centreville Sunday evening to sing at the Presbyterian church anniversary.

Stilwell Recall Breaks War Into Three Parts

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1 — (AP) — Withdrawal of Gen. Stilwell from his triple command in Asia apparently means a clean break-up of the fronts against Japan into British, Chinese and American theatres.

Eventually it is expected British forces will seek to join forces and commands on the American side of the long battle line. But it can be stated flatly that in high military and naval quarters here there is powerful opposition to any such move. Every effort will be made to preserve the cleavage which now has been effected.

This attitude within the American high command is based on two points primarily:

1. Under the leadership of Nimitz, MacArthur, Halsey and others American forces have campaigned with spectacular success and any basic change in the plan of leadership might be for the worse.

2. The war against Japan on the Pacific front is peculiarly an American war and leaders here hope that as a contribution to future peace it may be brought home to the Japs that it was American armed might which finally crushed them.

Joins British Area

At present Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek has direct command of the China theatre. It joins the British area in north Burma.

British armies have south Burma, the Bengal Bay area and presumably the Dutch East Indies and Malaya into the Singapore-Borneo area.

From there north through the Philippines to the Aleutians it is an American command area, although Allied troops, notably from Australia and New Zealand, have contributed much to the fighting.

At the moment the British are understood to be interested primarily in possible operations in the Bengal Bay area. Their interests centre in such places as Rangoon and Singapore — striking away from China by amphibious warfare in which their far eastern fleet can be advantageously used rather than toward China by hard overland campaigns.

The British therefore are expected to develop their attacks on the Japanese Empire as a reconquest of their own and Dutch territories, denying to the enemy vast rich areas, whose resources will once again be available to the Allies

United States strategy, so far as it has been disclosed, evidently runs to two main objectives—an invasion of the China coast and drives into Japan itself.

There is a growing belief the important new assignment in store for Stilwell will be command of an army invading Japanese occupied China from the sea.

Army Songsters Visit Toronto

A memorable visit was made by the Salvation Army Temple Songster Brigade last week-end to the Toronto Temple, headquarters corps, situated on Albert St. in downtown Toronto. Fifty-five members, under the leadership of A. Ben. Smith, made the journey by bus. On arrival they were entertained at supper at the Peerless banquet room, being warmly welcomed by Adjutant Leslie Pindred, officer of the Toronto Temple. A magnificent festival of sacred and classical music was presented on Saturday night under the chairmanship of D. S. Linden, a noted musician who formerly organized and directed the great community singing efforts at the Canadian National Exhibition. Especially noteworthy numbers were, "By Babylon's Wave", xylophone selections, a saxophone solo by Mr. Mel. Shadgett, soprano solo by Mrs. Mendell Braund and a reading by Miss Betty Craig. A feature of the evening also was the singing of a special arrangement of "Onward Christian Soldiers", adapted by Mrs. S. J. Richardson, A.T.C.M.

A selected group from the Brigade broadcast from CFRB on Sunday morning at ten a.m. Services were led, morning and night, by Lt.-Col. J. Merritt, a well-known Salvationist musician. In the afternoon Lt.-Col. S. Lambert, padre of Christie St. Hospital presided over the second concert to be given by the Brigade, a large audience filling the Temple auditorium. Mrs. Major Wood, who accompanied the singers, offered prayer and in addition to the Brigade numbers, items were given by Miss Barbara Rose, a monologue; Mrs. M. Shadgett soloed, a vocal quartet comprising Misses Peggy Parnell, Nancy Shadgett, Miriam Butcher and Nola Smith, sang.

Following an evangelical service in the evening a final concert was given which included a vocal election, "The Lord's Prayer", vocal duet by Mrs. M. Braund and R. G. Routly and selections were also offered by the Toronto Temple Band and Songster Brigade.

It is some years since the Peterborough Songsters paid a visit to Toronto and their visit on this occasion was responsible for binding more tightly those bonds of fellowship which exist between the musically-minded of both cities and for the furthering of the Gospel, toward which all Salvation Army Songster Brigades direct their efforts.

Services at the local Corps were led by Major J. Wood. In the evening broadcast Sergt.-Major Frank Robinson sang feelingly "Wonderful Morning" and Supervisor Ernest Irwin played with fine taste a trombone solo, "Bless this House". The Bible address following the broadcast was given by Mrs. Major P. Lindores who based her remarks on the parable by Jesus concerning the man who unwisely built his house on sand and the other who wisely built on rock.

DOES SPAIN FACE INTERNAL STRIFE? — Although Spanish Republican guerillas have been reported waging active war against the forces of Premier Francisco Franco in three Spanish provinces—Galicia, Estremadura and Andalusia, shaded on the map, more recent reports from the French-Spanish border indicate that the fighting is not so active as earlier reports indicated. That a war of nerves does exist, however, is evident by the presence of many Spanish troops at the frontiers. Also it is no longer a secret that thousands of Germans crossed over into Spain after liberation of French areas.

McNAUGHTON SUCCEEDS RALSTON

McNaughton Opposes Draft Action

Move Into Cabinet A Stabilizer To Avoid Election

OTTAWA, Nov. 2 (CP)—The man who built the Canadian Army and left it suddenly on the eve of its greatest test, Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, 57, came back into the public eye today as successor to Defence Minister Ralston with whom disagreement is believed to have led to retirement as army commander overseas.

He came back as suddenly and unexpectedly as he left the army and under circumstances as enigmatic.

Col. Ralston, just back from a battlefield tour, is believed to have quit on grounds the home defence draftees should be pressed into active service overseas. Gen. McNaughton's view on this question has not yet been given and the cabinet is understood to be honor-bound to silence until an official announcement comes from Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Recalls Speech

However, interest and conjecture centred on the General's Oct. 21 speech to a Queen's University convocation at Kingston, Ont. in which he said compulsion should hold no place in Canadian policy.

He told the students they were the future leaders and he asked them that in finding solutions to national problems they listen to all the arguments and seize on those features which commend themselves to general assent. Prompt action should then be taken to give those features full effect and on other points they could "agree to disagree."

"When you come, as you will, to places of authority and influence, and you face the acute issues which may divide our country part from part, may I commend this principle of action to your best thought and interest—compulsion is ruled out; we proceed by agreement, or for a time we rest content to not proceed at all."

In the same speech he paid tribute to Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, his successor as overseas commander, and said he had complete confidence in the army leader and trusted him "implicitly."

His comments on compulsion are believed to indicate the lean gray-haired general was going to take the stand that national unity was already threatened and should not be sacrificed in exchange for whatever of the 70,000 home defence draftees are fit for overseas.

His entry into the cabinet came at the height of a controversy over the Canada Favors Competitive Post-War Flying

CHICAGO, Nov. 2 (CP)—Munitions Minister Howe today told the International Conference of Civil Aviation that Canada is standing by her proposal for a competitive system of post-war civil aviation administered by an International air authority.

The plan, placed before parliament last March 17, includes what Mr. Howe described in a prepared speech as "Four Freedoms of the Air" for airlines operating under the authority of the International body.

They are:

1. The right of air transit.
2. The right to land for servicing.
3. The right to carry passengers, freight and mails from the country or origin to any place in the world.
4. The right to bring passengers, freight and mails back to the country or origin from any place in the world.

Solutions of the problems of international co-operation in air transport might well pave the way to a lasting peace, Mr. Howe suggested.

"An enlightened statement of the problem of international air transport will mean that the nations of the world have gone a long way toward establishing a lasting peace and a new order of security," he said.

"Taken with the organization foreshadowed at Dumbarton Oaks it would constitute a model for the settlement of other difficult international problems, and would create an atmosphere in which the settlement of these other problems would be easier.

"On the other hand if we cannot devise a working system of co-operation and collaboration between the nations of the world in the field of air transport, there will be a smaller chance of our enjoying peace for the remainder of our lives."

Position Outlined

He outlined Canada's position this way:

"We are firm believers in healthy competition. We are convinced that it will develop most fruitfully under an international authority.

"We want to see free choice for the traveler between competing airlines, competition in service but not in subsidies, a guaranteed minimum of routes and frequencies to the airline companies of all nations—large or small, the most frequencies where need exists, whether of nations large or small, the substitution of international regulation for

Gen. Kesselring Is Wounded

AT THE SWISS-ITALIAN FRONTIER, Nov. 2 — (AP). — Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring, commander of German forces in Italy, was reported wounded today in an Allied strafing attack similar to the one which cost Marshal Erwin Rommel his life in France.

Information from Italy said the Marshal's automobile overturned near Bologna after an Allied plane machine-gunned it.

The extent of his injuries was reported not yet ascertained.

Allied troops have been fighting on the southern approaches of Bologne for several weeks.

Canuck Unit Batters Oberhausen

Great Lancasters Pulverize Key German City

LONDON, Nov. 2 —(CP)—An all-Canadian force of Halifax and Lancaster bombers struck heavily last night at Oberhausen, big enemy base city in the industrialized Ruhr, and large fleets of Allied planes headed toward Germany today, apparently bent on new assaults.

The Canadian bomber group sent out the entire force of the four-engined bombers which hammered at Oberhausen.

Six Canadian bombers were missing from the attack but at least three enemy fighters were claimed destroyed, said an R.C.A.F. communique.

Altogether, including these losses, seven bombers and two fighters were missing from operations late yesterday and last night, five German planes were destroyed.

Cologne Hit Again

R.A.F. Mosquitos kept up the assault on battered Cologne during the night and other Mosquito forces went for Berlin, the fifth raid on the German capital in six nights.

R.A.F. Mosquitos also attacked transport in Germany and Holland destroying or damaging 46 trains, 10 barges and four small ships, and R.C.A.F. Spitfires destroyed a number of enemy vehicles in Holland.

Another communique said a JU88 was destroyed by R.C.A.F. Mosquitos during Intruder patrols during the night. One Mosquito was missing.

American fighter-bombers scored seven hits yesterday on a dam holding a nine-square-mile lake 15 miles southeast of Dieuze and flattened 12 factory buildings near the frontier town of Sargemund. Two German aircraft were destroyed on the ground near Gotha. Two American fighters were missing.

Oberhausen was the chief night target.

An industrial city of nearly 200,000 population 35 miles north of Cologne, Oberhausen has so far escaped with a minimum of heavy raids of the type that have wrecked large sections of Essen, Duisberg, Dusseldorf and other cities in the Ruhr.

With three vast rail yards capable of handling 12,000 cars daily, its chief value at the moment is as a traffic centre for the western front. But it also is the home of several large coal, coke, iron and steel industries which can repair damaged weapons as well as turn out new ones.

Soldiers Take Civilian Jobs

OTTAWA, Nov. 2 (CP)—Passage of a recent order-in-council providing for the placement of army personnel not immediately required for military duty in civilian jobs has opened the way for the return of members of the home defence army to civilian employment and still remain in the army.

While the order applies to both the home defence and active armies there was speculation it might be used as the solution to differences of opinion, now being considered by the Cabinet, as to the use of Canada's 70,000 home defence troops.

Under the terms of the order these men could be placed in jobs considered necessary in the public interest and at the same time they would not actually be demobilized but would be subject to recall at any time for military service. In effect, they would be on leave from the home defence army.

Such a plan, it was pointed out in some quarters, would go at least part way toward meeting the objection that might be raised by active service troops to home defence soldiers being given a preferential place in civilian industry by their demobilization before the active army was released.

Similar orders have been passed previously authorizing the use of military personnel for specific jobs, such as railway maintenance work, farming and certain types of mining. The new order is drafted in general terms and consolidates previous orders.

The order says that military personnel engaged in work essential to the prosecution of the war are to be regarded as performing a military duty. They continue to be under the provisions of the Pensions Act and receive military pay and allowances.

"The Loan at this time is in a healthy position but if we are going to make it the largest in Canada's history there can be no coasting or let down during the final nine days of the campaign, a spokesman said.

Yesterday the number of applications went over the 1,000,000 mark to a total of 1,148,000. This compared with 1,108,000 subscriptions at the same stage of the sixth loan.

Bitter Fight Rages On Walcheren

Schelde River To Antwerp Heavily Mined

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 2 (AP) — British and Canadian assault forces, making rapid strides toward clearing the approaches to the port of Antwerp, have hurled stubborn German defence troops out of all but the northern outskirts of the fortress city of Vlissingen (Flushing) on Walcheren Island, a field dispatch said today.

British commandos and amphibious forces which struck the island's west coast yesterday near Westkapelle have expanded their beachhead to the northeast, by-passing the village of Domburg and seizing an enemy coastal battery emplaced in the dunes beyond, Associated Press war correspondent William F. Boni reported from 1st Canadian Army headquarters.

A dispatch from Canadian Press war correspondent Ross Munro estimated that half the town of Vlissingen was in the hands of the Commandos.

South of the Schelde Estuary a stubborn knot of enemy defiance was all but erased. Field dispatches said the Maj.-Gen. Eberding who was commanding in that pocket and 2,500 of his German troops had been captured. Allied troops there were well inside the coastal village of Knocke.

Hopeless Battle

The battered remnants in the pocket were still fighting, however, and on Walcheren the value placed by the enemy on the approaches to Antwerp was measured by the fanatical fury with which the German garrison, cut off from all hope of escape, contested every foot of the flooded island.

The Allied communique said that some miles of the coast" had been taken, and the two beachheads, at Westkapelle and Flushing, were well established. But after more than 30 hours of hand-to-hand fighting, preceded by artillery, naval and air bombardment, the Germans were still putting up a bitter fight in the northern half of Vlissingen, site of the enemy coastal guns which controlled the Schelde Estuary.

In addition to the attack by Royal Marines at Westkapelle, and the Commando Beachhead at Flushing, Canadian infantry was expanding a third bridgehead on Walcheren at the end of the causeway from South Beveland, but was finding it tough going in the face of deter-

American Election Fight Lively On Home Stretch

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.— (CP).— The tempestuous United States Presidential election campaign, having in two months run the gamut of allegations from those concerning Fala, President Roosevelt's pet Scottie, to old-fashioned, always-reliable bribery, may be said to be entering the stretch drive to-day with both candidates running neck and neck.

The President to-night begins his final drive for a fourth term with a 15 minute broadcast talk from the White House. The subject has not been announced. Another address Saturday night in Boston and several informal appearances round out Mr. Roosevelt's pre-election political calendar.

Somewhere in the heat of the campaign the issues—among them charges of bureaucracy, taxation, labor relations and post-war problems—have been lost sight of. Electioneers for both sides in recent weeks have tended to emphasize personalities and to make startling charges of alleged political misbehavior.

The Republican Presidential candidate, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, took the campaign spotlight last night with a speech before a crowd of 13,500 in the Arena in Boston. He asserted Mr. Roosevelt had offered the Democratic party for sale to the highest bidder and that the forces of Communism are taking it over—"the Political Action committee of Sidney Hillman and the Communists of Earl Browder."

On the Democratic side, Interior Secretary Harold Ickes, speaking in New York Harlem, said: "Riding in the Trojan horse, which Mr. Dewey is trying to insinuate into the White House is a prize collection of the most Fascist-minded people in the United States."

The Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee, Senator Harry S. Truman, said in Parkersburg, W. Va., that Mr. Dewey is a "political faker"; Gov. John W. Bricker, G.O.P. Vice-Presidential hope, in Toledo, O., charged the Democrats with seeking campaign contributions from firms "negotiating for or performing a government contract." Vice-President Henry Wallace, in New York, termed Mr. Dewey "doubting Thomas."

It was a run-of-the-mill, non-spectacular night in the hustings.

Russian Armies 30 Miles From Budapest

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Nov. 2 — (AP). — Russian armored columns were reported within 3 miles of Budapest today and advancing steadily against stiff but gradually weakening resistance on the rolling plain southeast of the city.

Soviet field dispatches said advance elements of the Red Army had penetrated beyond Lajosmizse, 33 miles from the Hungarian capital, following an advance in which more than 100 occupied places were captured.

Among the latter was the important railway centre of Kecskemet.

The Germans and their Hungarian allies were reported falling back upon defences which citizens of Budapest have been forced to dig outside the capital. Budapest was said to be in a turmoil.

The Russians were encountering hard going. Great numbers of anti-tank weapons have been concentrated by the enemy on the broad treeless plain over which the Red Army is advancing on a 50-mile front between the Danube and Tisza Rivers.

The pace was surprisingly swift at some points, however, as evidenced by the fact that 48 planes were reported abandoned by the enemy Tuesday in their hasty flight from the Izsak airfield, 17 miles southwest of Kecskemet.

Kecskemet, a city of 83,000 which fell after 24 hours of street-fighting, represented the biggest prize in the renewed offensive that has brought confusion to the enemy defences. It was the last important barrier before Budapest.

2,000 Killed

Russian forces in this sector increased the total of enemy prisoners taken in the drive to 5,518, having captured 1,500 Germans and Hungarians in the last 24 hours, the communique announced. The bulletin also said the enemy lost 2,000 dead in the Kecskemet battle, another 1,000 at the rail town of Tedel and 300 more at Kecel.

Call-ups Lag Behind Quotas

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—(CP).—Call-ups for compulsory military service are lagging behind quotas set by the Defence Department, it was learned to-day.

While no official figures have been made public it is known that the quota of 5,000 men a month, set for the present fiscal year, is not being met. Some relief has been provided by the action of the R.C.A.F. in releasing 4,200 men, most of whom are expected to go into the army, but it is understood that this will still leave the totals short of the target Col. J. L. Ralston, who has resigned as Defence Minister, set last February.

At that time he said that of the 60,000 men the army would require this year 48,000 would be needed for service anywhere, the remainder would be used for home defence.

While quotas are set by the Defence Department the actual calling is handled by the Labor Department through Selective Service. Eligible age groups — single men born in the years 1906 to 1926 and married men born in the years 1913 to 1926—have been practically exhausted and the main source of men is those just coming of age for military service.

New Minister Of Defence Sworn In At Ottawa Cabinet Change Announced

Prime Minister Refuses To Make Statement On Reason For Ralston Resigning Has No Knowledge Of Further Resignations

By JAMES McCOOK—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Nov. 2—(CP).—Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, 57, former Canadian Army commander overseas, today was sworn in as Minister of National Defence, succeeding Hon. J. L. Ralston, who tendered his resignation at a Cabinet meeting last night. In a morning of activity on Parliament Hill, Prime Minister Mackenzie King took Gen. McNaughton to Government House to be sworn in as a Minister, after approval of the appointment by the Cabinet. Mr. King then introduced Gen. McNaughton, who has not been in politics before, to his Cabinet colleagues and to a large press conference.

Mr. King shed no light on the Cabinet discussions which led to Col. Ralston leaving the post he has held since 1940. He refused to discuss policies in respect to reinforcements for men overseas or the status of the home defence army of men called for compulsory military training. He said he could see no need for changing plans to call parliament together on January 31, and had no comment on general election possibilities.

It was understood Col. Ralston had said call-ups should be available for service anywhere, his position having been strengthened by opinions expressed by frontline troops he met during tour of European battlefronts he completed three weeks ago.

Brief Statement

Gen. McNaughton made a brief statement to the reporters saying he had taken the new post in order to serve Canada and to ensure the army overseas received in fullest measure the support it needed.

When Gen. McNaughton concluded his brief address and before reporters had time to question the new minister, Mr. King said he wished to add to his statement of the appointment of Gen. McNaughton.

The Prime Minister went on to declare his brief that Gen. McNaughton was the best man for the Defence Ministry post and would have the confidence of the men overseas, the Canadian people generally and the relatives and friends of men overseas.

It was understood that government policies on overseas service and reinforcements will be fully examined by Gen. McNaughton. In the meantime, the program of overseas service on a voluntary basis only is expected to continue. Gen. McNaughton is known to favor a volunteer army overseas, if the necessary reinforcements can be made available by this method.

Mr. King opened his press conference by saying that what he had read in the press this morning was correct and that Col. Ralston had resigned.

The resignation had been made verbally at the Cabinet Council yesterday afternoon and was accepted this morning.

Speaking of the appointment of Gen. McNaughton, Mr. King said that the former Canadian Army commander had the confidence of the men overseas and of their relatives and friends at home.

The Prime Minister said he considered the appointment the best that could be made.

Col. Ralston obviously would not have resigned had he not felt that he should retain a position he had taken "right along," said Mr. King without elaboration.

He said it was not for him to make any statement except to state that all who knew Col. Ralston

Premier Avoids General Exodus By Appointment

OTTAWA, Nov. 2. — By appointing General McNaughton as Minister of National Defence, Prime Minister King appeared to-day to have avoided any general exodus of ministers from his Government. Up to noon to-day Col. J. L. Ralston stood alone in retiring from the Government on the proposition that the use of the Zombie Army alone can maintain the Canadian forces overseas. But it was not certain that other resignations would not occur. The position of Angus Macdonald, Minister of National Defence for Naval Services, was questionable, since Mr. Macdonald has been known for weeks to be strong advocate of overseas conscription. There appeared no prospect, however, that even if Mr. Macdonald resigned there would be other retirements from the Cabinet

The next development in the sensational political crisis which broke upon a dumbfounded capital last night will probably be a statement from Col. Ralston explaining why he resigned and why he believes

American Forces Storming Key Village

By MURLIN SPENCER
Associated Press War Correspondent

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Nov. 2 — (AP).—The village of Carigira tottered today, with elements of one American force already within the town and another probably less than two miles away.

The last Japanese concentration east of the Leyte mountains was on the verge of falling to units reported already battling for control of the town; and its southern defences were being pressed tighter by the forward push of another force moving northwest from the Jaro area.

U.S. troops first entered Carigara from the east more than a week ago during a patrol action after their amphibious landing on the north coast but had to retire when powerful Japanese forces appeared.

The Carigara fight if won would open the coastal road to the town of Pinamopoan and thus permit closing of the enemy's only vehicle route across the mountains from his reinforcement point at Ormoc Bay on the southwest coast. It was the principal action of the last 24 hours on Leyte.

Far to the south of this twin-pronged advance, other units were pushing across the jungled hills. Some were reported half across the island, their objective of attacking the Japanese at Ormoc Bay now mostly down-hill from their painfully-gained positions.

Terrain rather than the enemy apparently offered most of the obstacles there.

In the air, the Leyte battle centred over Ormoc Bay with American fighters based on newly-won island airfields blasting at the Japanese reinforcement point — one ammunition dump was exploded — and at small freighters, luggers and barges. The air attack, coupled with P.T. boat raids, resulted in the sinking of one freighter and one lugger.

Rev. H. H. Mutton opened the meeting with prayer, and Mrs. W. J. Telford read the Scripture, with Mrs. J. Johnston taking the lesson thought. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostess. Mrs. J. Johnston will be hostess for the next meeting.

adequacy and quality of reinforcements—all volunteers. It also came on the heels of an announcement that August Army casualties—numbering 10,257—were by far the highest monthly total for the war.

How much the known differences between Col. Ralston and Gen. McNaughton entered into the General's decision to join the cabinet is not known and might not be made clear even when both have made statements.

Election Talk

Except for a formal exchange, Col. Ralston has been silent on the background of an apparent disagreement that led to the General leaving his command. All that Gen. McNaughton has said since he came home ill a year ago is that he had left the documents in the hands of government historians.

Conjecture of the nearness of a general election was heightened by the cabinet change. It was believed that Mr. King had seriously considered going to the country almost immediately.

The surprising entry into the picture of Gen. McNaughton, however, was interpreted as probably meaning delay in election with the government standing pat on its draftee policy and leaving to the General the problem of fitting the much-criticized manpower policy in the military picture.

Gen. McNaughton, of course, cannot enter the House of Commons until he has been elected in some constituency. It will be for Mr. King to decide whether the new Defence Minister should immediately contest a riding or wait for the general election. There is nothing to prevent Gen. McNaughton from performing the duties of Minister in the meantime.

Vacant Seats.

There are number of vacant constituencies, formerly held by Liberals, in which Gen. McNaughton could run.

The General left his command on December 26 when it was announced his departure was for reasons of health. At the end of his original leave on June 27 he as granted an extension to September 27.

At that time he asked to be retired.

He was given full General's rank—one of the few Canadians to attain such military standing.

His homecoming after taking leave of his command stirred parliamentary debate and newspaper comment. He arrived in February and told newsmen that a general impression seemed to have got about that he was a "confirmed cripple."

Justice Scores Incompetence Of Constables, Halting Trial

COBOURG, Nov. 2—(ENS)—The Davey murder case came to an abrupt end Wednesday morning when Mr. Justice Greene ordered a new trial upon it being revealed that the jury had been permitted to separate on their way over to court Wednesday morning, during which time ten of the jury had been left standing alone on the street corner while a court constable ran over to the barber shop to hustle up two other jurymen who had been taken there by the other court constable for a shave.

Mr. Justice Greene in discharging the jury and traversing the case to the next assize court commented on the laxity shown in the appointment of court constables and the fact that the sheriffs and court officials had been hampered by incompetent constables. Before court opened Wednesday morning Mr. Justice Greene had a 45-minute consultation with Clifford Magone, special Crown prosecutor, Sheriff John T. Field, Crown Attorney Harry Deyman and Defence Counsel Fred C. Richardson, in his chambers.

When court convened the jury were excluded and Mr. Greene made the following observation:

"It has been reported to me by the sheriff that there was a separation of some members of the jury from remaining members of the jury this morning and it is incumbent upon me to examine and decide if there had been an infraction of the rules which might prejudice the accused or an inadvertent violation of the rule that the jury must be kept together. Mr. Magone have you anything to say? My own impression is that two jurors were separated from ten. My feeling is that the jurors be sworn and examined by counsel and anyone else involved," declared Mr. Greene.

Prosecutor Agrees

"I agree with Your Lordship that if Your Lordship should determine there had been a separation of the jurymen and find if anyone spoke to them about the case, Your Lordship would either proceed with the trial or find that there was no course but to order a new trial in fairness to the accused," commented Mr. Magone.

Mr. Magone then informed the court that the two court constables in charge of the jury were Constables Fred Bateman and James Scarfe. Constable Bateman was excluded from the court while Constable Scarfe gave his evidence.

"Were you one of the constables who were placed in charge of the jury," Mr. Magone asked.

Constable Scarfe replied that he and Constable Bateman looked after the jury. He testified that Wednesday morning Constable Bateman took two of the jury over to the barber shop at the Royal Hotel for a shave. The jurymen stayed at the Royal Hotel and at the British Hotel across the street. Constable Scarfe said that he kept the other ten together in the hotel and that nobody spoke to them. When he proceeded over to the court house, which is opposite the British Hotel and the Royal Hotel, he took the ten jurymen with him and left them on the corner while he ran over to the barber shop to tell the other two jurymen to hurry up.

Kept Then In Sight

"While I did this I did not lose sight of the ten jurymen standing on the corner," testified Constable Scarfe. Constable Bateman was then sworn. "I took two of them to the barber shop because they wanted a shave. The rest were in the British Hotel at that time.

They ate at the British Hotel and slept at the New Royal Hotel. The two jurors asked me if they could get a shave before court and I went with them. All that was said in there was that they wanted a shave, there was no mention of the case whatsoever. Then we came over to the town hall after Constable Scarfe had come to the barber shop to tell us to hurry up. When we came into the court house the other ten were standing in the hall way of the town hall" testified Constable Bateman. "As far as the barber shop is concerned things might have been in order but I can't say the same as far as the other ten jurymen are concerned," observed Mr. Magone to His Lordship.

The facts reveal that ten jurymen were left alone on the street and I cannot assume that nobody spoke to them while they were left alone on the street. I have no course but to traverse this case Mr. Sheriff, recall the jury stated Mr. Justice Greene. When the jury came in again, His Lordship addressed them as follows:

Must Have New Trial

"Gentlemen of the Jury through your failure to conform to the regulations I must grant a new trial and traverse this case to the next sittings. In one way you are not particularly to blame. As a trial judge I have been burdened with the cares and responsibilities for directing the observation of court regulations with which no judge should be burdened and likewise the sheriff has been burdened with the incompetency of court constables.

I realize that the war has created many difficulties in regard to man power, but capital cases are vitally important and it seems to me that the officials of the court should have competent assistants.

I have seen sheriffs assisted by men past their best age with no uniforms or mark of office in order that the jury and the public will know that they were dealing with some body of responsibility.

Some years ago a trial judge said that if a man in a business suit were to order a citizen about, the citizen might within his rights resent it and might take active measures of a nature that would be unfortunate in results. I have seen some court constables in that kind of attire. You are discharged from further service in this case and I direct that the accused be traversed in custody until a future jury sittings of court," declared Mr. Justice Greene.

national restrictions and the complete absence of discriminations, preferences, exclusive rights and arbitrary landing fees and charges.

"We also seek control of subsidies, not through any impractical methods of direct control, but through control of the uneconomical consequences of subsidies, such as rate cutting, and the maintenance of services at levels greater than traffic warrants."

The international authority Canada proposed would consist of an assembly, a board and a number of regional councils. All member states would have representation on the assembly while the board would be composed of twelve members. Each of the eight major states would elect one member and the other four would be appointed by the assembly.

The regional councils would have authority to issue certificates to airline companies in their region. Where more than one region was involved, this authority would rest with the board.

Member states would be required to provide and maintain airports and other ground facilities. To ensure service in thinly-populated areas, the international authority might opportion costs between states interested.

Mr. Howe cited seven purposes of the international air authority:

1. To avert misuse of civil aviation creating a threat to the security of nations.

2. To avert conflicts capable of creating friction among governments and peoples.

3. To avoid the development of economically wasteful competitive practices.

4. To ensure equitable distribution of international air routes and to give every member state opportunity to participate in international airline operations in accordance with its needs and resources.

5. To encourage the continued development of aircraft design and operation.

6. To discourage discrimination in operations, the use of bases, definition of prohibited areas and customs regulations.

7. To offer safe, convenient and economical services, a free choice of alternative services and "generally to meet the needs of the people of the world for efficient and economical air transport."

"In our opinion the lesson to be drawn from the history of international air transport in the period between wars is clear. To permit a reversion, after the war, to the inter-war system, would mean a revival of the pre-war international rivalry in air transport . . . The international friction which would result would be much more serious than formerly, partly because air transport is so much more than it was then, to the prosperity, security and prestige of nations and partly because a continuance, after the war, of the pre-war regime of the closed sky would result in unbalance between international regime in the air.

Make Things Easy

Mr. Howe said the Canadian plan had been discussed with a number of governments but there had been some misconceptions. Canada did not propose the internationalization of air transport; the international aspect was restricted to regulations.

The proposed authority would not have power to tell a nation whether its airlines should be government-owned or privately-owned. The Canadian plan was designed to facilitate rather than make it difficult for companies to obtain rights to operate on international lines.

There would be no interference with the powers now exercised by national licensing bodies, such as the civil aeronautics board of the United States.

South of the Maas (Meuse) river, enemy rear-guards were fighting off the Allied attacks on the escape bridges with the same bitter determination. Resistance was particularly savage on the appproaches to the Moerdike bridge over Hollandsch Diep. Farther east, British troops held 8,000 yards of the south bank of the Maas, and were fighting in Geertuidenberg.

In Eastern Holland, where the enemy last week struck out with a heavy attack west of Veino in an unsuccessful attempt to relieve pressure against the crumbling front north of Antwerp, a British counter-attack rolled up fresh gains, advancing two miles beyond Liesel, which was captured yesterday. With tank support, British infantry also cleared the enemy from a stretch along the banks of the Deurne canal.

In the Allied communique, there was still no mention of the advance of French troops to Baccart, reported yesterday by both the German and the Algiers radio. Other local gains were reported in the American sectors of the west front, however, including the capture of Letricourt and Abaucourt, northeast of Nancy.

knew him as a man of the highest integrity. Personally, he could say that he held Col. Ralston in the highest affectionate regard and he regretted that the Defence Minister had found it necessary to resign.

Mr. King said he was grateful that Gen. McNaughton had accepted the ministerial post at a time when all must consider not their personal feelings but their obligation to the state, to the United Nations and to the world. They must seek every way of furthering the war effort, and keep it in the high place it had in the world today.

After his brief statement, Mr. King introduced Gen. McNaughton to the reporters and then faced a series of questions.

He said he had not knowledge of other ministers resigning from the cabinet.

(It was understood that Navy Minister Macdonald had supported Col. Ralston is his proposals for conscription for overseas, and there was speculation he also might resign).

Mr. King said he did not wish to discuss matters other than those of the moment.

"Anything which has appeared in the press thus far was unauthorized," said the Prime Minister, evidently referring to newspaper items on the division of opinion within the cabinet.

"I hope the public realizes that no official statement has come from the government. Policies will be announced as is thought advisable."

He was asked if it was probable that parliament would be called before Jan. 31, the date of resumption decided at the last session.

"I can see no necessity for calling parliament before that date," he replied.

No Correspondence

He had read no correspondence in respect to the resignation of Col. Ralston as there had been none so far. The defence minister had resigned verbally in the presence of the cabinet, but had said he would send a letter.

"I see I have a letter from Col. Ralston this morning" said Mr. King lifting an envelope from his desk but indicating the contents had not been read.

Gen. McNaughton said he had undertaken the task of minister "in order to serve Canada and to ensure our army overseas received the support in fullest measure which is needed."

He had always been favored with co-operation from the press, and while he was commander overseas press men had been treated as colleagues with an important function in giving information to the people of Canada.

He hoped for similar co-operation in his new office. The times were difficult for Canada and the world and he would be happy if the press deal with what he had to say in a spirit of responsibility. This attitude would be a great service to the common cause and he looked forward to his association with the press representatives.

When Gen. McNaughton concluded, Mr. King said he wished to add a few words to what he had said.

"In inviting Gen. McNaughton to come into the cabinet and assume great responsibilities, I was seeking to get the one man who I felt at this time in that position could bring the greatest measure of confidence to the men overseas," he continued.

"I felt they would believe that their interests were foremost and the war effort would be maintained in the best manner possible.

"I also had in mind the confidence his appointment would bring to the fathers, mothers, relatives and other friends of the men overseas that every step would be taken to support them and that nothing would come before that support of the men overseas.

"I also had in mind that the people of Canada had the fullest confidence in Gen. McNaughton and will feel that this is the best appointment which could be made at this time in filling the post made vacant by the resignation of Col Ralston."

The morning was one of unusual excitement on Parliament Hill.

Announcement was made shortly after 10 o'clock that there would be a cabinet meeting at 11 a.m. and the ministers began to arrive well before the scheduled hour of meeting, driving up in their private cars and shaking their heads at reporters' questions.

All said that they could give no information to the press. Mr. King said later that all the ministers in the city, with the exception of Col. Ralston, were present. Munitions Minister Howe and Agriculture Minister Gardiner are away.

At 11.10 a.m. Mr. King appeared at the Privy Council door of the east block, smiled at the reporters, waved and hurried into his car.

I'll be back in a few minutes," he said, leaving them uncertain of his mission.

Approves Appointment

The cabinet had actually met for three minutes and in that time passed a minute approving the appointment of Gen. McNaughton. The minute later was approved by the Governor-General, and Gen. McNaughton, who went to Government House with the Prime Minister, was sworn in as Minister of Defence.

The Prime Minister and his new minister returned to the east block about noon.

Questioned further on the reasons for the resignation later, Mr. King said he did not intend to reveal cabinet matters until the proper time.

When the press conference was completed and Mr. King and Gen. McNaughton had been photographed, the Prime Minister went out with his new minister to accompany him to his office in a National Defence Headquarters building.

Gen. McNaughton has not been active in politics, but before the war he was looked on as a supporter of the Conservative Party. As a fellow-Westerner he was a close acquaintance of Viscount Bennett, former Conservative Prime Minister, and he as appointed president of the National Research Council when the Bennett administration was in office.

The whole Government program thus far has been on the basis of voluntary overseas service, with the men called to compulsory military duty kept in Canada or adjoining territory unless they transferred to general service units of their own accord.

The home defence army would continue in existence with the primary task of defending Canadian and adjoining territory against invasion, but being gradually reduced in size through the movement of men to civilian jobs considered to be in the national interest.

Mr. King has the solid backing of a large majority of the 20 cabinet ministers who remain following the resignation of Col. Ralston. Some who personally might favor conscription for overseas remain loyal to his leadership, and Mr. King is not convinced that an emergency sufficiently great exists to warrant a further step being taken.

Resignation Possible

Mr. Macdonald was understood to have backed Col. Ralston's advocacy of compulsory overseas service for call-ups. His resignation also was considered possible.

Air Minister Power is Associate Defence Minister and usually acts for Col. Ralston when the senior Defence Minister is out of Ottawa.

Political observers said it was possible the cabinet division would hasten the date of the forthcoming general election, as the Prime Minister might decide to have the voters rule on the present voluntary overseas service policy being continued.

Mr. King was left with a majority of his 20 remaining ministers giving support to the present policy of overseas service being on a voluntary basis.

This policy has the firm backing of the five French-speaking ministers, while most of the remaining members give unwavering support to Mr. King personally, and accept his opinion that the present policy should be continued.

Overseas service for the call-ups, of whom there are more than 70,000 now on duty in Canada, blew into a major issue in the cabinet last week when lengthy and frequent sittings began.

Col. Ralston returned from a tour of the European battlefronts three weeks ago and was able to give his cabinet colleagues detailed information on the need of men and the attitude of the front line soldiers towards the present voluntary overseas that the Zombies must be sent overseas now.

This statement and the Prime Minister's reply to it are awaited with breathless interest in Ottawa. Meanwhile Gen McNaughton takes over the primary direction of the Canadian war effort and Col. Ralston becomes a private citizen.

He and all other key ministers involved in the Cabinet argument were incommunicado to-day, and up to noon there had not been even an official announcement of Gen. McNaughton's appointment, but it was understood Mr. King was taking Gen. McNaughton to Government House to be sworn in as the Minister of National Defence.

Amid all the confusions of an excited Capital one fact stood out clearly above all others— General McNaughton has personally undertaken to maintain the war effort without a resort to overseas conscription, and the burden of doing it will fall primarily on him. His task will involve difficulties so great that Col. Ralston considered them insuperable.

They relate chiefly to the regrouping, retraining and reorganizing of Canada's large reserves of Active Army personnel in Britain and in this country who were largely trained for special uses and not as infantry. As for the Government it faces an immediate test of its non-conscription policy in a by-election when General McNaughton seeks a seat in the House of Commons. This by-election prelude to a full debate on the whole conscription issue in Parliament will probably prove one of the most strenuous in the history of the nation.

However, the latter had left his wallet in his hotel before he went out with Cushing. Police say Cushing is part Polish and part Chinese and had recenly been discharged from the local car ferry. The robbery took place in a lonely spot at the west-end of the town, police stated. Cushing was locked up and will appear to-day on a robbery charge.

Council Postpones Tax Sale Two Weeks

COBOURG, Nov. 2 — (ENS). — Cobourg town council has postponed for two weeks its tax sale proceedings in order to establish without doubt the legality of the tax sale which is contemplated. Councillor Judd Kennedy at this week's meeting of the council questioned whether the council was in order when it failed to hang up a list of the tax delinquents in the clerk's office. This drew the explanation from Councillor Alan Field that the council had tried always to protect citizens on the tax sale list by not publishing the list.

At Councillor Field's request, the tax sale proceedings were stayed for two weeks in order that he could ascertain if all the technicalities had been complied with.

The Japanese Defeat

It is not too much to say that the great defeat which he Japanese Navy has suffered in its battle with the American Navy off the Philippines has decided the outcome of the Pacific war. Unless the United Nations are extremely tardy in pressing the advantage which they have gained, Japan will never recover from this blow. We have always been confident that we should win the fight in the Pacific, but there have been times when our confidence has undergone heavy strain; the distances were great, the enemy was resourceful, and our progress was disappointing and slow. Now it may safely be said that we shall win the war with Japan sooner than has hitherto been expected.

In some respects the defensive strategy of Japan is comparable with that of Great Britain, and Britain could not hope to defend herself without the Royal Navy; Japan's navy has been shattered, and although she may still be able to collect enough ships for small engagements, she can never muster a large enough force to protect her home islands from a determined assault. Indeed, the U.S. forces are already pressing their advantage; while the naval battle was still in progress a force of 100 B-29's attacked an aircraft factory not far from the Nagasaki naval base on Kyushu island, and did great damage. The Japanese know now that they are open to heavy attack; they are, in fact, in a position comparable to that of the German Reich—there is no territory into which they can retreat.

The naval battle of the Philippines is one of the decisive battles of this war. It will do much to shorten the fight, crippling enemy defence, and cutting down the distance which the attackers must travel, and the caution which they must show in their assaults. We may now look for a quickening of pace in the Pacific war.

Children As Snipers

The first German civilian snipers to be captured in the Aachen area were Willy, Bernard and Victor Etschenburg, aged fourteen, ten and eight respectively, and Hubert Heinrichs, who is ten; the boys had two rifles, and were caught shooting at an American gun crew. This news has been received with horror, as well it might be, for although these boys are mere children they are able to kill, and have already taken up the horrrible pursuit of killing. Now we know that there are other little boys who are acting as snipers inside Germany, whether with official consent or not we cannot say.

What is to be done about it? Well, in the first place, we must realize that we cannot have our cake and eat it too, and if we want to go on telling stories about heroic boy guerillas in Russia and Poland we must not condemn these German children as little fiends who are maddened with blood-lust. The plain fact is that when children become killers, civilization has sunk painfully low, whether the children belong to our allies or to the enemy. The four young Germans who were caught firing at the American forces are much too young to have any valid idea of whether they were behaving heroically or despicably.

But they bring sharply into focus one of our greatest post-war problems. What are we going to do with German children who are thoroughly indoctrinated with Nazi ideas, who imagine that they belong to a grievously wronged Master Race, and who are poisoned through and through with a passion for revenge? The first ten years of a child's life are of utmost importance, and the ideas which are formed then last, in some form or other, during the whole of adult life: only exceptional people, by dint of profound self-searching, are able to depart completely from their early training. There are no more exceptional people among the Germans than there are in any other race; indeed, there are probably fewer now, for many of the most intelligent people in the Reich have been killed, or driven abroad, and Nazi education has been hostile to the free development and use of the mind and the reason. What shall we do with all these children who think like Nazis?

There is no simple answer. But unless we are vigilant for a century, we shall see Nazism spring up again in Germany. However evil the Nazi ideal may be, it possesses surprising vigour.

No More Pack-Drill

We are interested to read that pack-drill has been abolished in the Canadian Navy, at the order of the Navy Minister, the Hon. Angus Macdonald. For those who do not know, pack-drill is a form of punishment in which men march about with heavily loaded packs on their backs, and their rifles held over their heads. It is a punishment of long standing, and like many such punishments it is stupid and degrading. It is stupid, because it achieves nothing; degrading, because it treats grown men as no intelligent teacher would treat a child.

Discipline is necessary in everything, and in the armed services it has to be fairly rigid in order to be effective. For brutal men brutal punishments are necessary; they cannot understand anything else. In the days when navies were recruited from the lowest ranks of society flogging, pack-drill and keel-hauling were probably needed to preserve order. But nowadays, when our navies are recruited from the whole body of citizens, and when the general standard of intelligence in the services is higher than it used to be, these punishments are out of place.

There is little room in modern warfare for the ruffian whose only useful quality is desperate courage in the face of danger. Modern war is fought with intricate machines, and the men who operate the machines have to be intelligent and alert and self-disciplined. They do not need to be treated like animals in order to make them behave themselves; if they need such treatment, they are not of much use in the forces and are probably better outside them.

The Navy Minister has done away with a bad old custom which we took from the Royal Navy long after its usefulness had vanished; he deserves congratulations from all humane and intelligent people. Discipline and brutality are not synonymous.

Counter-Revolution

Before the First Great War the automobile was still something of a curiosity, and carriage horses, pairs, tandems and even four-in-hands were frequently seen. The drivers of these equipages, blind to the advance of the Machine Age, confidently predicted that the auto fad would not last, or at least that it would never oust the horse from its place of favour. Even in 1930, when the automobile rage was at its height, there were those who whispered darkly "The Horse Will Come Back'".

The Horse came back in North Bay last week. Two Provincial Police Constables, L. Needham and J. E. Worrall, were worried and mystified by the way in which paint was being chipped off their black and white police cruiser. Last week they found a milk-wagon horse gnawing at the car, scarring and eating the paint. The Horse was striking a blow for the old regime:

But unhappily for the equine counter-revolutionist, the hour for action is past. The automobile is dead, although there are people who say that it will never give place to the helicopter. It will. If the Horse means business it had better get to work on the helicopter at once.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A man was jailed in New York for breaking into a tobacconist's, and when he got to his cell he was supplied with his favourite brand of cigarettes. Who says that crime doesn't pay?

"Canadians in Holland Fight In Foul Weather", says a headline. But as the Windsor Star observes, some of those lads come from where foul weather is made.

Washington is preparing to take "a post-card poll" of all the pigs in the U.S. This will give the pigs a chance to use their pens.

As Dr. Goebbels persistently points out, the Allies are divided among themselves. Some of them are attacking Germany from the West, while others persist in approaching from the East.

A French court has sentenced Pierre Laval to death in absentia. Which is just as pretentious and silly as the action of the court which sentenced de Gaulle to death in absentia in 1940. There is only one proper time to sentence a man to death, and that is when he is facing his judges.

The Outlook for Civil Aviation

(By B. T. RICHARDSON)

MONTREAL: The world pattern of civil aviation after the war—in which the customer may be able to buy a ticket for an air trip across the Atlantic or the Pacific or almost anywhere in the world—will inevitably be an out-growth of the military air transport development during the war. Every air-minded country in the world has immediate interest in post-war aviation for two reasons: the expectation that it will expand its own internal services, and the hope that it will participate in international services.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE Commonwealth air conversations in Montreal have been dealing with air routes between members of the British Commonwealth. This is, at present, a matter of military air transport, because almost all facilities on air soutes between countries, except for a few cases like the Canada-United States services, will be tied up with high priority government and military passengers, mail and freight as long as the war lasts. The average citizen who wants to fly to Europe or South America or Asia, will have to wait. But he will not have to wait too long, for the air line operators are eager to begin soliciting business.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE Montreal conversations have been a logical starting point for the countries concerned, though care has been taken to avoid giving the impression that the British Nations were getting together on pre-arranged plans for the United Nations Aviation Conference in Chicago on Nov. 1. Efforts to avoid this impression have seemed, to this observer, excessive. A dozen or more newspapermen, who came to Montreal, found the delegates, particularly the Canadians, wearing a deep conspiratorial air. The Montreal conversations received a bad press, as a result, the most notable example being a story in the Montreal Gazette and Toronto Globe and Mail that Canada was objecting to participating in an Empire air service and that such a service was sure to be formed whether or not Canada comes in. Thus history was repeating itself in Canadian policies and the Canadian Government was being accused by its home critics of opposing other British nations, a situation similar to the outcry engendered about Australia's Empire secret aerial plan last spring which proved unacceptable to any British nation.

◇ ◇ ◇

THOUGH high policy, such as a post-war Empire air service, could not be decided by a meeting of aviation officials such as this, the point is worth clarifying for the record. The truth is that no British country wants an Empire air services as such. These countries, more than any others, have laid their cards on the table in advance of the United Nations conference. The British policy, disclosed in a white paper, calls for an international control body with executive powers and with regional panels; the Canadian policy, set out in the draft plan of last March, calls for an international control body with an executive of 12 members, among which the eight leading aviation countries of the world would be sure of a permanent place; the Australia-New Zealand policy, set out last January, calls for establishing an international authority to actually operate trunk line services. These three viewpoints, published for purposes of discussion, are not intransigent and every other country realizes that.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE truth about the Montreal conversations is this: in the coming extension of the military forces of the British nations into war fronts against Japan, they will need quick military air transport. They will set these up whether or not there is an international agreement for the future. Some services of this kind have been established. Britain, for instance, through its two powerful aviation agencies, the R.A.F. Transport Command and British Overseas Airways Corporation, has been sending its officers, couriers and diplomats to many parts of the world. Canada has opened its own R.C.A.F. Transport Command and T.C.A. services across the Atlantic to Britain, the Mediterranean and India. Australia, which has urgently needed air connections with Europe, has opened a service across the Indian Ocean, one of the miracles of the war. It has had close connections with North America through the U.S. army and navy transport commands. Neither Australia nor New Zealand could open a transPacific service without other help at present, and it is only natural that the participation of Britain and Canada should be studied.

◇ ◇ ◇

ANOTHER important fact exists in the prospect that military air services used during the war will be the starting point of post-war services. One point almost overlooked is that the United States Government when inviting 55 nations to Chicago, advised them specifically to bring along proposals for international air services. The Americans said, in effect, let us all see what each of us plans to do, and then we will work out the pattern. The Canada-Australia service, including New Zealand, will obviously be a factor to take into account in future world plans. The problem of how the operational facilities of the countries concerned in such a route, and in other routes, linking British countries, will be co-ordinated, has been the problem under study in Montreal.

The Tools of War Are Killers

When "the most perfect bomb we have found yet" exploded under their exploratory hammering, two young Meaford lads were instantly killed and their mother seriously injured. The tragedy points once again to the terrible danger lurking in the tools of war. They are all potential killers, and should never be allowed in homes, whether they are souvenirs or trophies of youthful excursions to nearby military establishments. All of them can kill. They were designed for that purpose.

It will be difficult for most people to understand just why these lads were allowed to hammer away at a bomb in their homes. Apparently, however, they had collected these weapons as playthings before, and perhaps too great familiarity had the traditional effect. But the terrible result in this instance draws attention once more to an added responsibility of parents living near training areas. They should impress upon their children the danger of any weapon the latter might find, and sternly refuse to let children bring such weapons into the house.

This is not the first such incident. Another of recent occurrence happened when a souvenir sent home by a soldier turned out to be loaded, with tragic results. There is only one way to deal with all such souvenirs and discoveries—put them out in the back yard and telephone the military authorities. It might hurt someone's feelings—but it might save someone's life. —Kingston Whig-Standard.

"FROST IS ON THE PUMPKIN!"

Angus Macdonald and German Press

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

IF further proof were needed that the magnificent achievements of the Royal Canadian Navy have earned international recognition, it may be found in an interesting letter from an R.C.A.F. officer now a prisoner of war in Germany, excerpts from which were published in this newspaper Thursday. Flt. Lt. Kingsley Brown writes that the German press shows a keen interest in Canadian naval affairs, and that Hon. Angus Macdonald receives more publicity in Germany than any other Canadian. Mr. Macdonald is pictured by a Berlin newspaper as working with quiet confidence and determination toward his goal.

Regardless of its source, the picture is a true one, as most Canadians are well aware. The only detail lacking is the fact that Mr. Macdonald now believes his goal is practically reached, and his job finished. However, that detail does not detract from the picture as a whole; Canada's Navy Minister needed great powers of confidence and determination, to say nothing of ability, in order to reach that goal.

When war began, German opinion probably ranked the Canadian Navy about as high as a flotilla of Fiji war canoes—and with some reason. At that time Canada had but 16 ships, and only one or two of those were modern. Since then, the Dominion has acquired and manned a navy of more than 700 ships, most of which were constructed in Canada by Canadians. It is an unparalleled record of naval expansion, and it is not surprising that the achievement has inspired even the German press to the prediction that this country is fated to become a great sea-power. Nor is it surprising to find the same newspapers referring in almost flattering terms to the man who headed the Navy Department during that period of expansion.

It is quite possible that a great future awaits Canada in maritime affairs. We have learned that Canadians make excellent deep-water men, and we have learned that Canadians can build deep-water ships. It would be indeed strange if we did not turn that knowledge to good use in the peacetime world. If we do, if Canada becomes a great maritime nation, the development will be a direct outgrowth of Canada's naval record in this war, and we shall owe an even greater debt of gratitude to the men who proved that Canadians could build, sail and fight ships with any race that ever took to the ocean.

Laughing It Off Among Friends

(LONDON TIMES)

AN American newspaper has come out with the suggestion that Britons and Americans should organize a mutual "Let's Laugh It Off" Society dedicated to the principle of "never taking too seriously the brickbats that are all too often tossed back and forth between them by frivolous and prejudiced elements". There is much to be said for the idea, and actually the society is already in being, although it has no organization and its members are unaware of their own membership.

In both countries laughter, different as the tone and pitch of the laugh may be, is a sovereign shield against the worst the frivolous and the prejudiced can do, and so long as the habit of true laughter persists there is little danger, to use the words used recently by a member of Parliament in a different context, that "a sigh of perplexity" from one side of the Atlantic will sound like "a hurricane of abuse" on the other.

Perplexity there may well be in the form of humor of the other country takes, and there is a wide gulf between the idiom of Punch and of the New Yorker. American jokes have, however, a far greater chance of going down well over here than our conservative and parochial jests have of convulsing Americans. The traffic in humorous entertainment is more one-way than reciprocal, and American films and broadcasts find a vast fifth column in Britain eager to welcome their invasion.

American humor, for all its speed, is by no means difficult to understand, and one of the reasons was given the other day over the wireless by an American who set out to explain its spirit. His analysis was thorough and he made the point that America, as a great mass-producing country, was apt to rely overmuch on such ready-made, mechanical catchwords as "Oh, leah" and "Sez you", which can apparently stand an inordinate amount of repetition.

We like to imagine that our own humor is more subtle, inventive, and spontaneous, and the trouble is that in our defence of it we may lose that tolerance which is humor's mainspring. A sense of humor is a valued possession, and one that no nation or individual will ever admit being without. A man may allow himself to be called a knave or a fool, but the charge that he lacks humor is not to be borne.

In order to emphasize possession of this darling quality, many otherwise blameless persons are inclined to "press," as golfers would say, and so qualify as those "funny fellows, comic men, and clowns of private life," whom Ko-Ko very properly had on his list. Indeed, too highly, and wrongly, developed a sense of humor can be almost as disastrous as no humor at all, and a consistent harping on the (alleged) humorous characteristics of other peoples is hardly calculated to sweeten international relationships.

"The joke has gone quite far enough," remarks a character in one of Flecker's rare excursions into prose narative, "and though it may amuse you vastly to make a fool of me, I'll knock down the next one of you who tries it on," and the sentiment, even if it remains unspoken, must have the sympathy of many Americans after listening to endless jokes about gangsters and of Englishmen tired of hearing their way of speaking caricatured.

Laughter, because it is so precious, must be guarded against abuse. By all means let us laugh off brickbats and our differences, but let us take care that the laugh does not become self-conscious and false.

Colonies And The Charter

A minor but knotty point arose at the recent Dumbarton Oaks conference which offers some indication of the many headaches awaiting those who will be responsible for ironing out the details of the peace. The discussion concerned the fate of colonies of Axis nations.

The Chinese delegation suggested that certain colonial areas be put under an international trusteeship after the war. Mr. Anthony Eden has already expressed Great Britain's opposition to any effort to return lost colonies to Italy, without suggesting who would get them.

These are only two opinions, but they serve as a reminder that all 26 nations at war with the Axis have subscribed to the Atlantic Charter, and the latter instrument desires its signatories to "respect the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live." Supposing one of the Italian colonies wants to remain under Italian rule, what happens then?

It is unlikely that former Italian colonies would make such a request, but the discussion of the status of colonies emphasizes the fact that a certain amount of compromise will almost certainly be necessary between the broad idealism of the Alantic Charter and the realistic demands made by construction of a framework for international security. The impossibility of immediate extension to all peoples of the right embodied in the above quotation should be obvious; people who have for a generation known no other form of government than fascism will need some education before they are able to make a reasoned decision as to the manner in which they shall be governed.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

A Kinder Plan

The Government's proposals for workmen's compensation are welcome—not so much for the cash, but for the kindness. Injured workers will in many cases get no more compensation than they do now. But there will be an entirely new attitude towards them. In future the workman injured in industry will have no less right to his compensation than the soldier injured in war. If he is dissatisfied with the award given him by the local pensions officer, he can take his dispute to a tribunal of employers and trade union leaders. At no stage will it be necessary for a worker to go to the law courts, with their terrifying formalities for a sick and anxious man. — London Daily [illegible]

A Bible Message

Now the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field which the Lord God has made. And he said unto the woman, Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden? And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden: but of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die.

And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die: for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil.

And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her; and he did eat. And the eyes of them both were opened, and they knew that they were naked....

And the Lord God called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou? And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself.

And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat? And the man said, The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat. And the Lord God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat. (Gen. 3: 1-7, 9-13.)

BANANAS FOR BRITAIN

Since the war the fine fleets of refrigerated banana freighters have been devoted to war purposes. To enable the West Indian plantations to be kept in being, the British Government has made grants to the growers; in addition, a substantial export trade has been established with Canada and the United States.

The news now comes that the plantations have been devastated by hurricane, and Britain has decided to increase the grants to enable the banana plantations to be rehabilitated.

Mr. Richard Williams, of Kingston, Jamaica, chairman of the All-Island Banana Growers' Association, is discussing post-war plans in London and ventures the opinion that if the shipping is released Britain should get bananas by April next.—P.L.A. Monthly.

Young's Point Red Cross Reviews Year's Work

YOUNG'S POINT, Nov. 2—(ENS)—The annual Red Cross business meeting of the Young's Point Society was held in St. Aidan's Parish Hall, with an excellent attendance. Mrs. G. A. Douglas, president, was in the chair and opened the meeting with prayer. Mrs. E. Johnston, secretary, read the minutes of the last annual meeting, and gave an excellent report on the year's work and activities. Mrs. Malcolm Harvey, treasurer, gave an itemized report on moneys raised during the year amounting to $338.65 and the expenditures for the year being $358.82.

Mrs. D. Darling, works convener, reported the following shipped to headquarters in Lakefield: 32 large quilts, 7 crib quilts, 2 wool afghans, 28 pairs men's pyjamas, with 3 extra pairs trousers, 22 long-sleeved sweaters, 14 pairs of socks, 28 pairs gloves, 5 pairs mitts, 17 helmets, 23 boys' shirts and 1 lady's nightgown, also for war victims 5 pairs children's mitts, 1 fur coat, and1 rag doll.

Mrs. M. Harvey, who has been appointed to take over Mrs W. Scollard's place as quilt convener, reported on quilts made and tops and quilts donated by members. Mrs. R. Nicholson reported on the cutting out and sewing of pyjamas and shirts; Mrs. Arthur Morris, finance convener, reported on the two general salvage collections, fat and bones collection, and the emergency paper drive, as a special appeal during July and August. This society collected 900 pounds. She also itemized the different bingos held during the year, the quilt raffled, and the pair of feather pillows auctioned at the last bingo.

Blood Doner Work.

Mr. Morris reported on the blood donors. There were 32 donors on the honor roll, and a large percentage of these were past their sixth donation, he said. He stressed the urgent need for more donors, and asked each member if they knew of anyone who would become a donor, to get in touch with him. Votes of thanks were passed to Mrs. Douglas as president, also all other members of the executive for their work during the past year.

Re-elect Officers.

Mrs. Walter Young presided for the election of officers. A motion was made and passed that all officers be returned for another year.

The Lakefield Red Cross was represented by Mrs. H. Ketchum, Mrs. Quackenbush and Mrs. E. Edwards. Mrs. Ketchum adressed the meeting, and said that Lakefield could always depend on the Young's Point workers to send in perfectly finished garments, and although, probably, workers felt at times they did not accomplish much, it was a grand help. Mrs. Edwards praised especially the knitters of Young's Point Society At the close of the meeting lunch was served by the women of the vilage and a social hour enjoyed.

Pretty Connecticut Lawyer Opposing Clare Boothe-Luce

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(CP)—To an impartial, non-voting observer of the 1944 United States presidential and congressional election campaign one of the most interesting sidelights of the battle to be decided at the polls Nov. 7 is the contest between the luscious lassies of Connecticut's fourth district.

There, where Clare Boothe Luce, playwright, author, lecturer and journalist, seeks re-election to the House of Representatives on the Republican ticket, the worried Democrats decided something should be done to offset her good looks, charm, wit and general, all-around political ability. They put up Margaret E. Connors, a practicing lawyer in Bridgeport. There's a man in the race, a Socialist, but he hardly counts.

Miss Connors, a dark-eyed brunette, wouldn't be handicapped in a beauty contest and she indicated clearly yesterday she is not afraid of her opponent. At a press conference here she made the flat prediction she carry the district by 5,000 votes.

Sends Telegram

She also made public a telegram she sent to Mrs. Luce asking some pertinent questions concerning her opponent's views on election issues and also asked what Mrs. Luce meant when she said recently the Republicans would be going into a "whiter White House" next January. Mrs. Luce could not be reached for comment.

The big guns of the Presidential campaign, meanwhile, continued to fire last night. In another jeer-provoking assault on President Roosevelt, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican candidate, charged at Buffalo, N.Y., that Mr. Roosevelt was making "worthless" campaign promises and attacked what he termed the President's "government by abuse and smear."

Gov. Dewey declared in an address prepared for a national broadcast that if he won the Presidency in Tuesday's election he would take office Jan. 20 "without a promise, expressed or implied, to a living soul," except for public campaign pledges he had made. Here, in brief, is what he said the Republicans would do if they were victorious:

The Program.

1. "Direct all government policies toward the goal of full employment through full production at a high level of wages."
2. "Adopt an entirely new tax structure" designed primarily to "create jobs."
3. "Make our social security system available to every American."
4. "Establish a definite and secure floor under farm prices."
5. "Restore free collective bargaining in America."
6. "Abolish the greater part" of government reports required from big and little business.
7. "Bring an end to business monopoly" through the acquisition of "a competent staff of prosecutors" in the Department of Justice.
8. "To establish an entirely new basis between the President and Congress."

The Democrats countered with Vice-Presidential Candidate Senator Harry S. Truman and Vice-President Henry Wallace who appeared together on a platform in Madisen Square Garden, New York, for the first time in the campaign. Both supported Mr. Roosevelt as the man to carry the country into the critical years and waded into the Republicans for their "un-American campaign."

Centreville Church Marks Anniversary

BAILIEBORO, Nov. 2—(ENS)—Rev. A. C. Mullin, of Warkworth, was guest speaker at Centreville Presbyterian church on Sunday, when that congregation held its annual anniversary services. The church was decorated with a beautiful array of chrysanthemums and also two vases of red roses. Large congregations attended both morning and evening and Rev. Mullin delivered two inspiring sermons. He stressed the need of their loyalty to the church their fathers built and enjoined them to ask themselves if they as a people of to-day were not following the practice of certain Old Testament kings in 'giving straw sacrifices,' 'chopping off the borders of truth,' 'lowering the pool of purification' and 'giving away their Sabbaths.'

A feature of the anniversary was the music provided by visiting artists. Duets by Mrs. King and Mrs. Goodman of Port Hope, 'One Sweetly Solemn Thought' and 'When I Survey the Wondrous Cross'; solos by Mrs. King, 'Bless This House,' and 'The Stranger of Galilee'; solos by Mrs. Goodman, 'I Come to Thee' and 'I Shall Not Pass This Way Again,' and a male quartet from Millbrook, Messrs. Might, Coombe, Ouelette and McDowell, sang 'Abide With Me.'

On the Night of January 19th, 1944...

Corporal Harold Bradley Leppard was one of a patrol sent out to locate enemy positions on his regiment's front in Italy.

The patrol located an enemy post of unknown strength. Cpl. Leppard set out with the patrol commander to obtain a prisoner, leaving the rest of the patrol in observation.

The two managed to get within 5 yards of the post undetected—then rushed it. A machine gun opened up on them and wounded Cpl. Leppard in the stomach and twice in the arm.

Although severely wounded, Cpl. Leppard killed the German manning the machine gun and one other with his machine carbine. This enabled the patrol commander to overpower and capture the third member of the post.

In spite of the intense pain of his wounds, Cpl. Leppard then helped to escort the prisoner back to the patrol. For his courage, dash and determination, he was awarded the Military Medal.

Where does Duty end, Corporal Leppard?

IF you can get men like Corporal Leppard to talk . . . which is apt to be difficult . . . they will assure you that in war there is no end to duty until the job is done—whatever the cost may be.

And you may think to yourself "That's all very right and proper for a fighting man, but surely it can't apply at this stage of the war to people at home like me".

Yet all the while, as surely as you ever knew anything, you know in your innermost heart that it does!

You know that to ease up before victory is an accomplished fact is neither courageous nor wise. Commonsense will tell you that the terrific intensity of the war in recent months has greatly increased Canada's borrowing needs for war purposes. And while more and more Canadian boys are risking wounds and death daily—counting desperately on your support—you surely cannot betray their trust.

So doubt no more what to do about Victory Bonds. Because the need is greater than it has ever been before, buy one more bond than you have bought in any previous Victory Loan.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 — (AP) — There's always something going on in Brooklyn . . . . Everything Was Jake

Alex Robb of the Thoroughbred Racing Associations (Inc.) comes up with this one about Jacob Pincus, a famous horse trainer in the old days and later a race starter. . . . Seems that one day at Jerome Park, Pincus was having trouble with a start, especially with a horse ridden by an English amateur rider. . . . Finally Pincus sent the field away but the Englishman was left. . . . Hoping it was a false start, the amateur asked: "Is it a 'go' Mr. Pincus?" . . . "Yes," said Jacob, pointing up the track, "and I think they went that way."

Central Downs King Edward

Ideal weather prevailed on Wednesday afternoon for the fourth game in the Public School soccer championship, for possession of the Kinsmen senior silverware, on King Edward Park, before an enthusiastic crowd, when D. Brooks scored the only goal of the game to give Central the first win in four encounters. They require to win two before gaining possesion of the trophy. Patterson, Central left full-back, was outstanding for the winners; while Breadman, Riches and Self were brilliant for the losers. After the game King Edward players went over and congratulated the scorer in true sportsmanship.

The next game will be played on Friday afternoon.

First Half

A perfect pitch greeted the teams as they opened up a cautious style of play. A raid by Lawson was frustrated by Patterson who sent McKenzie a direct pass along the ground. He punted over to Brooks who was nipped by Breadman as he stopped himself to get a shot on goal. This pressure was only temporary because Central settled down to a more constructive style of combination that resulted in King Edward being on the defensive. Play run from end to end until Wilson, Central, robbed Beggs of the ball while on the run, dribbled his way towards goal.

King Edward defense fell back into their own territory to make a barrier to progress. Brooks accepted a nice pass from Delahaye from the corner which he connected with a lightning drive for the top corner of the upright. Grant, King Edward goalie, made a brilliant attempt to divert the ball over the bar but their was too much weight behind the ball, to give Central a one-goal lead. This setback to King Edward added more pep into the game as they went on a rampage to get the equalizer and bombarded the Central goal from all angles. This method of attack suited Patterson, at left full back, for Central, who responded with a smooth anticipational style that baffled the King Edward forwards as he seemed to come out of the scrimmages always with the ball to clear the situation. The encounter was stopped a little time while Byers change a busted right boot. This short rest resulted in Central reviving the long swinging passes from wing to wing thereby distributing the play all over the field in an attempt to break up the solid defense of Breadman and Downer at full back. Half-time—Central 1, King Edward 0.

Second Half

A King Edward re-arranged team on the forward line with Byers, taking up the pivot position, made his presence known around the goal. In a quiet attitude, Forbes and Patterson never wavered or faltered as King Edward half-backs, kept plying the ball directly to the foot of their new pivot. On one occasion Beggs evaded the full backs cleverly that compelled the custodian to run out of his goal to save his charge.

Missed Open Goal

Central replied with a steady attack on King Edward goal. Brooks and Whitnall missed their objective with long drives. Riches robbed Brooks in front of goal and centered upfield. Byers punted right in between the full backs. Lawson trapped the ball smartly to go towards goal with only the goalie to beat but his marksmanship was wide. As time wore on Central never gave up battling to increase their count. In fact Dolan and Hum combination was pretty to watch while they went right into goal to give Whitnall a pass that he skimmed over the crossbar by inches. Both underwent a series of raids until the final whistle. Full time—Central 1, King Edward 0.

Central—J. Hutchinson, goal; J. Forbes and E. Patterson, full backs; H. Wilson and W. Noble, halves; K. Delahaye, J. Whitnall, D. Brooks, T. Hum and W. Dolan, forwards; subs, G. Chambers and K. Howard.

King Edward—J. Grant, goal; D. Downer and B. Breadman, full backs; A. Riches, J. Byers and R. Self, halves; M. Chambers, D. Buchan, K. Lawson, D. Anderson and R. Beggs, forwards; subs, G. Robinson, J. Hooper and P. Ferguson.

Referee—Stan McLeod.

Saturday's game with Toronto Balmy Beach seconds may be the last home battle of the season for the Peterborough juniors because the Collegiate squads will be using Riverside Park a week from Saturday and the following week will be well into November and getting a bit chilly for exhibition football games. That, of course, is another reason why the biggest crowd of the season should be on hand Saturday to see the Peterborough squad tangle with the fast twelve from the Queen City. The Petes deserve generous support for they organized a team this season and have carried on in spite of discouraging conditions with no O.R.F.U. grouping possible and with no junior clubs within easy reach of Peterborough. The result has been that in order to stage games it has been necessary for the local team to bring down Toronto clubs and pay all their expenses and that naturally runs into money when it is figured most of the Queen City outfits bring 10 or 12 subs, and a manager and trainer along with them. Balmy Beach who play here Saturday has a wealth of good young material and the Petes will have to come up with their best football of the season to head them off. The game is called for 2.15 o'clock at Riverside Park.

Predictions that the competition in the Ladies' City Five Pin League this season was going to be keener than ever is confirmed by the standing up to date which shows a bunch of clubs practically all in a heap. Outboard Marines are leading the parade with 10 points but they are only a single point in front of four other clubs, last year's champion Westclox, Commandos, Merry Macs and Brintons all of whom have hung up 9 points. And only three points off the pace are Corvettes and Beavers with 7 points each. In other words three points is the spread between seven clubs and that is about as close as any loop could expect. Outboard Marines had a two point lead going into Monday night's game but Westclox managed to take two out of three games from the leaders to cut their margin in half. Kay Calladine sparked the losers with a cross of 766, top score for the night but the Big Bens softball bowling squad hung up a team total of 3198, with Aggie Anderson blazing the trail with 703. Nona Whetung, in her first season with the Westclox five, was well up in the scoring with 628.

It's A Real Race

As a result of Lindsay Collegiate's default to P.C.V.S. and a clean-cut victory by Oshawa Collegiate over Bowmanville High last Saturday, the Oshawa and Peterborough squads are now tied for first place in the Lake Shore senior group. To stand there the local students will have to win in Bowmanville this Saturday because Oshawa will be playing Lindsay that day and should cash in at the expense of the Scugog squad. Should the Petes lose that fixture they would drop back to a second place tie with Bowmanville, leaving Oshawa all alone in first place. No matter what happens at Bowmanville, however, the game here a week from Saturday is steadily taking on more importance. It looks as if the group may hinge on the result. Oshawa, according to George Campbell, "displayed power and weight in huge quantities" as they humbled the highly-rated Bowmanville squad 17 to 0 and the Oshawa scribe says the Motor City students have improved in leaps and bounds. However he warns them to be on their toes in their game with Lindsay this week, warning them that the tail-enders are due.

Writes Bre'er Campbell anent the group prospects: "The O.C.V.I. team had better not take this game for granted. They have to win in Lindsay this Sautrday in order to keep pace with the other two teams in the loop, Bowmanville and Peterborough, who have each won all their "home" games also. Peterborough visits Bowmanville this Saturday and there again is the chance for an "upset." However, should Bowmanville win at home on Saturday, and Oshawa win in Lindsay, then O.C.V.I. would be alone in first place for a week. Then on Nov. 11, O.C.V.I. visits Peterborough, when the COSSA title may be at stake, on that one game, even if Peterborough wins in Bowmanville, then 1st place will still hinge on that final game. On the other hand, if each team beats Lindsay twice and win their other "home games," then when it's all over, there will still be three teams tied for first place. Providing they attend strictly to business this week and on Saturday afternoon, O.C.V.I. should be able to win in Lindsay and then they'll at least have a game in hand, in the final stretch. Against Bowmanville, Oshawa's powerful line plungers, Lindsay and Joyce, showed they can carry the ball for gains almost every time, providing they are "mad" enough to be really trying. When it comes to passing and kicking and tackling the O.C.V.I. team is good enough to win both of their remaining games in Lindsay and in the Liftlock City and so grab the group title. It just remains for them to play football all the way."

Can Gray, who lost his right arm in a boyhood accident, become a major league player despite his physical disability? asks Doug Vaughan in the Windsor Star. This question was recently put to Fresco Thompson, who is well qualified to render an opinion because he managed the New Orleans Pelicans in the Southern Association last season and thus had plenty of chance to view Gray throughout the campaign, by The Old Scout, veteran New York scribe. Here is what Thompson had to say: "Don't be surprised if Gray makes good with something to spare," said Fresco. "Managers in our league never considered Pete at such a disadvantage that we could afford to go easy on him. We applied just as much pressure on him as we did on the two-armed players. Still he beat us with his hitting, fielding and base-running. If American League managers have the idea they can show extra consideration for Pete because he has one arm and not suffer harmful results they are due for a rude surprise. No mercy was shown on Gray in the Southern Association and he compiled all of his creditable records in the face of opposition that was just as strong as that thrown up against two-armed players."

New York Rangers who gave the Leafs a torrid battle in the opening game of the long N.H.L. schedule and looked good enough then to justify Coach Frankie Boucher's pre-season prediction that the Young Men of Manhattan would wind up in fourth place, were apparently the Rangers of last season at Chicago last night when the Black Hawks smothered them 8 goals to 3. As a result the Rangers find themselves snuggling up to the Boston Bruins in the cellar with both outfits having two losses and no wins. Rangers got the only goal of the first period, with Bucko McDonald who scores about as often as he turns down an invitation to a steak dinner, firing the successful shot. Black Hawks rattled in six goals in the second session without a New York comeback and registered two more in the third before the Rangers managed to stop the rout and run in a pair themselves before the end of the battle. The showing of Rangers must have been disappointing to Lester Patrick and Frank Boucher, as well as to Goalie McAuley who must be wondering if he is in for another of these seasons.

East-West Game For Servicemen

WINNIPEG, Nov. 2.—(CP).—The Winnipeg Tribune said yesterday an east-west services rugby football playoff might be played in Winnipeg late this month if Toronto Navy wins the championship of the Eastern Canada Services League.

Toronto Navy Proposal

The series would be played with the winners of the Manitoba Armed Services League, either Winnipeg No. 3 Wireless School or Rivers, Man., No. 1 Central Navigation School.

At present the Toronto Sailors are in second place in the Eastern group behind Hagersville, Ont., RCAF.

The Tribune said tentative proposals had been submitted to local officials by a spokesman for the Toronto team.

Play at Winnipeg

Scheduled games and play-offs in the Eastern League are not expected to be completed until Nov. 11 and if arrangements for the east-west series are completed the games in Winnipeg would be played the week-end of Nov. 18.

No. 3 Wireless School leads a two-game, total point Manitoba Armed Services League championship by four points. Having beaten the Rivers team, 11-7 last Saturday.

RCAF officials have declined comment on the paper's story.

Lawn Bowls, Curls On Same Day

CHATHAM, Nov. 2. — (CP). — Somewhat of a precedent was established in Chatham sports circles last night when Chas. It was the first time in many years that it has been warm enough in Chatham on Nov. 1 for lawn bowling. One hundred and fifty persons attended the opening banquet of the curling club and took part in the opening night's play.

Lakefield Boys Are Defeated By P.C.V.S.

Lakefield High School rugby team engaged the hefty lineup of P.C.V.S., in a game Wednesday afternoon at Riverside Park.

From the Lakefields kick-off with P.C.I. receiving until half-time the plays were in favor of Peterborough, who with their strong line and superb backfield drove Lakefield continually back into their own territory.

At the end of the first half the score stood at 22-0 in favor of Peterborough.

With the opening of the second half Lakefield began to show its fighting ability. Surprise kicking and passing featured the Lakefield offensive. The only spectacular play by P.C.I. was a long kick behind Lakefield's touch line which was recovered and carried back by Wasson for forty yards, but which later developed into a touchdown for P.C.I.

Lakefield's two touchdowns were scored on a reverse by Nichols and a long forward received by Henry, who also converted for one point.

The stars of the Peterborough team were Menzies and Green while Twist, Nichols and Wasson starred for Lakefield in tackling, running and passing.

The final score was 27-11 in favor of Peterborough.

Hawks Wallop Rangers 8-3 In Windy City

By ERIC SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Any doubts that Paul Thompson's Chicago Black Hawks lack the scoring punch and will to win that last year carried them into the National Hockey League finals can be shelved.

The 1944-45 edition of the Windy City's Stanley Cup contenders last night came from behind a 1-0 first period deficit to register an 8-3 victory over New York Rangers.

Just prior to the schedule-opening it was believed Thompson would ice a much weakened team because of the loss of such players as Doug Bentley, ace winger on the line with Clint Smith and Billie Mosienko; Cully Dahlstrom; George Allen and Art Wiebe.

However, the addition of Pete Horeck on the line with Smith and Mosienko paid off last night as the trio accounted for three of the eight goals, each getting one, Smith, former Ranger centre, assisted in three other goals, Horeck in two, and Mosienko in one.

The Hawks, although controlling most of the play in the opening period, were unable to score and ended the session trailing 1-0. Big Bucko MacDonald counted for the Rangers just after the seven-minute mark.

Smith, who Manager Lester Patrick took to the Rangers several years ago, started the victory march for Hawks three minutes after the sandwich period started, and goals by Mosienko, Horeck, Lude Check, and Harvey Fraser followed with almost lightning-like rapidity. Lude Check, acquired this year from Montreal Canadiens, also rammed home another during the last minute of play to give the Hawks a 6-1 lead going into the final period.

Veteran Defenceman Earl Seibert drove home Chicago's last two goals. Fred Hunt and Grant Warwick netted for Rangers after the Hawk pressure relaxed.

TORONTO, Nov. 2 — (CP). — With the days getting crisper and crisper, the season for hockey Hall of Fame discussions surely must be upon us again, although as yet the expected arguments have not started for the winter.

On the serious side, though, Captain Jim Sutherland of Kingston, Ont., has come out with an instructive piece of literature on the origin of the game that takes the chronological data back to 1813 at least. He quotes a little-known work by the late Duke of Beaufort that gives credit for inaugurating ice hockey, or "bandy," to the stout citizens of Bury Fen. That community of note wasn't a suburb of Hamilton, Montreal or Halifax, but happened to be situated in the twin parishes of Bluntisham-cum-Earith in the agricultural County of Huntingdonshire.

The good people of Bury Fen, there is reason to believe, galloped about the ice with their bandy sticks playing a "game much like hockey" even before skates were invented. However, after they had equipped themselves with runners, the early historian recorded, they "could rush over the ice at a great pace, could suddenly stop and as suddenly start, and turn and dodge at full speed and maintain a pace impossible on hand, then enthusiasm for bandy was assured it became in fact....the most fascinating of games."

(That's flowery language, but the hockey broadcasters might add a novel touch to their accounts by studying this early chronicler.)

Any doubts that bandy was not the great-grandfather of hockey were dispelled when the rules of the early game were studied. Some of them were: The stick must not be more than 2 inches wide at any part (compared with 3½ inches as at present); no player could raise his bandy above his shoulder for purposes of mayhem or otherwise, and only the goaler could hit the ball while in midair; there was a regular offside rule although no player was offside as long as he stayed within his own half of the ice; the game was started by the referee throwing the ball in the centre of the ice; and each team was limited to eleven players.

There is quite a similarity between those rules and present regulations, enough to prove this was the same game that later was brought to Canada by the Imperial troops who were garrisoned at Halifax, Kingston and Montreal.

Shinny is even rung into the matter, since the historian says it undoubtedly was the forerunner of bandy. The original game was played in the village street and was much like field hockey, except a great deal more boisterous. As our authority says, it was a "rough and ready frolic."

Big Leaguers After Batteries In Draft Pool

CHICAGO, Nov. 2—(AP)—Baseball's major league strategists, already preparing for their fourth wartime season, apparently are determined to keep their batteries well-charged this winter.

When officials of 13 clubs spent $137,500 in less than 15 minutes at their annual draft meeting yesterday, they went hot and heavy after pitchers and catchers, who comprised 10 of the 19 players selected from minor leagues.

Neither of St. Louis' 1944 champions, the Cardinals and the Browns, made a bid. Only other club that did not dip into the minor league barrel was Detroit, although the Tigers sought unsuccessfully to draft Pitcher Alex Mustaikis of Toronto.

The Senators, Philadelphia Athletics, Boston Braves and Chicago White Sox drafted two players each, while the Phillies, New York Giants, Cleveland Indians, Chicago Cubs, Boston Red Sox, New York Yankees, Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati Reds bought one apiece. The total of 19 draftees was three more than last year when $110,000 was poured into minor league coffers.

Seventeen players were from Class AA leagues purchased at the fixed $7,500 price tag. One was a $6,000 class A buy and the other a class B player at $4,000.

Among International League players drafted were Outfielder Walt Chipple of Montreal, who hit .288 last season, and was claimed by Washington; Catcher Leroy Jarvis of the Royals who hit .277 for Trenton in 1943, and was bagged by Pittsburgh; and Catcher Herb Crompton of Toronto, a .287 batter and a valuable clutch hitter, who fell to the New York Yanks.

Del Bissonette, former member of the Brooklyn Dodgers, has been signed as coach of Boston Braves of the National Baseball League. Bissonette, who managed Hartford in the Eastern League last season, replaces Tom Sheehan, who resigned.

Gordon (Moose) Sherritt, defenceman for Indianapolis Capitals of the American Hockey League, has been rejected for the third time by the Canadian army, the club management announced last night. Sherritt is expected to return from London, Ont., in time for the Capital's game with Buffalo tonight.

Tommy Gorman, manager of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, said yesterday the Habitants would not part with Bob Fillion "at any price," and that Johnny Mahaffy and Nils Tremblay still were property of the Montreal club. He was commenting on a Toronto report that quoted Manager Art Ross of the Boston Bruins as saying the Bruins would "talk business" with the three players and Rosie Rozzini if the players showed they would improve the present Boston lineup.

Gorman said Rozzini had been made a free agent and that Mahaffy probably would try out with the Bruins, after which a deal may be made.

Coach Clarence (Hap) Day announced last night before he headed Toronto Maple Leafs for Montreal where they clash with Canadiens in one of two scheduled National Hockey League games tonight that Mel (Sudden Death) Hill had signed his contract for the 1944-45 season, ending all speculation that the 30-year-old winger might be traded or sold to another club.

"They had me over a barrel," said Hill, "and I took a $500 salary cut, even if I didn't like it. Now I'm going back to work on the $1,000 bonus."

Hill, a former star with Boston Bruins and the now-disbanded Brooklyn Americans, had balked at a $4,500 contract with a $1,000 bonus clause. He drew $5,000 last season.

Twilight Tear May Be Chosen

BALTIMORE, Nov. 2 (AP) — Twilight Tear, today apparently headed for selection as the horse of 1944, will have another year in which to go after Top Flight's $275,900 earnings record for their sex.

The Tear, first filly ever to start in the Pimlico Special, romped home ahead of Devil Diver and Megogo yesterday to win a $25,000 purse and boost her winnings to $202,165 in two years of racing in which she has won 18 of 23 starts.

Trainer Ben Jones of Warren Wright's Calumet Farms said after the race "we can't afford to retire her" and that she would compete for another year. The Tear may make one more start this season at Pimlico, he added.

Running as smoothly as if she were on ball bearings, the three-year-old Queen won by six lengths over Greentree Stable's Devil Diver, one of 1944's top handicap performers. It was the biggest margin of victory in the eight years of the Special.

Megogo, from H. L. Lunger's Christiana Stables, was clearly outclassed and finished another ten lengths back.

The Tear made it look simple, and not until the time was posted did the crowd of 12,961 realize how fast she had been travelling. A clocking of 1.56 3-5 equalled the Special record made by Seabiscuit in his match race with War Admiral and was only one-fifth off Riverland's track standard.

The Tear was the favorite, paying $3.30 for $2.

United Nations, Neutral Countries Discuss World Air Transport Lines

By JAMES J. STREBIG
Associated Press Aviation Editor

CHICAGO, Nov. 2 — (AP) — The United Nations and neutral countries were called together in the international civil aviation conference Wednesday to work on a plan for world air transport, with the hope that commercial flying can be put into the service of restoration activities immediately.

The meeting, expected to occupy representatives of more than 50 countries for at least three weeks, involves the issue of economic control of a vast and growing industry.

That issue—to what extent a proposed international air authority should govern a nation's right to commercial flying outside its borders—is the biggest one on an agenda which has three other major topics.

1. Immediate operation of air routes on a provisional basis.

2. Technical standards and procedures.

3. An interim council to serve until a permanent body had been established.

Some Disagreement.

Several points are at issue, but one which is likely to get the most attention is the matter of economic control. The United States wants only enough of such control to assure freedom from cut-throat competition and uneconomic practices. British authorities want a world version of the United States Civil Aeronautics Board, and has used that comparison to illustrate.

This division was widened, it appears, by the pre-conference meeting of the British Commonwealth of Nations at Montreal last week. Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Newfoundland and Southern Rhodesia made a final canvass of their views and found themselves in rather close agreement on their plan for an international "C.A.B."

British spokesmen have let it be known they feel free competition would be ruinous to hopes for profitable operation, that only through an international body with adequate power can routes be divided among countries, and such an authority is needed to police aggressors.

Among their ideas for this world authority would be a joint United Nations operation of airlines in Axis territory or areas formerly controlled by Axis nations.

Canadian representatives already have made it clear they are conscious of their country's advantageous position astride the direct North Atlantic routes between the United States and Europe.

6 Babies' Bodies Found In Garage

LOCKPORT, N.Y., Nov. 2—(AP)—The bodies of three additional newly-born babies were found by police Tuesday in a building originally used as a livery stable, making a total of six infants discovered in the property since Monday.

Detective Sgt. Benjamin Furlong said one of the bodies was located in a trunk and two others in a bushel basket. Police began a search of the building Monday after Leroy Grover, who had rented the building and started cleaning it preparatory to opening a garage, found a body stuffed in an orange crate. Search led to the discovery of two more yesterday, one in a cardboad box and a third jammed in a trunk.

All six infants apparently were negroes, and appeared to have been dead from several months to a year or more, Furlong said.

Outline Is Given Of Safety Work

The Peterborough Lindsay Section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations held a dinner meeting last night at the Genelco Cafeteria. A total of 72 persons were present representing 12 firms in the city. Tom Taylor of the Canadian Ventilating Shades occupied the chair and in his opening remarks he brought to the attention of those present the fact that safety groups have been operating in this city for some considerable time and that they have been doing a great deal of very good work. Mr. Taylor also voiced an appeal to top management to make an effort to be present at all safety meetings in order to show their interest in Accident Prevention.

Fred Overend of the Peterborough Lumber Co. was asked to introduce the speaker of the evening. T. A. Lister, Safety Engineer of the Canadian General Electric Co., and Genelco Limited. Mr. Overend stated that the speaker had been active in the Accident Prevention field for some years and was well qualified to talk on the subject.

In his address entitled, "Safety and Production", Mr. Lister gave a comprehensive review of the problems confronting industrial workers, foremen and management, with regard to safety. He said that after the war, when demobilization sends many members of the armed forces back to factories, war nerves and other neurosis on the part of many of these men will present new and serious accident hazards, and complicate administration within the factory. This will be combatted he said, by a central office, thanks to the Accident Prevention Association in which all the experience of this continent's industries will be gathered, and means of combatting these conditions when and where they develop will be learned.

Advocating selling men of each department on safety, and appointing them as safety representatives of each section, Mr. Lister said that only when accident prevention is included in school curriculums and men and boys already educated in safety are received in industry, can it be even hoped to eliminate accidents within our factories.

Raybestos Plant To Raise V Loan Flag

Employees of Canadian Raybestos Company are going to raise their Seventh Victory Loan flag this afternoon signifying the windup of their shop campaign that ended at 135 per cent of their quota with 98 per cent of the staff investing.

The objective was $15,800, and the canvass disposed of Bonds in the value of $21,350.

"It is an old story now throughout the plant," said W. S. Cowell, confirming the reports of conclusions of the drive. "Fellows have got into the habit of saving and buying Bonds, and they shift from one campaign to the next because they have learned the value of Victory Bonds, apart altogether from the patriotic aspect of helping win the war."

Outboard Marine.

With an objective of $56,050, the staff at Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company, (Johnson Motors) had heaped up sales of $87,800 by Wednesday. That is a progress report, and according to Larry Maguire some of the Johnson Motors staff have been doubling up on this issue because they realize they muffed the first couple.

Some of the men who were canvassed wanted to know what was wrong that nobody had seen them," Mr. Maguire said. That is generally the spirit of the shop. It is no longer a matter of 'selling' Victory Bonds down here; it is only— in most cases, at any rate— 'how much can I take?' When the first Loans came out there was just a sense of duty about investing, not exactly indifference, probably nothing more than lack of full understanding. Gradually the men got into the Bond buying stride, and they have been thinking of post-war buying, you know, car, payment on a house and so on; but a lot didn't get away to the best start, and now they are thinking of the possibility that with the war's progress this might be the last Loan or perhaps only another one, and they have been more than ever willing to invest. They have certainly learned saving by the Victory Bond plan."

Mr. Maguire said $50 Bonds used to be the common unit in the first few Loans, but the whole Motors staff has got away from that denomination. "Our staff has a good investing record," said Mr. Maguire "but at that lots of the fellows might probably admit now they wished that they had done even better."

TROUBLE CENTRE?—A new photograph of President Chiang Kai-shek of China who has come into the news again with Gen. Joseph Stilwell's recall from the Chinese theatre of war. There are those who say the Chinese president is more concerned with the inevitable civil war against the Communists in his own country, than with the war against Japan and has been hoarding lease-lend goods to that end.

Truck Driver Fined On Careless Charge

Declaring that the accused had failed in the duty that was incumbent upon him of making sure that the move could be made in safety before making a left turn, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., registered a conviction in police court this morning against J. P. Leveck, truck driver for the Fitzgerald Coal Company on a charge of careless driving.

His Worship, remarking that he did not think it a case that justified a heavy penalty for Leveck had been driving very slowly at the time of the accident, he fined the accused $7.50 and $9.00 costs.

Evidence in the case had been heard last week and Magistrate Langley at that time reserved judgment until to-day after hearing the arguments of J. F. Strickland, K.C., defence counsel, and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., who prosecuted.

Evidence in the case showed that Leveck was the driver of a coal truck that was making a left turn into the yard of the Fitzgerald Coal Company on Hunter street. Twelve year old John Brennan, a St. Peter's High school student, was one of a number of cyclists riding east on the south side of Hunter street and when Leveck turned his truck to enter the coal yard, the boy put on his brakes to avoid a collision, was thrown from his bicycle and fractured his collar bone when he fell against the front of the truck.

In giving judgment Magistrate Langley said that he had read over a number of authorities dealing with left turns and was satisfied that it was the duty of drivers who attempted such a manoeuvre to be sure that they did not proceed until they were sure that it could be made in safety. This, he said, Leveck had failed to do.

"It may be that the boy was riding pretty fast and contributed to the accident," said His Worship, "and for that reason I do not propose a severe penalty."

Charges of theft laid against C. M. Rishor of stealing furniture, etc., from his wife and against the wife of stealing from her husband were adjourned until to-morrow when Mrs. Rishor failed to appear. It was intimated that the two cases would have to go on then.

WOUNDED SECOND TIME—Pte. Garnet Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Thompson, of Norwood, has been reported wounded overseas, for the second time in six months. Previously, he suffered bomb fragment wounds in the right arm, but as yet, no details about his latest wound has been given.

Pte. Garnet Thompson Wounded Second Time

NORWOOD, November 2—(ENS). — For the second time within six months, Pte. Garnet Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Thompson, Norwood, has been reported wounded in action overseas. No other details were given.

In July, fragments from a bomb wounded the young soldier in the right arm, while serving in France. Formerly an employee of the Scott Lumber Company, Pte. Thompson enlisted in February 1942, and after training in Camp Borden, Kingston, Woodstock and Nova Scotia, he went overseas in January.

Jack Peterson Captures Nazi General Saved Civilian From Starving On Beach

BLENHEIM, Nov. 2 — (Special). — Lt.-Gen. Mennel, presumably one of the younger German officers who was promoted to a high position following Hitler's purge of his older generals after the invasion, has been captured in Holland by Major Jack Peterson, according to a letter written by that officer to his wife here, the former Nellie Warwick.

The letter did not give any of the details about the Nazi general's capture, but it was preceded by the capture by Major Peterson of two German amphibious cars and a motorcycle. The general's shoulder and hat insignia and his Iron Cross, First Class, were received by Mrs. Peterson along with the letter.

Major Peterson, who prior to enlistment in 1939, was a reporter and photographer for the Peterborough Examiner, is at present in a hospital in Belgium, recuperating from shell fragment wounds in the right thigh and hand, suffered on Oct. 12 at Poodpladt in Holland.

He has been with the Stormont Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders since they landed in Normandy on D-Day. He is the officer who found a group of some 80 French civilians hiding in a cave on the Normandy beaches from the Nazis. He came across them while looking for Nazi snipers. Finding them to be almost starved, he turned over all the food parcels belonging to himself and his men which had been sent by relatives and friends in Canada.

Building Permits For October Total $270,804

Eighty-nine building permits in October amounted to $270,804, and for the ten months of the year $551,103.

Comparably last year, 46 October permits represented $41,305, and the total for ten months, January 1 to the end of October, $244,975.

The permits issued from the office of City Engineer Parsons, as compiled by Miss Jean Elcombe, for last month were:—9 garages, $1,725; 7 dwellings, $32,500, and 73 miscellaneous permits, $236,579. Total — 89 permits for $270,804.

And in October 1943, the corresponding details of permits issued were:—4 garages, $455; 6 dwellings, $24,800; 36 miscellaneous, $16,050. Total 46 permits for $244,975.

Canadian General Electric Company's new fractional motors building at an estimated cost of $195,000 accounts for most of the $236,579 in the 76 miscellaneous permits last month.

Two other fairly large items are —an additional building at Canadian Raybestos plant for $15,000; and the Canadian Oil Company's service station, Hunter street east, $10,000.

The permit for the C.G.E. plastics building on Wolfe street, now in use, was issued in November last year for $50,000. These two developments by C.G.E., plastics unit and the big fractional motors addition to the main plant, expansions undertaken during the last twelve months, amount to $245,000. This sum applies only to the constructional costs, foundation, walls and roof, in brief the structural shell, and does not include the outlay for machines and other equipment, and thereby does not represent the full investment by the company in these two new units.

The Raybestos building is under way on the east side of the company's property which is now almost entirely occupied.

A C.G.E. Memory

C. F. Kitney, superintendent of the Little Lake Cemetery, recently mentioned to the Examiner a boyhood recollection of comments as to its future growth when the old Edison Company, forerunner of the C.G.E., bought the thirty acres between Park street and Monaghan Road and announced its intention of locating in this city.

Citizens with the spirit of optimism a dominant trait predicted that "some day all that land would be built up with a great manufacturing industries". Those men of long vision and confidence in the future of Peterborough and of Canada were comparatively few. Their rosy opinions, Mr. Kitney recalled, were pooh-poohed by the pessimists who regarded the prophecy as a great joke to be laughed around town where men of public affairs foregathered even as they do today. And probably the citizens generally echoed the axial views of what the coming of the Edison Company had in store for the town then emerging from the long era symbolized by the dim gas lights struggling to illumine the central district.

Probably Mr. Kitney's memory does not reach back to that period, but when the Edison announcement raised new hopes in the townspeople he was boy enough to understand the jests of the men of little faith, and since then to witness the gradual C.G.E. expansion once considered an absurd ambition. . . .

Murders Wife Sobs In Despair

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 — (AP). — A Bible clutched in his hands, 37-year-old Lewis Wolfe cried aloud in despair early today when a jury convicted him of the bludgeon murder of his refugee wife.

Over and over he cried, "I am dead, dead, dead," and pointing a finger at Judge Louis Goldstein he said, "may God have mercy on your soul."

The verdict was without recommendation for clemency, which carries a mandatory death penalty.

Wolfe's attractive 26-year-old wife, a former Viennese actress, was beaten to death with a metal-tipped shoe last Dec. 30 in a Brooklyn hotel. Her husband, a native of Montreal, said "voices" told him to kill her because she broke a fidelity pact based on the Old Testament.

The couple met and were married in Palestine.

On the boat which brought her here, Wolfe said, she was guilty of several acts of unfaithfulness which she confessed to him with the statement: "If you're a man you'll kill me."

Aldermen Favor Lowering Age For Pensions

Contributory old age pensions for everybody received the unanimous approval of the finance committee of the City Council Wednesday night, and a further extension of the benefits of the system was recommended in the lowering of the age for eligibility from 70 years to 65 for men, and to 60 years for women.

The subject came before the attention of the council recently in a resolution from Waterloo proposing reduction of the age of application at 60 years for men with several other amendments.

"The only logical scheme that I see," said Alderman Dutton, "is to make it contributory, requiring people to pay during their working years, and also to make it universal, so that everybody, regardless of means, qualifies for the pension at a certain age."

Restrictions Unfair.

Alderman Glover said he agreed with the Dutton opinion. Restricting old age pensions to the indigent was not fair to the man who had worked and saved through life to see him through his later years. As to the lowering of the age, Alderman Glover said that the experience of the last war as it had been observed as time went on, indicated that men in the present war would age prematurely, also, and for that reason the pensionable age at 65 should be considered.

"In the depression year," said Alderman Dutton, "we saw conditions arise in which a man reaching the age of forty-five had difficulty in getting a job at all. Imagine a man at 45 with no means of support. That would leave a gap of 25 years that would have to be bridged in some way or other."

Mayor Hamilton remarked that state medicine seemed to be related to pensions and that the social trend of today was definitely toward a broader basis of services than ever. To the Examiner, His Worship commented after the meeting that he could remember occasions when the same kind of resolution had been received by the council, and generally went the way to the waste basket. "You can see the trend of public thought today," he said. "I think it was a lesson sharpened by the depression."

Alderman Dutton's phrase signifying all-inclusiveness was: "Make the pensions payable to millionaire and pauper."

Works Board Studies Petition For Sewers.

A petition to the Council from T. V. Whittington and Mrs. Julia Rady for a sewer on Lansdowne Street, from Sherbourne to Haggart Streets which incidentally supported the Harvey campaign for water and sewerage connections, was discussed on Wednesday night by the Board of Works.

A resolution by Aldermen Glover and Sullivan directed the clerk to reply that with the suburb coming into the city on January 1 the petition should be signed then by the property owners on both the north and south sides of that part of Lansdowne Street.

Finance Committee, in replying to J. A. Gibbs that there is no provincial legislation permitting municipal taxing of vehicles as he proposed as a means of helping to relieve property.

The Gibbs text was "let those who use the roads and streets most pay for their upkeep." Several of the aldermen remarked that most property owners are also automobile owners, and they would be taxing themselves one way or the other. At any rate, the pertinent and disposing fact was that the taxing of motor vehicles is a prerogative of the Provincial Government.

A Hero Dies

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 2 (AP)— On the day that a magazine containing an article telling of his exploits in the battle for Saipan went on sale, relatives were notified today that Lieut. Aiken Mathieu, a United States Navy surgeon, had been killed in action. Lieut. Mathieu cared for the wounded on the destroyer featured in "Sniper Ship," written by Jim Bishop for the magazine (Saturday Evening Post).

Tenth Donation This Year By C.G.E. Group

This is an age when records of all sorts are tabulated and kept in mind for future achievement, giving in the first place an ambition to still further success in any endeavour that might be put in hand at the moment, this having been evidenced in many particular efforts on behalf of the war in recent years.

This has been borne out in mare ways than one by the workers at the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., who only recently as a few days past exceeded their quota in the current Victory Loan campaign by quite a substantial margin.

In the field of doing some good for the people whom the adverse features of war have afflicted in a personal way, the big industrial plants presided over by Ian F. McRae as works manager, have also made a notable contribution to these peoples welfare through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund operating for that purpose, their total standing at the moment at the fine sum of $7,351.44 giving them first place in the fund's record of assistance from any one particular source.

Give Ten Times This Year.

Going still further in the matter of surpassing previous attainments, when it comes right down to the realm of doing good for others, there is a very worthwhile feature that makes it all the more laudable, and in this the Industrial Control Dept. at the C. G. E. with P. Killingbeck as foreman, have certainly run up a record this year that is quite notable, for few can point to having already given ten contributions since the year began.

Due to the good leadership of Philip Weir, supported in splendid fashion by his work mates, this one group has made a gift about every four weeks, the latestt of which amounting to $32.55 (also their largest this year to-date) is listed today, and has run up a grand total of $260.52 during that period, which added to what they had given previous to the start of this year, gives them a total credit of $415.39 contributed to the fund since it began to operate.

Saturday's Market Sale.

The Fairview War Workers group with Mrs. W. Fowler and Mrs. Fred Brown taking a leading role, have a really fine record of achievement for such a relatively small number from a sparsely settled district, their activities on behalf of the fund already benefitting it to the extent of some $381.90.

This Saturday they will hold a sale of farm and garden produce in great variety with some home-made baking on the market, and from the record of previous efforts of a similar nature, should prove quite an attraction for the buyers who choose this way of laying in their provisions for future use.

Previously acknowledged	$82,771.64
The Industrial Control Dept. of C. G. E. Ltd., P. Killingbeck, foreman, per Philip Weir	32.55
Total to date	$82,804.19

Steers Run Wild

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 2 —(AP)—A squad of policemen, the dog catcher, a cowboy, a group of howling youngsters and a housewife with a broom all joined in a chase after two steers which scattered terror among pedestrians about downtown Tulsa yesterday. The steers hurdled the side of a truck and trotted 12 blocks to the downtown district, occasionally lunging at citizens along the way. One ultimately was shot, the other lassoed under a viaduct. The housewife with the broom? Oh, she was irate because one of the animals tracked up her nice clean porch.

Bomber command personnel contributed the sum "as a token of their gratitude."

Canada To Start Short Wave CBC Broadcasts

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Nov. 2—(CP).— The playing of "O Canada" and a full-flavored Canadian accent repeating "This Is Canada Calling" next month will give the nation its first voice on world airways as the new CBC short-wave transmitter at Sackville, N.B., broadcasts its first test.

Oddly enough, if the test—scheduled for mid-December—is successful, new receivers in Canada will be able to pick up the broadcast beamed to overshoot the Dominion and reach sets in Europe.

The majority of Canadians will only hear Sackville through the newspapers or when it happens to be relayed through the BBC or other Allied sources.

The hour but not the day has been set for the first test. It will go on the air at 6.45 a.m. E.D.T., and continue until 9.45 a.m.—the lunch period in Europe. It will open with 15 minutes of recordings — with a Canadian flavor — and announcements.

It will include the giving of the four call letters which remain to be chosen.

One suggestion being studied is a combination of the first letters of famous Canadian tourist-attracting parks. For instance the announcer might say "this is Canada calling on the shortwave transmitter B-J-S-R—B for Banff, J. for Jasper, S for St. Lawrence and R. for Riding Mountain.

The programs will include interpretative and backgrounded news reports, talks and a CBC version of the BBC's successful radio newsreel broadcast — a sort of magazine of the air with topical interviews and side-glances on the world at war.

Certain domestic programs will be short-waved and one of the most important features will be regular broadcasts to the troops with special emphasis on news and views from home. The CBC is planning to spread itself on its Christmas broadcast to the overseas forces, but details are not yet available.

In connection with service broadcasts, it is reliably learned that the Canadian services will install receiving equipment and incidental public address systems so that the Canadian short-wave transmissions may be heard by as many Canadians as possible.

Another important feature of the transmissions will be the broadcasts to the enemy in his own language with the names of German prisoners of war being given along with an interpretative news broadcast, talks and entertainment.

Roosevelt Asks 4th Term On Peace Program

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt, at the age of 38, suffered an almost fatal attack of infantil paralysis which left him permanently cripples, able to stand or walk only with the aid of canes and painful, steel leg braces.

He overcame that handicap to enter politics, serve two terms as Governor of New York, three consecutive terms as President of the United States and candidate for a fourth term.

Taking office in the White House on March 4, 1933, he has served nearly 12 years as Chief Executive during the trying years of a world depression and the most disastrous and all-embracing World War.

In that period he has shattered tradition and made precedent as no other President ever did before, and has won a place in the hearts of his own and the peoples of the civilized world that only history will properly estimate.

He broke all precedent when he won his third term election in 1940 and again when he became the candidate for a fourth term at the Democratic convention in Chicago last July. He has faced problems, expenditures and responsibilities never dreamed of by his predecessors. These years have left their mark and now, in his 63rd year, he is drawn and weary.

But the spark of vitality that animated his giant, crippled frame, the personality and sparkling wit, the magic of his speaking voice, his love for and pleasure in human companionships, carried him buoyantly into the 1944 Presidential campaign.

War Conferences.

Beginning with his rendezvous with Prime Minister Churchill on a battleship in a Newfoundland bay in August, 1941, Roosevelt has participated in a long series of conferences with Churchill, Premier Stalin, and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek to plot the downfall of the Axis aggressors.

These engagements have taken him by air and by sea through the enemy infested areas, to Casablanca, Cairo, and Teheran, and to Quebec (twice). He is the first American President to go abroad in war time, the first to visit Ottawa while in office, and the first to visit Mexico and consult with the President of that Republic while still in office.

Between these conferences the high dignitaries charged with responsibility for fighting the Axis have beaten a track to the White House doors.

Born in Hyde Park, N.Y., January 20, 1882, son of wealth and culture, Roosevelt was educated at Groton and Harvard and practiced law in New York. He was Assistant Secretary of the Navy during the First Great War, and served in the New York Senate prior to that war.

In 1920 he was candidate for vice-president on the Democratic ticket with James Cox when the Republican ticket was headed by Warren Harding was successful.

In 1921, while at his family's summer home in Campobello, N.B., where he had spent all his holidays at fishing, swimming and sailing, he was stricken by infantile paralysis.

After a long, courageous struggle he recovered, but could never again walk unaided. He re-entered politics and was elected Governor of NewYork in 1930, serving two terms and going straight from the Governorship to the White House in 1933.

The New Deal.

Roosevelt met the depression with what he called "a new deal for the comon man." This required extraordinary executive powers which Congress granted, and the creation of many bureaus.

He saw the threat of war as early as 1937 when he urged "quarantining' the aggressor nations, and when war came to Europe in 1939 he defied isolation sentiment by at once taking steps to help the democracies and prepare the United States not only for defence but for all-out aid to the forces fighting the Axis.

Roosevelt promised Canada aid if attacked by a foreign power, in 1938, formed, with Prime Minister Mackenzie King, the joint United States-Canada Defence Board, in 1940, and in 1941 entered into the Hyde Park agreement with Canada by which the Dominion was able to finance war purchases here.

Greatest Allied aid fathered by Roosevelt, apart from armed participation when Japan attacked Pearl Harbor, was the lend lease legislation he obtained from Congress, sending billions of dollars in material to Britain and other Allies without hope of repayment.

When Japan and the other Axis powers declared war, following the treacherous attack on Hawaii Roosevelt declared that no matter how long it might take, the United States and her Allies would "win through to absolute victory."

The President was married in 1905 to Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, a distant cousin and favorite niece of the then Republican President, Theodore Roosevelt, who gave the bride away. They have four sons, all in the services, and one daughter, Anna Dall Boettiger, whose husband is also in the services.

HEADACHES IN WAR MARRIAGES

After Years of Separation, Couples United in Haste Seen Bound for Disaster.

IT is being freely predicted on every side that divorce will reach its all-time high after the war, some of the forecasters even going so far as to prophesy that half of the war marriages will go on the rocks.

These are direful forebodings, but no one who has the courage to face the truth can doubt that when the global war ends the domestic war is going to begin, and that there will be as many tragedies on the home front as there have been on the battle field. For when Johnny comes marching home it isn't going to always be a joyous re-union between an ever-loving husband and wife. Only too often will be the meeting between two strangers whose little flare of romance has died out long ago and who wonder, as they look at each other, whatever made them think they were in love and wanted to live together.

Every marriage is, of course, a gamble because both men and women seem to suffer a change at the altar and do not look like nor act like they did before and after taking. This makes any marriage a risky business, but it puts a war marriage in the realm of pure adventure, for the high contracting parties in furlough weddings do not have even the chance that they would have in peace times to forge the ties that bind a couple together.

War Marriages Are Result of Emotionalism

The majority of war marriages are not even founded on any deep affection. They are the result of a moment of emotionalism, or of too many cocktails; of homesick boys thinking they have found their soul mates in any girl in a swishy skirt; of 18 and 19-year-old kids rushing into marriage because all the other youngsters are doing it; of women marrying strangers without knowing who they are, nor where they came from, because they think the husband supply will give out and they don't want to be old maids.

No one can hope that such marriage can end in anything but disaster, for little as these men and women had in common when they married, they will have still less after a year or two of separation. Both will have changed. The husband will have shed his romantic aura along with his uniform and brass buttons and be just a plain, ordinary guy in search of a job. The wife will no longer be a glamor girl. She will be only a woman who has been on her own, and gotten bossy.

That's how it will be, and how this problem of the disillusioned husbands and wives is to be settled with the least harm to society and the minimum suffering to the individual, no one knows, but it is going to be one of the big headaches after the war. And whether divorce is going to be the cure for it or not, no one knows, either, but it is going to be the remedy that thousands of disgruntled husbands and wives are going to try.

Under ordinary conditions divorce seldom works the miracle of healing hurt hearts, and wiping out past mistakes, and making everything perfectly dandy that is expected of it. Will the war divorce have this supermagic power? Or will there still be ties that cannot be broken without breaking hearts? And from every wrecked home will there still come the cry of little orphaned children? Yet what good can come from forcing a couple to endure a loveless marriage that brings out all that is worst in their natures because in a moment of sentimental hysteria they made a foolish marriage?

British Mothers Roused Over Shortages

LONDON, Nov. 1—(CP):—Mothers traditionally rise in defence of their young and the mothers of Britain are no exception.

Mothers and their children have been much in the news lately for a variety of reasons, most of them shortages. Children's clothes and shoes are scarce, rubber teats for feeding bottles can be bought only with a bottle and toys for the coming Christmas season are cheap in quality and high in price.

There are other complaints too. Women are being asked to knit for the children of Europe but they can't get wool enough for their own families. Chocolate is strictly rationed yet Britain has in storage 350,000,000 bars for Europe's under-nourished youth.

The blasts on these two latter scores have not been severe for British women realize Europe's needs are greater than theirs but reports that the people of the Continent are not badly fed or clothed as was at first believed have led some mothers to ask whose children come first, their's or the Continent's.

Most of the shortages have been discussed in the House of Commons and improvements are promised but none has been sufficiently noticeable to appease the mothers.

Girls In Forces Speed Mail To Boys Overseas

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 (CP)—Women's hands write the letters which flow through the big base post office here to the boys in the army and air force overseas, and women's hands speed them on their way.

Members of the Canadian Women's Army Corp care for army mail with its dozens of complicated addresses, while the R.C.A.F. women's division supplies skilled sorters for the air force section.

"The girls are handling about 140,000 blue air force forms a day and between 160,000 and 175,000 surface letters now that the Christmas rush is on and they're doing a great job," Capt. R. McKinnon of Toronto, director of letter mail at the post office, told The Canadian Press.

Every letter to Canada's fighting men goes through the huge sorting room—an entire floor of the post office—where it is handled three times by different sorters to reduce the possibility of mistake to a minimum.

Pte. Marie Marshall of Kitchener, Ont., was hard at work on especially difficult cases—letters to small units and soldiers in special categories.

"Thank goodness we don't have anything to do with the Christmas parcel rush; the boys downstairs have their hands full with them," she said.

The girls in the smaller R.C.A.F. section have an easier time of it as they handle mail which is sorted alphabetically or by squadron and later re-sorted overseas.

When the mail has been given primary sorting by branch of service, and secondary sorting by field units, the bundles are again sorted by N.C.O.'s with long postal experience, before it is dispatched overseas.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Old man winter is on his way. He is just around the corner, so be prepared with your winter clothes when he arrives.

Here are some winter success coats. Fur-trimmed tuxedos are the coats of the year, because each is superbly tailored in the new quality woollens, heaped with fine furs and very smart. Fur coats are made also in the tuxedo style, either in brown otter, grey Persian, brown caracul or Canadian beaver.

Millinery has also taken a very feminine turn. Lovely little hats that frame your face are just right for any big occasion, dining or dancing. You will see them agleam with sequins, quivering with ostrich or misted in veils also forward-perching toques, turbans and charming bonnets. One very outstanding style for the junior miss is a bonnet of brown fur felt, with coral pink rayon velvet bows at either side. Wear this hat with a beaver or brown caracul coat and see how stunning you will look.

Completely feminine hats, flirtatiously gay to underscore your charm are the dramatic backdrop hats, the high boxy toques, fascinating feather trimmed hats for dinner for two, all in the bright colors, fuchsia, lime green, turquoise blue, royal purple, gold, paradise pink and many others.

One of the outstanding numbers in the fall fashion show is an evening blouse featuring the long torso line. This blouse is made of blue satin, decorated with four pockets covered with hand-embroidered scroll work and fastened down the front with a closely-set row of covered buttons. There are darts at the waist line to give that new nipped-in effect, while the long tight sleeves add another very slimming effect. This blouse may be worn with many different skirts and colors.

Fancy jewelled combs are much worn, giving a bright effect to the hair. Fancy pins are shown worn on the shoulder of a dress and bands of three or four strands of beads are worn tight around the neck.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, November 3

A VERY definite promise for the stabilizing of the position, work and fortunes is read from the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. A well organized mode or operation, with firm purpose, shrewd acumen, hard work and perservance may be expected to reap rich rewards and recognition. A consolidation of all the resources, assets and abilities may be needed to circumvent threats of loss through extravagance, speculation and bad judgment. Safeguard funds, reputation, health and energies and the romantic or affectional life as well. Yield, compromise, when problems menace happiness and pleasant relations.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are to have an opportunity to place the work, position, possessions and finances, as well as reputation and prestige, on a solid, secure and rash speculation or use of funds, bound to invite loss and regrets, with unhappy reactions on the family, social or romantic life. Safeguard health, position, property and reputation in intimate affairs of friction or inharmony use tact, conciliation and consideration for happy results.

A child born on this day should have fundamental sturdiness of character with sound abilities and purpose, but may be led into extravagance, display and loss of funds and standing by carelessness.

Peterboro Girl In England Weds RAF Flier

A pretty wedding of interest took place in Stoke Church, Guildford, England, when Rose Russell Fletcher, of Guildford, formerly of Peterborough, became the bride of Eric Charles Hart, R.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Hart, also of Guildford. Rev. E. E. J. Martin officiated.

The bride and her sister, Mrs. J. Loveday, formerly Margaret Fletcher, left for England for a visit several years ago, and were obliged to stay in England when war broke out. They are daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Fletcher of Peterborough, and their sister, Mrs. W. J. Conners, lives at 26 Brown street.

For the ceremony, the bride chose a floor-length white cloque gown, and a finger-tip veil of white tulle, caught to a heart-shaped halo of orange blossoms. Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. E. Russell, she carried a bouquet of red roses, and wore a heart-shaped gold locket, the gift of the groom.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. J. Loveday, as matron of honor, and Miss Beryl Martyr, as bridesmaid. Each wore a gown of sea blue georgette and satin, with matching snood headdresses. They carried bouquet of pink and blue cornflowers, pink sweet peas and gypsophelia. Little Misses Margaret Ellis and Kay Upsto e, nieces of the groom, were dainty flower girls in matching blue organdy dress, matching bonnets, and carrying nosegays of cornflowers.

Mr. T. Realffe was best man, and Mr. K. Tibbs and Mr. S. Ferris were ushers. On leaving the church, the bride was presented with three horseshoes, one from her niece, little Carole Loveday.

Following a reception at Westborough school, the bride and groom left for a honeymoon at Southall, Middlesex, the bride travelling in a powder blue crepe dress, with natural-colored coat and tan accessories. Shortly after they returned from their honeymoon, and the groom had reported back to his post, their apartment suffered severe robot bomb damage, and Mrs. Hart is living with relatives in Guildford at present.

Hallowe'en Party Given By Pupils

KEENE, Nov. 2(ENS)—The mothers and friends and brother and sisters were entertained by the pupils of Villiers School, S.S. No. 1, Otonabee, and their teacher, Miss Vera A. Bradshaw at a Hallowe'en party.

Evidences of Hallowe'en were present from jack-o-lanterns, black cats, witches, and the boiling cauldron to Ebenezer's ghost; and stunts suitable to the occasion were performed. By request Miss Lois Dickson gave her speech on "Why Do I Go to Roseneath Fair?" on which she won first prize at Westwood oratorical contest.

Lunch was served and tea was poured by Mrs. L. Wismer and Mrs. A. Elmhurst. Mrs. T. Hope extended a vote of thanks to the teacher and pupils.

Band Committee To Name Officers

Mrs. William Jeffries, Port Hope Highway, was hostess for the regular meeting of Trinity Church baby Band, Wednesday evening, when a nominating committee, consisting of Mrs. F. W. Morton, Mrs. J. Heard and Mrs. F. B. Smitheram was named to bring in a slate of officers at the next meeting. Members decided to send two layettes to Hea-st, in Northern Ontario.

During the evening, Miss Betty Craig, entertained with two readings, and Mrs. C. Dawson, and Misses Lyla and Elizabeth Milburn played guitar selections. Mrs. A. Malby was in charge of the devotional period which opened the meeting. Mrs. F. B. Smitheram read the Scripture, and Mrs. F. W. Morton took the portion from the study book. At the close of the meeting, the hostess served refreshments.

St. Paul's Group Entertains At Afternoon Tea

A friendly semi-circle of long tables placed along the walls, and a dainty tea table centring the floor surrounded by small tables, featured an enjoyable afternoon tea and sale of work, sponsored by the West-end Group of St. Paul's Ladies' Aid, in the Sunday School Hall on Wednesday afternoon.

Everything from vegetables to knitted goods was placed on the tables in the form of a bazaar, and the large number of guests present gave evidence of the success of the project. Receiving the guests were Mr David Miller, leader of the West-end Group, and Mrs. A. A. McIntyre, president of the Ladies' Aid. Mrs. L. R. Mitchell was the soloist and Mrs. W. A. Gray played several piano selections. Mrs. T. McMillan, Sr., was treasurer, and Rev. W. L. Newton opened the bazaar with prayer.

An attractive innovation, which found great favor with the guests, was the idea of placing small tea tables around a central table, so that the women could sit and talk while they were being served, and it was easier for the hostesses to move around. The tea table was lovely with a linen cloth, set with silver service, and centred with a large bouquet of baby 'mums in a silver bowl, flanked by yellow tapers in silver candelabra.

Tea conveners were Mrs. W. Burrell and Mrs. H. C. Sherwood, with Mrs. R. C. Prophet assisting. Hostesses were Mrs. W. S. Hill, Mrs. T. H. Taylor, Mrs. D. K. McElroy, Mrs. T. McArthur, Mrs. B. D. MacLean, and Mrs. J. J. Craig. Pouring tea during the afternoon were Mrs. W. McKee, Mrs. A. Thompson, Mrs. R. Ross, and Mrs. J. A. Middleton.

The various booths, with those in charge, are as follows: Gift table, Mrs. D. W. Clark and Mrs. W. J. Gordon; quilts, Mrs. W. E. Milburn; children's booth, Mrs. Martha Wiley and Mrs. J. A. Middleton; vegetable booth, Mrs. P. S. Hawthorne and Mrs. W. R. Williams; aprons, Mrs. E. R. Dubay and Mrs. W. A. Gray; miscellaneous, Mrs. T. McMillan, Jr. A table of knitted goods, convened by Mrs. G. W. Craw, was sponsored by the Cheerful Workers' Group of the Ladies' Aid. Mrs. Craw was assisted by Mrs. J. H. Jamison and Mrs. C. Mann.

WMS Hears Story Of Mrs. W. Booth

Mrs. John Wood, of the Salvation Army, giving an interesting and inspirational talk on the life of Catherine Booth, wife of General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, and known as the mother of the Army, was guest speaker at the regular meeting of Group F of the Women's Missionary Society of George Street United church. Mrs. J. Douglas, Water street, was hostess for this meeting, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. W. H. Morton spoke of the Church's responsibility in post war problems and plans. Miss Betty Mather played a piano solo. The devotional period was taken by Mrs. J. Fanning and Mrs. J. Spencer, and Mrs. R. C. Boulter presided. Following the adjourning of the meeting, the hostess served refreshments.

Orchestra Gives Program For Soldiers

Graydon Sheldon and his band took to the air Wednesday evening, when the third in the "Salute to Victory" series was broadcast from the the Salvation Army Canteen. The program, one half-hour in length, featured soloist Miss Lenore Gordon, singing "Is You Is, Or Is You Ain't My Baby?" and "How Many Hearts Have You Broken?" Ernie Victor, trumpeter, played the "Minute Waltz," and another soloist, Miss Mickey Foster, alto saxaphonist, played "Please Don't Take Your Love From Me."

Following the broadcast portion, the boys and girls in uniform and the hostesses in attendance joined in the popular "Beat the Band" feature. They were asked to name a melody they felt the band could not play, and if they "Beat the Band," they received complimentary tickets to a theatre, courtesy of Sid Goldstone, Art Cauley or Gordon Miller. Other prizes included boxes of nuts, donated by Ben Epston, and cigarettes, from Maurice Wesley.

Other features of the final portion of the program were sleight-of-hand tricks by Ernie Victor, and a tap dance routine by Miss Gordon. Harry R. McLay was master of ceremonies, and George Bouck produced the entire program, both of CHEX. The final program in this series will be heard next Wednesday evening.

Otonabee IODE Gives $100 For Bomb Victims

The sum of $100, to fill and pack a bale of warm clothing for bombed-out children in England, was voted by members of the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., at their meeting Wednesday afternoon in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. Mrs. F. L. Robinson, Mrs. G. A. Borland and Mrs. A. Leach were named co-conveners for the purchasing of articles for the bale.

Mrs. B. Jackson, who presided in the absence of the regent, Mrs. A. Leach, thanked the women who had worked and helped to make the recent bridge, sponsored by the Chapter, a success. She also read a letter of appreciation from the secretary of the Society for the Blind, thanking the Chapter for the assistance given at their annual picnic.

Tentative plans for a rummage sale to be held during November were discussed, and Mrs. H. L. Beal and Mrs. W. Comstock were named co-conveners. Mrs. B. W. Harvey, convener of sewing, said that the next sewing meeting would be held November sixth at the home of Mrs F. Hall. A new member, Mrs. L. M. Davis, was welcomed into the Chapter.

WHY GIRLS BY THOUSANDS prefer this way to relieve distress of

PERIODIC FEMALE WEAKNESS

With Its Nervous Restless Feelings

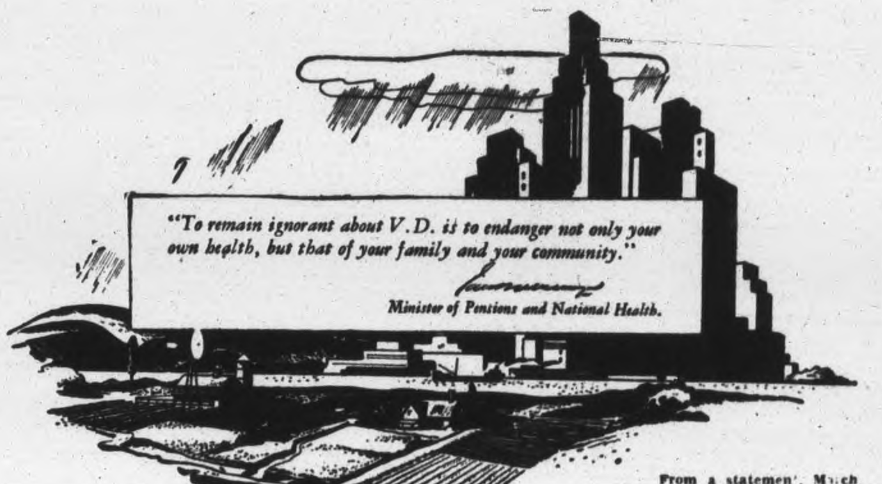
Take heed if you like so many girls—at such times—suffer from cramps, headaches, backache, feel tired, nervous, a bit blue—all due to functional monthly disturbances.

Start at once—try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, to relieve such symptoms. Pinkham's Compound not only helps relieve monthly pain but also accompanying weak, nervous feelings of this nature. This is because of its soothing effect on ONE OF WOMAN'S MOST IMPORTANT ORGANS.

Pinkham's Compound is made from effective roots and herbs (plus Vitamin B1). IT HELPS NATURE!

Thousands of women and girls have reported benefits. Follow label directions. Just see if you're not delighted with results!

Lydia E. Pinkham's VEGETABLE COMPOUND



From a statement, March 28th, 1944.

LET'S be quite frank.

When you read—as you probably did during the past few months—that more than 300,000 people in Canada have syphilis, what was your reaction? Did you say, "That's too bad; something should be done about it", and then turn to the comic page? Chances are you did.

But if that article had told you that Tommy Jones, the lad who used to mow your lawn after school had syphilis—how would you have felt about it? Or that the young couple who built that cute house in the next block, had just lost a baby through syphilis . . . would that have made you stop and think?

Or, if you suddenly discovered that your Mar - - . . . No? That couldn't happen? But it can. And it does . . . to hundreds of Tommies and Marys every year, right here in Canada. Right in your community. You'll never read articles like that, of course, for these are the personal tragedies that people bear in silence.

So, when you pick up the paper sometime and read, " . . . there were 5,000 new VENEREAL DISEASE cases reported in this province last year . . .", remember! These are not cold figures. They represent 5,000 heart-breaking . . . heart-aching situations.

Yes, VENEREAL DISEASE is a serious problem. It's a problem for parents; for taxpayers; for young people on the threshold of life; for everyone.

VENEREAL DISEASE need never strike if we all do our part. If we know the facts. If we use these facts to advantage. If we don't shrug our shoulders and say, "This couldn't happen to anyone in my family."

You have a duty to your family and the community.

PuddingTimeHere For All

By MARY MOORE

Pudding time is now peeking 'round the corner. And I have a perfect one for you—the idea's a bit new I think.

Apple Oat-Crumb

You know the regular Apple Crumb with butter, sugar and flour crust over sliced apples? Well this one uses quick-cooking rolled oats in place of flour.

Slice into buttered baking dish, preferably shallow, about 6 apples—Gravensteins are my favorites at present. Cover with mixture of ½ cup butter, 1 cup brown sugar and 2 cups quick-cooking rolled oats which have been thoroughly mixed together. Place in oven of 350 deg. Fahr. (not hotter unless you are in a great hurry) and bake about 1¼ to 1½ hours. This will bake in 40 minutes if baked at 425 deg. Fahr. but is not as rich. Serve with pouring cream—pudding warm, cream cold.

Banana Marshmallow Pudding

(Ideal for mothers who have small babies using egg yolks.)

One tablespoon gelatin, ¾ cup sugar, 3 stiffly beaten egg whites, 3 bananas, shredded. Soak gelatin in ¼ cup cold water 5 minutes. Add ¼ cup boiling water and sugar, stir until dissolved. Cool, stirring occasionally, until congealing starts. Add egg whites and beat until very light. Add bananas and stir lightly. Chill and set. Serve with whipped cream.

Spiced Pears With Rice

Use either canned or raw pears—6, piece of ginger root or ½ teaspoon ground ginger, 3 tablespoons sugar if canned pears are used, ½ cup if raw. Put pears and 1 cup juice or water with them on to cook with ginger and sugar. Cook slowly until juice thickens. Remove ginger root if used. Cool.

Boil ½ cup rice in 3 cups boiling salted water 25 minutes. Drain and rinse with cold water, then with hot. Put rice in mound in centre of shallow bowl, put pears around, pouring their juice over them. Pour over rice 1 cup top milk. Let stand half hour before serving.

Lemon Sponge Pudding

One cup white sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, yolks and whites separated, 1 cup milk, rind and juice of 1 lemon, 2 tablespoons butter. Sift sugar, flour and salt and blend with beaten egg yolks. Add the milk, lemon juice and rind, beating thoroughly. Melt butter and add. Fold in stiffly beaten whites and bake in buttered pudding dish standing it in pan of hot water, for hour at 350 deg. Fahr. Best cold. Good baked in graham cracker crust.

Cranberry Pudding

(Foamy Orange Sauce)

Three cups sifted flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 egg yolk, 1 cup milk, ½ cup light molasses, ¼ cup sugar, 3 tablespoons melted shortening, 2 cups raw cranberries.

Sift dry ingredients, add yolk, milk, molasses and shortening; fold in cranberries dredged with flour. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. in shallow buttered pan for about 30 minutes, or steam 3 hours tightly covered.

Foamy Orange Sauce: One cup icing sugar, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 egg yolk, ½ cup hot milk, 1 teaspoon orange extract, 2 stiffly beaten whites, grated rind on orange. Cream sugar and butter; add yolk; milk and orange essence. Just before serving fold in whites. Sprinkle each serving with grated orange rind.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

DEAR MARY MOORE: We gathered nuts two weeks ago and had a nut cracking bee—to get 1 cup for a cake I had to stand over my family with a rod—after that they could eat all they liked. This is my nut cake recipe and since it was used by my mother for very special occasions I thought you might like to print it. With nuts the price they are in the stores it's a great help.

Mame's Mother's Hickory Nut Cake.

One cup sugar, ½ cup each butter and milk, 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, whites of 3 eggs, beaten until stiff, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup broken nuts, hickory are best but black walnut and English walnut make a nice cake too. Cream the butter well, and cream in the sugar gradually. Sift the flour with the baking powder, then sift this into the butter mixture alternately with the milk, one-third of them at a time. Add vanilla and nuts, then fold in whites. Bake in loaf pan and cover with boiled frosting sprinkled with nuts, or bake in layers and use sour cream filling to which some nuts have been added.—M. O'Dell.

This comes at an ideal time. I hope our readers find it as much of a treat as I did.

ANSWER: To Mrs. L. M., for the Christmas dinner plans continued from last week.

Steamed Fruit Pudding

(For 24 People).

Three-quarters cup melted shortening, 8 cups sifted flour, 3 teaspoons soda, 4 teaspoons of ground cloves, 4 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon allspice, 2 teaspoons salt, 4 cups milk, 1 cup molasses, 2 cups sugar, 2 pounds fruit—raisins and currants and dates or dried apricots, or a mixture of any or all of these. Measure the flour after sifting, add all the dry ingredients and sift again. Mix molasses with the milk and add to dry ingredients, then add shortening. Fold in fruit. Pour into four greased pudding moulds, cover tightly and bake at 325 degrees Fahr. for 2 hours or steam 3 hours. This is delicious with

Lemon Sauce

(to serve 24 portions of the above pudding.)

Six tablespoons cornstarch, 3 cups sugar, 2 tablespoons grated lemon ring, ¾ cup lemon juice, ¾ cup butter, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon salt. Combine cornstarch, sugar, lemon peel, and lemon juice. Boil 5 minutes. Remove from heat and add butter, and seasonings.

Tomato Jelly Moulded Salad

Six tablespoons gelatin, 8 cups tomato juice, 1 cup vinegar, 4 tablespoons sugar, 2 bay leaves, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon cayenne, 1 large onion minced, 2 cups each chopped cabbage and celery, ¼ cup minced green pepper, ¼ cup minced pimiento, ¼ cup lemon juice. Soak gelatin in 2 cups of the tomato juice. Heat remaining tomato juice, vinegar, sugar, bay leaf, and salt and cayenne together for five minutes, then strain. Stir into the gelatin until it is dissolved. When partially set add remaining ingredients. Pour into lightly oiled mould and chill until set. This will keep 2 days if kept covered and quite cool, but must not be frozen.

Maple Parfait

Beat the yolks of 9 eggs until light-colored and thick; add 2 cups maple syrup and stir over medium heat until thickened enough for mixture to coat spoon. Turn out into large bowl and beat until cold. Whip 1 quart cream and when thick mix it with the cold egg mixture, but do not beat or air will be beaten out. Pour into freezer and pack around with mixture of 2 parts ice to 1 part salt, and let stand at least 4 hours. This may be made one day ahead of time to be served. If your freezer wil hold more than 2 quarts you may want to increase this recipe.

ATTENTION, READERS: Now is the time to write to me if you want instructions for Christmas food and menus to arrive in plenty of time for THE DAY.

SKIN BLEMISHES RESPOND TO VITAMINS
Science shows that many skin troubles due to lack of vitamins

Lemon and lime juice were once used on long sea voyages to offset the dread scourge of scurvy. Today we know the merit lay in the vitamins these citrus fruits contain. Now, for many skin and complexion faults, science says—take vitamins daily. "ALL-in-ONE" Vitamin Tablets give not one vitamin alone, but 5 vital vitamins. Each helps the other to function. Fortify your daily diet with "ALL-in-ONE" Vitamin Tablets. The cost is only $2.15 for a month's supply. At most drug stores.

Her veil of bridal net was shirred to a sweetheart halo and followed the lines of her gown. She wore a cameo pendant, a gift of the groom, and carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Maurice Jacobs, sister-in-law of the bride, and bridal attendants were Miss Lillian M. Hayden, bridesmaid; and Miss Gloria Jacobs, niece of the bride, and Miss Beatrice Warner, flower girls.

Both Mrs. Jacob's and Miss Hayden's gowns were floor-length models in cornflower blue. They wore tiny skull caps of ruffled blue satin ribbon and carried pink carnations. The flower girls wore pink sheer with pink caps trimmed with ruffled pink ribbon and carried colonial bouquets.

Dr. William Mulchinock and Dr. John Sproule attended the groom. Ushers were Dr. Gordon Baux and Dr. Beverley Lapp. The organist Miss Helen Banhoun, played the wedding music and Miss Audrey Stutchbury sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Jacobs wore soldier blue crepe with blue sequin trim, accessories to match and corsage of Talisman roses roses.

Afterward a reception was held at the Corona Hotel.

Later the couple left by car for a wedding trip to Calgary. On their return they will reside in Edmonton.

Peterboro Tops Half-Way War Bond Total

Peterbrough crossed the half-way line in the Seventh Victory Loan Wednesday with subscriptions for the day amounting to $411,350, carrying the total for nine days to $2,459,400, which was $159,400 more than the requisite $2,300,000, half the objective of $4,600,000.

The percentage of objective reached Wednesday was 53.5, against the obvious 50 per cent for the first nine of the eighteen days' campaign. The margin of surplus at this stage was 3.5.

City and county, as a combined unit, were slightly ahead of their schedule, with nine more days to keep on digging for money to be converted into Victory Bonds. Manifestly the campaign was shaping into the familiar pattern of previous six as payroll savings made a long reach toward its quota of this Seventh Loan and the Special Names division marked up $215,000 for the day, more than half its present total of subscriptions.

By way of special encouragement to the great majority of citizens who are making a special effort for the success of the Loan, it may be pointed out that subscriptions up to Wednesday night were $617,850 in excess of the comparable total for the first half of the Sixth Loan. The figures are to date: $2,459,400 and $1,841,550.

And the percentages of the grand total for the same two periods were 53.5 and 40.9. Each division is showing larger amounts than in the Spring campaign.

The Wednesday subscriptions were:

Special names	$215,000
City canvass	91,650
Payroll Savings	56,250
Rural canvass	48,450
Day's total	$411,350

Campaign quotas for these divisions are:

Special names	$1,400,000
City canvass	1,675,000
Payroll savings	900,000
Rural canvass	625,000
Total	$4,600,000

Divisions percentages of quotas up to Wednesday night: Payroll Savings, 83.6; Rural Canvass, 46; City Canvass, 45.4; Special Names, 43.9. And grand total percentage 53.5.

County's Day

Wednesday summary for the county municipal subdivisions as the townships and villages boosted their subscriptions from $239,200 at Tuesday night to $287,650, credited Norwood with the day's largest number of applications for Victory Bonds amounting to $10,350. Those sales swept the village from eleventh to sixth position in the rural records.

Meanwhile the pace setting northern quartette, Harvey, Anstruther, Burleigh and Chandos with sales of $8,300, pushed up their percentage of quota from 49.4 to 67. At that level they were second only to the Payroll Savings Division.

The northerners, including territory that has become more familiarly known as the site of the proposed provincial park, increased their total from $23,200 to $31,500 for 67 per cent.

Smith township was third in the day's lending with $7,600 turned in. Their percentage was up from 29.6 to 36.9, but that improvement failed to budge them from the tenth spot, for the plain reason that other municipalities were also on the march, at least nearly of them.

Havelock Record

In the standing for nine days, Havelock is second with 53.8 per cent or $12,850 of their $25,000 quota.

Belmont-Methuen skipped Tuesday, at least in arriving reports, but were in third place with 51.4 per cent.

Otonabee is fourth at 50.3 per cent and $70,400 of their $140,000 allotment. Reeve Mather's township has been singled out for the compliment of assuming by far the largest individual objective in the rural sector. Possibly the people of that township have forgotten that in the Sixth Loan they had $130,000 as their goal and in nine days they had clocked up only $31,200 or 24 per cent as compared with their Wednesday night total of $70,400 or 50.3 per cent.

And by contrast, merely as a detail of progress, Smith was away out in front at this stage of the Sixth with 81 per cent of their $90,000 objective or $73,150 to their credit as against 36.9 per cent or $38,700 of their present $105,000 objective.

The other rural subdivisions are down under the 50 per cent line on the records sheet.

Lakefield, fifth, 48.4 per cent or $26,600 of their $55,000 task.

Norwood, sixth, 46.4 per cent; objective $58,000; secured $26,900.

North Monaghan, seventh; objective $20,000; secured $8,800. It should be pointed out that North Monaghan isn't the township it used to be before it cast eyes toward cityhood; and its objective is down from $40,000 to $20,000.

Dummer, eighth; objective $35,000; secured $15,100.

Asphodel, ninth; objective $45,000; secured $17,400.

Smith, tenth; objective $105,000; secured $38,700.

Douro, eleventh; objective $35,000; secured $12,400.

Ennismore, twelfth; objective $15,000; secured $2,800. The Ennismore percentage is 18.7 as compared with 54.5 per cent at the half-way turn in the Sixth Loan.

Wednesday Buying

The rural investing for Wednesday was as follows: Norwood, $10,350; Harvey, Burleigh, Chandos, Anstruther, $8,300; Smith, $7,600; Lakefield, $7,050; Otonabee, $6,550; Havelock, $2,700; Asphodel, $2,400; Ennismore, $1,600; Douro, $1,400; North Monaghan, $500; and Dummer and Belmont-Methuen were not heard from.

Western Front Fight To Last Winter

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY IN HOLLAND, Nov. 2 — (CP. Cable). — The campaign on the western front now is almost certain to drag on into the winter.

There are some commanders who still have hopes a decision will be reached before Christmas but the majority opinion appears to hold to the belief that, faced with the present principal problems of weather and supply, American, British and Canadian armies in the west will have to fight on into the winter.

But the weather has been foul most of October, heavy fogs and mist rolled over Holland from the North Sea to plague air operations. Heavy bombers have been able to carry out many tremendous raids by day and night but the tactical air forces have been limited by poor visibility in their invaluable direct support of the ground forces.

Now really cold weather with more fog is coming as a prelude to winter when unquestionably Allied movement will be greatly restricted. Allied armies are facing this prospect frankly and preparations are being made for a winter campaign.

Even with Walcheren Island clear the Schelde Estuary will have to be swept for mines along the 45 miles from its mouth to the Antwerp docks. This will take time before convoys can come in.

It will be some weeks after this before the effect of the use of Antwerp will be reflected in operations on the western front. Winter weather usually sets in early in December in this region.

Canadian Army Resembles Foreign Legion

WITH THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY IN HOLLAND, Nov. 2. — Announcement that American troops are fighting under the Canadian Army command in the spectacular northward advance in Holland reveals the Canadian army as the most ingenious collection of nationalities since the French Foreign Legion. Canadian troops certainly do not possess a voting majority in their own army. When it began to operate officially as the Canadian army in Normandy on July 23 it had a substantial proportion of British troops under its command. Early in August Maj.-Gen. Stanislow Maczek's Polish armored division joined for the Falaise push. Later that month Dutch and Belgian formations came under the Canadian command and in October a Czechoslovak unit was inserted, now followed by the Americans.

This army headquarters is beginning to resemble a League of Nations session, complete with a big corps of translators and interpreters.

In common with Canadian troops, American units are fighting under the most atrocious battle conditions of the campaign. Biting winds add to the discomfort of the waterlogged terrain, and the flatness of the country offers little cover from enemy guns and mortars. Much of the fighting is hand-to-hand.

The Canadian army appears delighted with its American acquisition.

"They're not only good trooops," a staff officer told me, "but they also speak English.

The English language was, of course, getting to be a novelty in the Canadian outfit.

Belgian Tribute

BRUSSELS, Nov. 2.—(CP Cable)—Baron Robert Silvercruys, Belgian ambassador to Canada, who is here for discussions with his government, told a press conference yesterday "Belgian people here and in Canada realize fully how much we owe Canada and the Canadian forces for the miraculous liberation of our homeland."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BETTER THAN EVEN MONEY

IT MAY NOT be important to know the exact odds for and against various developments in the play of the cards, but it pays to have a general idea of them. Any fair player knows that in most cases an ordinary finesse is exactly a 50-50 chance, also that finding six outstanding cards evenly divided, with three to each opponent, occurs less than half the time. How many know, though, that finding seven outstanding cards divided 4 and 3, instead of more unevenly, is much better than an even chance? Actually that division comes about 62 times out of 100.

	North

West ♠ None ♥ J 10 3 2 ♦ Q 9 6 2 ♣ J 7 5 3 2	N / W E / S	East ♠ 10 7 5 3 ♥ K 8 6 ♦ K 10 7 5 ♣ Q 8

1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♥	Pass
6 ♠

That was a duplicate deal, and the difference in play between two tables furnished a ludicrous contrast. In both cases West led the diamond 2, South winning with the A. Then at one table South immediately tried the finesse of the heart Q, which lost to the K, whereupon the diamond K set the contract.

At the other table, South led his heart to the second trick, but came up with the A, ruffed the heart 5, led to the spade A, ruffed the heart 7, scored the spade J, K and Q to take out East's trumps, discarding the diamond 8 on the last of these, then used the heart Q and 9 for two club discards, led to the club A and K, and gave up a club at the end.

In a post-mortem at the end of the evening the beaten declarer explained that he always thought there was a better chance of making a finesse than having a suit split favorably. But he was thinking of the 3-3 split, not a 4-3 division.

Another player, who also got into 6-Spades, said: "Why didn't you cross-ruff clubs and hearts? I did and made the contract easily."

How can East and West make sure of setting this contract, by correct defense which makes it impossible for South to deceive them by any false carding?

Britain Builds 634 Major Ships Since Outbreak Of Present War

LONDON, Nov. 2—(CP)—Britain produced 634 major war vessels displacing 1,183,501 tons from the outbreak of the war until last December, A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, informed the House of Commons, and paid a special tribute to Canada's ship-building achievements.

Mr. Alexander reported also the Royal Navy had sunk 31 enemy warships and transports and 40 smaller craft and severely damaged 16 warships and merchant vessels and 15 smaller craft around Greece during the last six weeks. Many of the ships, he said, were carrying German troops.

Warships produced in Britain included battleships, cruisers, monitors, destroyers and submarines, he said. Other naval vessels built during the period totalled 3,989, or 455,277 tons. During four years of the First Great War Britain produced 1,654 warships of 1,595,000 tons.

"While it would be wrong to assume we are at the end of real danger from attacks on our shipping, especially by U-boats and mines, I think we have now reached a stage of the war at which we have good reason to hope that the worst of our shipping problems are over."

Mr. Alexander said "we could not have survived at one period, but for the persistent efficiency and continuity of our shipyards and had we not early placed an order for 60 merchant ships in the United States before her entry in the war and obtained the assistance of Canada in the most remarkable addition to the shipping of the United Nations which she had produced, starting from scratch."

Mrs. Mary Loucks, 519 Nelson Street, London, Ontario, is glad to pass her experience along to others, for she knows how much it has meant to her to find relief from severe pains in limbs, gas, bloat and other stomach distress, that dulled appetite, often keeping her awake nights, and also relief from dizzy spells, nervousness and constipation.

"It was over a year ago that my stomach started giving me trouble. I would bloat up terribly and the gas caused severe pains in the pit of my stomach. Hot, sour liquids came up in my throat. I'd become short of breath and have a heavy, full feeling in my stomach. Soon after this I began having pains in my legs. It often felt like the muscles were tied up in knots and I could hardly walk. I was badly constipated, would get dizzy spells and spots floated before my eyes. Finaly! I became so nervous that I Finally I became so nervous that I

"My daughter had taken Syntona with good results and several times urged me to try it, but I kept putting it off until I got so bad that I had to do something and it was then that I asked my husband to get some of this medicine for me. He brought home three bottles and before I had finished those I was feeling better than I had for months, so I kept on taking it and now the pains and soreness have gone away my food digests without any disturbance in my stomach and my bowels move regularly every day. I have no dizziness or spots before my eyes and my nerves do not trouble me. I can walk downtown and back, something I could not do before, and I feel better in every way. I am glad to tell other sufferers about Syntona, and recommend that they try it, too."

Bracken Denies Disunity In P.C. Party

MONTREAL, Nov. 2 — (CP) — Progressive Conservative leader John Bracken Tuesday issued a statement denying disunity existed in the Progressive Conservative party and said the main point "all fair-minded people are anxious about right now is where does the Liberal party stand on their home conscript army and Communist co-operation."

He issued a 250-word statement arising from a dispatch to the Toronto Star from its Ottawa correspondent, H. R. Armstrong.

Mr. Bracken's statement follows:

My attention has just been called to an article by a Liberal party propagandist named H. R. Armstrong, which appeared in the Toronto Daily Star yesterday, datelined Ottawa, Oct. 30, and with the headline, Bracken-Drew split widens.

This is just another spurt in the stream of venomous and contemplated propaganda which has been emanating from this section of the press.

Certainly I am not in accord with any hate campaign against the Province of Quebec. I have made that clear on more than one occasion. Contrary to the misrepresentations carried on by the Liberal section of the press, I have seen no evidence of Premier Drew indulging in any hate Quebec campaign. Such a construction is a figment of a warped imagination and a jaundiced eye. No one has been more eloquent in his praise of the French Canadian battalions overseas. In common with George Drew, I have been outspoken in my criticism of Quebec's Liberal leaders.

The Liberal party divided at this very moment in its innermost councils on the really urgent question of providing reinforcements for our boys overseas and still playing politics with it, is sadly in need of other issues — and also some able apologists. Its policy of co-operation with the Communists needs considerable explaining as well.

Mr. Armstrong's effort this time has overstepped the mark in clumsiness and drawing red herrings. The game is as clear as it is clumsy.

There is no lack of unity in the Progressive-Conservative party and everyone knows that. What all fair-minded people are anxious about right now is where does the Liberal party stand on their home conscript army and Communist co-operation.

The Farmer—The Commercial Fisherman
AND THE MAN WHO WANTS HIS OWN BUSINESS

The backbone of Canada's natural wealth is the farmer, while, in many of the Dominion's Provinces, commercial fishing is of the utmost importance. In all sections of Canada, the small businessman is a real contributor to the national economy. Here are three fields which many of Canada's veterans will want to enter. It is important that they should have that opportunity and, in planning for re-establishment, Canada has made full provision along these lines. There is financial assistance for ex-service men and women who are qualified to achieve these ambitions.

FULL-TIME FARMING

Provision for return to the land is made by the Veterans' Land Act under the same terms as apply for small holdings outside the high taxation area. The ex-service man or woman, qualified for full-time farming, will have assistance in financing up to a total cost of $4800 for land and buildings, and up to $1200 for stock and equipment. Any cost of land and buildings in excess of $4800 must be paid in cash at the time the agreement is made.

Although large acreages of land are being held for veterans after the war, a man is at liberty to choose his own farm any place as long as it offers a reasonable change for his re-establishment. The veteran going on the farm must pay down ten per cent of the cost of land and buildings, and the establishment is then resold to him for this down payment, plus two-thirds of the cost of land and buildings. The two-thirds can be financed over a period of twenty-five years, with interest at 3½ per cent.

The remainder of the cost of land and buildings (23⅓ per cent) and the $1200 for stock and equipment becomes a grant, after the veteran has lived up to his agreement for a ten-year period.

To take advantage of full-time farming provisions, the ex-service man or woman must be qualified for full-time farming, must have overseas service or at least 12 months' service in Canada, and must have a reasonable expectation of living up to their agreement.

COMMERCIAL FISHING

For the veteran who has a background of commercial fishing, and who is qualified to resume that occupation, there is the same assistance as in full-time farming.

Homes are financed on small acreages near commercial fishing grounds on the same basis as for city and other workers. This is a measure to provide security for the veteran, for it enables him to raise a portion of his food requirements to assist in those periods when commercial fishing is not possible or profitable.

The provisions for commercial fishing take into account that in many cases, to be successful, a partnership arrangement is necessary. In these cases, if the partners are both ex-service men, each will receive a grant of $1200 which can be pooled for the purchase of needed fishing equipment. Each also will receive the same assistance as the farmer in securing a home on a small holding of land.

ASSISTANCE IN BUSINESS

Those ex-service people whose ambition is to have their own business can receive financial assistance. To purchase the business they can draw on their re-establishment credit, which is made available to them on the basis of $7.50 for every thirty days' service in the Western Hemisphere and $15.00 for every thirty days' service overseas.

The re-establishment credit also can be used to provide working capital for a business already owned.

In addition, Canada has recognized that in establishing a business there may be a period when returns are not sufficient to maintain the owner. During this period, maintenance grants can be paid on the basis of:

$50 monthly for a single man or woman.

These grants may be applied for at any time within twelve months of cessation of hostilities or discharge, whichever is the later date.

Veterans' Welfare Officers are stationed in key centres throughout Canada. They advise and assist Ex-Service personnel and should be consulted on all re-establishment problems. Veterans considering taking advantage of the Veterans' Land Act should see the Regional Supervisor in the district where they intend to settle before making any commitments.

Your nearest Veteran's Welfare Officer is located at 172 Spadina Ave., Toronto

SHIP TORPEDOED IN ST. LAWRENCE

"Weekend To See Fall Of Budapest

Speeding Russians 23 Miles From Capital City

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Nov. 3.—(AP).—Russian tanks, guns and men rumbled to-day toward the outskirts of Budapest, where front dispatches said panic prevailed as the noise of battle swelled 23 miles away.

The Red army already was smashing into the outer defences of the ancient city of 1,162,800 on the Danube. At Domsod, the Russians were within 100 miles of the Austrian frontier and 140 miles of Vienna.

The Russians were pushing toward the Hungarian capital's south-eastern limits. The main drive was along the concrete highway from Kecskemet, although other columns were converging from other directions.

(The German communique said a fierce battle was in progress against Soviet infantry and tank formations 'advancing in the direction of Budapest" from northwest of Kecskemet and that difficult weather hampered air support.).

In five days, the Red army had advanced 50 miles over the level Hungarian plain, one of Germany's greatest bread baskets. The opposing German and Hungarian forces were reported to have lost half their trucks and a large share of their tanks as well as 8,000 prisoners recently.

Northeast of Budapest Russian columns cleared the enemy from a 65 mile section of the eastern bank of the middle Tisza river, on a front between Csap on the Czechoslovakian border and reaching to captured Polgar, 93 miles from the imperilled capital.

Sixty towns and villages were seized in the advance on Budapest from the south and the enemy was rolled back on a 60 mile front. The capture of 2,080 prisoners, including Col.-Gen. Janus Voeroes, former Hungarian chief of staff, brought the total for the first three days of the offensive to 7,518.

It was believed here that Red army advance columns might already have speared across the Tisca northeast of Budapest in a drive to link up with forces to the south for an all-out assault on the city.

(German broadcasts heard in London suggested that the Russians might smash into Budapest this week-end.)

Britain to Retain Controls

By JOHN DAUPHINEE—Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 3—(CP).—The British Government, as part of its post-war employment policy, plans to continue into the peace many of the measures which it has used to guarantee a stable economy during the five war years. For some months the man-in-the-street is likely to find little change in his way of life, except for the increased availability of necessities like clothing and furniture. The transition period will be a period of shortages, and the total manpower available will be insufficient to satisfy the total demand for goods and services. Economic conditions will be unsettled, at least until some time after the downfall of Japan. Peacetime production, like war production, will take some time to get fully into stride.

The government in a White Paper on employment policy, outlined three dangers of the transition period. One was the risk that demand would outrun supply and create an inflationary rise in prices.

These civilian controls will be continued:

1. Rationing and a measure of [illegible] control. Increases in rations of [illegible]ufactured goods will be regulated to correspond with production increases. Food rations will be increased depending on the extent to which overseas supplies become available.

Use Subsidies.

2. Subsidies to prevent temporary rises in the cost of living, and provide a stable general level of costs.

3. Continuation of savings drives, so there is no "spending spree" which increases suddenly the consumption of consumer goods.

4. Control of the use of capital, to prevent a borrowing scramble which would result in a steep rise in rates of interest.

"It cannot be expected," said the white paper, "that the public, after years of wartime restrictions, will find such proposals altogether palatable; and the government have no intention of maintaining wartime restrictions for restrictions' sake.

"But they are resolved that, so long as supplies are abnormally short, the most urgent needs shall be met first. Without some of the existing controls this could not be achieved. . ."

A second danger in the transition period would be that production of unessential goods might interfere with the production of essentials.

6 Point Program

The government has worked out a six-point program to help industry over the hump and reduce unemployment to a minimum:

1. By helping firms to prepare for the switchover to peace work;
2. By finding out immediately just where the skilled labor which will gradually become available for civilian work will be most urgently needed;
3. By arranging that labor and raw materials will be available for urgent civilian work and adapting wartime methods of allocating raw materials, machines and manpower so they fit into the post-war picture;
4. By arranging that curtailments of munitions production occur first in areas where the factory capacity

Dusseldorf City Left In Flames Canadians Prominent In Raid

LONDON, Nov. 3—(CP).—One thousand R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy bombers laid 4,000 tons of explosives and fire bombs last night on Germany's greatest arsenal of Dusseldorf after a day in which United States fighters of the 8th Air Force won "their greatest victory of the war over the Luftwaffe."

A special communique from U.S. strategic air force headquarters gave this description today and told of the destruction of 208 German aircraft over the synthetic oil centre of Merseburg. It scaled down American losses to 40 heavy bombers and 19 fighters. One bomber and nine fighters, previously listed as lost in yesterday's operations, landed safely at French bases. The communique said "still others probably landed behind our lines in Europe."

Fighter pilots destroyed 130 German interceptors in the air and 25 aground, some on Berlin airports 100 miles from Merseburg. Bombers shot down 53 while attacking the great Leuna synthetic oil plant, which once supplied Germany with 50,000 tons of petroleum products a month.

The German air force made one of its rare stands to protect the oil city, sending 500 planes to battle the armada of 2,000 attacking craft, 900 of which were fighters.

Must Average 86 Million Daily

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 — (CP). — Canadians yesterday bought $84,043,400 worth of Seventh Victory Loan bonds to make the cumulative total for more than half the three-week drive $745,141,150 compared with about $715,000,000 at the same stage in the Sixth loan when an all-time record of more than $1,400,000,000 was raised.

Individual Canadians rolled up a total of $36,630,750 to pass the half-way mark of the $643,000,000 which they raised in the Sixth loan.

Officials said today that sales for the final eight days of this campaign must average about $86,000,000 daily if it is to be the largest loan in Canada's history.

New Brunswick joined other provinces and signed an application for $1,500,000 in bonds. This equals the province's record subscription in the Sixth loan.

The Canadian Pacific Railway system was over the $7,500,000 mark today, 61,934 employees having subscribed a total of $7,579,900. The company is now within a $1,000,000, of its quota.

The three armed forces now are over the top. Yesterday, the R.C.A.F. announced it had achieved $15,290,150 for 102 per cent of its $15,000,000 quota. The army now has $22,018,700 for 105 per cent of quota and the navy $5,060,300, also 105 per cent.

In Ontario, 22 of the 61 canvassing units had touched 50 per cent of objective at the half-way mark of the campaign, compared with 10 at the same stage of the Sixth drive.

Large subscriptions announced yesterday include:—

Imperial Oil Ltd., International Petroleum Co., Ltd., and its subsidiaries, $10,000,000; Ford Motor Co., of Canada Ltd., Windsor, Ont., $6,000,000; Excelsior Life Insurance Co., of Canada Ltd., Windsor, $2,100,000, including $325,000 conversions.

Commandos Knock Out Coastal Guns

Tough Assignment Finished By Canadian Units

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY ON THE SCHELDE, Nov. 3.—(CP Cable.)— British Commandos and infantrymen have overrun Vlissingen (Flushing), key defence stronghold at the mouth of the Schelde estuary, in bitter fighting through blazing streets.

The struggle to clear the Schelde approaches is just about over. Only a few scattered German guns which can fire on the entrance to the island port of Antwerp remain in action.

But likely there still will be hard fighting before all Walcheren island is captured and the German 70th division destroyed.

The important objective of this operation however, was to knock out the German coastal guns and this has been done with remarkable speed. The few guns yet uncaptured are running short of ammunition.

A few snipers are holding out in the northern outskirts of Vlissingen, where the Germans had set up batteries commanding the three-mile-wide entrance to the Schelde estuary leading to Antwerp, was one of the toughest assignments in the Schelde operation. British Commandos and infantry burst through one fortified position after another to win their victory.

Attack Last Guns.

Other Commandos thrusting down the coastal dike from Westkapelle at the western tip of the island, where landings also were made Wednesday, now are about two miles northwest of Vlissingen. They are attacking the last remaining guns on the Schelde coast.

In the bridgehead established on the east end of Walcheren Island from the causeway linking it with South Beveland Island British troops are meeting strong opposition but gains have been made and British infantry now are in firm positions two miles south of the causeway.

Previously this foothold had been won after determined fighting by Canadian forces.

Arnemuiden, two miles west of the causeway and three miles east of Middleburg in the centre of the island, was declared an open town following a parley between German

Americans Start New Push Through Vosges

LONDON, Nov. 3 — (CP). — British forces have overrun the fortified port of Vlissingen (Flushing) German stronghold on the south side of Walcheren Island commanding the entrance to the Schelde Estuary.

Southeast of Aachen, where the United States 1st Army attacked on a limited front and broke through the Hurtgen Forest with gains of one to two miles yesterday, the Americans continued to advance today but against increasing resistance, Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters announced.

On the southern reaches of the Allied front, Allied troops battled deeper into the rising hills of the Vosges, capturing eight towns and villages and approaching to within from three to eight miles of the first towns inside six passes leading to the Rhine flatlands.

Infantry of the U.S. 7th Army and poilus of the French 1st Army battled forward on a 14-mile front southeast of Nancy and northeast of Epinal on the approaches of all three of the northernmost Vosges passes.

They had advanced five miles at places in the last 24 hours.

Baccarat, 32 miles southeast of Nancy, was seized in a tank battle along with the villages of Gelacourt, Domjevin, Deneuvre, Bazien, Nossoncourt and Menil-sur-Belvitte on either side of Baccarat.

Nearing Town

This placed the Allies within four miles of Raon l'Etape, first town inside Schirmeck Pass to Strassbourg.

Farther south, Americans captured La Bourgonce, six miles northwest of St. Die, first town inside the Ste. Marie Pass.

Gains also were made in the bend of the Mogelotte, where the Allies were within six miles of Gerardmer in the Schlucht Pass.

Disaster Details Obscure Explosions Heard 17 Of 62-Man Crew Saved

Blast Takes Place After Midnight 8 Miles Off Quebec Shore Ship Carried Downstream In The Dark

MATANE, Que., Nov. 3 — (CP). — Two explosions ripped through a Canadian-built freighter of British registry in the St. Lawrence River last night, in what might have been the first revealed enemy action in the waterway since 1942. Seventeen crew-men of the 10,000-ton ship landed at nearby Petite Matane early today after several hours of rowing across the swift St. Lawrence current. They believed that theirs was the only life-boat to leave the ship and they were not sure of the fate of 45 officers and men still aboard the ship when they pulled away.

The men, on deck at the time of the first of two blasts, got away soon after an order to abandon ship had been given. Ten minutes after they left they heard a second explosion, just as the current carried their boat out of sight of the freighter in the gloom.

There was no indication as to whether the explosions resulted from blasts within the ship—such as a boiler explosion—or whether the vessel had been attacked by a submarine or had run afoul of a mine. The crew-men reaching here said they were not able to determine whether the blasts were internal or external. Enemy U-boats accounted for 20 merchantmen and two war-craft in the St. Lawrence area during the summer and fall of 1942.

Matane is 235 miles below Quebec City on the south bank of the river, and the St. Lawrence is about 30 miles wide here. It widens gradually from Matane down to the point 100 miles below Matane where it becomes the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The ship was outward bound, sailing alone, at the time of the twin blasts.

One Lifeboat Away

OS. Sidney Langmead, one of the 17 survivors, said that he was on deck when the first explosion occurred "and the whole ship vibrated—no one seemed to know whether the explosion came from the boilers inside or from a torpedo outside."

Immediately after the blast, the order was given to abandon ship, he said. The survivors all were in the first lifeboat to leave the ship, with the order to shove off coming from the vessel's first officer who remained on deck.

"We were adrift for about 10 minutes when we heard a second explosion," said Langmead. "The ship went down fast after that and we could not tell if any other boats had gotten away. We were carried down river quickly by the current and didn't see anything more of the rest of the crew."

The survivors were all English-speaking. After rowing across the swift St. Lawrence current for six hours they reached land at nearby Petite Matane early this morning.

With the cause of the sinking remaining obscure, there was speculation along the river today as to whether German submarines had again penetrated the St. Lawrence area.

If the ship was torpedoed it was the first merchant vessel reported sunk in the St. Lawrence and its approaches since the summer and fall of 1942, when a heavy campaign of submarine action resulted in 20 sinkings.

In addition to the merchant ships, submarine victims that year included the Canadian corvette Charlottetown and the armed yacht Raccoon.

Canuck Soldiers Happy Over Cabinet Change

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY ON THE SCHELDE, Nov. 3 — (CP. Cable). — Over field wireless sets on this cold and foggy Schelde front officers and men of the 1st Canadian Army last night heard the news that their old chief, Gen. McNaughton, had become Canada's Defence Minister in succession to Col. Ralston.

It was the biggest news on the front, topping even battle reports. The first reaction of the troops was astonishment, and then delight that "the general", as he is known to thousands of Canada's fighting men, had returned to active participation in the war.

The BBC broadcast a brief item on its Forces network and soon all the troops knew about it. Speculation on the reasons behind the cabinet change was rampant, with most of it revolving around the reinforcement situation.

Few Canadians here had the slightest knowledge that Col. Ralston was at odds with the Prime Minister or that Gen. McNaughton would enter public life. Many had been wondering what "the general" had been doing lately and they could not envisage him being idle long.

Popular Leader

It was a sad blow to the troops when Gen. McNaughton was forced to leave his command last Christmas. For the troops, McNaughton was the creator of the Canadian army. He developed it and directed its training from the days of the 1st Division until five divisions were ready for battle.

In Sicily, Italy, France, Belgium and Holland these men have shown the merit of their training and now that Gen. McNaughton has come back to share in the fight as a leading figure they are pleased.

Bombers Lash Siam Bridge

KANDY, Ceylon, Nov. 3 —(CP-Reuter)—Heavy bombers made a 13-hour flight to bomb the important railway bridge at Dara, in Siam, 284 miles north of Bangkok, just before dusk on Wednesday evening, it was announced today.

Damage to the bridge, which takes the main Bangkok-Chiengmai line over the wide Menan Nan River, will force the Japanese to ferry cargoes over the river, causing serious interference with their traffic for eastern Burma and northern Siam.

Today's communique reported that troops of the 5th Indian Division captured Japanese strongpoints on the slopes of Sialum Vum, 8,000-foot mountain overlooking the road from Tiddim to Fort White along which Allied forces are advancing through the Chin hills area of northern Burma.

Nazi Showdown Impending Hitler Seeks Way Out

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Sometimes I am asked to try to explain what impels Hitler to continue fighting for a lost cause, and whether the German leader still has some tricks up his sleeve.

Maybe such an attempt is not a bad idea in view of yesterday's great air battle and other signs that a showdown is impending. The difficulty is that while I've seen a good deal of Hitler at one time or another—Berchtesgaden, Godesberg, Munich, Berlin, Sudetenland — I can't claim to read readily one of the most twisted minds the devil ever moulded. Still, this abnormal mind surely reacts to some typical human emotions, so let's try.

First off, Hitler no longer has the slightest hope of averting defeat. He's surrounded by overwhelming military strength, backed by unlimited resources. His own fighting machine is crippled. His war supplies are nearing exhaustion. The majority of his vital industries have been knocked out. His communications are in terrible shape. His food supplies finally are running short.

Why Hang On?

Why then does he hang on? He's responding to the primary human emotion—self-preservation. He isn't fighting for the sake of Germany, but is using the final resources of the Fatherland to try to save himself from Allied vengeance. His captains are battling for life in the same corner.

There's small doubt, as I see it, that Hitler would surrender immediately if the Allies were foolish enough to promise immunity for him and his gang.

So every move the Fuerher now makes is directed to one end—to delay defeat in the hope that some fortuitous event may save his hide. What sort of a break is he looking for? The answer is that he has nothing particular in mind. He's just a terrified murderer to whom any reprieve is a good reprieve.

He says to himself: "Maybe the Allies will get tired of war and make a negotiated peace. Maybe the advocates of a soft peace will triumph." Always it's "maybe, maybe, maybe," without any specific likelihood in view.

Has the Fuehrer any secret weapon or special scheme up his sleeve? Yes, probably both. But he has nothing that he expects will give him victory — only the bare possibility of a lessening of his own punishment.

Ralston Gives No Statement

OTTAWA, Nov. 3 — (CP). — This politically-minded Capital watched to-day for further developments—if any— from the Cabinet crisis which resulted in the resignation of Defence Minister Ralston and his replacement by Gen. McNaughton, former Commander of the Canadian Army Overseas.

As yet, there has been no statement from Col. Ralston, 63-year-old soldier of the First Great War who resigned his post dramatically at a Tuesday night Cabinet meeting. Whether he intends to comment is not known.

Some ministers who supported Col. Ralston's stand that call-up troops be sent overseas as reinforcements were disappointed when the proposal was turned down. It was understood, however, they would not go to the extent of resigning, because times were too critical.

Finance Minister Ilsley, frequently mentioned as lining up with the former Defence Minister during Cabinet discussions, was said to have taken that view. Others feeling similarly, it was understood, included State Secretary McLarty, Labor Minister Mitchell, Revenue Minister Gibson, and Resources Minister Crerar.

The possibility of Navy Minister Macdonald resigning was not being overlooked, however, but he has given no indication he plans such a step. He was said to have strong views of keeping the Army well supplied with reinforcements with call-ups if necessary.

Air Marshal Dies

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(CP-Reuter).—Air Marshal Sir Francis John Linnell, former Deputy Air Officer Commanding-in-Chief of the R.A.F. in the Middle East, was killed in an accident on the Oxford-London road, near Wheatley, Oxfordshire, to-day. He was 52.

Superforts Rip Rangoon Area

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (AP) — Carrying record bomb loads, B-29 Superfortresses today attacked railroad marshalling yards at Rangoon in Japanese-held Burma.

A 20th Air Force communique announcing this said the daylight attack was made "in substantial force" and that "preliminary estimates of damage inflicted are good."

The giant craft took off from bases in India with "the largest bomb loads per aircraft so far known to be listed in aerial warfare."

The raiders, co-ordinating with elements of the Eastern Air command, encountered favorable weather over the target area.

Canadians Win High Praise

Clearing Of Antwerp Notable Achievement

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(CP).—The New York Herald Tribune paid editorial tribute to-day to the Canadian and British forces for clearing the approaches to Antwerp and making that great port available for the Allies.

The newspaper's editorial said in part:

"The achievement of the British and Canadians who have forced the enemy relentlessly beyond the Maas, who have opened the Schelde and freed Southern Holland is one of the major contributions to ultimate victory. It has taken them some time to do it. But the mind goes back to Passchendaele in 1917, another battle in which a sea of blood was poured, uselessly, into a sea of mud. That, also, took time and ended nowhere. This action has moved. Even the soaking autumn of the low countries could not stop modern men and armor nor avert decisive results.

"The Canadian 1st and the British 2nd armies have got it (Antwerp) for us, at the cost of blood and toil and misery in the rain; theirs has been a major accomplishment. They have won a new supply line. In doing so, they have freed themselves to supply still more overwhelming power for the great push that is certainly coming. They have brought the end much nearer than before."

Canadian Corps Bogged In Mud

WITH THE CANADIANS ON THE ADRIATIC, Nov. 3—(CP Cable) — The rains came to the Canadian Corps area again yesterday, a deluge this time mercifully without strong winds.

Operations in this sector still are stalled, and more bridges needed by the Canadians for their advance have been carried downstream by the swelling currents of the coastal rivers.

Route 16 running toward Ravenna is blocked by German infantry and self-propelled guns, even if the weather would allow the Canadians to advance.

Brigadier Says Bottom Being Scraped

CALGARY, Nov. 3 — (CP). — Brig. P. R. Shields, M.C., and Bar, back home after five years overseas, said yesterday in an interview that when he left England a few weeks ago, "they were scraping the bottom of the pot to provide enough reinforcements for the infantry."

"In many cases," said the Brigadier, who was in charge of reinforcement units on two occasions, "the reinforcements sent from Canada are not of an age or category fit for service in a theatre of operations."

He explained that reinforcement demands fluctuated in accordance with fighting, and added "it was necessary to transfer to the infantry personnel from other branches of the Armed Services to meet the demands."

"The reinforcement training organization in the United Kingdom, in the time available and with the number of instructors who have seen service in theatres of operations, is doing an excellent job to fit personnel for service on the battlefront," he declared.

Leyte Battle Nears End Japs Fleeing

Enemy Casualties Exceed 30,000 Carigara Captured

By MURLIN SPENCER
Associated Press War Correspondent

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Nov. 3 — (AP). — Gen. MacArthur, from a room where an enemy flier's bullet missed his head by 12 inches, announced today the near end of the Leyte campaign as his land, sea and air forces set a death trap for Ormoc, last port of flight for the Japanese.

Just two weeks after he returned to the Philippines, MacArthur's four divisions were cornering bewildered enemy troops on Leyte's west coast, pressing for a kill which would swell enemy casualties, already past 30,000.

Today's communique suggested attention was swinging to other islands of the central Philippines, reporting attacks by four-engined bombers on Cebs and Negros, west of American holdings on Leyte and Samar.

A Close Brush

The general had a close brush with death. A strafing Japanese plane sent a bullet into the wall of his room, just missing him.

Disaster fast engulfed the fleeing survivors of Japan's 16th Division which once tortured American and Filipino survivors of Bataan.

Carigara has fallen. A U.S. force crushed the enemy's last big stand south of the town yesterday and swept out of Leyte Valley to the northwest shore.

Climaxing 12 days of bloody fighting, triumphant troops rolled forward over a red-smeared highway to a juncture with a unit which battled into Carigara from the west.

The Japanese, hastening to reach Pinamopoan and turn south on the one escape highway to Ormoc, abandoned Capoocan west of smoking Carigara. Ormoc is about 25 miles south of the advancing invaders.

South of Ormoc on the west coast, other forces cut across from Abuyog and reached Baybay. From there a coastal road leads 25 miles north to Ormoc.

At Ormoc the Japanese frantically loaded troops on barges and ferried them to larger escape vessels but these were under attack by American patrol torpedo boats and Leyte-based fighter planes.

Allied Patrols Speed Retreat

ROME, Nov. 3 (AP)—Allied patrols pursuing the Germans in northern Greece inflicted casualties in an attack on an enemy rearguard column entering Phlorina, within five miles of the Yugoslav frontier and 40 miles northwest of Kozane, Allied headquarters announced today.

Patrols also derailed a 60-coach enemy train in the Phlorina area. It was finished off by R.A.F. Beaufighters.

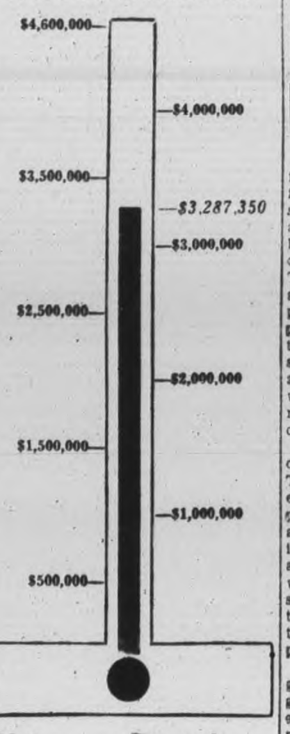
INVEST IN VICTORY IN PETERBOROUGH



Chinese Retake Lungling Town

CHUNGKING, Nov. 3—(AP). — Chinese troops have recaptured the Burma road town of Lungling, the semi-official Chinese central news agency announced to-day, climaxing a five-day assault upon the last remaining major Japanese defence bastion in Yunnan province.

Remnants of the Japanese garrison defending the town fled southward, the announcement said. The commander of the victorious troops made a triumphal entry into the city, over which the Chinese flag was formally hoisted.

The Chinese captured Lungling June 10 of this year, but had to relinquish their hold just nine days later. Tengchung, 35 miles northwest of Lungling and another prime objective in the Salween campaign to clear the Burma road, fell to the Chinese Sept. 14 after a prolonged siege.

The new American assault beyond Aachen began yesterday on a 4,000-yard front and blasted its way forward for nearly two miles, overrunning the villages of Germeter and Vossenack, south of Hurtgen, and reaching the edge of Hurtgen itself.

The scale of the attack was not immediately apparent, but the German radio reported it was opened with two infantry regiments. The Berlin broadcast said "the Americans have strong reinforcements immediately behind their lines, and an intensification of the fighting must be expected.

While the 1st Canadian and British 2nd Armies are making steady progress in clearing the Germans from Walcheren Island, the job of sweeping mines from the stream is expected to take some time.

Late reports said Allied reinforcements were pouring into the beachheads at Westkapelle, on the western tip of the island, and at Vlissingen (Flushing), the Island's main city. On the East Canadian troops appeared to be firmly in possession of a foothold at the Walcheren end of the causeway from adjoining South Beveland after several costly tries.

South of the Schelde Estuary enemy resistance collapsed. The seaside towns of Knocke and Heyst and the inland village of L'Ecluse (Sluis) all fell to the Canadians in quick succession. An additional 1,700 prisoners swelled the Canadian total of captives in the Schelde pocket to 11,700.

Mussolini's Property Seized By Court

ROME, Nov. 3 — (AP) — Benito Mussolini's personal property and real estate were ordered confiscated by a Rome court today at the request of the customs superintendent's office.

The order also provided for seizure of the property of Mussolini's immediate family.

Rome newspapers said the greater part of Mussolini's goods had been transferred previously to Brazil by planes of a transatlantic airline, of which Vittorio Mussolini, son of the former dictator, was president.

Amateur Trials Delight Large Audience

A comic monologue and black-face song and dance routine won first prize of $15 for R. E. Johnson of the Armature Department, at the C.G.E.-Genelco Victory Loan amateur show held on Thursday evening in the Drill Hall of the Training Centre, before a large audience of C.G.E.-Genelco employees and their families. As first prize winner Mr Johnson will participate as C.G.E.-Genelco representative in the big Victory Loan amateur contest on Thursday, November 9, when acts from 23 payroll-deducting industrial firms will compete for $100 in cash awards.

For a charming Ukrainian folk-dance, Mary and Anu Zaharuk of Traffic Department, were awarded second prize of $10, and the third prize of $5 was won by Len Millard and his Induction Motor Indians, including Joe Clancy, Herb Henry, and Eugene Reynolds, who gave out with some fine old-time musical selections, and Beau Hunt, of Fractional Motors, who gave an entertaining version of the well-known poem, "Casey at the Bat."

E. L. Jones, commercial manager of radio station CHEX, and organizer of all the Victory Loan amateur contests, was master of ceremonies for the evening. Under his direction as sparkling a revue as could be desired flashed across the big stage in the Drill Hall. To make the judging as accurate as possible, an applause-meter registered the volume of applause each act was accorded. Mr. Jones thanked Lt.-Col James Turnbull for permission to use the Training Centre Drill Hall, each member of the C.G.E.-Genelco who in any way helped put the show in order, and Dick Duder, who was responsible for fine showing made by the company's employees, as Thursday evening's program was entirely organized by him.

Band Attends.

Major William Dalton, head of the Public Relations office of the local Victory Loan, in a brief address of thanks, lauded the entertiners for their work, and enjoyable performances.

Apart from the amateurs themselves, several featured highlights in entertainment were found in the A11 Band of the 48th Highlanders, from Camp Borden, under the direction of WO1 Harry Thompson. Playing a number of martial selections, the band presented a pleasand surprise by changing into a lilting sweet-swing tempo, and from that, into the strains of a beautiful Viennese waltz. Members of the band, Russ Titus, formerly of the Army Show, and Vincent Ludlow, formerly with Major Bowes' amateur troupe in New York City, gave special performances, the former singing "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and the latter giving a comic version of a little girl singing "Mairzy Doates." As a special musical selection for the evening, the Camp Borden Band played a cleverly-arranged rendition of "Evening Star" from Tannhauser.

Proceedings in the way of entertainment from amateurs got under way with an act entitled the "Maintenance Rustlers," playing old-time square dances, with a caller. The "Rustlers" backstage were found to be Doug Mitchell, Gertie McDonald, Joe McWilliams, and Wilfred Lunn.

Popular ballad now going the radio and movie rounds, "Goodnight, soldier" was given a melodic treatment by soloist Evelyn Robinson, from the Traffic Department.

From the Refrigeration Department, Dinny Flynn, Ernie Sexsmith and Bert Shanks got together and made old-time music to entertain the audience with a selection or two.

Billed as the "Old-Time Music Quartette," Ross McMillan, Roy Francis, Frank Doherty and Harlen McMullen played "Darky's Breakdown" and "Wilson's Clog." All four musicians are from the Armature Department.

An accordion, mouth-organ and guitar are the musical instruments plaged by Joe O'Dette of the Genelco-Lathes Diivsion. He played a solo on the accordion first, then used the mouth-organ and guitar together for the encore.

Both veterans of the South African War, Jack Waldron and A. H. Fisher of the Industrial Control Department entertained with marches and waltzes on the flute and piano.

An interesting arrangement of the difficult "Butterfly Waltz" was played by Don L. Cole of the Aircraft Instrument Department.

Originally slated as a "Harmonica Duet," H. Beath and G. Beath of the Machine Shop could only gather up one harmonica, and so "Gold Mine in the Sky" was played and sung by the two entertainers.

From the Structural Steel Division, Frank Fitch performed as an "old-time fiddler."

Accompanied by Lenore Fausett at the piano, E. R. Bartley of Industrial Conrol sang the immortal "Ave Maria," displaying interesting range and tone.

Irving Clifford, talented young cowboy singer and yodeller, was accompanied by guitarist Clifford Farrow as he sang "A Hobos Dream of Heaven."

An Italian Boat Song as sung by J. S. Roberts, who played his own accompaniment at the piano, and from Genelco-Planning, Marion Williamson entertained as a vocalist. Guitarist H. McLaren of Fractional Motors, and two Norwegian Folk Melodies by H. Pettersen, flute, and Sonja Pettersen, accompanist, rounded out a program of local talent that entertained the audience with refreshing comedy, music and dance for almost two hours.

M. C. Jones kept the program going at a fast pace, and the Camp Borden Band played several selections in the intermissions.

But the success of the program was dependent upon the performers themselves if any were troubled with stage fright—and for many it was the first time in front of an audience—it certainly did not show from a spectator's point of view at any rate. Each act was presented in an entertaining and admirable fashion, and the "actors" conducted themselves on every occasion with the assurance and poise of veteran showpeople.

In order to put the big November 9 contest in final shape, a rehearsal of all acts will be held Tuesday, November 7. In the final contest, the $100 cash awards will be divided as follows: First prize $50, second $25, third $10. Three door prizes of $5 each will make up the balance.

Soldier Pleads Guilty To Theft Gets One Month

Pte. Michael Kale, a Winnipeg member of the Canadian infantry stationed at Camp Borden, was sentenced to a month in jail by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning on a charge of stealing a suitcase and its contents from J. J. L. Hayes, a Toronto visitor.

The soldier had pleaded guilty to the offence previously. This morning Constable W. A. Clarke gave evidence to the effect that Kale who had a room at the Grand Hotel had got out by way of the fire escape and across a roof, had gone to another hotel yard and stolen Hayes' suitcase from an automobile. The suitcase and other articles had been found in Kale's room.

J. J. L. Hayes said that he left his suit case in his car parked behind the Queen's Hotel, and in the morning had found his automobile broken into and the suitcase gone.

The replacement of the articles, he said, would be more than $25.

Kale asked for leniency, saying that he had been drunk and could not remember anything about the affair. "I am one of a draft of men who are about ready to proceed overseas" he told the court "and if I don't get back I will lose my chance to go with them."

The accused said he had been in the Air Force and the Army since 1941.

"How have you been held back so long?" asked the Magistrate.

"I really don't know, Your Worship" replied the soldier.

Kale told the court he had taken his basic training at the local Military Training Centre and that when he got four days leave from Camp Borden he had decided to visit here.

The assault on Dusseldorf marked a switch to a new target in the heavily industrialised Ruhr area.

Tried Tricks.

Airmen who left Dusseldorf a flaming mass of wreckage said the Germans attempted without avail to mislead bombers through use of dummy fires and decoy target indicators.

Sgts. J. Maguire, Toronto, and Bill Gardner of Sudbury, Ont., Goose squadron gunners, destroyed a FW190 during the return trip. The fighter came in astern, was hit in the fuselage and fell in flames.

A Halifax of the Thunderbird squadron piloted by FO. Jerry Fidler of Walkerton, Ont., fought off a pair of JU-88's and registered hits during a running 45-minute fight.

Halifaxes and Lancasters of the Canadian bomber group destroyed one of the nine enemy night fighters shot down by the entire attacking force. An R.C.A.F. communique sai many enemy planes were encountered in the Dusseldorf operation, from which eight Canadian bombers failed to return.

Speedy Mosquitos struck at the rail centre of Osnabruck while the heavies were blasting Dusseldorf, where Rheinmetal Borgis plant is the largest arms producer in Germany now that the Krupp works in Essen have been partially knocked out.

Enemy planes destroyed by American airmen yesterday represented a record single day's bag by fighters and bombers in 1944.

The long-dormant Luftwaffe sent up 400 to 500 planes, including scores of jet-propelled fighters, against a force of 1,100 American heavy bombers and 900 escorting Mustangs making a concetrated assault on the huge synthetic oil plant at Merseburg and railyards at Beilefield and Rhine. The U.S. 8th lost 41 bombers and 28 fighters.

The Americans destroyed 208 German planes, 183 in the air and 25 aground. Four victims were swift jet-propelled craft. The victories fell 99 planes short of the record of 307 destroyed in a lengthy running battle over and around Schweinfurt and Regensburg on Aug. 18, 1943. The jet planes attacked in formation, but only a few were able to penetrate the fighter screen convoying the bombers.

Council Faces Decision On Hospital Cost

Pressed by time and decision on the formulary of the two hospital questions to be submitted to the municipal voters at the December elections, the city council has advanced to this evening its first November meeting of next Monday night.

These questions are:— a money bylaw authorizing the establishment of a civic hospital; and a proposed grant to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Council has to determine tonight the amount of the debenture issue required for the civic hospital on the one hand; and on the other, whether the requested financial aid for St. Joseph's Hospital shall be embodied as a clause in the hospital bylaw, or set apart as a separate question.

Council planned Monday night this week four bylaws for submission to the people December 4. Readers will recall them from the report Tuesday of the council's action:— (1) $75,000 debentures for the Peterborough Memorial Community Centre; (2) diversion of City Trust Commission surplus to the civic hospital in a proposed amount of $300,000; (3) debenture issue for the Civic Hospital in the amount required for the project after certain assisting grants were deducted from the estimate total cost; (4) a bylaw for authority to make an annual grant for a specified term of years to St. Joseph's Hospital, equivalent to the interest on the cost of the proposed 52-bed addition to that institution, estimated at $250,000 interest to be 3 per cent, and as stated to the council, equivalent to an average of $3,500 a year for twenty-five years.

Wednesday night this week a deputation from St. Joseph's Hospital Board, John R. Corkery, John J McCarney and S. S. Shaughnessy, asked the finance committee of the council, to present their case as a clause in the Civic Hospital bylaw.

Check Procedure

In doubt about correctness of procedure, the finance committee decided to get the opinion of the Ontario Municipal Board, that is if they would offer advice on the point of combining those two proposals.

Mayor Hamilton, Alderman Sands and City Clerk Outram arranged Wednesday night for an interview with the Municipal Board Thursday afternoon, and it was reported this morning that the Board declined to volunteer any opinion, an attitude which members of the council generally had expected. That prospect was based on experience with the Board and on the understanding that the Board was a court of decision and not an agency of advice.

And so the two hospital questions return to the council for decision tonight. Another highly important detail is the amount of money to be asked of the people for the Civic Hospital.

City Treasurer Shaver remarked Wednesday night that the civic hospital bylaw is a debenture question, and the St. Joseph's Hospital bylaw is a matter of annual payment from the council's current revenue.

medical officers and British officers. A hospital is located there.

All resistance ended today south of the Schelde estuary.

The German 64th Division which defended the Schelde pocket has been wiped out by the relentless Canadian attack since Oct. 6 and the final prisoner total of 276 officers and 11,968 other ranks. This total is larger than the estimate for the entire enemy garrison in the Schelde pocket when the operation to clear it began.

Americans Gain

American troops under Lt.-Gen. Crerar's command, attacking in moonlight before dawn, regained their bridgehead across the Mark River on the mainland of Holland this morning, and clung to it in the face of bitter opposition and shell-fire from big guns—probably on the north bank of the Hollandsche Diep about six miles farther north.

The Americans dug themselves in to wait for reinforcing infantry as well as support weapons to be brought into this bridgehead.

It was disclosed that a Canadian reconnaissance force took 250 prisoners on North Beveland Island the other day in an independent and impromptu action. These Canadians, given the task of clearing out the north portion of South Beveland Island, finished that, got tired of waiting around, ferried themselves to the nearby island and promptly made the landing a paying proposition.

In the Steenbergen area to the left of the Americans and eight miles north of Bergen Op Zoom, Canadian formations continue to meet opposition from troops of the Herman Goering Division and paratroops.

Maj.-Gen. Eberding, commander of the liquidated 64th Division, who was captured yesterday in the Schelde pocket, explained his resistance by saying that the future couldn't be worse and said by holding on the Germans might gain something. These words of this stiff Prussian officer summed up the attitude of most German officers on this front.

Gen. Eberding, 45, has fought in Russia and in France.

After spending a few hours as a prisoner, he began to complain bitterly about lack of comfort, although receiving normal prisoner-of-war treatment. He objected strenuously to Canadian guards watching him.

Discussing the Schelde pocket operation, he admitted the landing on the south shore of the Schelde by three Canadian Highland battalions on Oct. 9 completely fooled him. He had expected a landing at Cadzand on the North Sea coast and had put all his guns there. He said communications had broken down completely but estimated 700 to 800 of his men were killed. The casualty figures actually were much higher.

Hits Bawdy Houses

TORONTO, Nov. 3 — (CP). — Mayor F. J. Conboy said after a meeting of Toronto Police Commission yesterday that an augmented morality squad will attack the problems of venereal disease, bawdy houses and prostitution, co-operating with the public health department.

Cattle Prices Steady; Market Slow

TORONTO, Nov. 3—(CP)—Cattle prices held barely steady on a slow market and with a heavy holdover at the close of the livestock market here this week. Calves and hogs were steady. While sheep and lamb prices were unchanged there was a heavy holdover at the close.

Cattle held over from last week were 2,200. The hold over at the conclusion of this week was about 1,700 head. Local packers shut off direct shipments but the situation was not relieved and the pile-up of cattle in the country, ready to market, was believed to be very heavy, livestock officials said. Prices were generally unchanged on saleable cattle. Weighty steers of choice quality sold at $11.75 to $12 with medium to good steers at $11-$11.50. A few lots of butcher steers and heifers sold at $8 to $10.50. Fed yearlings were $11 to $13.50. A few butcher cows sold at $7 to $8.75 and small lots of canners and cutters found buyers at $5 to $6.50. Bulls moved slowly at $5.50 to $7.50. Stockers were the slowest on sales so far this year with prices from $7.35 to $9.50. A few good milkers and springers sold at $130 to $150 each.

The holdover of cattle at the close was chiefly cows and stockers some plainer butcher steers and heifers. Due to congestion at the yards, the management announced that sale could not be guaranteed for other than good slaughter steers and heifers. Other cattle were considered unsaleable.

Calves were slow and steady at $14 to $15 for choice veals with common downward to $7 and grassers at $5 to $5.50.

While a few good lambs were bought steady at $12.50 to $13 cwt. there was a heavy accumulation by the close estimated at 2,500 head. On Wednesday, it was announced, no lambs were wanted for the balance of the week and only a limited number next week. A few sheep sold steady at $1.50 to $4.50 cwt. About three carloads of lambs were sent to Buffalo during the week.

Hogs sold at $17.65 to $17.75 for grade A and at $17.25 to $17.35 for Grade B1, dressed weight. Sows were $13 dressed.

Propose Three Policies In Air Talks

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Nov. 3—(CP)—Four committees of the International Conference on Civil Aviation went to work today on the task of drafting recommendations for new international agreements to govern flying in the post-war world.

Into committee No. 1 on a multilateral aviation convention and an international body will go the Canadian proposals for such a convention and an air transport authority to administer it presented to the conference yesterday by Munitions Minister Howe.

Representatives of 12 of the 51 countries taking part in the convention took advantage of the second plenary session to state their views on what the conference should do about the future but they gave only a hint of how the conference as a whole may line up on three main lines of policy proposed.

These lines were:

By Canada and the United Kingdom—a multilateral pact to grant four freedom of the air, including freedom of transit over the territory of other countries and freedom to carry passengers and freight back and forth between the country of origin of an air service and other countries with an international body clothed with powers similar to the air transport board in Canada;

By Australia and New Zealand, an international body to own and operate planes operating on all international trunk air routes;

By the United States—an international body to regulate technical matters pertaining to international flying, but with only consultative powers on economic and commercial matters.

Spokesmen for Norway, Panama, Poland, India, France, Brazil, Mexico spoke in general terms but did not indicate their preference for any precise form of international organization although the three Latin-American countries indicated they would be opposed to any international body controlling flights over their territory.

S.F.N. Gie, South African Minister to the United States, is chairman of the committee on a convention and an international body which meets today.

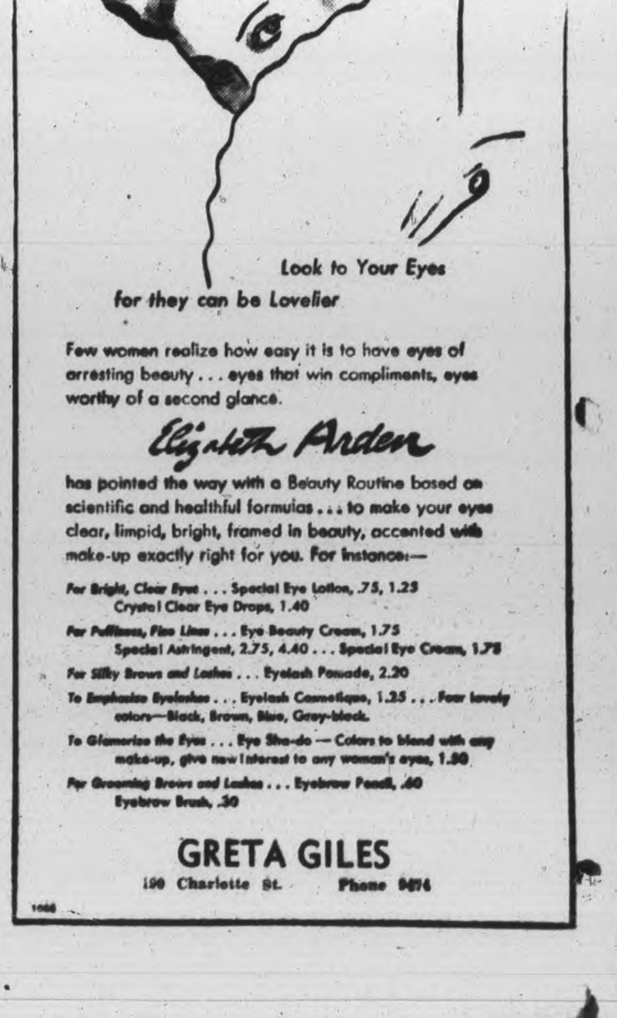
To Canada went the vice-chairmanship of a committee on technical standards and procedure with the Netherlands representative as chairman. Other committees deal with provisional air routes and recommendations for an interim council.

Mr. Howe made the most detailed presentation of any of the speakers, submitting with it a revised draft convention which is the result of study and consultation with other governments based on the original draft made public last March.

Disastrous Fire Sweeps Timber

BANCROFT, Nov. 3—Fire of undetermined origin completely destroyed the summer cut of timber, 750,000 feet of lumber, ties and slabs, in a spectacular fire at the Martin Brothers Lumber Company, Baptiste, Ontario, Wednesday afternoon. The mill and yard are located 47 miles north of Bancroft, near Algonquin Park, and the mill itself, situated about a half-mile from the yard, was saved.

An investigation of the disastrous blaze is being made.



200 Present At 85th Annual Orange Meeting

COBOURG, Nov. 3 (ENS)—Two hundred delegates attended the 85th annual meeting of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East which convened here on Wednesday and concluded Thursday night. Most of the program was held on Thursday. Delegates came from an area bounded by Oshawa on the west and the Quebec border on the east and extending north to Peterborough and Lindsay.

Among the highlights was the revelation that the Lodge was strongest financially in its history and that in spite of the fact that many prospective candidates were overseas, the number of initiations was heavy. It was pointed out that the offices of secretary and treasurer had been held by the same two men, D. Sutherland of Ottawa and C. H. Wood of Kingston, continually for the past 22 years.

$5,000 for Loan

There were a few resolutions passed and among them were resolutions which fixed November of next year as the month in which the annual meeting would be held but the location of the meeting and a resolution was also passed authorizing the secretary to invest $5,000 in the current Victory Loan.

Special attention was drawn to the excellent record of the Lodge of Orange Young Britons at Perth which had 52 of its members overseas. The following officers were elected for the coming year: Grand Master, Creighton Devitt, Burketon; Deputy-Grand Master, J. A. Dawson, Britannia; Junior Deputy-Grand Master, G. E. Raaflaub, Pembroke; Grand Chaplain, Rev. F. C. Beezer, Roslin; Grand Secretary, D. J. Sutherland, Ottawa; Grand Treasurer, C. H. Wood, Kingston; Grand Marshal, John Carl, Peterborough; Grand Lecturer, J. A. Corrigan, Ottawa; Deputy-Grand Secretary, H. P. Leslie of Britannia Heights; Deputy-Grand Lecturer, Walter Greenwood, Ottawa.

Lieut. Colonel A. W. Gray of Brockville was one of the veteran Orangemen in attendance, this being his 49th session of the Grand Lodge.

As the addresses during the meeting were solely for the members of the Lodge, the text was not made public. Among the prominent speakers were M.W. Bro. Lieut. Col. the Hon. T. A. Kidd of Kingston, Grand Master and Sovereign of the Grand Orange Lodge of British America; M.W. Bro. Loftus Reid of Toronto, Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of British America; R. H. Small, Toronto, Grand Treasurer of the Grand Orange Lodge of British America; R.W. Bro. F. C Cooke of Bradford, Grand Master of Ontario WDest and R.W. Bro. J. Jackson of Owen Sound, Secretary of the GOL of Ontario West.

Canadian Legion Attends Wallace Funeral

One of Peterborough's best known citizens, Peter G. Wallace was borne to rest in Little Lake cemetery Thursday afternoon, and red poppies sprinkled on his grave by members of the Peterborough branch, Canadian Legion, closed the final chapter in the life of a well-loved and hard-working member of the community. In the warm autumn sunshine, hundreds of friends and business associates and relatives stood for one minute with bowed heads, as the Last Post and Reveille were sounded at the graveside.

The funeral service was in George Street United church, where Mr. Wallace was an elder, and was conducted jointly by Rev. Dr. J. R. Cooper, and Rev. William McDonald. Floral tributes that surrounded the casket in a mass of quiet color, and one of the largest-attended funerals held here in some time, bore testimony to the high esteem in which Mr. Wallace was held by all who knew him.

Many Legionnaires.

A large number of Legionaires, and president of the Legion, George Gimblett marched from the Legion Hall to the church, and were present for the service. To these men of the last war, Rev. McDonald said there s sorrow in their hearts, even as it is in the hearts of Mr. Wallace's family circle. Being closely associated with men in the armed forces of World War 1, he said anyone who survived that horrible struggle, commands the respect and esteem of every single man, woman and child in this country.

"Here was a man granted a goodly life; and enjoyment of the fruits of his labor," Rev. McDonald said. "It is the toll of that last great war that accounted for his sudden death."

"We do maintain in our hearts and memories the very highest worthy esteem and respect or this departed veteran."

To the veterans, he said they can never be repaid, because of the burden placed on them by the great 1914 struggle, which even now is often seen. And the terrible tragic part in many cases, he said, is that those who did survive the last war, now are called upon to give

H.M.C.S. ST. JOHN HELPS DOWN SUB—Canadian frigate H.M.C.S. Saint John which collaborated with the frigate H.M.C.S. Swansea in the destruction of a German submarine. Above is Lieut.-Cmdr. William R. Stacey of Vancouver, B.C., commanding officer of the Saint John, with two bits of wreckage brought to the surface after a fierce depth-charge attack by his ship. At the left is a partially burned door panel and a piece of charred wood with "Radione" tally showing.

Canadian Frigates Bag Submarine

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—(CP).— Navy Minister Macdonald announced to-day that the Canadian frigates Saint John and Swansea have collaborated in the sinking of a German submarine. It was not indicated where or when the action took place.

Both ships have been congratulated by the Admiralty for their destruction of the U-boat, the Saint John receiving "special credit for the tenacity" with which she carried out the lengthy series of attacks which resulted in concrete evidence of the U-boat's destruction.

For the Swansea, it was the third time the frigate had been in at the kill in an anti-submarine battle. Her two previous successes were announced earlier this year.

The Saint John is commanded by Lt. Cmdr. William R. Stacey of Vancouver, and the Swansea by Cmdr. Clarence A. King of Oliver, B.C.

The Saint John steamed into a South England port recently with indisputable evidence of the successful attack.

When first contact was made the Saint John probed around, dropping its first pattern of depth charges. Two more patterns were dropped at intervals, but the frigate still maintained contact. An oil slick appeared on the water early in the action, but nothing decisive could be assumed from oil indications until a later pattern was dropped.

Seconds after this explosion a tremendous gushing of oil was seen, followed by the appearance of considerable wreckage. A boat was lowered from the Saint John to probe the debris for evidence but so thick was the oil that it completely obliterated everything from close range.

Articles taken from the waters included a German rubber life raft, a small wooden locker door complete with lock and key.

The morning following the attack, an oil slick stretching 2½ miles could be seen from the bridge of the Saint John.

COBOURG, Nov. 3 — (ENS). — Joseph Gagnon of Oshawa, employed on one of the local car ferries, pleaded guilty in court here to theft of a bicycle on October 31, owned by Harold Cunningham. He was arrested by Chief W. J. Carey, who located him on William Street near University, pedalling out of town on the stolen bicycle.

Gagnon admitted that he had been drinking. Warning him to stay away from liquor if it meant that he would fall into future trouble, Magistrate R. B. Baxter sentenced him to three days in jail, dating from the time of his arrest, which meant that he was free at the time of sentence.

Cultural Gifts To Students Lauded At Kenner Funeral

Final tribute to the life and work and citizenship of H. R. H. Kenner, LL.D., was expressed in flowers and word and the mourning presence of many friends at the funeral service in St. Andrew's church Thursday afternoon, concluded by Masonic rite of parting at the graveside in Little Lake cemetery.

Remembering Dr. Kenner's fifty years of service as a teacher in Peterborough, confined to the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School of which he was principal thirty-five years until 1943, Rev. Dr. E. W. Young dwelt in his address on the immeasurable influence of broad culture which Dr Kenner had imparted to the youth of this city and district for half a century.

That endless stream of eager and questing youth was significantly represented by many boys and girls of the present student body of the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School in the central section of the church. Such a numerous company of youth was an unusual element in a funeral service for an elder of the community, as Dr. Kenner had inevitaby become in spite of a seeming timeless quality of his personality, a reflected or rebound of compensating influence from the young lives among whom he had for so long his daily being. But, that seeming was only an illusion which began to fade and vanish with the illness that overtook him only a few months after his retirement in June, 1943.

Masons Attend

On either side of the students were men and women who had known Dr. Kenner for years, men of the professions and business, many associates in Freemasonry, others who had been engaged with him in affairs of the community of Peterborough to which he had given both leadership and support. The Board of Education attended in a body and present also were members of the City Council who had joined with the Board in the public honoring of Dr. Kenner at the termination of his teaching career. Two More Years Of War

When the Allies invaded Europe their early successes raised our hopes of a quick victory. Now we know that victory will be a long time coming, for as the Germans have retreated toward their own soil they have stiffened their resistance and the Allied forces are making their gains slowly and painfully. It is plain that the Germans will be beaten, but they may hold out for several months, and in winter weather the snow and the mud favour the defenders, not the attackers. The Germans undoubtedly hope that disappointed expectations and the weariness of a slow winter war may create trouble among the Allies, and from such dissension they may hope to gain an easier peace than they can expect from united forces. Their continuance of the war, though desperate, is certainly not futile.

• • •

In his recent report to the Parliament of Great Britain, Winston Churchill spoke thus: "I certainly could not predict—still less guarantee—the end of the German war before the end of the Spring or even before we reach early Summer... I do not place any dependence on a political uprising in Germany". As for the war with Japan, Mr. Churchill sees it stretching out for at least eighteen months after the German defeat, an estimate which, if correct, would bring the end of the war late in 1946 or early in 1947. Mr. Churchill added that some of the military experts looked for an earlier conclusion to the German war, but he was unable to agree with them.

• • •

Undoubtedly the expectation of an early German defeat has led many people to underestimate the difficulty of the fighting in Europe at present, and the losses which are being sustained by our forces. The former Minister of National Defence, Mr. J. L. Ralston, when he returned to Canada after visiting the fighting area in Europe, sharply rebuked those who thought that the war was all over but the shouting. The hardest fighting is still to come.

• • •

When he said that he did not expect an uprising in Germany which would make our victory easier, Mr. Churchill gave the quietus to a hope which has inspired many people who are more optimistic than thoughtful. We must realize, once for all, that there is no coherent or powerful underground movement in Germany which wants to see the Nazi regime brought to ruin. The Gestapo ferreted out every anti-Nazi and killed or interned him years ago. There are probably people in Germany who realize that Hitler has brought their country to ruin, but they dare not breathe a word of what they think, much less act upon it. What would they do? Who would lead them? Would the Allies be ready to help them or recognize them in the unlikely event that they made a successful revolt against the Nazis? No: we need not look for an uprising in Germany unless a wave of nihilism sweeps over the country, and that would be as little helpful to us as it would be to the Nazis. If the war is to continue for another two years, or longer, we must make sure that we do not allow any weariness or failure of interest to jeopardize the completeness of our eventual victory. We may have expected victory too early: perhaps we counted our chickens before they were hatched. If so, we must realize our mistake and dig into the job harder than ever.

Barrage In The Word War

Warriors in the Word War, the civil service is giving us stiff opposition these days. Consider, for instance, the horrid word 'de-activate', which is now being used: when a man is shorn of authority and prestige, he has been 'de-activated'; it is a sort of bureaucratic gelding which he suffers. And the special bureaucratic meaning of 'clear', demands attention; to secure a man's consent to a course of action is 'to get his O.K.'—which has become common colloquial English; when you have got his O.K. you have 'cleared' the matter 'through' him. "Clear everything through Sidney", is an instance of this usage which reaches us from the U.S. There is always the danger, however, that a man who has O.K'd something may later 'dis-O.K.' it. When a department has been told to get on with its work it is said to have been 'alerted'. Thus, at Ottawa, they may suddenly deactivate one man, and alert another, so that they may clear certain matters through him, unless he dis-O.K's them. Resist these nasty words, Word Warriors; smite them wherever you see them.

We should like to say a word about 'partially', also. There are many writers and speakers who think that 'partially' is a daintier word than 'partly', and who use it to give themselves prestige. "The sewer has been partially cleared", they say. But this is only a secondary meaning of the word 'partially'. Its primary meaning is 'in a biassed or unfair manner' as in this sentence: "He distributed his money partially—$9 to the pretty girl and $1 to the old tramp".

The word 'sacrilegious' is being kicked around somewhat carelessly by the partly literate these days, as though it were the direct opposite of 'religious'. 'Sacrilegious' means guilty of sacrilege, which is either robbery of a church, or the profanation of sacred things. Thus a man who does not go to church is not sacrilegious, whereas a man who goes to church with a head filled with wicked thoughts may be so described. Anticlericalism is not sacrilegious, but corrupt clericalism is decidedly so.

New Pastor For George St.

The United Church community in this city has now been strengthened by the appearance of the Reverend James Semple, Th.D., as pastor of the George Street Church. Dr. Semple has been chairman of the Renfrew and Belleville Presbyteries, and also president of the Bay of Quinte Conference. He has also had ten years' experience on the board of evangelism and social service of his Church.

Bidding farewell to Dr. Semple, the Belleville Intelligencer writes thus:

"Rev. Dr. Semple's service in the church has been marked by tireless effort in the work of the religious life and by close attachment to his people. No more devoted and loyal pastor could minister to a congregation than he. He has shown the ability of finding a place for everyone in the life of the congregation and of getting the members of the church and the adherents into active participation in the life of the church. His gifts in administration have been well-known throughout the communion for his work in the various congregations where he has served demonstrate this. His has been the art of combining regard for the spiritual welfare, administration and constant association with the membership and friends of the congregation.

"He has a native gift of public address and a fluency and eloquence to be expected from one of Irish birth. His sermon themes have been thought-compelling and inspiring. With his wide interest he has been able to interest every age and every part of the life of the church—these he has never failed to serve. He has aimed to place the people in the true relationship to their spiritual duties, to the spiritual facts of life and to the church".

The Reverend Dr. Semple will be a valuable acquisition to the life of this community.

Election Prospects In The U.S.A.

(By BRUCE HUTCHISON)

WASHINGTON: As usual, the last days of the United States elections find the politicians and pundits in an advanced state of jitters. While this almost always occurs at this point, as it did in 1940 and even in 1936, it is true that the present election seems closer and more uncertain to most experienced observers than any in current memory. The public opinion polls are now so close as between Roosevelt and Dewey that if they are to be taken seriously anything could happen on election day. Anything from a point to five points divide the two candidates in the calculations of the poll-takers, and this has had the twin effect of sending the President into the country fighting with all his old vigour and encouraging the Republican party to believe that even against the champion they have a chance.

But the professional gamblers who wagered 2 to 1 on Mr. Roosevelt in 1940 are now wagering 3 to 1 on him, and this may turn out to be the most accurate poll of all. Amid all the confusions of Washington, the refusal of nearly all politicians and newspaper experts to make any prediction, it would be fair to say this—the nation will not be surprised at Mr. Roosevelt's election, and not amazed if he wins in a landslide, but it will be completely surprised if Mr. Dewey wins.

THIS feeling is based on three factors. First, the public opinion polls giving the edge to the President. Second, the mathematical calculations of the various state elections and local politics. Third, the new and perhaps vital factor of the voters' recent registration.

The public opinion polls are too close to make them a safe basis of calculation. The state elections are also confused but it seems certain that, if the President can carry one or two of the big doubtful states like New York, Pennsylvania or Illinois with their heavy representation in the electoral college, he can carry the nation. If he can win two or three of them he will have an overwhelming vote in the college as in 1940 and 1936. The President starts with an enormous heard-start difficult for any Republican to overcome. He has 160 electoral votes from the solid south in his pocket. This means that Mr. Dewey must hold all the normally Republican states and take the lion's share of the doubtful states. Mr. Dewey probably needs to carry at least two and probably three of the big states, New York Pennsylvania and Illinois, for he is given no chance in the big electoral state of California which at the last minute elected Wilson in 1916.

The newest and perhaps, in the end, the most important factor in the election is the amazing registration of voters in the last week or two. Roosevelt's danger, it is admitted, lay in a small total vote. His assumption undoubtedly is that if the vote is large he will be safe, because the new registrations are largely from urban and working class areas where he is strong. While the Democratic party organization has failed lamentably in getting the voters registered, the Political Action Committee of the C.I.O. unions has performed a miracle in getting the working people's names on the voters' lists.

Where it was expected a few weeks ago that the total vote could hardly exceed 46 millions, the registration is now estimated at 52 millions, and the vote at 47 to 48 millions, against the all-time high of 49.8 millions in 1940 before the war had moved the American population all over the map and eliminated most of the armed forces as voters. It is on this registration that the Democrats hope to win, and on it that the P.A.C. is now certain it will win. This hope is based on the belief that the big extra vote over the original estimate is overwhelmingly Democratic. The latest registration figures have brought a new confidence into the Democratic leadership after its original scare at Mr. Dewey's upswing during October.

THESE are the superficial calculations of the campaign. More important are the imponderables. Among these is the fact that the administration, according to the cycle of politics, would be finished utterly by this time after 12 years of office and would have no chance of return in peacetime. In fact, if Roosevelt wins, he will win only as the leader best able to win the war and establish the peace. He could not win on his domestic record.

The bolt of Senator Ball from the Republican party on the issue of internationalism vs. isolation dramatizes what may turn out to be the most important fact of the campaign, namely, that many normally Republican voters who had followed Wendell Willkie may vote for the President, while utterly opposed to his domestic policies, simply because, like Senator Ball, they believe he will make an international policy work while Mr. Dewey will not, or could not.

On the other hand, the President will hold all the left wing and so-called liberal vote even though the New Deal supporters in general are deeply discouraged by his recent swing to the right. They will vote for him because the alternative is worse and still more to the right. They look upon the President as a man who can hold the line on domestic reform until a more radical leader can be found four years hence. But against all this, Dewey has on his side the vast accumulation of enmities, disillusionment and mistakes which inevitably cling to any old government. These will affect many voters who supported the President before, and Mr. Dewey will also have the old-time Republican vote and all those (and there are probably millions) who sincerely believe that the President is ruining not merely the economic system but, something much more important, the ancient ideals of American democracy, the inward stuff of its individual freedom.

When all this has been said you come back to the general admission that the election will be close and doubtful, and also to the apparent paradox that it may bring Mr. Roosevelt another landslide in the electoral college, a paradox only possible in the American electoral system by the decision of individual states.

HARD OR SOFT PEACE?

Recently, for instance, Columnist Dorothy Thompson complained that "Lord Vansittart, Rex Stout and associates, and many others have been furnishing Goebbels with his most effective propaganda" by coming out in favour of a harsh peace.

Well, what would Miss Thompson have them do? If she favours a lenient and sentimental peace, then indeed she must be a perpetual emotionalist. If she favours an adequate peace, such as proposed by Vansittart, Stout and other realists, what point is there to pretending to offer a soft one? It would be an unworthy subterfuge and would fool nobody, least of all the Germans. —Brantford Expositor.

The Cabinet Conscription Crisis

Special to the Examiner
(By GRANT DEXTER)

OTTAWA, Nov. 3.—The resignation of the Hon. J. L. Ralston, written to the prime minister in the summer of 1942 in connection with bill 80, was accepted yesterday afternoon. General A. G. L. McNaughton, former commander in chief of the Canadian Army Overseas, has been sworn in as minister of national defence.

There are unlikely to be any further spontaneous resignations from the cabinet for a matter of days. It is possible, however, that there may be expulsions, but failing such, it is likely that there will be one additional resignation. Otherwise the prospects are that the ministry will hold together without the necessity either of dissolution or the calling of parliament.

THESE events, which came with dramatic swiftness late yesterday afternoon, caused the greatest political sensation at Ottawa within living memory. The story leading up to them will no doubt be revealed in the resignation correspondence between Mr. King and Mr. Ralston. It is understood to be as follows:

Upon his return from a first-hand survey of the fighting fronts and after taking the advice of his military advisors both here and abroad, Mr. Ralston came to cabinet with a definite recommendation that section three of the National Mobilization Act be proclaimed. This would have applied over-all conscription and made the Zombies available for service at the front.

The situation leading Mr. Ralston to this course is believed to be as follows:

Casualties have not exceeded the expectations of the army chiefs in total and recruiting has not fallen below the quota regarded as necessary to maintain the army. But the incidence of the casualties differed from the estimates in that the losses in infantry have been much heavier than expected while the losses in other branches have been much lighter.

Since recruits are divided between these various branches in accordance with a formula based upon casualty expectations, it became clear last August that if fighting continued in an intense way there would be a shortage of infantry reinforcements in December. Efforts are said to have been made to remuster men from other branches into the infantry. It is not clear, however, that remustering began until some months after the danger was apparent and it is not clear that it has been pushed to anything like the extent it could be. These are not matters of fact so much as of opinion.

IN any event, Mr. Ralston in making his recommendation to the cabinet showed something like 200,000 men in the active service army in England and Canada and contended that his military experts could not find sufficient reinforcements among them. Many were classed as unfit and here, again a question of physical standards arose. Are the present standards too high? All the way there were questions of opinion and judgment.

In any event, Mr. Ralston has been presented by his military advisers with a number of alternatives. The line held by the Canadians overseas could be shortened and one or more divisions could be broken up for reinforcements. Or the Canadian troops in part could be taken out of the line and given a long rest, which would cut down casualties. But if the army was to fight at its present establishment it could not be maintained by the voluntary system. That was the advice and Mr. Ralston rejected the other alternatives and pressed upon cabinet the solution of over-all conscription.

And there was still another complication. The army naturally has changed the formula under which recruits are allocated to the various branches. Many more are now being placed in the infantry. The turn out of trained men under the revised formula will begin early next year—some time in February. When this happens, the shortage will disappear. The crisis therefore, arose because of a gap of from one to two months, during which, for the reasons given, there would be a shortage of army reinforcements unless the Zombie infantry were used.

MR. Ralston met a critical cabinet. It was difficult to prove why he lacked reinforcements when he had such vast numbers of men available for active service. Moreover, casualties have not exceeded expectations and recruiting has, roughly, yielded the required quotas. Some attempt was made to obtain an independent judgment on the figures but obviously in so brief a time nobody could go beyond the general staff. The cabinet wrestled with the problem for eight days. The end came with dramatic suddenness in the middle of the cabinet meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Discussion had centered upon the advisability of making a further appeal to the Zombies. Mr. Ralston proposed that the appeal take the form "either-or" the government should say that if they did not enlist by a given date compulsion would be applied. It was at this point, it is understood, that the prime minister announced that he was accepting a letter of resignation written years ago and on a different matter.

IT is presumed that General McNaughton comes into the government on the definite understanding that the necessary reinforcements can be obtained to support our overseas army without recourse to Bill 80. As stated, much in Mr. Ralston's position rested upon opinion rather than on fact. No doubt General McNaughton believes that by lowering physical standards, by more intense remustering or by some other means, the crisis can be averted. There is no word of any kind to indicate his views. Nor is there any word, so far, to indicate whether the going of Mr. Ralston means any change in government policy with respect to over-all conscription. It is pointed out that General McNaughton in his latest speech delivered at Kingston seemed to be opposed to the use of compulsion.

It is anticipated, however, that these points will be cleared up by Mr. King and General McNaughton in the next few days.

It is assumed that the next major development will be a by-election to enable General McNaughton to enter the House of Commons. Under existing circumstances it is not believed possible that he can obtain an acclamation and therefore the by-election seems certain to provide the first great test on the conscription issue which Mr. King will have to face.

Trollope In New Zealand

In August, 1872, the novelist Anthony Trollope arrived in New Zealand with his mind full of stories about Maori warriors and exotic scenery, about missionaries and the cannibals who ate them. To his astonishment it seemed that he had found another Britain. Round any corner he might find a scene to remind him of some part of the British Isles—if not in England, then in Scotland or Ireland. On his first night in New Zealand he stayed at a hotel that might have been in any one of a hundred English towns, and had to bargain and bully in the same old way to get a bedroom, a bath and some supper. So, he cheerfully complained, he had sailed right round the world and yet could not get away from England.

Trollope exaggerated. The colonists had transplanted what they could of England, but the native trees and grasses remained; and as for the people, he soon found that they were developing their own ideas and customs. New Zealanders, like Australians and Americans, were already different in subtle ways from Englishmen and Scots, just as they were different from one another; and in the seventy years that have passed since Trollope's visit there differences have grown....

Today, as when Trollope planned his tour seventy-odd years ago, the stranger may approach New Zealand with a false vision gathered from publicity pamphlets and illustrated books: a New Zealand of snow peaks and thermal springs, of Maoris in native costume, of trout fishing and mountain climbing. These things are indeed a part of New Zealand life, but they are no more representative of the country than the Rocky Mountains and the Niagara Falls truly represent the character of North America. New Zealand is a land of hill pastures and plains and bushlands as well as of spectacular mountains. It is essentially a land of farms and farmers where an immigrant race of British stock is developing its own life, as that race did in earlier years in the United States, in Canada, and in Australia. —From "Understanding New Zealand," by Frederick L. W. Wood.

A Bible Message

And in process of time it came to pass, that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the Lord. And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his flock, and of the fat thereof. And the Lord had respect unto Abel and to his offering. But unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect. And Cain was very wroth, and his countenance fell.

And the Lord said unto Cain, Why art thou wroth? and why is thy countenance fallen? If thou doest well, shalt thou not be accepted? and if thou doest not well, sin lieth at the door. And unto thee shall be his desire, and thou shalt rule over him.

And Cain talked with Abel his brother: and it came to pass, when they were in the field, that Cain rose up against Abel his brother, and slew him. And the Lord said unto Cain, Where is Abel thy brother? And he said, I know not: Am I my brother's keeper?

And he said, What hast thou done? the voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground. And now thou art cursed from the earth, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand; when thou tillest the ground, it shall not henceforth yield unto thee her strength; a fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be in the earth. And Cain said unto the Lord, My punishment is greater than I can bear. (Gen. 4: 3-13.)

NAZI HAVEN?

The Nazis have found a Happy Valley in the heart of Europe—and within an hour's motor-run of Berchtesgaden—where they hope to live safely ever after. Its name is Liechtenstein, now the only German-speaking monarchy in the world.

It affords a diplomatic haven where there is no income tax and where it is still possible for any of Hitler's henchmen to obtain all the neutral immunities of citizenship.

Technically, Liechtenstein is one of Europe's last sovereignties, a Ruritanian principality on the Upper Rhine, wedged between Switzerland and Austria.—London People.

UNDER YOUR HAT

A toupee brought 25 cents and a stock of baled wool brought $10,000 yesterday at a United States Customs Service auction at 201 Varick street.

The successful bidder for the toupee, Irwin Schwartz, explained that he bought it "for a friend," but he kept his hat on.

Radios, cameras, an Ingersoll watch and a box of cigars all brought more than their marked prices, and 35 persons bid the ceiling price of $2,486 on an assortment of modernistic furniture, necessitating a drawing to determine the buyer.—New York Herald Tribune.

Unconsidered Trifles

The ATS private had gone for a walk in the country near her camp. It was a hot day, so when she came to a pool a little off the road and surrounded by trees, she decided to have a dip.

She folded her clothes on the bank and jumped in, swam around for a while, and then scrambled out.

As she did so she saw an Army officer approaching and hid behind one of the trees. He came nearer and nearer, and suddenly called out:

"Camouflage platoon, dismiss!"

Whereupon all the trees walked away!

There was an American soldier named Ginsburg. Ginsburg was bad. He was positively allergic to drill, and all thumbs with a gun. They sent him from one camp to another, but everywhere the same reports came back about what a rotten soldier Ginsburg was.

Then they sent him to Bataan, and the reports coming in were astounding. He captured six Japs single-handed, destroyed a machine gun nest containing ten more Japs, was cited for this and cited for that.

The change was so amazing that one of his former O.C.'s wired for an explanation. The answer came back: "We gave him a machine gun and said: 'Now, Ginsburg, you're in business for yourself'."

Dewey Waging StrongCampaign For Presidency

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, possessor of an excellent radio voice that did much to offset President Roosevelt's advantages in campaigning over the airways, forced the fight throughout the United States 1944 Presidential election campaign with an intensity and directness that largely overcame a certain personal lack of "color" and crowd appeal.

He is credited with conducting a more workmanlike campaign than that fought by the late Wendell L. Willkie in 1940. He spoke only from selected key cities, resting as much as possible at his home in Albany, N.Y. He did not make the mistake that Mr. Willkie made four years ago. The Republican candidate that year wore himself out on the gruellings peaking tours throughout the country.

Mr. Dewey openly and ardently sought the nomination in 1940, losing to Mr. Willkie on the floor of the nominating convention. Then, to many Republican leaders, he was considered young and inexperienced.

To-day, Mr. Dewey is four years older. In 1942, he broke a 20-year Democratic hold on the administration of New York State and behind him is almost two years of leadership during which the Democrats have not yet picked any serious flaw. His age, 42, and what some still term his "inexperience" weighed against him in this year's Presidential fight.

Born in Owosso, Mich., on March 24, 1942, he has come from virtual obscurity to international prominence in 10 years. The son of a newspaper publisher, Mr. Dewey was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1923. He went to New York City and received his law degree at Columbia Law School in 1925.

While practising law in 1928, he married Frances Eileen Hutt of Sherman, Tex. They have two sons Thomas E. Dewey, Jr., and John M. Dewey.

Hounded Racketeers.

Governor Herbert H. Lehman appointed Mr. Dewey a special prosecutor in 1935 to investigate the New York City rackets. And Mr. Dewey, who while Assistant United States Attorney in 1931, had convicted Waxey Gordon, a notorious beer baron, made a smashing success of his new assignment.

He broke the poultry, vegetable, trucking and other rackets, convicted certain labor union leaders, and sent to prison for 30 to 50 years Charles (Lucky) Luciano, vice overlord. Later he was to charge James J. Hines, Tammany District leader, with involvement in a $20,000,000 policy racket and send him to Sing-Sing.

These achievements elected Mr. Dewey District Attorney of New York County in 1937 and brought him the Republican nomination for Governor a year later. Mr. Dewey came within 64,000 votes, in a total poll of 4,822,000, of unseating the veteran Lehman.

His race for the Governorship in 1942 was a walkaway. He rolled up a 650,000 plurality over John J. Bennett, then Democratic State Attorney-General. A Republican-controlled legislature approved all of his proposals.

On Governor Dewey's recommendations, exemptions and deuctions from state income taxes were liberalized; a state program of child care was developed, salaries of state employees were increased. His farm-labor recruiting program put 110,000 on New York farms in 1943.

Mr. Dewey inherited a $68,000,000 State Treasury surplus from the outgoing Democratic administration. The amount has increased during his administration and a law, enacted on his suggestion, locked up the entire fund for post-war reconstruction.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 3 — (ENS) — Miss Dora Ketchen was hostess for the regular meeting of the girls' class of Knox Presbyterian Church which took the form of a Hallowe'en masquerade.

The guests were received by a witch and ghost. The costumes were judged by Mrs. Rae Williams and Miss Violet Scott, who awarded the prize for the best fancy dress to Mrs. Harold Smith and for the best comic dress to Mrs. R. Sayers. A contest on guessing the names of those in costume was won by Miss Essie McQuigge and for making the largest number of words out of the letters comprising the word Hallowe'en, the first award was won by Mrs. F. Bennett and the second by Miss V. Scott.

Following the contests, games were enjoyed.

The devotional period was under the leadership of the president, Miss E. McQuigge. The next meeting will be held November 13 at the home of Mrs. Ted Watson, with Mrs. F. McKenzie as program convener.

At the close of the meeting a dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

Anglican Primate Honors Prelate

TORONTO, Nov. 3 — (CP) — Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Anglican Archbishop of Toronto and Primate of all Canada, Wednesday paid tribute to the late Archbishop of Canterbury, Most Rev. William Temple, who died last week.

Speaking at a memorial service in St. James Cathedral, Archbishop Owen said Archbishop Temple hated injustice and greed and was an untiring leader in social progress.

"He was incapable of narrowness, hardness and aloofness. He had a generous heart and was a friend of the people. Though he always lived in big houses, he was a friend of the people who lived in the little houses as well as of those in the big."

Archbishop Owen said it was always his ambition to have the Archbishop of Canterbury speak from the pulpit of St. James. But that was not to come to pass.

In an earlier service at Metropolitan United Church, Rev. Peter Bryce said Archbishop Temple was a recognized international leader who belonged, not to one church, but to all churches.

Women's Wages May Be Boosted

TORONTO, Nov. 3—(CP)—Revision of Ontario's minimum wage act now is proceeding with a view to boosting the $12.30 weekly minimum wage for women in the near future, Labor Minister Charles Daley said here today. A conference with the industry and labor board on this revision opened today and Mr. Daley said he hoped the minimum would be raised to $15.00 a week.

The act has not been revised for some years and does not meet existing conditions, the minister said. Though in wartime conditions few women receive the minimum, in post-war days the act would affect a great number of women in the province.

The revision will also deal with domestic servants and other groups with a view to bring them under the act on a set basis.

Claim Germans Can Bomb American Cities

LONDON, Nov. 3—(CP)—Walter Farr, Daily Mail correspondent, said to-day in a Stockholm dispatch he had been informed the Germans soon could "certainly" launch rockets against North America.

Farr said he was told the Germans had completed a new series of experiments and were satisfied they could send V-2 rockets against Britain "on a fairly large scale."

His informant termed an authority in a position to know what progress Germans had made with secret weapons. Farr said he was given the following additional information:

1. That the V-2—a long, fairly fat projectile with tail fins like an ordinary bomb—had been fired on Britain from experimental stations in Germany and Norway and that Holland and Denmark bases also could be used.
2. That the first V-2's carried about a ton of explosive, and that larger V-2's have been designed.
3. That the quantity of explosive is governed by the distance the V-2 is to travel.
4. That the V-2's, propelled by gasoline or some other liquid, shoot up 15 to 50 miles into the air and, after reaching thier maximum height, glide back and hit the ground at 800 to 1,000 miles an hour.

Farr quoted his informant as saying that, although the Germans could reach the United States with the rockets, they appeared to be concentrating on production of V-2's for Britain.

"There is no doubt that the Germans have a half-dozen sizes of V-2, and are experimenting to decide which is the most effective," Farr said he was told.

Red Cross Clinic Group Hears Story Of Plasma Work

HAVELOCK, Nov. 3 — (ENS) — Mrs. H. Ray of the Peterborough Blood Donor Clinic addressed the regular meeting of the Havelock-Belmont Red Cross Society on Tuesday in the interests of this branch of war service.

Mrs. Ray exhibited a sample of blood plasma and stressed the fact that while the sending of socks and other supplies to the troops was necessary, blood plasma was vital in saving the lives of many wounded soldiers. Some of the boys, she said, would only come back to Canada if people here make sufficient effort in this respect, as ninety per cent of the Canadian casualties were prevented from being fatal by its use.

She dealt with methods to get donors, stating that while advertising was good yet it had its drawbacks. Posters call attention to the need, yet in quite a number of cases after they have been read the matter is forgotten.

She preferred the personal canvass as the best means of getting results. Local canvassers who are well known in the community will be listened to and will get the best results as they bring the need before the public, Mrs. Ray declared. Also it was wise to have donors as canvassers because they are able to definitely state that the process does not hurt and that it leaves no bad effects.

Use In Battle

Mrs. Ray told how blood plasma can be administered anywhere by anyone instructed how to use it and that the men on commando raids are supplied with it. The equipment is simple and easy to carry, and consisted of blood plasma and an equal number of bottles of distilled water and needles for injecting. It had one big advantage that it kept indefinitely in heat or cold. A demonstration box similar to those carried by the soldiers is to be loaned this branch in two weeks' time and will be on display in the Red Cross window on George street.

The days of the clinic for this district are Monday and Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. and Thursday evening. Mrs. Ray requested the canvassers to make mention of the age limit that no one under 18 years or over 60 would be accepted as a donor.

The president, Mrs. A. S. Thompson, extended a vote of thanks to Mrs Ray, on behalf of the society for her interesting address.

Given Quota

A quota was received as follows to use up material on hand: 3 skirts, 42-44 in.; 3 pairs bloomers 6-8; 10 blouses 16-18.

The remittance for the third salvage collection was received amounting to $16.12, and the treasurer was authorized to issue cheque for half of the proceeds after deducting cost of advertising to the local Eastern Star Patriotic Association. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

51 Countries Discuss Freedom Of Air

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Nov. 3—(CP)—With a call for "Freedom of the air" from President Roosevelt before them, delegates of 51 countries today settled down to business at the international conference on civil aviation.

That some measure of freedom of the air, the right of aircraft from one country to fly over territory of other countries together with some measure of regulation of international air traffic will emerge in the form of an agreement from the conference is assumed.

"I hope you will not dally with the thought of creating great blocs of closed air, thereby tracing in the sky the conditions of future wars," President Roosevelt told the conference in a message read at the opening session yesterday by Adolf A. Berle, Jr., head of the United States delegation.

Canada's position as it is to be stated by Munitions Minister Howe when he submits a Canadian-designed plan to the conference for discussion calls for a broad measure of freedom of the air subject to certain conditions.

Four "Freedoms of the air" are proposed:

1. The right of innocent passage;
2. The right to land for non-traffic purposes;
3. The right to discharge passengers, mails and freight in the territory of the state or states nationality of which the aircraft possesses;
4. The right to take on passengers, mail and freight destined for the territory of the state or states nationality of which the aircraft possesses.

Watson Scores 884 In Three Tries

Jack Watson's high triple of 884 more than helped the Westclox to administer a 6-0 defeat to the Soldiers in last night's City League at Duffus. Phil Pryde's 840 was responsible for Ken Graham's Empress taking six points from Plazas.

Eddie Arcaro On 3 Winners

JAMAICA RACETRACK, Nov. 3 (AP)—The epidemic of jockeys riding triples, which began here recently, continued today with Eddie Arcaro the white haired boy this time.

As a matter of fact, "The Arc" had only three mounts on the card and batted 1000 per cent. His final score came astride Mrs. E. D. Jacobs' Ayah's Boy, a $9.50 for two shot in the featured Fishkill (class D) purse. Starting for the first time since he won at Aqeduct Sept. 6, Ayah's boy clicked by two lengths over Tommy Heard's favored Still Blue. F. A. Blaser's First Admiral was third, another two lengths back.

Yesterday, Ted Atkinson and Don Meade also had a triple. Atkinson also scored one the day before that. But it remained for Arcaro, who returned to the Metropolitan fold today still stinging from the defeat of Devil Diver in the Pimlico special, to provide the latest such feat. The attendance was 18,738.

Ayah's Boy is one of the numerous horses which the pacemaking Trainer Hirsch Jacobs has improved upon. Unable to win in nine tries this year before, the Brooklynite claimed him for $5,000, the gelding has registered twice and finished once in Jacobs' care.

Second Heles Representatives

Arcaro also won on Lakonia, $3.70, and Vrondi, $3.80, a pair of William Helis representatives which took both ends of a split dash for maiden two-year-old fillies. He was patient with Ayah's Boy when the mount began sluggishly. Miss Eunice and First Admiral raced themselves into defeat, with Still Blue a close contender. Ayah's Boy's well-timed move proved far too strong for Still Blue in their final furlong duel. The victor covered the six furlongs in 1:12 2-5.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Everything is set for the big rugby game at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon with Toronto Balmy Beach juniors clashing with Rich Jackson's Peterborough juniors in what should prove one of the most interesting gridiron engagement of the season. The kick-off will be at 2:15 o'clock and the biggest crowd of the fall should be on the sidelines when the game gets under way. And speaking of sidelines fans are asked to keep behind them and off the playing field and also to keep out of the goal areas. Several times this season with play near the goal line action has had to be held up until some of the crowd were chased out of the territory back of the goal. That is part of the playing field and the fans have no business out there. Peterborough youngsters have really been drilling hard for the struggle tomorrow. It may be their last home game of the season and they would dearly love to break into the win column at the expense of the Bammies. Naturally the Toronto outfit doesn't feel that way about the thing and they are going to bring down their stronges battle array, well fortified with subs so that they can keep on the pressure all the way.

* * * * * *

In the Ontario series the chief interest tomorrow of course hinges on Balmy Beach's invasion of Hamilton. In spite of the fact that the Beaches slumped badly last Saturday and were beaten at home by a weaker Trojan team than the one they trimmed 33 to 0 in Ottawa two weeks previously there are still a number of folk who are calling the Ponton team to win right in Hamilton. One thing is certain; it will be a gruelling battle. The struggle in Toronto when the Bammies knocked off the Wildcats for their only loss in two seasons was one of the toughest tussles in years. They were playing for keeps on both sides and more physical punishment was handed out than has been seen since the old days when the Tigers and Ottawa Rough Riders and the Argos used to engage in a brand of warfare that was the advance guard for the commando training of the present conflict. The Wildcats in their own lair will be swinging from the ground and that big tough line of the Beaches will meet them at their own style with the result that the first aid boys should be about the busiest individuals on the scene tomorrow afternoon.

The Swimming Marathon

While the final checkup on the Down the Mississippi international correspondence swim marathon has not been made the results up to the end of the 10th day, Swim Coach Gord Minty reports, show that the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. team held 12th place out of 57 entries and was leading six Canadian teams. American teams led the parade with Sacramento, Cal. in the lead. Peterborough swimmers during the 10 days covered a total of 15,211 lengths or a distance of 172 miles and 76 lengths, with 450 local swimmers taking part in the competition. That is a lot of swimmers and the distance covered is a creditable performance. More than that, the contest has undoubtedly aroused considerable interest in swimming and a lot of Peterborough entries have improved considerably in style and performance as the result of the extra training they have obtained during the two weeks of the marathon swim. That of course was the primary object of the big affair and it is evidently getting the results hoped for when the affair was planned.

* * * * * *

The individual performances of some of the leading Peterborrow swimmers affords some interesting figures. At the end of the 10th day, the records show, three local entries had covered 10 miles or better, three more were in the 5 to 10 miles group, seven contestents did from 2 to 5 miles and 17 more swam over one mile each. Leading the whole field was Don Payne who had covered 948 lengths or 10 miles, 68 lengths. Harold Grafstein was second with 10 miles, 42 lengths and Vance Colling covered 880 lengths or exactly 10 miles. In the 5 to 10 miles group were Bob Leach, 785 lengths or 8 miles, 81 lengths, George Baker, 497 lengths or 5 miles, 57 lengths and Cliff Roydhouse, 440 laps for an even 5 miles. Leading the 2 to 5 group was Bonnie Jackson with 398 lengths or 4 miles 46 lengths and others in this division were Clair Connell 372 lengths Bill Dormer 246 lengths, Jack Dormer 242, Bob Edwards 238, Dave Cottingham 200 and Howard Anderson 198. The group from 1 mile to 2 miles, included Cliff McInroy, Bob Adam, Frank Fisher, Bill Carr, Howard Hempstead, Ralph Plumpton, Walter Delong, Allan Lee, Bob Cutmore, Bob Stuart, Reg McEwen, George Blais, Glenard Flynn, David Potter, Ted Cranfield, Darrell Ackford and Bob Gardner.

The Power Is Off

Individual home-run hitting in the American League the past season reached its lowest ebb since the Ruthian era began in 1919, Nick Etten of the Yankees winning the crown for 1944 with only 22 round-trippers. That figure would have been tops previous to 1919, but for the past 26 seasons the lowest has been 29, with which the Bambino started his long reign. There has been a steady decline in A.L. four-sackers since Hank Greenberg's 58 in 1938, which tied Jimmie Foxx's total in 1932, the best previous record, outside of Ruth's performances. Foxx won the home run championship in 1939 with only 36, Greenberg jumped to 41 in 1940 and then there was a steady descent, 37 by Ted Williams in 1941, 36 by Williams in 1942 and 34 in 1943 by Rudy York. Only once since 1930 had the National League leader topped the pace-setter in the American—in 1940, when Johnny Mize led Greenberg, 43 to 41—until this year. Bill Nicholson of the Cubs paced both leagues for 1944, with 33; Mel Ott was ahead of Etten with 26, and Ron Northey tied the Yankee first baseman, with 22. The National had five batters hitting 20 or more round-trippers this season against only two for the American.

Toronto Maple Leafs are opening out a lead in the N.H.L. race by winning their first three games, two of them on the road. Hap Day's men dropped into Montreal last night and accomplished what no club had been able to do during the regular season last winter. They beat the Canadiens 4 goals to 1, on the strength of the scoring punch of the Carr-Bodnar-Schriner line which came through with three goals in the final period after the teams had wound up the first two sessions on even terms with one counter each. Leafs scored once in the first with Metz doing the firing and Toe Blake evened it up in the second session. Then Sweeney Schriner broke the deadlock with a quickie to open the third chapter and it was all Leafs after that. At Detroit, the only other undefeated team in the loop, the Red Wings, had a scoring carnival at the expense of the luckless Rangers who were beaten 10 to 3. Jack Adams' outfit have scored 17 goals in two games and look like a tough squad with rookie Jud McAtee adding plenty of punch and another youngster Steve Wochy grabbing off two goals.

HALIFAX, Nov. 3.—(CP).—Lt.-Col. G. R. The 55th anual meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association will be held at Toronto Saturday Nov. 25, it was announced last night.

Boston Bruin yesterday announced the signing of forwards Gino Rozzini and Armand Gaudreault, both members of the Allan Cup championship Quebec Aces last season. They will join the club at Boston next Tuesday. From Toronto, where the Bruins now are working out, Manager Art Ross reported Harvey (Busher) Jackson, veteran winger-defenceman, had practised with the club and indicated he might change his mind about retiring from hockey.

Guelph's new indoor hockey school project met an enthusiastic response when 77 boys turned out for the opening session. Directed by Harold Cole, Guelph Mercury sports editor, the school will meet weekly with a view to promoting interest and knowledge in the game among younger players.

Abe J. Green, president of the National Boxing Association, said yesterday the title bout between Sal Bartolo of Boston, world featherweight champion, and "Whistling Willie" Roach, of Wilmington, Del., has been indefinitely postponed because of a serious nose injury suffered by Bartolo. The bout was scheduled for 15 rounds at the Boston Garden Nov. 17.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(AP)—The Women's Professional Golfers Association has been granted a charter in North Carolina and now its founder, Hope Seignious, is trying to get past "that awful word, tentative," to provide a tournament program for the gals. . . Miss Seignious, assistant to George Corcoran at Greensboro, N.C., club, says the first task is to convince the girls who want to play tournament golf that there will be enough events for them and the tournament-makers that there will be enough good players for the events. . . Already she is planning a women's P.G.A. championship and hopes some day there will be winter and summer "circuits" just like the men have . . . "The girls have shown tremendous interest," she says, "and I think people should be able to make a living at something they're good at."

Big Green Schoolhouse

Opportunities for women golf pros aren't limited to tournament play, and she has pretty good evidence . . About one-third of the golf club members are women . . . Besides, a lot of men can be helped by lessons from women pros. "They say 'If a woman can do that, so can I,' Hope explains. "It encourages them. Since I've been teaching I have had almost as many men pupils as women."

Toronto Leafs Beat Canadiens; Third Straight Win

By ERIC SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The sixth wartime campaign for the National Hockey League championship and the Stanley Cup that goes with the title has become unpredictable.

Last night the defending champions, Montreal Canadiens, who Coach Dick Irvin said were back in the form that won them the Stanley Cup last season, dropped a surprise 4-1 decision to Hap Day's undefeated Toronto Maple Leafs before more than 12,000 fans while Jack Adams' classy Detroit Red Wings larruped New York Rangers 10-3 before a crowd of 7,223 in the border city.

The Leaf victory was a pleasant one for Day who, unable to obtain Paul Bibeault, Montreal's spare goalie, had signed Frank McCool, former Calgary sportswriter who recently was rejected by the Canadian Army, to guard the nets. Bibeault played 29 games with Toronto last year, starring all the way.

As a result of the win, Leafs remain on top of the circuit with six points. Detroit moved into sole possession of second place with Montreal and Chicago tied for third.

For the second time in the young season, Dave (Sweeney) Schriner, making his return to hockey after a one-year lay-off, drove in the winning goal. Last night he scored what proved to be the winning tally in the first minute of the third period.

Nick Metz netted Toronto's first goal and Toe Blake got the equalizer for Canadiens. Gus Bodnar and Lorne Carr scored the other Leaf markers, the former being the only one to count when the teams were at full strength.

Face a Jinx

By losing, the Rangers extended a jinx which has kept them from victory on Detroit ice since Christmas 1942. The triumph was Detroit's second high-scoring win this year. They trounced Boston Bruins 7-1 in their initial game last Sunday.

The red shirts played on even terms with the Rangers during the first period and then New York wilted, allowing Wings to ram in four successive tallies without a reply in the middle session and another in the third before Walter Atanas of Hamilton, Ont., got their other goal. Detroit then added three more to finish the counting.

Rookie Jud McAtee led the Wings goal-getters with three while Bill Quackenbush and Steve Wochy collected two apiece. Modere (Mud) Bruneteau, Carl Liscombe and Ted Lindsay, rookie from Port Colborne, Ont., got the others. Kilby Macdonald and Joe Shack each netted for Rangers in the first period.

Capitols-Bisons In 3-All Tie

(By The Canadian Press)

Indianapolis Capitals held Buffalo Bisons to a 3-3 tie in the only American Hockey League game last night but the result failed to bring any change in the league standing. A crowd of 3,756 fans turned out at Indianapolis to witness the game.

Kenny Kilrea started the Buffalo scoring in the first period but Butch McDonald set up the Caps' first goal in the second frame to force a 1-1 deadlock. The Bisons went ahead again before the period ended on Roger Leger's goal and Doug Lewis put the Buffalo club two ahead in the third.

McDonald scored a second goal for Indianapolis and Johnny Sorrell counted the equalizer.

Steve Wochy and Bill Quackenbush, Red Wings, who added to the Detroit score with two goals each.

Sweeney Schriner, Toronto, who paved the way for Maple Leafs' 4-1 victory over Montreal with a goal and two assists.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

TORONTO, Nov. 3 — (CP). — Amateur hockey organizations in other provinces could take a leaf from Manitoba's book. The Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association is laying plans already for expansion and improvement of the sport, with special emphasis laid on minor hockey, and an encouraging hand extended to the harassed seniors.

One of the important points of the new program aims to interest the 100 or more smaller communities in the province which have no organized hockey— that is, no affiliation with the provincial body. Besides encouraging hockey, A. E. H. Coo, chairman of the committee studying post-war plans, suggests that all winter games should be included in the over-all program.

It's a start on a plan that should be adopted in all provinces—sort of in winter national physical fitness scheme.

Silas McLellan, 48-year-old Marathoner from Nova Scotia's Hants County, has been rolling along in the Halifax Herald and Mail annual full-length Marathon race for 20 years, man and boy, without chalking up a win—until this year. He finally romped home a winner, leading a field of three hippersnappers about half his age.

Winger Bob Carse On Missing List

CHICAGO, Nov. 3—Chicago Black Hawk hockey officials were saddened with the news that Bob Carse, brilliant young left wing, has been reported missing in action. A member of the Canadian Army, Bob left the Hawks two years ago for military service, cutting short a brilliant hockey career. The report did not state in what zone he was fighting. Carse was born in Edmonton, Alta., in 1919. His older brother, Bill, is also in the Canadian armed services. Bob was a centre and left winger with Hawks.

Krol Leading Wildcats In Key Tussle

(By The Canadian Press)

Officials of the Ontario Rugby Football Union and the Ontario Armed Services Football League meet jointly tonight to plan the play-off schedule in the two leagues on the eve of the two last scheduled games tomorrow.

The two-game program brings together Toronto Balmy Beach and Hamilton Wildcats at Hamilton in a game which will settle the first-place position in the O.R.F.U. The two now are tied with four wins and one loss apiece. At Toronto, the Navy Bulldogs play Camp Borden R.C.A.F. Hurricanes. Hurricanes are slated for a third-place spot in the league no matter what the outcome, but Navy can take over first place with a victory and will finish in second place, one point behind Hagersville R.C.A.F., if they lose.

Hamilton and Beaches play off for the O.R.F.U. title and Hagersville and Navy meet in the Services League play-off. Details will be arranged at tonight's meeting. Service regulations prevent a play-off between the two leagues.

One exhibition game is billed for tomorrow, Hagersville meeting the unbeaten University of Western Ontario Mustangs at London. The Mustangs are unbeaten in three exhibition games so far.

Chief interest, however, lies in the Beach-Wildcats meeting at Hamilton. In their previous game this season two weeks ago in Toronto, Beaches turned in a 10-4 victory and the Cats are out for revenge.

Led by Joe Krol, top scorer in Ontario football, the Wildcats have been preparing forward-passing offensive. Beaches looked none too strong against Ottawa's forward-passing last Saturday.

Beaches will be at full strength and will have Billy Myers, the schoolboy star who was idle last week, back in action.

A special victory loan show will feature the Toronto game.

Big Leaguer Refuses Bribe

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.— (AP).— Dutch Leonard of the Washington Senators turned down a bribe of "several thousand dollars" to throw the final game of the American Baseball League season to Detroit Tigers, according to two New York newspapers.

Leonard was reported to have been called on the phone at his Detroit hotel room Oct. 1, the final day of the season, and offered a chance to make several thousand dollars by "getting himself knocked out of the game early" the Herald-Tribune said in a copyrighted story. The story in the Mirror carried the same version.

The Washington ace was said to have hung up without answering, later confiding the incident to Coach Clyde Milan. Then he went out and set down the Tigers with a four-hitter while St. Louis was defeating New York Yankees to break a first-place tie and win the American League pennant by one game.

Leonard was unavailable for comment last night, having checked out of his New York hotel.

Parisians Love Allied Troops Bringing Liberty

Even those whose homes in France have been destroyed and who have lost everything, have forgotten their misfortunes, in the joy of welcoming Allies troops, who have freed them from the tyranny of the hated Germans. This message was received Thursday by Miss Joan Stenton, 469 Water street, from a French friend in Paris. Peterborough soldiers have sent home their impressions of the liberation, but for the first time the attit / of the French people has be / revealed.

The writer, Miss Suzanne Dutruch lives in Pontoise, a suburb of Paris, and she says:

"We are at last free from those hateful German soldiers. Since the liberation, we have already made three trips into Paris. We are so very happy and thankful to see it again, as it was before the Occupation, with hundreds of flags in the Allied colors, flying everywhere.

"In the streets we meet many English, Canadian and American soldiers and we cannot help saying 'good morning' and 'welcome,' phrases which every French citizen here learned so that they could welcome your soldiers on the day of liberation, August 30. The troops are smiling and kind, and do not compare with the 'others.'

"The last days were very difficult, because the Boches blew up the bridges and stations. They burned our Post Office and my father had quite a time reorganizing mail and travel service. We were severely bombed in August five times and the battle was climaxed when the guns were turned loose. Our town has been half destroyed (and you will remember that it was bombed in 1940) but there were not many casualties. Everyone is happy, even those whom the war has robbed of their homes."

Flee Before Germans

Up until the debacle in 1940 Miss Dutruch and her sister Madeleine lived a quiet life with their parents in Pontoise. The former was a high school student, and the latter had been teaching a kindergarten class for a year in a nearby village. During the few Nazi bombings of Paris, the teacher saw bombs fall in her school district and some of the school children killed as they dashed for the safety of the air raid shelter. As the Germans rapidly closed on Paris, the Dutruch family were evacuated through Paris, to Versailles. Mr. Dutruch, an official with the T.S.F., was evacuated with his family, a few hours before the Nazis entered that historic city.

Caught in the hectic whirlpool of frantic evacuees, the family finally reached a little village south of Toulouse, 120 kilometres from the Spanish frontier.

While here they learned the stupefying news of the armistice. Following on this blow came the announcement that they had to return to Occupied France. Their home had been destroyed during an air attack, and the future remained dark before the lengthening shadow of Hun despotism.

The only word Miss Stenton has received since July, 1940, was through the International Red Cross at Geneva, Switzerland, which confirmed the fact that they were still alive. Madeleine Dutruch has been teaching in Paris and her sister, Suzanne, is now ready to begin her third year at the Sorbonne University.

Americans Have Largest Navy In The World

By JOHN DAUJHINEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 3—(CP Cable)—A statement in the House of Commons yesterday by A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, that the post-war shipping situation is not being overlooked in the midst of war responsibilities pressing upon the British Cabinet is welcome reassurance to an industry which necessarily must face its most difficult days when peace is restored.

But it was only one of several official statements that the government recognizes the importance of shipping in peace-time economy in these islands. Such recognition has long been urged in action as well as words by shipping spokesmen.

Briefly, this is the picture which resulted from yesterday's Commons debate:

1. Britain no longer has the world's biggest navy. Her pre-war tonnage is cut in half by war losses—from 18,000,000 tons to perhaps 9,000,000, although exact figures remain a secret. United States tonnage in the meantime has risen about 12,000,000 to an estimated 30,000,000 tons after the war.

Lack Freighters.

2. Replacement of wartime losses with 10,000-ton utility ships left Britain with a surplus of these slow, large freight-carriers and a lack of smaller craft which carried out many pre-war services.

3. Wartime restrictions have meant virtually no passenger ships have been built in British yards since the war began, and it now is considered impossible to get British ships back on all passenger routes immediately the war ends.

4. Despite air transport advances, shipping still is the main factor in maintaining Britain's living standards since she relies largely on export trades for external revenue, and imports huge quantities of raw materials and foodstuffs.

5. The merchant navy and shipbuilding industry have been providing employment directly and indirectly for about 2,000,000 men and women and much unemployment will result unless this industry remains active.

As far as shipbuilding is concerned, some action already has been taken. Shortly after Lord Leathers said the Merchant Navy must be "at least as large as before the war and as much larger as British efficiency can make it," it was learned that most shipyards were making plans to switch to large-scale peace production and it was indicated the production of standardized ships may be ended sooner than as at first expected.

Relax Gradually.

But wartime controls can only be relaxed gradually, and it may be some time before construction of passenger liners again is possible. Production private accounts will be controlled by licence because of the shortages of raw materials and labor.

The situation regarding the merchant navy is less clear. Post-war plans cannot be drawn up definitely until Britain's trade plans are formulated and export possibilities better established.

British shipping interests are worried most by the increase of the United States merchant fleet, and are afraid that even if the United States does not operate utility ships after the war they will be sold to various United Nations, and still offer serious competition—particularly if countries like Greece resume cut-throat rates of the pre-war period.

The British Council of Shipping, the owners' trade association, has been urging an international agreement on the disposal of surplus war-built merchant ships. The United Kingdom signed a shipping allocation agreement with her Allies this year, effective only until six months after the war, which deals mainly with provision for adequate war transport.

The owners contend that something similar is needed for after the war, but nothing along that line has been arranged yet.

Labor Board Issues Order

TORONTO, Nov. 3—(CP)—The Ontario Labor Relations Board today announced it has ordered that all disputes concerning grievances arising under a collective bargaining agreement between Local 19 of the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.) and Canadian Automotive Trim, Limited, of Windsor, be submitted to a board of arbitration whose decision would be binding on both parties.

The board issued the text of a 1,600-word judgment which explained that its decision ran counter to a recent ruling of the National Wartime Labor Relations Board which held that the Ontario board exceeded its jurisdiction in a similar judgment in another Windsor case involving the same U.A.W. local and the Dominion Forge Co.

MEVAGISSEY, CORNWALL, England — (CP). — Three hundred fisherfolk made the easiest catch of their lives when they stood on a quayside in this Cornish town doing nothing much — and got a guinea for doing it. They were used as extras (children half-price) by a film company making "Johnny Fisherman."

Col. Carmichael Heads Board

OTTAWA, Nov. 3—(CP)—Pensions Minister Mackenzie to-day announced the appointment of Col. Dougall Carmichael of Ottawa as chairman of the War Veterans' Allowance Board. Col. Carmichael has been acting chairman of the Board since April, 1941.

A veteran of the First Great War he was a member of the original board formed in 1930 and he remained on the board until his enlistment in the present war in 1940.

Col. Carmichael, 59, was born at Collingwood, Ont., and enlisted as a private in the Simcoe Foresters when he was 19. He went to France in 1916 as a captain of the 58th Battalion, was wounded twice and received the Distinguished Service Order and Military Cross, both with Bar.

He enlisted in the present war with the rank of Colonel in 1940 and commanded the Brockville Training Centre until 1941 when he was posted to Headquarters of Military District No. 3 at Kingston, Ont.

Col. Carmichael represented one of the Gray County ridings in the Ontario Legislature for some time and was a minister without portfolio in the Drury cabinet from 1919 to 1923.

TO THE RESCUE—To bring speedy assistance to fliers forced down in the wilderness along the Northwest Staging Route between Edmonton and Whitehorse, the Royal Canadian Air Force has especially trained a group of "para-searchers." As soon as a downed plane is located, the rescue crew is flown to the area and parachute to the rescue. Radio and medical kits are dropped nearby and first aid and blood plasma may be given while awaiting the arrival of an overland rescue party. In the above photo a para-searcher bails out, arms folded in the approved manner. To prevent injury in landing, the jumper wears a wire mask and crash helmet and the legs of his jump suit are reinforced with sturdy fabric which absorbs shock. (RCAF Photo)

Germans Will Battle To Last In North Italy

ROME, Nov. 3—(AP)—The campaign which has ground 500 miles through Italy was slowed in the mud of the Po Valley and peaks of the Apennines today and Gen. Alexander, Allied commander-in-chief, said he saw no signs of the Germans pulling out of Italy.

He made no effort to conceal the fact that the powerful offensive launched against the Gothic Line last August now has halted almost completely.

"I can't tell how long it will take to drive them out, but it will be done," Sir Harold told correspondents. He declined to hazard any dates on the Italian or any other campaign but remarked that he could not imagine the war in Europe continuing beyond 1945.

He said the original plan for attacking the Gothic Line had been altered because of the withdrawal of all French divisions and some American divisions for the invasion of Southern France.

He said he could not explain why the Germans left so many troops in Italy as the Allied ring around Germany tightened from the west and east, or why the enemy continued to pump reinforcements into the enemy line in northern Italy.

The commander traced the course of the campaign from the time of its planning in Tunisia in April 1943.

Stud Poker Flourishes In Turkish Bath 90 Nude Ladies in Game, Many Get 'Cleaned'

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—If a wife wants to take a bath, no sensible husband will object, but when the little woman goes night after night to a Russian and Turkish bath and comes home, not only clean, but cleaned out, hubby has a right to get steamed up.

So it was that complaints began to come into the Liberty Ave., Brooklyn, police station, and hence it was that the cops descended in force on East New York Ave., early today and found 90 naked women playing stud poker.

When it came to getting the goods on the gals, Sergt. Joseph Culcahy, head of a four-man squad of plainclothesmen assigned to clean up the situation, called for female assistance.

He sent in Policewoman Helen Bauer and Regina Epstein as advance agents. Neither had ever been in a Turkish bath before and to find the game in the four-storey building, they had to go through: (a) Ice packs on the head; (b) steam rooms; (c) bicycle riding; (d) steam showers: (e) an icy pool; (f) a massage with hot water and leaves—you heard it, leaves; and (g) needle showers.

They finally found the game in the bath's restaurant concession where a full house of bare queens, without a sleeve among them to hide an ace in, were trying to skin each other.

Mrs. Epstein got into the game and said later one of the women complained to the manager that somebody had stolen the pot.

"What do you want me to do," he asked, being a realist, "call a cop?"

Where the pot thief could have parked it, Mrs. Epstein did not explain.

Eventually she and Miss Bauer went out, donned duds and badges, and called in the male cops whose faces, if not four of a kind, were at least a straight flush. And while the men waited outside, the women went in to make the arrest.

They hauled in four principals who were charged as common gamblers. The cops said they had been taking a dime from each pot.

Charges of maintaining a place for gambling were lodged against the proprietors.

Charge Husband Theft Of Goods

Hearing of a charge against C. M. Rishor of having, while living apart from his wife, stolen household linens, furniture, etc. from her began before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning.

Rishor who elected summary trial and pleaded not guilty was defended by T. J. Carley, K.C. while Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. prosecuted and W. J. Arthur was present in the interests of Mrs. Rishor, against whom a similar charge has been laid.

Mrs. Rishor told the court that she and her husband had been living apart for some years and that she had continued to occupy the apartment at 168 London street. On Sunday, October 15, her husband had come to the apartment, she said, and had sent for a truck and took away a quantity of household articles. Mrs. Rishor said he had kicked in the door first.

Some of the things she complained of as having been stolen, she said were gifts to her, and others had been purchased out of her savings from her household allowance and from money gifts she had received.

When Mr. Carley started to cross-examine the witness as to certain articles that had been in the apartment Mr. Fair said that the witness was asking the protection of the Canada and Ontario Evidence Acts.

Mrs. Rishor said that some of the things had been taken down to a man living near Millbrook to be repaired. The witness said she did not know the man's name.

"Were any of them in the house of a man known as Baldy Johnston?"

Mrs. Rishor said that some of them had been taken there after being repaired.

Witness said in answer to a question that divorce proceedings had been started against her by her husband and that she had counter-claimed against him for divorce.

"And this Baldy Johnston has been named as one of the co-respondents in the action?" said Mr. Carley.

The witness answered in the affirmative.

Questioned as to the events of Sunday, October 15, Mrs. Rishor said that a man named Preston had been in her apartment when her husband had arrived there early in the afternoon.

"This man named Preston is a co-defendant in the divorce proceeds?" "Yes."

"Did you hear your husband on that Sunday tell Preston to keep his mouth out of it?" "I didn't hear what was said between them."

The case is proceeding.

Welfare Work Of Legion Worthy Of Note

Men who have risked their lives for their own and others freedom and welfare, must naturally be imbued with that spirit so helpful in times of stress, that lends to deeds of further goodwill when the necessity and occasion arises.

Among the members of the Peterborough Branch No. 52 of the Canadian Legion, this has been very much in evidence during these latter years in particular, where in addition to their great work of welfare among the men who served the last Great War who may need assistance, they have branched out and done a real service to the cause in this present conflict, by raising and contributing money to assist those who have suffered in the zone of hostilities by enemy air raid and robot bomb attacks in the front line in Britain.

This spirit of service has all along the years been very much amplified through their annual appeal for public support in the poppy day appeal, the proceeds of which have all gone to assist the service men of Great War I and their families where the need arises, and is now being extended to those who are serving in the present conflict.

Of recent years the local branch have been regularly conducting bingo games each Wednesday evening also on behalf of their own welfare work, and when the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund started to function, they were among the very first through their president G. Gimblett, to offer every encouragment by promising to give from its proceeds, a portion to help this worthy cause along.

Total Appproaches $2,400.

So well has this promise been fulfilled, that they are now very close to the $2,400 mark in money given by them for this purpose, the total actually standing at $2,396.[illegible] when one counts the gift of $65.64 credited in their name to-day, a truly creditable showing in this one branch of endeavour on their part to assist in the present struggle.

Before passing on, it should be noted with extreme regret the passing of one of these stalwarts, Pete Wallace from amidst their ranks, who was intensely interested in all things pertaining to the Legion and this particular effort, he giving freely of his time week after week in its support for the love of helping both his comrades, and those who now suffer from the effects of a war which he took a valiant part in fighting to do away with a little over a quarter of a century ago.

Tribute to Pete Wallace.

Whether men would or no, they unconsciously make the yardstick by which their fellow men judge their worth, and those living in close proximity could hardly help but appraise their worth on some such basis as this. The untimely and sudden passing of Pete Wallace came as a great shock to those living nearby, for he was held in high esteem by them, so to-day most appropriately sees a contribution given as a tribute to his sterling worth as a citizen and neighbour by two of the homes nearby, feeling in so doing, this would have found much favor in his sight, were he able to speak of such.

This evening a Robot Bomb which landed in Britain without creating the usual damage to life and property will be on display on the market square, giving all interested an opportunity to see one of these infamous instruments that an unscrupulous enemy has used against the civilian population there.

Peterboro Subscribes In One Day Three Quarters Of A Million

More than three - quarters of a million dollars in one day! That was the volume of Peterborough's subscription to the Seventh Victory Loan.

The total for the day was $827,950 with $700,000 coming from the Special Names Section. That group blasted the Peterborough percentage up from 53.5 to 71.5. The required percentage for the tenth day was 55.5, and the Peterborough margin over its day to day obligation was exactly 16 points in the percentage column. At the same time, though, Special Names soared in its percentage column from 43.9 per cent of its objective to 93.9 per cent.

Glowing Comparison

In the idiom of the street and especially of the twelve year old boy,——Do you know something?

Peterborough county and city has subscribed in the last ten days $1,099,900 more than in theh first ten days of the Sixth Victory Loan.

Here are the figures, just as a little pat on the back when headquarters staff isn't looking:

Ten days 7th Loan...$3,287,350.

Ten days 6th Loan...$2,187,450.

According to reportorial arithmetic the difference is $1,099,900. Peterborough's percentage is 71.5 beginning the 11th day of this campaign. At the same time the percentage of objective was 48.6 per cent. And in presenting that pleasing contrast the Examiner is simply quoting from the overnight report from Victory Loan headquarters.

Big Day's Details

In a glance over the Thursday performance, and with full acknowledgment to the Special Names group, the facts of Thursday were as follows.

City general canvass up from $760,950 to $859,200, an advance of $98,250; and not far of the $100,000 mark for one day's buying of Victory Bonds.

Rural Peterborough's total moved along from $287,650 to $312,850, the day's investing amounting to $25,200.

Payroll Savings showed one of the leanest days in the whole seven loans, $3,000, as they edged slightly further in the percentage records to 83.9 per cent of their objective.

And then Special Names barged in with that $700,000 item. The neighbors might like to know the investors who made up that huge total, but generally local headquarters does not pay much attention to publicity of names and amounts, leaving the investments anonymous except little stories that are gleaned from the field of canvassers.

A Day's Reminder

From the height of 71.5 per cent of the city-county objective, Peterborough as a whole should not get the idea that they can lift the oars into the boat and coast along and enjoy the scenery.

Looking at the other side of the picture, and remembering that the required percentage Thursday night was 55.55...

Peterborough general canvass stood at 51.3 per cent.

County general canvass stood at 50.1 per cent, and their combined objective is $2,300,000—city $1,675,000; county $625,000.

As to the rural campaign the northern townships are still out in front with 72.2 per cent of their objective—Burleigh, Harvey, Anstruther, Chandos. Havelock is second with 61.6 per cent; Dummer climbed up to fourth spot and 56.6 per cent and Otonabee is only slightly behind at 56.3 in fourth position. The others are all below their objective for the tenth day with Belmont-Methuen fifth, showing 53.6 per cent.

Peterboro Fliers Awarded Wings

Three Peterborough members of the Royal Canadian Air Force graduated recently at air schools in Canada, according to an official R.C.A.F. announcement today.

At No. 1 S.F.T.S. at Camp Borden, Sgt. James R. Record, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Record, 656 Reid street, graduated as a pilot, and was commisioned as pilot officer following his graduation. Mr. and Mrs. Record went to Camp Borden for the ceremonies, and although it was hoped the young airman's sister, Sgt. Gwen Record, W.D., would be present to pin the wings on his tunic, circumstances prevented this. She is stationed at Mont Joli at the present. A brother, Robert, has been a member of the Air Cadets since they were organized.

Sgt. E. M Freeman, 773 Water street, graduated as an air bomber at No. 1 A.O.S., Malton.

Sgt. Douglas MacPherson, 483 Water street, received his commission as pilot officer, in the field of Canada. Well-known in sports in Peterborough, he is the son of Mrs. A. W. MacPherson and the late Dr. MacPherson, and is now serving overseas

BRITISH CLEAR WAY TO ANTWERP—Complete liberation of Walcheren Island, Holland, last obstacle to the sea approaches to Antwerp, is over. Dr. James Semple Inducted At George St.

Speaking in glowing terms of the fine record built up by George Street United Church in the past, Rev. Dr. J. Semple, formerly of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, told a large group of congregation members and friends that with the united effort of everyone, this excellent record will be maintained and strengthened in the days to come, in a brief address of thanks at the reception held for him in the Sunday School auditorium, following his induction as pastor of that church, Thursday evening.

The inductional services were in charge of Rev. Dr. E. W. Young, of St Andrew's United Church, who is chairman of the Peterborough Presbytery. Rev. Dr. J. R. Cooper, who has been supplying at George Street United Church for the past two months conducted the devotional exercises, and Rev. C. D. Snelgrove, secretary of the Presbytery, read the record of the Presbytery.

Delivering the inductional sermon, Rev. F. W. Rowland, of Mark Street United Church, chose as his theme the 52nd chapter of Isaiah, verse one, "Awake, awake, thou that sleepest." The actual induction of Rev. Dr. Semple took place between Rev. Rowland's sermon, and the address by Rev. G. Murray, of Keene, who made the charge to the minister and people. Then, members of the Presbytery filed past and offered the newly-inducted minister the right hand of fellowship. Rev. Dr. Young escorted the minister to the pulpit, and Rev. Dr. Semple, pastor of George Street United Church, pronounced the benediction.

Hold Reception

In the Sunday School auditorium, where the reception was held with Rev. Dr. Young presiding, Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, of Murray Street Baptist Church, addressed the congregation briefly, referring to himself as an associate pastor. A close feeling of fellowship was brought out by Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe, which he said was strengthened by union church services during the summer, that have been held for more than two decades. G. C. Staples, Clerk of the Session, also spoke briefly.

During the program, a telegram from F. H. Deacon, Recording Steward of the Official Board of Belleville, was read, wishing both the new minister and the congregation, many years of united service together.

Thanking everyone for the kindness and friendship illustrated by the reception, Rev. Dr. Semple said that it is with mixed feelings that he looks back on the farewell ceremonies held in Belleville, and the welcoming he has received, as he stood on new ground, about to enter a new work.

A choral selection, "Praise My Soul, The King of Heaven," by Mark Andrews, was sung by the choir, under the direction of Charles H. Renaud. Mrs. Renaud was at the organ.

Mrs. W. McLaren, head of the Church Women's Association, was in charge at the reception, and the two conveners, Miss Mary Elliott and Mrs. W. Harris, poured tea. Mrs. W. K. McGee was social convener and receiving with Rev. Dr. Semple and Mrs. Semple, were Mr. and Mrs. Leo Copp, Mr. and Mrs. W. McLaren, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Elliott, and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Sackville.

Although "V-Day" appears to be further away than it seemed two months ago Peterborough's committee is steadily going ahead with plans for the celebration. Under the chairmanship of Col. J. A. Dewart, M. C. several meetings have been held and committees named for the various activities.

Two sets of plans are being drawn up depending on the time the news is announced. Morton will see that the soldiers in hospital, should the new hospital on Monaghan Road be occupied at that time, receive some special gifts and entertainment.

Letters written by the mayor to all families who have lost members will be delivered by special carrier.

Plans for the evening are not yet completed.

Members of the Committee are Col. J. A. Dewart, Major Gordon Monkman, M. C., D. G. H. Melton, Fred Hills, Harry Gainey, Ald. Jack Sullivan, Hon. Iva Campbell Fallis, Mrs. W. H. Morton, Rev. W. A. Filer, Capt. Frank Grant, Max Sloan and G. Wilson Craw.

Should the news come through later in the day the school ceremonies woud be held and the civic service in the afternoon but in the evening special services would be held in all the churches.

Truck Crash Causes Death Of L.-Cpl. Kerr

MILLBROOK, Nov. 3—(ENS)— Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Kerr have received a letter from Lieut. N. D. Medhurst, commander of the platoon in which their elder son, the late L.-Cpl. William Kerr was a despatch rider, informing them of the accident which cost him his life.

It was in France, and with a companion, Cpl. Clifford Simpkins, L.-Cpl. Kerr had gone to pick up signals equipment about four miles from headquarters, when a truck, at a road junction, came unexpectedly onto the main road, colliding with the motorcycle and causing the accident. Cpl. Simpkins, riding in the pillion of the cycle, was seriously injured but is expected to recover, but though given the best of medical attention results in L.-Cpl. Kerr's case were fatal.

His commanding officers all spoke in the highest terms of his work as D.R. to the Colonel, and as "the best D.R. in the Battalion" and said that "we have lost not only a very good man, but also a very good friend."

Legion To Hold Tag Day Saturday, Nov. 4

"This year, as in other years, the Canadian Legion, through its 1760 branches and auxiliaries in Canada, is calling to the people of the Dominion that they should reserve more than ever in solemn remembrance the symbolism that has become an integral part of Remembrance Day observances and asked that every man, woman and child wear a poppy." George Gimblett, president of the Peterborough branch declared today. Saturday is Poppy Day in Peterborough while Remembrance Day will be observed the following Saturday. Wearing a poppy is mark of remembrance to those who laid down their lives in the Great War and those men and women who have made the supreme sacrifice in the present conflict.

"This appeal is not made on behalf of the Legion or of its members, but on behalf of all ex-Service men who are in need. The collection and administration of the Poppy Fund has been entrusted to the Canadian Legion. This, however, does not mean that the Poppy Fund is part of the funds of the Legion. It is kept entirely separate and is not even treated as a part of the relief fund. It is rather considered as a Trust Fund, which the Legion administers for the benefit of all ex-Service men. In granting relief, members of the Legion receive no special preference but all ex-Service men stand on an equal footing. Any man who has served and who is in need, has a claim on this fund. The Poppies and Wreaths which you will be asked to buy are made by an Organization of Disabled ex-Service men. These men are absolutely incapable of earning a living in any other way, and but for this industry, would be a charge on the public funds. If Poppy Day did nothing but keep these men self-supporting and self-respecting citizens, it would still be worthwhile.

"The organization of Poppy Day the sales of wreaths and poppies, the handling of monies collected, the investigation and relief of all applicants are done by voluntary workers," the President declared. "No man or woman connected in any way with this receives one cent as wages, salary, bonus, comission or allowance for expenses. All monies collected are placed in a special account which is controlled by a Board of Trustees of this Branch. Every expenditure made is approved and every account checked by the Board. Every applicant for relief is investigated carefully but sympathetically. Relief may take the form of food, clothing, fuel, rent or medical assisance. It is practically never issued in cash.

Over a million citizens of Ontario wore a Poppy in Remembrance last November. 5,000 Wreaths were placed in churches and at memorials, in honor of the dead," he said.

An unusually large attendance marked the tea Thursday afternoon in the Green Room and library of the Y.W.C.A., when the R.C.A.F. Auxiliary of Peterborough, were hostesses to mothers, wives, and relatives of R.C.A.F. personnel.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. George Graham, president, and Mrs. G. H. Roper. As they entered, the guests were registered, and given a slip of paper with their name written on it, and the slip was pinned to their coats. In this way, everyone felt more at home and a pleasant social afternoon was enjoyed.

General convener for the event was Mrs. T. H. Taylor, assisted by Mrs. F. E. Johnston, Mesdames J. Sharp, S. Wildman, W. Moorhead, W. J. Hampton, P. Whitnell, W. Robinson, and other members of the Auxiliary, assisted with serving, and in the kitchen.

Centring the graceful tea table was a bouquet of vari-colored baby 'mums, in a crystal bowl, flanked by silver candelabra with lighted mauve and green candles. Silver tea urns were placed at either end, and the table was covered with a lace cloth. Pouring tea during the afternoon were Mrs. H. Strickland, Mrs. C. Banks, and Mrs. J. Fowler.

Work Report

Before the guests entered the tea room, they were given a typewritten sheet, by Mrs. R. B. Harle, which gave a synopsis of the work of the Auxiliary from its formation in February 1942. Since that time, the membership has grown from 20 to 170, and it is hoped that every mother and wife of R.C.A.F. boys will be enrolled soon. Funds are raised by teas, bridges, bingos, raffles, and tag days, and this year the successful Labor Day celebration assisted greatly.

From January the first to October the first, 1944, the Auxiliary has raised $3,499.42, and sent 192,000 cigarettes and 125 pounds of candy overseas. Seventy-five dollars a month is allotted to overseas work, and owing to the increasing number of boys going overseas, they hope to be able to increase this monthly output. Since it was inaugurated, the Auxiliary has sent 517,800 cigarettes and 175 pounds of candy overseas.

This year, 316 boxes were packed and mailed to boys overseas, and it is expected that about 300 boxes for those on coastal patrol and service in Canada will be mailed in the near future. Women are urged to send in the names of R.C.A.F. boys, so that they will not be missed when the boxes are being sent out.

Of Interest to Women

JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON (Society Editor of The Examiner)

CARE OF LEATHER

Everyone's getting out fall and winter gloves, scarves and hats, preparing for the colder weather ahead. It's surprising the wear a woman can get from her leather gloves, if proper care is taken when washing them. However, it must be remembered, if the gloves have ever been dry cleaned, they should never be washed.

To wash pigskin, capeskin or kid gloves, put them on the hands, but wash doeskin and chamois gloves off the hands, because they soften when wet, and may tear. Fabric gloves of rayon or cotton, should be washed off the hands also. Remember that gloves should be washed frequently, since when they become soiled, embedded dirt and grease often dull the color permanently and tend to harden the leather. Also, it's harder on the glove when it is necessary to rub too hard.

Here's a special tip to restore softness to leather gloves. After they have been washed, rinse them thorouhgly in cool clear water, and then give them a final rinse in fresh, light suds. This method restores some of the oil lost in the washing, and helps keep the leather soft and pliable. Gently ease the gloves back into shape, and roll them in a towel, starting at the finger tips. Knead out as much water as possible, and unroll right away.

Give your lungs a little exercise by blowing into each gloves to puff back to shape, and dry flat, away from heat. While they are still slightly damp, work the leather between thumb and forefinger all over the gloves. The method is called finger pressing, and the final touch to insure soft, new-looking gloves.

LEATHER ACCESSORIES

Speaking of the care of leather, now that it is scarce and hard to get, it's a clever woman who makes sure that her favorite leather accessories will last. Leather belts, luggage, and purses can be sponged off with warm extra-soapy water to clean them, and then rubbed with a soft cloth, wrung out in castor oil or liquid wax. With a little special care on faded or cracked spots, a bright glossy surface will appear, making the article appear new again.

◇ ◇ ◇

STORING SUMMER CLOTHES

Everyone is especially careful to store away winter woollens in the spring, and see that they are packed securely in mothballs, or hung in moth-proof closets, but not everyone takes as much notice about storing summer clothes, whereas in reality, they need just as much care, because they are stored for a longer period of time.

The most important precaution to take when storing rayons or any other summer clothes, is to be sure that they are absolutely clean. Garments that are the least bit soiled may cause the fabric to rot over a period of time. Perspiration left in garments may not only affect the fabric itself, but also change the color, and spots are much harder to remove after they have become set.

When packing the clothes, look at the texture, and the style, before deciding whether they should be folded flat, or hung in a bag. Certain rayon fabrics, such as crepe, hop-sackings, basket-weaves, jerseys and rayon tweed will keep in better shape if they are folded, and rayon dresses with bias skirts or circular skirts, should also be folded. When clothes are put away on hangers, they should be hung straight, with shoulder seems adjusted so that they are just at the top of the hanger. Buttons should be fastened to keep the collars and shoulders in line, and all rayon skirts should be hung from the waistband.

Pieces of clothing made either wholly or partly of acetate rayon need special care, since acid gases, found in almost every atmosphere will cause certain acetate rayon colors to change hue. Before storing them, give them a final rinse in washing soda, and this will minimize the effect of the gases which cause fading. Remember, when packing acetates, to wrap them in old sheets, hang them in cloth garment bag, or store them in wooden or metal trunks or boxes, because paper tends to accelerate gas fading.

And here's an added tip. Label garment bags, boxes, and trunks, so that time can be saved when a particular article is needed, and there is no need to rummage through everything, disturbing other articles.

How often has mother groaned when she discovered that the bread she bought for sandwiches was too fresh, and would not slice thinly without looking slightly chewed? Well, the next time that occurs, just tell her to place the loaf in the frigidaire until it is thoroughly chilled, and it will slice much more easily.

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

HUSBAND-SNATCHING RACKET

Easier to Understand Predatory Women Than Girls Vamping Men For Sport of It.

DEAR MISS DIX—Why does the public not do something about suppressing the type of female devil who deliberately seeks to infatuate a married man and take him away from his wife? She is everywhere. On the street. In the shop. In the office. In the schoolroom. Even in the church. And she wrecks more lives than all the whiskey that has ever been distilled.

The finest human being that has ever graced this world is a good woman, but the most detestable that has ever disgraced it is the she-devil whose specialty is the infatuation and beguilement of married nincompoops.

DISGUSTED MAN.

Consider Philandering Men

ANSWER—The professional husband-snatcher is all that you say she is, and something with boiling oil in it should be done to her, but before she can be eliminated from society we will have to purge it also of the married men who are always on the lookout for some good-looking woman to lead them astray. There is nothing easier to find than temptation if you are hunting for it.

Undoubtedly the meanest and most unprincipled woman in the world is the one who ruthlessly breaks up another woman's home and orphans little children for her own profit or pleasure. The thug who holds up a man at a pistol's point and takes away his wallet is an admirable character compared to the woman who takes a husband away from his wife because she wants the luxuries he can give her. For the man has only been robbed of his money, while the wife has been robbed of everything that makes life worth living to her.

Still it is easier to understand these predatory females than it is the girls who make a specialty of vamping husbands just for the sport of the thing. They don't want the fat, middle-aged men they take away from their wives, but they think it shows their superior powers of fascination to be irresistible to married men. And they get a kick out of seeing wives writhe in helpless jealousy when they contrast their fading charms with the girls' youth and beauty.

That husband stealing is a common and profitable feminine racket is a matter of universal knowledge. Especially to men. It is one of the dangers that only poor men escape. For the world is filled with women who are artists in separating every rich man from his wife and his money, and who will get him if he doesn't watch out.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Do you think it is right to forbid a 15-year-old girl having any association with boys? I believe that parents should be somewhat strict with their children, but isn't it carrying things too far when an adolescent girl is not permitted to hold a telephone conversation with the boys of her own group, or to attend a mixed party, or to have a date, or to have a boy come to her house?

Just what is your personal opinion of this matter?

WONDERING.

Parents Throw Girls to Wolves

ANSWER—Overly strict parents, who think they are protecting their little ewe lambs by never letting them have even a peek out of the home corral, are really throwing them to the wolves. They are bringing upon their girls the dangers they fear, for they are making boys mysterious and romantic figures and hence desirable, instead of letting their Sallys and Mamies grow up with the boy next door and the one across the street and know them as they are, shorn of all illusions. No girls are so boy-crazy as the ones who are never permitted to have a date.

Even the dumbest parents should have enough sense to know that they can't keep their daughters from thinking about boys by forbidding them to do so, and that their only chance of being able to protect them is to let them have their company at home where they can get acquainted with the lads and see whether they are desirable friends or not.

The Garden of Eden episode should be required reading for all parents of girls. Eve's granddaughters still have that hankering for all forbidden fruit.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a girl of 16, engaged to a boy with whom I am terribly in love. We plan to be married on his next furlough, but I have very bad health, have fainting spells every day. He says that makes no difference to him, but do you think it would be fair to him for me to marry him under the circumstances?

ADELE.

ANSWER—No, there would be no happiness in such a marriage for either one of you. Get cured first. Health is the prime requisite in every marriage.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Sometimes, when we are having company in to dinner, we wonder what we can serve for dessert that will be tasty, yet unusual, so that is what my recipes are going to be today. I hope you will try them.

Pupmpkin Chiffon Pie

1 tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, 1½ cups cooked pumpkin, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, ½ teaspoon ginger, ¼ teaspoon allspice, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ cup milk, 3 eggs (separated), 2 tablespoons granulated sugar, 1 baked pastry shell. Soften gelatin in cold water for five minutes. Combine next eight ingredients with slightly-beaten egg yolks in the top of a double boiler. Cook over water until thickened. Add gelatin and stir until dissolved. Cook until beginning to congeal. Beat egg whites, add sugar and beat until stiff. Fold into pumpkin mixture. Pour into baked pastry shell and chill until firm.

Cottage Cheese Pie

1½ cups smooth cottage cheese, a cup of fine chopped raisins or a cup of moist coconut, ½ cup honey, syrup or sugar, 2 eggs, 1 lemon rind grated and juice, 2 tablespoons cream, 2 tablespoons butter.

Press the cheese through a ricer, add other ingredients and mix thoroughly. Turn into paste-lined pie-pan and bake (450 degrees F.) until the mixture thickens slightly. Lower the heat (325 degrees F.) and bake until firm.

Boiled Cider Pie

1-3 cup rich boiled cider, 1-3 cup grated maple sugar, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ cup seeded raisins, 1 teaspoon butter, 2 egg whites, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar, if meringue is desired.

Boil sugar in cider until dissolved. Add beaten eggs slowly and stir until thickened. Add butter, raisins and nutmeg. Turn into pan lined with crust. Cover with top crust and bake in a very hot oven for 10 minutes. Then reduce the heat slightly and continue cooking for about half an hour longer. If you prefer, omit the top crust and cover with a meringue.

THE STARS SAY . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, November 4

A very lively state of affairs is forecast for this day, although a peculiar, subtle or intriguing undercurrent makes the outcome precarious or uncertain. Complications and perplexities, possibly with the pre-precipitation of an unforseen and unprepared-for change, and one of significance, may be at the root of this commotion. Private affairs may be involved, and also litigation, but in general the good judgment to cope with the situation is sound. Be alert to all snares and subterfuge, sign papers cautiously and keep emotions in hand particularly in love affairs or romantic adventures.

Those whose birthday it is may look for an exciting year, in which there may be sudden, confusing complications to be sagaciously and discreetly managed, lest there be loss of funds, good name and personal harmony and satisfaction. A surprising opening for change, travel adventure, either in business or private associations may give rise to this perplexity, which would be heightened by rash, imprudent or careless management. Sign all agreements and writings with care, and be guided by sound reason rather than impulses and emotions, for pleasant and profitable culminations of a year of adventure or crises.

A child born on this day should have much talent, versatility, and intellect, but may be the dupe of its emotions, impulses and strange illusions or eccentricities.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

INVEST IN VICTORY

By ALENE HOLT
Victory Loan Headquarters

"Beautiful Dreamer"

Everyone likes stories that begin, "Once upon a Time", so-o—"Once upon a time there was a lady, married, of course, that had some spare time on her hands. She also wanted a fur coat in the worst way, so decided to go out and work on her own and earn a little extra money so she could buy it.

Victory Loan time came around again and the canvasser called at her home and she made the mistake of telling the salesman that she was saving her money to buy a fur coat." He said, "Well, Mrs. ——, you can't fight wars with fur coats!" The salesman was a good one and a Victory Bond was bought.

"O Canada"

The Canadian Legion, Branch No. 52, under the presidency of Chief George Gimblett, bought a bond the other day for $4,000. Every time a Loan Drive is under way the Canadian Legion comes through. F. R. Revoy was the canvasser for the group this time.

"Carry On"

James Juby reports selling a Victory Bond again to the ever faithful Miss Mary A. Nicholls, McDonnel street. This popular Peterborough woman is as bright and intelligent as any much younger person in spite of her 102 years. She always buys a Bond and every salesman on the various Loans that has canvassed Miss Nicholls, remarks on her wonderful personality and her ability to understand what her Victory Bonds are doing.

"Back the Attack"

Jack Sinclair of the Group Payroll section, reports on one young chap working in a local Mens' Wear Shop, who has subscribed forty per cent of every pay cheque for the purchase of Victory Bonds each month.

"School Days"

Young women are now invading what was formerly known as a male emporium, namely a Butcher Shop. Shirley Harriet, 13 years old, works at Edward's Butcher Shop and lives with her grandmother, her father and mother having died some time ago. She goes to school and works after school hours and on Saturdays. Twenty-five dollars was already saved from her earnings towards buying a Bond and the rest will be paid on the payment plan.

"Our Canada — From Sea to Sea"

The big DeLaval Plant has provided some interesting items. There is a young Italian who is a sweeper there. Sweepers are not highly paid, but this chap has been able to save $600 and when canvassed presented this amount all in $10 bills for his Bond. He can't read or write and speaks very little English, but he realized that he was doing the right thing by investing his savings in a Victory Bond. One Bond was going to be for his wife, and the other for himself.

Stan Ivison, canvasser in the Tinning Department at DeLaval, did such a good job that his department had the honor of going over the top first. 90 per cent of the people in this department are French-Canadian and everyone bought a bond. They are over by 36 per cent.

Many of those who attended the Victory Loan Payroll Dinner at the Genelco Cafeteria inaugurating the Victory Loan for the County of Peterborough, will remember Flying Officer Donald Hill. He was one of the young men who has recently returned from overseas and who sat at the special table reserved for them. F.O. Hill has seen service in India and other theatres of war and at present is confined to the Christie Street Hospital in Toronto undergoing further treatment. William Hill is the father of Donald, and is the Purchasing Agent at the DeLaval Plant. He is always most cooperative on any of the bond drives and never fails to purchase his Victory Bond to do his part to frustrate the enemy.

The other day Walter Perks, the Accountant at this popular plant, wanted another $50 to make an even thousand dollars for Victory Bond investments, and when he explained this to the various departments, some person in every department offered to buy another $50 Bond to help him out, and just as a matter of interest, he took the $50 from every Department.

Canadian Legion

their sons to take their place in the present war.

"It is tragedy, because you won that war, and we lost the peace. Oh, not in a single nation was the peace lost, but internationally. This man gave his son, now in the air force, serving overseas, permission to go even before he was of the right age; this was a worthy father; there is every reason to be proud of him."

Dr. Cooper said that although it was not his pleasure and privilege to know Mr. Wallace very well, in the brief friendship, he found him to be very easy to become acquainted with; he said he learned to appreciate Mr. Wallace, even in a short time.

"God put every man on this earth to carry on a work, to make the earth a better place in which to live," he said. "If we have not made the world better, there has been something wrong with our life. He was good at anything he set his hands upon; he has done his good work and passed on. I know his son will carry on where he left off. He played his part overseas, and came back to civilian life, to play a grand part."

It is fitting that the pallbearers should be Legion men, to which association Mr. Wallace was a valued and dear member. He has been active in Legion work for more than twenty years, and his loss was felt severely by every member of that association.

The pallbearers were George Gimblett, president; Al Wade, second vice-president, C. D. Heath, Harry Kelsey, Paddy Burke, and Harold Yelland, members of the executive. Six honorary pallbearers, members of the 21st Battalion, with which Mr. Wallace served in the last war, were Flight Lieutenant A. R. Cousins, representing the 21st Battalion Association of Toronto, Lieut.-Col. W. Gordon Hall, C. E. Newman, F. Batterson, George H. Moore and Thomas Kay.

After the ceremony at the graveside, Mr. Gimblett walked to the side of the grave, and said: "In the presence of the last earthly remains of this our loyal and true comrade, whose loss we mourn, but whose spirit and example still lives, may we, as veterans and citizens, be charged with the full sense of our duties and responsibilities, and may we ever strive to uphold those principles of unselfish service which actuated our comrade and brother."

"I call upon you to stand with bowed heads in silence for the space of one minute, out of love and respect for him who has answered the last roll call."

While hundreds of friends stood with bowed heads around the grave the Last Post and Reveille was was sounded on the trumpet by Pte. S. F. Mitchell, of the Training Centre.

Then, Mr. Gimblett saluted the grave, and dropped the first poopy, followed by a large number of Legionnaires, Capt. D. A. Loomis, M.C., E.D., also took the salute.

The funeral was over; the crowd was dispersing, but ever the memory of Peter G. Wallace will remain. He was loved by all who knew him, and to those citizens, that will be his memorial.

Music in George Street church was under the direction of Mrs. Charles Renaud, and ushers were Jack Wigley and Hurrel Dodds, of the Legion.

Inflation Panics Greek People

ATHENS, Nov. 3 — (AP) — The Greek Government is expected to nationalize leading banks Sunday in an effort to combat inflation and stabilize the drachma, which has sunk to fantastic levels.

It is understood that the drachma will be tied to sterling instead of the gold sovereign. Government price-fixing went into effect today and some commodities became even scarcer, particularly salt, kerosene and matches. (The drachma once was worth 19½ cents. It now takes more than 45,000,000,000 to equal one cents.)

Dr. Kenner Funeral

Education was represented by Ewart Davies, a former Peterborough teacher, now Inspector of High Schools and Collegiate Institutes, and by A. H. Moon who was the first director of Peterborough's Vocational School under Dr. Kenner's principalship.

Two hymns which had especially appealed to Dr. Kenner were sung during the service. One was "Unto the hills around do I lift my longing eyes" and the other "Abide With Me." Rev. Dr. Young also read the appropriate elegiac poems, "Crossing The Bar" and "There Is No Death."

The floral remembrances included wreaths from the Mayor and Council of the Corporation of the City, the Board of Education and the University of Toronto.

The pallbearers were: G. H. Thompson, George A. Gillespie, E. Bruce Fowler, Dr. A. Moir, Dr. C. B. Waite and F. E. Johnston.

The Masonic service at the cemetery was directed by Right Worshipful Master E. B. Fowler and Right Worshipful Master R. F. Downey.

A New Beginning

In a preface to his address Rev. Dr. Young said that death should not be regarded as a penalty, a monster stalking life as in a too widely held conception, not as the end but as the beginning, "as going from one lower room in the Father's house into a higher and holiers and better room," the entry of the soul into the floodlight of God's presence.

The late Dr. Kenner had sown the seeds of knowledge in young minds and hearts "and who can tell what may issue from that planting?" He was a teacher, member of one of the oldest and most honored professions. A host of young people had come under his influence throughout those fifty years in Peterborough, and that effect of his life would remain long after his life and even in the far places to which his students had gone.

Among other attributes which Dr. Young recalled was the gentleness of Dr. Kenner, "actually a quality of greatness which you and I should covet in our lives." He was a regular attendant at the House of God, and in the years of his health was seldom absent, often attending twice on Sundays, and there was no more attentive and receptive listener to the Word, and he never had anything but good to say of what he heard. He loved God and trusted in Jesus Christ, his Saviour."

Recalling the day on which the community's appreciation of the long service of Dr. Kenner was expressed in the memorable farewell to his school, Rev. Dr. Young said it was an occasion of honor not only to Dr. Kenner and Mrs. Kenner, but also to the citizens of Peterborough in their recognition of the man of education and fine culture who had devoted his vocation in life to them and to their children.

In the ceremony at the cemetery, Masonry placed with symbolic ritual its final seal on the spirit of H. R. H. Kenner in a fraternal farewell, but those beyond its brotherhood were likewise united in the memories of phases of his life and interests in which they had been associates and sharers, the broader fraternity of men's affinity for one another without intervening bounds.

WATCH LITTLE CARDS

A PLAYER who won't watch the little cards, especially those played by his partner, noting the exact size of them, making deductions from them and constantly asking himself questions about their meaning, can never become truly skillful at the card table. He will fall for all sorts of ruses by his opponents and throw away hundreds of points at practically every session.

West: ♠9 8 7 ♥2 ♦A Q J 7 2 ♣J 8 7 5
East: ♠A Q 6 4 3 2 ♥9 5 ♦9 4 ♣Q 10 3
South: ♠5 ♥A K Q J 10 8 6 4 ♦K 10 6 ♣K

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1♠	4♥

West led his spade 9 to the 10 and Q, and East switched at once to the diamond 9 to lead through strength and up to that weakness in the dummy. South put on the 10, which forced the J from West. The latter then laid down his diamond A and South, sure that East could ruff the next round, promptly put on his K after East played the 4. West was sure South would not play that K under the A if he had a guard to it, so switched then to the spade 8, the J forcing the A and causing it to get ruffed.

South then dropped trumps in a couple of rounds, led the club K to be overtaken by the A, and on the spade K discarded his diamond 6, laughing with great glee at the discomfiture of his opponents, who had made him a gift of his contract by not leading a third diamond which East could ruff.

"I didn't think he'd false card with the K in that spot," pleaded West, "if he had it guarded."

"You didn't need to think," answered East. "If you had watched my diamond plays, you would had seen me lead the 9 and then play the 4 on the next lead. If I had held the 6 I would have played it on the second trick, instead of the bottom one, which should have told you I was out of the suit and could ruff the third round."

Building Bridge Linking Manitoulin Isle

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont., Nov. 3 — (CP). — Manitoulin, largest fresh-water island in the world, soon will have a highway bridge connection with the northern Ontario mainland, it was made known here last night with the announcement that a contract has been let to the King Paving Company of Oakville for construction of approaches and making alterations to the existing railway bridge.

While weather conditions will affect the speed of construction, it is hoped that the bridge, owned and used by the Canadian Pacific Railway, will be ready for vehicular use this winter. At present motor traffic to the island is by way to two ferry systems. One operates from the northern Ontario mainland to Little Current and the other from South Bay Mouth on the island to Tobermory on the Bruce Peninsula.

It was learned the bridge will be planked and used both for motor and railway traffic. An automatic signal gate system will be installed and gatemen will be on duty 24 hours a day. The present ferry service is suspended each night.

The structure is a swing bridge, open most of the time to give right-of-way to lake vessels passing through the channel between here and the mainland. It is understood application is being made to federal authorities to give bridge traffic the right-of-way and if this is done, it will be opened only when lake vessels wish to pass.

There now are two scheduled trains a day crossing the bridge, one coming to the island and one leaving.

The island is one of Ontario's best known resort sections and is a favorite summer spot for hundreds of wealthy Americans who have established summer homes in the area and visit here annually. President Roosevelt spent week-long fishing holiday on nearby Lacloche Island last year.

Fire-Fighters Coming Home

OTTAWA, Nov. 3—(CP)—National War Services Department today announced plans to demobilize the civilian corps of Canadian Firefighters overseas.

Present strength of the corps is 342. The first group will leave the United Kingdom shortly and others will follow at brief intervals as stations are closed.

The announcement said conditions no longer made it necessary to maintain the corps as protection against enemy attacks and while some had volunteered for service with a special contingent to serve on the continent there was insufficient ground for them to remain overseas.

About two-thirds of the corps members were firefighters in civilian life and it is expected their overseas experience will prove beneficial when they return to their communities. British authorities have arranged farewell ceremonies to express appreciation of the contribution the corps has made to the defence of the United Kingdom.

LUZON BOMBED FROM LAMON BAY — While U.S. carrier planes open new bombing attacks on Manila and its environs, a task force from the U.S. navy is reported (A) to have arrived in Lamon Bay, on the east coast of Luzon, just 50 miles from Manila. Meanwhile, experts on strategy advise keeping an eye on San Bernardino Strait (B) which lies between Samar and the South Luzon coast. Samar is completely in Allied hands. Also there are rumors of possible action soon against Cebu Island (C) on which is located one of the major Jap airstrips in the Philippines.

Veterans Make Annual Appeal

Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion is making its annual Poppy Day appeal to the people of this community Saturday. The Poppy Fund is now a recognized institution wherever the Canadian Legion exists in Canada, and it serves a two-fold purpose of much merit. The money which is raised by the distribution of the poppy—the symbol of sacrifice — is used entirely to relieve unusual distress among war veterans of the last war and the present conflict, and their families. At all times it has been found that the veterans, in view of the fact that many of them have disabilities and handicaps, suffer even more than others who are out of employment, since many of them require special care and attention which they are unable to provide. This is where the Poppy Fund, raised through the sale of poppies by the local branch of the Legion, steps in and provides relief for the situation.

There is another reason why every citizen should wear a poppy for Remembrance Day. These poppies are manufactured in the Vetcraft shops of Canada, workshops in which handicapped veterans are given sheltered employment, and in which they manufacture the hundreds of thousands of poppies which are distributed every year at this time. By wearing a poppy, citizens can find much satisfaction in knowing that they are helping these handicapped veterans to obtain a livelihood which they would otherwise lack on account of their special disabilities.

This two-fold appeal should find a ready response in the hearts and minds of the people of this community, which has always been ready to make the way easier for those of its citizens who served country and Empire in the Great War, and in this present conflict.

WMS Auxiliary To Use Missionary Slides

BETHANY, Nov. 3—(ENS)—The October meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of the W.M.S. was held in the basement of the church Tuesday evening with seven members present and one visitor attending.

The following watch tower heralds responded: Mrs. R. Porteous, Mrs. C. Rowan and Mrs. Waddell.

The scripture lesson was read as a conversation from Luke 10:25-37. Then from the catechism of the United church of Canada we learn of our duty to our neighbor, Mrs. Henderson asking questions and Mrs. Waddell answering with a verse from the Bible. A prayer was led by Msr. Jackson and Mrs. Rowan gave an interesting talk on the chapter of the new study book, 'West of the date line.' This chapter deals with the heroic missionaries who have planted the church of Christ in countless islands of the Pacific, where Allied soldiers are fighting to-day. Mrs. Rowan illustrated her talk with pictures.

It was decided to have the secretary write to see if the society can secure the slides which were used at summer school, Whitby. These would be used at the missionary Sunday evening service.

Daring Sub Chief Bewilders Japanese

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(CP).— A British submarine, on the surface and in broad daylight, entered the Japanese-held anchorage of Port Owen off Southern Burma recently, destroyed two gun boats, and swept out again before the enemy realized what was happening, the British Information Services said yesterday.

Four coasters, including one ammunition ship, were destroyed before lunch on another day of the same patrol.

The commander, Lt.-Cmdr. Young, D.S.O., D.S.C., a former London publisher, is the first British Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve officer to command a submarine.

He accounted for seven Japanese vessels during the trip, and in addition made important reconnaissances in shallow and dangerous waters.

Canadian Army In Italy May Be Moved To France

By R. K. CARNEGIE—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Nov. 4—(CP).—Lack of information from the Government as to how it proposes to keep up the flow of reinforcements overseas without using compulsion has started many reports in the capital. Until Gen. McNaughton, new Defence Minister, has made public his plans all such speculation is without official foundation. One of the ways, however, to meet the situation if there is likely to be a shortage of reinforcements would be to reduce the number of divisions Canada has in the field.

There are two divisions in Italy and three in France and persons who have studied the matter are expressing the view that the divisions in Italy will be moved to France and consolidated with the Canadians there into four divisions and leave a fifth divisions available for reinforcements.

Doubtless the question of moving Canadians out of Italy has been discussed by the Cabinet on several occasions. Prime Minister Mackenzie King frequently stated before Canadian troops were moved to a fighting front that they were available to go anywhere the British High Command decided. Any movement out of Italy would be with the concurrence of the High Command.

A man high in government councils today said he has confident an adequate flow of reinforcements could be maintained without compulsion and without reducing the divisions. He was convinced that more of the call-ups would volunteer for active service if approached in what he termed "the proper manner."

Nothing Definite

It is probable nothing definite will be known until Mr. King makes a statement and that is unlikely to come until Gen. McNaughton has had a full opportunity to survey the situation and submit his proposals to the cabinet.

The feeling among cabinet ministers, even those who favor compulsion, is to await Gen. McNaughton's proposals with sympathetic minds. More than one minister has pointed out that the transfer of the Defence Portfolio from Col. Ralston to Gen. McNaughton hasn't solved the reinforcement problem and they are in hopes the new minister can show a way.

Packers Settle Union Dispute

TORONTO, Nov. 4 — (CP). — Settlement of a dispute between the United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.) and the three major packinghouse chains in Canada was announced last night eliminating the possibility of a strike in the packinghouse industry which would have affected some 12,000 workers and halted shipments of meat overseas.

Negotiations for settlement of the dispute had been in progress here since Oct. 26. Mr. Justice S. E. Richards of Winnipeg was chairman of a commission set up by the Federal Department of Labor to investigate the matter.

The union had demanded a master agreement covering the entire industry in Canada.

A joint statement last night said an agreement "satisfactory" to all had been reached. Details of the settlement were not announced.

The companies concerned were Swift Canadian Company, Canada Packers Limited and P. Burns & Company.

Inaugurate Ferry Service

Plane Flies From Montreal To Sydney

MONTREAL, Nov. 4 —(CP)—An R.A.F. Transport Command plane arrived in the Antipodes today, to mark the official opening of a regular British ferrying service between Montreal and Sydney, Australia—the longest single air route in the world.

Arrival of the plane—the famous Liberator AL504, the Commando—opened the service which gives Britain a round-the-world military air route. The Commando left Montreal Tuesday on her journey of 11,510 statute miles, flying by way of California, Honolulu, Canton Island, Fiji, and Auckland, N.Z., to Sydney.

Actually the Commando's flight started in Moscow. The plane had gone there from Montreal as part of Prime Minister Churchill's mission to the Kremlin, and took the party back to London. It brought Lord Swinton, British minister for civil aviation, from London to Montreal, and left on its trans-Pacific flight a few hours later.

Japs Recoil On Leyte Land Troops

Enemy Determined To Hold Philippine Isle

By MURLIN SPENCER
Associated Press War Correspondent

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Nov. 4—(AP)—The aroused Japanese, defying superior forces of American men and guns on the move north and south of Ormoc, marshalled reinforcements today under a rain of aerial bombs for a finish fight on western Leyte.

Reports for the past 24 hours told of the enemy on the recoil. Japanese airmen made more than 35 low-level attacks on eastern Leyte airfields and docks, blew up an ammunition dump and set a merchant ship afire.

At Pearl Harbor, Admiral Nimitz announced enemy planes attacked an aircraft carrier group of the 3rd fleet, which has been supporting the Philippines reinvasion, and damaged "several ships."

Enemy tanks, troops and artillery have been landed at Ormoc from a convoy which lost two transports and 25 covering planes in a fierce air battle.

Raid Convoy

U.S. planes later spotted a 10-mile long motor convoy rolling north from Ormoc and swept down to treetop level over the reinforcements, blasting 30 trucks, at least two tanks, equipment and supplies.

The Japanese column was trying to reach Carigara Bay on Leyte's northwest coast by way of a 20-mile road from Ormoc and bulwark retreating enemy troops.

Indicating determination of the enemy to stay on Leyte, 250 first-line planes, piloted by some of the ablest Japanese airmen encountered in the Pacific, flew high cover over the four large transports and escorting destroyers which arrived in the reinforcements.

American aircraft tore into the aerial screen and weaved through heavy flak to score a partial success but the convoy got men ashore during the darkness Wednesday night and early Thursday.

On Luzon, main Philippine island, air patrols bombed and derailed a Japanese troop train.

Huns Withdraw In North Norway

LONDON, Nov. 4.—(CP-Reuter) —Berlin announced to-day evacuation of civilians from the whole of Northern Norway as far south as Tromsoe, last hiding-place of the Tirpitz.

Evacuation of Norway's Arctic province, wtih a coastline of about 500 miles, came little more than a week after the Red army's invasion of Northern Norway and the capture of the port of Kirkenes on the Varanger fjord.

Loss of Kirkenes placed the German troops still in the Arctic in a situation in which they had to make a 200-mile winter march across the high plateau of the Finnmark or attempt a get-away in small boats from the fishing villages of the Arctic coast.

Removal of the battered battleship Tirpitz from its lair in Altenfjord near Hammerfest, appears to have been part of the evacuation move now announced.

The battleship was last reported lying outside Tromsoe, where it was hit by a 12,000-pound bomb during an R.A.F. attack last week.

Evacuation of Tromsoe suggests the Tirpitz may again start her long journey south down the Norwegian coast.

In the past few days German reports have suggested that the German line in North Norway had been withdrawn to more favorable positions. To-day's announcement however, is the first indication that the withdrawal has been so extensive.

Support Judge

CHICAGO, Nov. 4 — (AP). — Women are voting 14 to 1 so far in support of Judge William J. Lindsay's decision that a woman could have a baby 11 months after conception. Last week the court declined to grant a divorce to merchant sailor Jack Santucci, 24, because his wife had given birth to a child 11 months after he had gone to sea. Since then 15 women have written the judge and only one dissented.

Coyote Pies

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 4 —(AP).)—Judge Joseph C. Jeppson, fulfilling terms of a colleague's sentence, invited 66 persons, who had been left waiting in the courtroom while he was hunting, to a venison pie dinner. He laughingly remarked that he also had bagged a coyote and the guests would eat at their own risk. To add a touch of realism, Jeppson ordered four coyote pies. By mistake, they were placed in the box with the venison pies—and served.

Bond Purchases Set Record For Single Day

OTTAWA, Nov. 4—(CP)—Seventh Victory Loan sales yesterday amounted to $85,261,450 for a cumulative total at the end of the eleventh day of the three-week $1,300,000,000 drive of $830,402,600 or $39,000,000 more than the sixth loan at the same stage.

In reaching yesterday's total, individual Canadians purchased $40,053,750, the largest single day's purchases so far in this loan.

The cumulative total of individual purchases now stands at $372,622,600. Average purchases by individuals have amounted to about $34,000,000 daily.

In the last loan, individals in the first 11 days had purchased $324,213,050.

Combined total of the armed forces is better than $43,000,000, against an original quota of $40,800,000. It is 85 per cent of their $47,853,200 total in the last loan.

Northwest Atlantic Naval Command reached $3,030,000 for 112 per cent of quota, or 60 per cent of the original objective for the whole service. The base at Saint John, N.B., has topped its $70,000 quota.

The R.C.A.F. bomber group overseas reported $1,175,000 for 157 per cent of quota, with the Alouette Squadron leading with 300 per cent. Included in the Alouette total was an application for $1,000 from Cardinal Villeneuve of Quebec, who visited the unit during a recent overseas tour.

Canadian National Railways announced its employees invested $7,955,350 in the first nine days of the drive, an increase of $1,876,350 over the same stage of the last campaign.

The Brotherhood of Railroad trainmen, one of Canada's largest labor organizations, announced a purchase of $500,000, boosting its investments in victory bonds to $3,375,000.

Hungarian Losses Immense
20 Tanks Wiped Out

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, Nov. 4 — (AP). — Russian troops laid siege to-day to Budapest and front dispatches said the German and Hungarian defenders had fallen back into the Hungarian capital itself.

Red Army tanks were said to be battering at the outskirts of Pest in the city's south-eastern suburbs, with fighting raging well within Budapest's outer defences.

(A Reuter News Agency dispatch said the Russians had hurled an armored column around north of the city in an encircling move. This column was said to be storming the approaches of Ujpest, on the east bank of the Danube two miles north of the capital.)

The capital itself was reported unofficially to be enveloped in wild disorder as the Nazi remnants poured through the streets. Hundreds of fugitives were said to be jamming the railways and highways toward Vienna, 140 miles to the north.

Red Star reported that the "field army" formed by the Hungarian puppet government had been routed outside the capital and that a captured captain said that of one division only 200 men remained after three days of intensive battle.

The newspaper described German and Hungarian losses in manpower as "immense," particularly near the tributary of the Danube just south of Budapest where Red troops wiped out 20 tanks in a great "slaughter" last night.

The capture of Pest appeared imminent, but the fall of Buda on the west side of the broad Danube was another matter.

The Soviet communique last night reported the capture of Alsonemeda, seven miles south of Budapest, as the nearest point to the capital reached by the Red forces sweeping across the boggy plains between the Danube and Tisza. It was one of 100 communities enveloped in the fast-moving offensive.

Front dispatches reported severe fighting just outside the perimeter of the besieged capital but for practical military purposes the city appeared lost. The reported disorganized condition of the city's defenders presaged an early capitulation.

There was no intimation that the Red Army had trained its big guns on the capital itself, the inference being that the Russians will seek to take the capital by storm rather than subject it to a steady bombardment.

Labor Mobility Program To Reduce Unemployment

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, Nov. 4 — (CP). — Coupled with plans for the balanced distribution of industry through Britain, the Government hopes to avoid localized unemployment by voluntary transfers of the workers from one area to another and one occupation to another when changing conditions make drastic action necessary.

That no compulsory movements of labor on a large-scale basis are contemplated was made clear in a Government White Paper on post-war employment policy.

But the White Paper emphasized that in an expanding economy the "workers must be ready and able to move freely between one occupation and another," to reduce dislocation arising from changes in technique and fluctuations in market conditions and to avoid hampering the expansion of new industries by a shortage of skilled labor.

While the Government's principal reliance is on training rather than large-scale labor transfers to overcome unemployment problems in specific localities, it has expressed anxiety to overcome some of the former handicaps to movement of workers. One of these is housing and another is the cost of the move.

For Workers.

"Steps will be taken to secure that a substantial proportion of the new homes erected after the war shall be available at a rent which is within the means of the average wage-earner," the White Paper said.

"Where workers are transferred under approved schemes to a new area, they will be eligible to resettlement allowances to meet the costs involved....."

In the transition period from war to peace the major problem of labor mobility will be in the resettlement of service men and war workers. Special training programs have been arranged to fit these men and women for peacetime jobs.

But later there will be the problem of shifting workers from one industry to another if unemployment is to be avoided. Training courses on a permanent basis are in prospect.

Allies Ready To Launch General Attack

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP) — Allied armies jabbing at German defences all along the 500-mile west front today racked up consistent gains as radio Berlin dinned into German ears its warnings that Gen. Eisenhower's forces were massed for a huge offensive. British forces captured Domburg and Vlissingen (Flushing) on Walcheren Island in the Schelde estuary, but the fanatically-resisting enemy still fought savagely in the rock area of Vlissingen and retained control over about half the island, including the city of Middleburg.

Hidden German artillery at one point on Walcheren opened up and pinned down forces landing on the island's beaches. The guns had played possum for a month to avoid aerial attack. British forces moving in from the South Beveland Causeway clung grimly to their positions.

The American thrust into Germany southeast of Aachen lost speed as it collided with stiffening resistance after capturing the town of Schmidt, but forged ahead for small gains with the aid of fighter-bombers blasting German infantry and tanks in its path.

In the Maas bulge of Eastern Holland, American troops swarmed over the Zuid Willems Canal north of Nederweert and drove the enemy back 4,000 yards, capturing Ospel and reaching the vicinity of Groenwood.

Fight for Bridge

The battle for the approaches to the Moerdike bridge north of Breda appeared to be entering its final stages, as today's Allied communique reported bridgeheads over the river Mark were being extended in spite of heavy opposition.

Polish and American bridgeheads northwest of Oosterhout, once knocked out by the enemy, were re-established and have now been consolidated in a single attack gaining ground toward Moerdijk. The third bridgehead, north of Oudenbosch, "has been widened and deepened," the communique reported.

The British troops operating around Meijel carried out limited attacks, but the principal action in the Maas bulge west of Venlo was

Legion Hostel Fire Kills Three

HALIFAX, Nov. 4 — (CP). — Fire this morning destroyed the Canadian Legion Hostel here taking a toll of three lives. According to a clerk on the night desk, 210 service men were in the large wood building when the blaze started.

The men fatally injured in the fire were: Alex Rutherford, 66, of Antigonish; William Whibley, 55, of Halifax; and Williams Walker, 60, of Sydney Mines. The men were employees in the building.

One of the men in the hostel, H. C. Menzies, R.C.N., of Battleford, Sask., said he was asleep when the alarms was given.

"I was dreaming," he said, "and the sound of the alarm bell fitted in with my dream. Then I heard some one screaming. I ran out of my room and the corridor was full of fire."

Some airmen from Eastern Passage, near here, waiting in the lobby, said that when the fire started the whole building seemed to burst into flame at once.

Al Hickson of Toronto and an unidentified negro shared in a rescue attempt. They were said to have seen a girl in one of the upper windows and they climbed up after her.

But Hickson was injured in the attempt and the girl managed to escape unaided.

Rearguards Enter Serbia Others In Albania Flee To Escape Allied Trap

British, Yugoslav And Russian Armies Menace Retreating Huns
Tito's Forces Move Into Valona Port

ROME, Nov. 4—(AP).—The Germans have been completely cleared from Greece, Allied Headquarters announced today. R.A.F. pilots on reconnaissance flights reported they were unable to find any traces of the enemy who occupied the country early in 1941. The Germans, seeking to escape the closing Allied trap, have been fleeing into Serbia and Albania. In the last 24 hours small enemy columns were seen in the vicinity of Lake Prepsa just across the Greek border in Albania.

"We believe German rearguards went over into Serbia Thursday night," an R.A.F. officer said.

In their retreat up the Vardar valley toward the Serbian city of Skoplje the Germans blew up many road and rail bridges in an effort to delay the pursuing British. A communique from Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisan headquarters said the patriots were besieging Bitolj, 13 miles north of the Greek border, and Skoplje, 70 miles farther north.

A Berlin broadcast said German forces had evacuated the port of Valona, on the Albanian coast, and had moved to "strong Barrie positions in Northern Albania to protest the road to Scutaria, which is under constant threat from Bolshevist forces." Scutari is in extreme Northern Albania.

The Germans said their troops were fighting 'Communist elements' which had infiltrated into Tirana, capital of Albania.

Oil Industries Battered In Great Swoop

By HENRY B. JAMESON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 4 — (AP). — The U.S. 8th Air Force staged a mass attack on German synthetic oil industries and railways today with more than 1,100 bombers and 800 fighters fanning out over targets from Hamburg to Saarbrucken.

One force attacked oil plants and refineries in the twin cities of Hamburg-Harburg.

Another hit an oil plant at Gelsenkircken in the Ruhr. A third formation blasted military objectives in the Hanover region and a fourth flew southeast of Luxembourg against the railroad yards at Saarbrucken.

The big daylight operation followed the sixth R.A.F. Mosquito raid on Berlin in nine nights.

The Mosquitos, usually operating in small force and carrying one 4,000-pound bomb each for some specific target, again raced to the enemy capital and back without loss. Eighty-eight of these 4,000-pounders were dumped on Berlin in the past month by the Mosquitos.

The Air Ministry announced one heavy bomber previously reported missing in Thursday night's attack on Dusseldorf landed safely in France, reducing the losses to 20 aircraft on one of the heaviest raids of the war.

One of the secrets of the R.A.F.'s lower bomber losses recently is the mass night fighter escort furnished by Mark VI Mosquitos.

Allied fighter-bombers based in France and Belgium, hampered for several days by the weather, flew more than 1,000 sorties yesterday in support of British and Canadian troops in Holland and American forces charging deeper into Germany southeast of Aachen.

Germans Stand At Mark River

By SEAGHAN MAYNES
Reuter War Correspondent

WITH THE 1st CANADIAN ARMY, Nov. 4—(CP-Reuter)—Troops of the 1st Canadian Army are fighting today at three points inside the German pocket between the Mark River and the Maas.

British, American and Polish troops ranged along the south bank of the Mark have forced crossings to establish bridgeheads under heavy and accurate mortaring and shelling.

The American bridgehead has been pushed to within less than four miles of the Merdike bridge over the Maas.

On the west flank the Canadians have patrols in the outskirts of Steenbergen, fall of which is expected shortly.

The Germans have been successful to a great extent in their plan to stand behind the Mark river to permit the major forces which are being squeezed against the Maas and its estuary the Hollandsch Diep to escape over the Moerdike Bridge and at ferry points.

A big percentage of the original 40,000 Germans in the pocket have already fled over the escape routes, leaving strong rearguard forces who are putting up a bitter fight.

A Nasty Trick

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Nov. 4—(AP)—The Germans are using on the western front the piano wire trick they first pulled in Italy.

The wire is stretched tightly across roads at just the right height to decapitate soldiers speeding by in jeeps.

Troops reported one, far behind the front lines, probably was put up by pro-Nazi civilians.

Burma Drive Gains Steadily

KANDY, Ceylon, Nov. 4.— (CP-Reuter)—Troops of the 5th Indian Division yesterday overran strong Japanese defences around a "vital corner" on the Tiddim-Fort White Road, to-day's communique from Southeast Asia Command Headquarters reported.

More than 100 enemy dead so far have been counted. Allied troops now are within one mile of vital Kennedy Peak in this Chin Hills sector.

In the Arakan sector farther south, west African troops fighting in the Kaladan Valley are in contact with Japanese forces five miles north of Paletwa.

The communique added that aircraft of Eastern Air Command in attacks on airfields around Rangoon yesterday destroyed and damaged a number of Japanese aircraft and hit ground installation.

Leese Relinquishes Post

Army Shift Comes As Surprise To Men

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS ON THE ADRIATIC FRONT, Nov. 4 —(CP Cable)—The announcement yesterday that Lt.-Gen. Sir Oliver Leese has relinquished his command of the British 8th Army came as a jolting surprise to the men of the Canadian Corps who have fought two historic battles under him—the battles of the Hitler and Gothic Lines.

(It was announced last night that Lt.-Gen. Leese had been placed in command of the newly-organized 11th Army group, operating in southeast Asia while Lt.-Gen. Sir Richard J. McReery, 46, was named to succeed Gen. Leese as the 8th Army commander in Italy.)

Gen. Leese frequently made known his admiration for the Canadians and more than once expressed his confidence in them by saving the corps for critical blows in the battles that have carried his 8th Army from the Rapido River and Cassino to the Fiumicino River and the Lombardy Plains.

Jack Miner Dies Bird Lover 79 Years Old

KINGSVILLE, Ont., Nov. 4—(CP).—The man who started Canada's first bird sanctuary, silver-haired Jack Miner, outspoken friend of the wild bird, is dead.

The 79-year-old internationally famous Canadian naturalist suffered two heart attacks shortly after lunch yesterday and died at 3 p.m. Until a few hours before his death, he had been with the wild ducks and geese on his sanctuary.

Known to thousands, Jack Miner spent the last 50 years of his life in bird-life research, lecturing and writing on wild life conservation. His work earned the praise and tribute of outstanding figures in all walks of life and made this south-western Ontario town famous as "the home of Jack Miner."

He was born at Dover Centre, Ohio, a suburb of Cleveland, and came to Canada at the age of 13. At 29, he started his sanctuary around the mud ponds near his home.

His first visitors were 11 geese, but before long thousands of geese and wild ducks flocked to the sanctuary. He caught and banded more than 32,000 wild Canada geese. On the band was his post office address and a selected verse of the Scripture.

For his work he received commendation from the king in June, 1943 with the award of the Order of the British Empire.

Besides being a friend of the wild birds, Miner wrote several books on their life, among them "Jack Miner and the Birds," "Jack Miner on Current Topics," and "Jack Miner, His Life and Religion."

He is survived by his widow and three sons, Jasper, Manley and William.

LOST AIR BASES IN CHINA—The reported differences between Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and U.S. Gen. Joseph Stilwell, former commander of U.S. forces in the China-India-Burma theatre, highlights the recent loss of American airbases near the China coast. When the Japs pushed southward in an effort to cut China in two and form a junction with Jap forces moving northward, a number of strategic airfields were overrun; others were neutralized. Points leading from the star show these former Allied bases. Enemy forces near Kweilin (1) are now reported to be about 60 miles from a juncture.

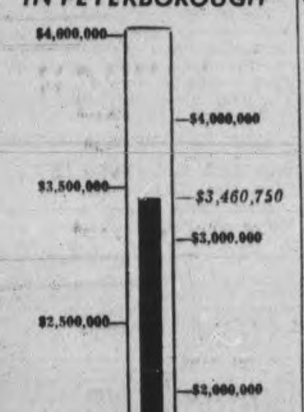
INVEST IN VICTORY IN PETERBOROUGH



Theft Charge Is Dismissed

Declaring that the accused had had no fraudulent intent, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Friday afternoon dismissed a charge against C. M. Rishor of having, while living apart from his wife, Elizabeth Rishor, stolen household linens, furniture and other articles from her on October 15.

"I find that the accused believed that he had a right to take those articles and that that belief was based on a reasonable foundation", His Worship said in his judgment, adding that in his opinion the whole thing had been a matter for the civil courts and that a criminal charge should never have been laid.

"I am not saying that he took the best method" Magistrate Langley said. "He would perhaps have been wiser to have followed another course but what he did did not constitute theft."

Hearing of the case took most of Friday, and the magistrate's decision followed brief arguments by T. J. Carley, K.C., defence counsel and V. J. McElderry, K.C., for the crown.

In his evidence Rishor said in answer to a question from the magistrate that he had taken the articles because he felt that they were his and to prevent them from being taken away from the apartment by the wife.

In cross-examination he said that so far as he knew he did not take away that day any article that was the exclusive possession of his wife. He said that he had not opened the barrels and boxes in which the goods were packed and it might have been that there was some things belonging to his wife therein.

Charge Against Wife

On the dismissal of the charge against Rishor the court began the hearing of a charge against Mrs. Rishor of having stolen a number of household articles from her husband. Giving evidence in the case Rishor said that when he visited the apartment on October 15 he had found a lot of the furnishings missing and he listed the articles that were gone and which he said were his property. He said he had not authorized his wife to take them.

The witness was cross-examined at length by W. J. Arthur Fair who appeared for Mrs. Rishor. Asked about the period in which he and his wife lived in Detroit, Rishor said that he did not know of his own knowledge that when they were returning to Peterborough from Detroit the furniture had been declared as the property of his wife.

"You and your wife lived on amicable terms for 21 years except for the last three or four years", asked Mr. Fair.

"Yes".

"The trouble started because of your relations with the co-respondent, Mrs. Copping?" asked defence counsel.

"No."

At this stage the case was adjourned until Monday.

Firm Pleased By Quick Action

The City Council has received a letter of appreciation from Hugh Campbell, general manager of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Company, for its prompt undertaking to divert the stream that crosses Monaghan Road at Romaine Street, traversing the properties of Outboard Marine, Peterborough Lumber, and De Laval Companies on its way to the Park Street drain at Lansdowne Street corner.

Outboard intimated that they would buy the Romaine-Monaghan Road empty and sunken lots if there was some assurance that the water course would be led in some direction other than the one it had picked out for itself a long time ago.

This assurance was given by the Council, and as an immediate result "we are exercising our option to purchase this property," Mr. Campbell wrote to City Clerk Outram. "Please convey my personal as well as our company's thanks to the Council for their action.

"We have never regretted locating our plant in Peterborough. This is in no small measure due to the full co-operation we have always enjoyed from the various city Councils, and particularly the present one."

Poppy A Symbol To Canadians

OTTAWA, Nov. 4 — (CP). — Prime Minister Mackenzie King said to-day in his annual Poppy Day message that "this year, with Canadian forces adding new victories in Flanders fields to their brilliant successes in France and Italy, the poppy is more than ever a symbol that appeals to all Canada."

The poppy recalled the deeds of Canada's fighting men in the First Great War and it brought "to our memories our obligation to all who have fought and suffered."

The Poppy Fund, made up of receipts from the sale of poppies in the weeks prior to Armistice Day, November 11, had "helped us remember that obligation," said Mr. King. "Year after year the fund continues to bring needed aid to those who have fought for us, whether in this war or in past wars, and to their dependents."

Vast Planning Controls Price Standards

Successful work in holding down prices, controlling rents and services, and having in Canada during the sixth year of war most of the goods necessary to a relatively high standard of living, are Canadian accomplishments admired greatly by outsiders. They are due to a vast amount of planning, direction, and the support and cooperation of the public, according to A. G. Smith, of the Management Service Division, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, who addressed Kiwanians, at their weekly luncheon Friday afternoon.

Mr. Smith said that Canadians generally have become so accustomed to the regulations of the Board that many people forget what is back of it, and what it is required to accomplish. It's purpose, firstly, he told the Kiwanians, was to meet the impact of war, control rents, prices and services, and to take the responsibility of seeing that goods are produced and distributed.

The efforts of the Board to maintain essential civilian requirements is probably the part of its function least known to the public at large, Mr. Smith pointed out. Little thought is given, he said, to the supply of onions, shirts, tea, coffee, and other items of importance, but behind each purchase of these commodities, lies a story of international cooperation, and a continual searching for new and better sources of supply.

Complicated Task

"Recall the serious shortage of onions which made its appearance last winter! The Food Administration was aware of this prospective shortage long before it actually developed, and plans were made to meet it by arranging for the importation of onions from Egypt. After careful planning had been completed, exigencies of war caused all shipping to be withdrawn from the Egyptian run for military purposes elsewhere. The Board could not announce why the expected shipment could not take place, because essentially, it was a military secret.

Then, onions were said to be available in South America, but again fate took a hand to baffle the schedule, and an earthquake in that section forced all labor from the fields to work in devastated areas. The onion crop there was never gathered. Further south, however, a small supply was discovered, and this cargo finally reached Canada, in time to help relieve a serious supply situation.

"Yes, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board is complicated; but it is orderly...and orderly projects are the ones that always get results," he said.

Mr. Smith, who is a former newspaper proprietor and publisher in Wingham, Ontario, outlined some of the problems of distribution, faced by the W.P.T.B. regularly He suggested that in numerous cases, a merchant may confuse the amount of merchandise he receives with the amount he could sell if he had it in his establishment. "It is remarkable," he said, "how many times upon investigatioin, it has been found that those people complaining have been afforded the benefit of increased production and had in some cases, actually received a greater supply than they had in 1941."

More Candy Bars

"You may doubt it," he said, "but nevertheless it is true, that there are 75 per cent more chocolate bars in Canada today than in 1941. For every five chocolate bars made in that year, there are eight made today. Demands of the army, navy and air force canteens, both here and abroad, must be met, and also the canteens of industrial firms, and demands of hospitals. Civilian consumption is also up, due to so many more people working and earning money. It is just one more case of the requirements of the services coming first, and who of us would have it otherwise?"

Mr. Smith urged restraint in buying on part of consumer, and told the Kiwanians that every citizen of Canada in these times should put into practice the motto, "Don't Buy Two, When One Will Do."

"Every time we as individuals buy two units of any commodity when one is sufficient for our immediate needs," he said, "we may deny our neighbor a supply of even one of these articles, although his need may be much greater than ours."

The speaker explained some of the work done by the combined boards set up in Britain and the United States. He said these boards ...and incidentally, Canada is represented on each board and each agency, allocate the Allies' resources, expand raw materials and finished goods production on an international scale, and to equalize the burdens of war on the United Nations. Outside Japan and Europe, he said, 97 per cent of shipping is under the direction of the Combined Shipping Adjustment Board....and again, Canada is represented. The combined Raw Materials Board allocates to United Nations' war industries and agriculture, 95 per cent of all critical raw materials outside of German and Japanese control.

In an effort to be of greater service to Canadians, the Board set up 14 regional offices and 122 local boards, appointing men who knew the local conditions.

Wartime Agency

About the probable length of time the Board's controls will be exercised Mr Smith said that the W.P.T.B. is a wartime agency, temporary, and not intended to be kept any longer than is necessary. "But," the speaker warned, "it should not be relaxed merely because some people insist on throwing their hats in the air and shouting that the war is nearly over"

In thanking Mr. Smith for his address, Vince McCabe said that one of the most interesting points about the Board's wartime job in Canada, is to note the way other countries and other people look upon our successful system. Americans, he said, hold real admiration for it, and people from the British Isles have a similar viewpoint. Mr. McCabe said that it might be wise to keep the controls in force even after the war for some time, in order to keep the nation on as even a keel as possible. Mr. Smith was introduced by William Richardson.

Among the visitors to the luncheon this week, were I. McNabb, former zone secretary for Kiwanis here, now of Toronto. Sgt. Stuart Saunders, R.C.A.F., son of President Charlie Saunders, R D Huffman, of the Navy, and F. J. Northumberland Loan Totals Jump Suddenly

COBOURG, Nov. 4 — (ENS). — Victory Loan canvassers in Northumberland County on Friday had the best day since the start of the present campaign, the total amount of sales for the day amounting to $144,0000. Highest in the last campaign was $150,000. As the current drive had been lagging considerably the spurt on Friday put new life into the canvassers, who had started to feel discouraged. However, the county has a considerable stretch to go before its quota is reached. Totals on Friday for the districts were as fololws:

Colborne, $112,050, 149.53; Percy Township, $71,350, 71.35; Alnwick Township, $14,600, 58.4; Haldimand Township, $55,150, 58.05; Brighton Township, $38,250, 54.64; South Monaghan Township, $16,2000, 54; Brighton Village, $64,400, 51.52; Cramahe Township, $39,500 46.47; Hamilton Township, $64,750, 46.25. Cobourg, $177,500, 44.38; Campbellford $84,550, 42.27; Murray Township, $40,400, 40.40; Seymour Township, $48,550, 35.78; total for the county, $843,350, 51.900 per cent.

Wrong Effects Of Dead Flier Reach Parents

COBOURG, Nov. 4 —(ENS)—Mrs. James Rollings of Cobourg, who this week received by error the personal effects of an airman with the same initials and surname as her son who has been missing and presumed dead, also was notified on the same date that her other son was wounded in Italy. To add to situation, Friday she was notified by Ottawa that her missing son had been promoted from sergeant to flight sergeant, the promotion dating to a few months prior to the time he was missing.

The missing son of Mr. and Mrs. Rollings is Sergeant William Alfred Rollings who enlisted at Kingston in 1940 with an R.C.A. unit, later transferring to the R.C.A.F. He received his wings in December of 1941 and went overseas in January of 1942. He was reported missing in December of the same year on a flight from Gibraltar to Aden.

A few months ago his mother was advised that he had been presumed dead. This week she received a trunk and suit-case, as well as a registered parcel, which were supposed to contain the personal effects of her son but on examining them she discovered that they were not his. They bore the name W. A. Rollings, but were the clothing of a pilot officer. A letter in the trunk was addressed to the airman's sister, a Miss Rollings of Allenford, Ont. In addition a group picture in the trunk included the picture of a W. A. Rollings which newspapers had been furnished in error by the R.C.A.F. for that of her son when he was reported missing.

Mr. Rollings, who is president of the local Legion, has written Ottawa in an attempt to iron out the tangle.

Their second son, Pte. John Rollings enlisted in July of last year at Kingston and on arriving overseas with a re-inforcement unit, transferred to the Irish Regiment. He was in England for only a short time and was sent to Italy where he was wounded a short time ago.

Race for Highway

To the southeast Germans and Hungarians sought any means of transportation available to pull out of a huge pocket near Szolnok. With their way blocked into Pest, the Nazis tried to make headway across the plains north of Szolnok to a highway which runs on the east side of the Danube to Vienna.

Red Army units pouring across the Tisza on a long front also raced for the highway.

Berlin described the Budapest situation as "critical."

The battle for Budapest was for great stakes. Capture of the capital of the last large Nazi vassal could raise the curtain on a Russian invasion of Hitler's homeland from the south over Austrian soil. Soviet troops at their nearest point were barely 90 miles from the German frontier.

Reports to the Turkish press from correspondents in Budapest said the capital was being bombed, incessantly.

A Moscow broadcast last night said the Germans had been cleared from all the Baltic states "except for a patch around Liepaja, Latvian port, which is being mopped up."

Ottawa sources were confident that the change in ministers means that the policy of voluntary overseas service will be continued unless the war takes a sudden turn for the worse and the use of men called for compulsory military duty as reinforcements for Canadians in the front line becomes an imperative necessity.

But within the limits of the voluntary overseas policy Gen. McNaughton may bring important changes in the army organization with the approval of the cabinet.

Export business in wheat was on moderate scale, with Eire credited with taking around 800,000 bushels, while a Central American buyer took 100,000 bushels of milling grades grain.

Lack of offerings continued to curtail trade in oats and barley, and only small carlot sales were reported.

the American attack north of Nederweert, which the communique said had cleared the enemy from an area between the Zuid Willems and Noorder canals.

In Third Day

Although the German radio reported last night that the U.S. 1st Army was probing the German defences with local attacks all along a 30-mile front north and south of Aachen, the Allied communique mentioned only the attack south of Hurtgen, now in its third day. In addition to capturing Schmidt, infantry forces in this operation are clearing out pill-boxes in the forest south of fall Vossenack.

The offensive on the U.S. 7th Army front continued to pile up gains, the communique reported, and the village of Reherrey was captured in the Baccarat sector. A new attack was launched in the Vosges east of Rentremont, and made progress against stubborn resistance.

From the long-quiet sector of the Maritime Alps near the French-Italian border came word that Sospel and several nearby villages overlooking the Italian frontier north of Mentone had been taken without resistance.

Allied medium bombers and fighters continued their support of the west front ground operations, hitting communications all down the Rhine Valley and between the Rhine and the German lines. A railway tunnel and seven bridges were among the targets.

Even in Holland, where bad weather still plagued the air as well as the ground forces, Allied planes flew 500 sorties yesterday in support of British and Canadian troops, blasting enemy units near the Moerdike bridge and bombing German mortar positions on Walcheren Island.

Need Little Machinery

LONDON, Nov. 4 — (CP. Cable) — Farm machinery requirements in liberated France and Belgium are far below expectations and a quantity of shipments from Canada and the United States is not an extremely pressing need, James Duncan of Toronto, chairman of the farm and food machinery committee of the combined production and resources board, said yesterday.

Smythe Claims Conscription Is Imperative

TORONTO, Nov. 4—(CP).—Defence Minister McNaughton will be able to provide reinforcements for the Canadian Army overseas only if he enforces conscription immediately, Major Conny Smythe said to-day.

"That's the only way Gen. McNaughton would inspire me with confidence," he said at his home, where he is recuperating from wounds received in France.

"What worries me is that while we are trying to get reinforcements over, the men are short-handed and many are dying every hour of the day because of lack of reinforcements.

"The point is not an argument on McNaughton or Ralston, but it is the question of enforcing total conscription and in that way getting trained reinforcements over to help our men."

On his return from overseas in September, Major Smythe charged that some reinforcement troops were going into action without training in throwing hand grenades or in using Bren or Piat guns. He urged that call-up troops who had received extensive training be sent overseas as reinforcements. His charge gave rise to a controversy which is believed to have led to the resignation of Col. J. L. Ralston as Defence Minister.

Election May Affect Air Conference

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4 — (CP). — A complex set of technical rules of the air for post-war flying is before delegates to the International Conference on Civil Aviation to-day as they consider their bargaining positions on the larger political and economic issues involved.

As the main issue of the conference—degree of control over flying between nations to be conceded to an international authority—touches on issues in the United States Presidential election, little change in the bargaining positions of the leading powers is expected before Tuesday.

Delegates from other countries speculated on the effect of the election on the conference. A Roosevelt victory might mean a more assured and confident United States delegation; a Dewey victory with a change in administration might leave the United States position on international collaboration uncertain.

The Chicago Tribune in a two-column Washington dispatch to-day threw the conference deliberations into the election campaign under the headline "Charge United States Air Betrayal."

A "Sell-Out."

After calling attention to fear that the proposals advanced for the United States by Adolf A. Berle, Jr., "would result in a complete sell-out on American overseas aviation and peril to the military security of the United States," it alleged that Canada refused to let Americans establish air lines over its territory and then got United States planes to do its own flying.

The Tribune said Mr. Berle's proposals would make bases in Alaska available for Trans-Pacific flying and permit Canada and Britain to grab off the traffic.

This political by-play came after Mr. Berle disclosed the United States position as favoring an international air authority with limited regulatory powers and a limited degree of freedom of the air.

In addition to a draft convention the United States to-day presented the delegates with a three-inch-deep sheaf of documents containing suggester rules and regulations for universal adoption of technical phases of aviation.

Christ Returns to Village Where He Spent Boyhood

Jesus Came to Nazareth, where He had been brought up. And as His custom was He went into the Synagogue on the Sabbath Day.—St. Luke 4:16.

These words brings the Lord Jesus very near to us. He is truly a Man Who loved to return to the place where "He had been brought up." Perhaps it was His last visit. He desired to reveal Himself to His old friends and neighbours that He is indeed the Messiah, the Christ, the Anointed of God, of Whom Isaiah spake centuries before.

St. Luke, the good physician, gives us the story to teach us that the people who knew Him best were quite prepared to refuse Him. It is the outward and visible sign of their need for spiritual healing at the Hands of the Good Physician Himself, the Lord Jesus.

You can see the Carpenter going down the street receiving and returning greetings from the old neighbours. Very likely He stayed in His Mother's cottage. It brought back many memories. Here His Mother had taught Him His earliest prayers; in that synagogue He had learnt to read the Holy Scriptures. As a growing Boy He would be found on many a Sabbath afternoon reading the rolls kept in the care of the Rabbi, who would be only too glad to help the promising Boy to meditate upon the Holy Word.

He is returning now as the Carpenter, Who, as a Prophet, has made a Name for Himself in the outside world. His neighbours would wonder whether He would do many of His miracles there; but it is certain that He could not do many mighty works there because of their unbelief.

As His custom was He went into the synagogue on the Sabbath Day.

It is the Jewish Sabbath, which began on the Friday evening about six and ended the next evening about the same time. It is the Saturday morning service that He attends "as His custom was." Our Lord was a devout Jew and kept the Sabbath and attended the synagogue worship. What a lesson He teaches us. He, Who had a revelation of His unique relationship with the Father—Who was the well beloved Son of the Father—does not negelct public worship. The Master knew the dulness and dreariness of the synagogue worship. Yet He does not stay away because He "could not get any good" from it. He never forgets that He is a Member of the Jewish Church. He has a place in its corporate worship of Jehovah.

Many a spiritually minded man is tempted to stay away from Church because of its dryness and coldness, even of the minister. Do not forget that nearly every spiritual leader has developed his spiritual life by his regular attendance at public worship.

Do you always remember to take your offertory to Church not your money only but your spiritual offertory. It is the sense of the Real Presence of God, which you have felt in your private devotions that Sunday morning. "My Presence shall go with thee" is His eternal promise to all who seek His face in humility and meekness. Do you always pray for your minister when you enter Church; that he may be inspired to give you and others a new glimpse of the wonders of the Christian religion? Only thus will you increase the warmth of worship in your village church where you have been brought up.

There was a time when your minister was full of enthusiasm; but his heart had been broken by the indifference of his flock. His work is not easy. Now he is tired and despondent. "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth Me" is Our Lord's searching words.

TAKE HEED THAT YE DESPISE NOT ONE OF THESE LITTLE ONES.

Race Problems Don't Exist For True Christian People

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Nov. 5 is Luke 10:25-37; Acts 10:9-16, 34, 35; 17:22-31, the Golden Text being Acts 10:34, 35, "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respector of persons: but in every nation he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness, is acceptable to Him.")

Our lesson on the Christian and the race problem commences with the story of the lawyer who "tempted" Jesus by asking Him what he should do to inherit eternal life.

Jesus asked him what was written in the law? "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all they strength, and with all thy mind," the lawyer answered, "and thy neighbor as thyself."

Jesus said that was the right answer, but the man asked, "Who is my neighbor?" Jesus then told him the story of a man who, traveling from Jerusalem to Jericho, which was until recently a very dangerous stretch of road, was attacked by thieves, who robbed, stripped and wounded him, leaving him apparently dying by the roadside.

The poor man was cheered presently by the sight of a priest coming that way; but his joy must have turned to despair when the priest saw him but passed hastily by on the other side of the way. Again his hopes were raised when a Levite, a consecrated man whose work was of a religious character, came along. Once more he was doomed to disappointment, for the Levite, too, passed him by.

Then came a Samaritan, a people who were hated by the Jews and who hated them in return. The wounded man could expect no help from him, he undoubtedly thought. But the Samaritan came to him, bound up his wounds, put him on his ass, and took him to an inn where he cared for him all night. In the morning he left money with the inn keeper and told him to care for the poor man and if the care cost more money, he would repay him when he passed that way again.

Who Was the Neighbor?

"Who," asked Jesus, was the neighbor to the stricken man? Of course the answer was the Samaritan. "Go thou and do likewise," Jesus admonished.

The next episode tells of Peter who, at Joppa, went up onto the housetop to pray while the evening meal was being prepared. He fell asleep or in a tranee, and saw a sheet being let down from heaven with all manner of beasts in it. A voice told him to kill and eat. Peter was horrified, because the Jews do not eat pork. "Not so, Lord," he said; "for I have never eaten anything that is common or unclean." The voice answered, "What God hath cleansed, that call thou not uncommon."

"Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: But in every nation he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with Him."

In Acts 17 we read of Paul's first visit to Athens where he saw an altar raised to the "Unknown God." Standing on Mars Hill, Paul spoke to the assembled Athenians, telling them he had noticed the altar and "Whom ye ignorantly worship, Him declare I unto you."

Then he told them God made the world and all things therein, but that He does not live in temples made with hands: neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though He needed anything, seeing He giveth to all life, and breath, and all things.

"And hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation."

All through the ages some men have thought themselves superior to others. The Jews despised the Gentiles and the Samaritans; people who considered themselves "civilized" looked down on "barbarians"; people of the white race fancy that they should be regarded as higher types than those whose skins are dark — and so on. Where do we get these ideas? Surely God made us all, and if we "do justly, and love mercy, and walk humbly with our God," why should we consider ourselves more exalted than others of His children who do likewise?

The rise of Hitler and his "master race," the socalled "Aryans," shows us how ridiculous — worse, wicked — this race prejudice is. It is unchristian, and the sooner we rid ourselves of that point of view, the sooner will we be able to feel ourselves "acceptable to God, Father of us all."

SCOTS ARE HEALTHIER

EDINBURGH — (CP). — Food rationing is largely responsible for Edinburgh's improved bill of health in 1943, says Dr. W. G. Clark, medical health officer. Other factors are the comparative absence of normal weather and fewer epidemic diseases.

Scripture—Luke 10:25-37; Acts 10:9-16, 34, 35; 17:22-31

A certain lawyer asked the Master what he should do to inherit eternal life, thinking to tempt or catch Jesus in a heresy.

Jesus told him the story of the robbed and wounded man whom the high priest and the Levite failed to help, but a Samaritan rescued.

Paul stood in Mars Hill and spoke to the men of Athens, saying that he would tell them of the Unknown God whom they worshipped.

Paul told the Athenians that God has made of one blood all the nations of the earth.

Crisis At Ottawa

Until the time of writing the high point in the Cabinet crisis has been the resignation of the Hon. J. L. Ralston and the appointment of General McNaughton to succeed him; it may be that by the time this appears in print there will have been further and even more dramatic deevlopments; comment on the Cabinet situation is discussion of a train of incidents which is certainly not yet complete. Nevertheless, there are a few things which may be usefully written about it.

• • •

The first matter which must be stressed is that the problem confronting the Ministry of Defence is much more complicated than the majority of Canadians know. The Canadian infantry abroad—not other fighting units—will be short of adequately trained reinforcements soon, but adequately trained volunteer troops will be ready to reinforce them by February. In the meantime, should members of the Home Defence Army be sent abroad to reinforce the infantry? That is the problem. There is no shortage of reinforcements in the mechanized portions of the Army. This problem has apparently arisen because our army commanders thought that we were going to fight a war of machines and movement almost exclusively, and it now turns out that there is a lot of fighting of the old infantry type to be done. It is one of those miscalculations which even the ablest commanders are likely to make. But it will be seen that the problem is whether Home Defence troops should be used to fill a gap, or whether the gap can be filled by men who are abroad already but who have, for one reason or another, not been sent to Europe. This matter was explained in detail in a special article which appeared on this page yesterday.

• • •

Apparently Mr. Ralston thought that Home Defence troops should be used, and some members of the Cabinet agreed with him. But General McNaughton did not agree with him, for General McNaughton has taken over his portfolio. This has been a shock to those who had hoped to bring the Zombie quarrel to a head. One prominent newspaper, which has concerned itself for years with the manpower situation says that McNaughton's acceptance of the Defence portfolio will come as "a terrific shock to the men overseas and the people of Canada". This is, to put it mildly, wishful thinking. Some of the men overseas have expressed their satisfaction; as for the people at home, they are sensible enough to realize that if anyone knows what the needs of the army are, it is the man who built that army. If there is anyone in Canada who thinks that General McNaughton does not know his business as a soldier, he has yet to say so.

• • •

As for the political side of the matter, it presents complexities and apparent contradictions. The Prime Minister's strong feeling against conscription is certainly caused by Quebec's antipathy to it. But the spiteful assertion that political gain is all that the Prime Minister is thinking about does not bear examination. Of course that factor enters into the Prime Minister's thinking, but it is not foremost in it. General McNaughton has also expressed himself against conscription, because conscription is a violent threat to Canadian unity. It may be that in time the full facts of the disagreement between Mr. King and Mr. Ralston will be made public, and until then it is not possible to form a useful opinion on that subject. We can only wait and see, knowing that we have lost one able Minister of Defence and gained another, at least equally competent.

A Nazi writer says that "the Fuehrer is as good as his word". Yes.

The Recall Of General Stilwell

The recall to the U.S.A. of General Joseph Stilwell, who has laboured so long in the Chinese theatre of war, has provoked a number of rumours, all more or less mischievous and ill-natured, about the Chinese war effort. President Roosevelt, however, has said that the recall was simply because Stilwell and Chiang Kai-shek could not work amicably together, and not because of any failure of Allied strategy.

Apparently General Stilwell was anxious to use Chinese fighting-power to the utmost possible extent, and in order to achieve this end he used methods which the Chinese did not like. It has never been suggested that General Stilwell's methods were different from those which any competent and alert Occidental commander would employ, but apparently they gave offence to the Chinese. Stilwell concentrated wholeheartedly on fighting the Japs; the Chinese have certain quarrels among themselves which he did not treat with appropriate respect. It is easy to see how, in such circumstances, a violent disagreement might arise; it is hard, also, for us not to side strongly with General Stilwell. He is a soldier, and not a diplomat, and he was trying to do a good job.

But we must not exaggerate any aspect of the quarrel. It is still quite possible that Chiang Kai-shek will agree that the Chinese armies should be under an American leader. Nor must we make hasty judgements about the quarrel between the central government at Chungking, and the Communists in the north, for the latest and best reports say that relations between the two parties are better now than they have been for a long time. It is also the opinion of the Yorkshire Post that the quarrel between Chungking and the Communists has not seriously impeded the Chinese war effort.

At the present time we cannot afford any major disagreement among the United Nations, and we may be sure that Chiang Kai-shek understands this as well as anyone. If he could not get along with General Stilwell, it is unfortunate, but it is better that the General should be recalled now than that a serious break should occur later, when our strategy in the Pacific war is even more intense than at present. There is nothing simple about the Chinese problem, and if the recall of a general can assist in its solution that course must be taken, however unjust it may appear to a good fighting man.

The Museum Goes On Tour

Only a few citizens of this Province appear to know anything about the riches which are contained in the Royal Ontario Museum; indeed, there are great numbers of people living right in Toronto, within an easy walk or a streetcar ride of the R.O.M. who have never darkened its doors. This is a pity because, contrary to popular legend, museums are not dull and fusty places, filled with junk; they are light and beautiful places filled with intensely interesting objects. The Chinese collection in our provincial museum, for instance, is one of the finest in the world. Have you ever seen it? If not, don't miss it next time you are in Toronto.

An arrangement has been in existence for some time between the Museum and the Department of Education, which has made it possible for hundreds of school children to visit the Museum with expert guides; not all the children like Chinese ceramics, but they are likely to be interested in the totem poles, or the prehistoric remains; if they don't care for the ancient weapons and the armour, they may be excited by the carved Greek and Roman gems; the Museum has something for everybody whose mind is not wholly lethargic.

But until recently only children within a day's travel to Toronto have had a chance to visit the Museum; this has held the radius of influence down to about 140 miles. But now the Museum sends out exhibits to schools, under the care of Miss Ruth Home, who shows the objects and talks about them. Understandably only the smaller objects from the Museum can be taken on tour in this way, and we assume that the irreplaceable objects are not trusted outside the building. Still, the idea of the travelling exhibit from the Museum is a first-rate one, and we hope that it can be expanded. A mummified hand from Egypt, and a piece of chain mail from the England of William the Conqueror can do more to make history real to some children than an hour's lecturing by the most gifted teacher.

The Royal Ontario Museum is something of which this province has every right to be proud. But we should use it more. Not every child can go to the Museum, but by means of travelling exhibits the Museum can be taken to every school in Ontario. If more money is wanted for this good work we hope that the Museum will not hesitate to ask for it.

Diary Of A Pumpkin-Carver

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Spent the morning in bed, trying to read Ernest Hemingway's "The Sun Also Rises." But I could not stomach it. There is a dull catfishness about all Hemingway's characters which irritates me, then makes me snigger irreverently, and then fall asleep. It has been said (in explanation of the laws of probability) that if a thousand baboons were given a thousand typewriters they would eventually type all the books in the British Museum; the first ones they would complete, I'll lay, would be Hemingway's; they would find his style congenial.... Rose, and prepared some bacon and eggs for lunch; my skill as a cook is growing by leaps and bounds. Anyone can fry a bit of bacon and an egg, but only the genius of the true cook can give them that taste which distinguished mine.... Heard a Victory Loan broadcast this evening, and thought it better than most such entertainments, which tend to be lugubrious. Ronald Coleman recited the 'Crispian' speech from 'Henry V', in a voice which suggested that his undershirt was tickling him; movie stars are nice people, but they can't act—not Shakespeare, anyway.

◇ ◇ ◇

MONDAY: Toyed with the idea of going to the movies tonight to see Barry Fitzgerald in 'Going My Way"; I have been a fan of his ever since I first saw him with the Abbey Theatre players. Also I had heard much about the film, particularly from people who condemned it as Catholic propaganda. It is odd how some people hate to hear the Catholics or the Jews say a word for themselves. When that movie call "One Foot In Heaven" appeared three or four years ago I did not hear a soul complain that it was Methodist propaganda, though that was what it was. Most popular art is propaganda of some sort, in that it tends to impose upon us ideas which somebody thinks will be good for us.... But I did not go, because it was raining, and I knew that I should have to stand in a queue, which I hate. So I stayed home, and did some work, and read Dr. Martin Gumpert's excellent book on how to grow old. He confirms a belief of my own that the nitwitted old men and women whom one meets so often are not nitwitted because they are old, but because they have been that way all their lives, though the external whiteness of their heads draws attention to the emptiness within.

◇ ◇ ◇

TUESDAY: Happened to be in a radio broadcasting studio today where a large, impressive and intricate piece of broadcasting apparatus was not working; as the puzzled engineers stared at it, one of them happened to ask a girl who was standing by if she had known it to fail before: "Sure," she replied, "just give it a good shake and it'll work." They did and it did.... This seems to me to be symbolic of much of the intricate apparatus of our modern world. In my bathroom basin there is one of those ingenious metal plugs which works with a lever, thereby eliminating the old, unsightly, but efficient rubber plug on a chain. My super-plug goes wrong every now and then, and only a smart crack with a hammer will bring it to its senses. I never had to hit a rubber plug with a hammer; it always worked.... I am told that many of the monster bombs which we have dropped in enemy territory during the war did not explode unless our pilots swooped low and threw bricks at them .... all through modern life we find greater complication wedded to lessened efficiency. When a sensitive piece of apparatus fails to work, just pound it with a hammer, or give it a good kick. That is the kind of treatment it understands.

◇ ◇ ◇

WEDNESDAY: I see that the Dominion bureau of agriculture is urging us to keep goats; the bureau writes about goats with tenderness and affection. Once it was my duty to look after a family of goats—a nanny, a billy and a kid—for a week and during that time I grew to like them, and even to trust them. They had some nasty ways, but were really much more intelligent and friendly than cows. It is a lie to say that they eat tin cans and underwear; they like glue, and esteem the label from a tin can as a great delicacy, but they do not eat the tin, and they simply turn their noses up at an old undershirt. Nor do they butt you if you treat them kindly. My only complaint was that they stank—not a dirty or unwholesome smell, but a powerful animal emanation—and after I tended the goats I had to change my clothes before I was acceptable in fastidious circles.... Goats have a lively sense of humour. They like to push and shove you to see if they can make you angry, and if you resent it they jump up and down and laugh. But if you shove them back again, and hurl genial insults at them they know that you are a good fellow, and accept you as a sort of honorary goat. I have had some high old times with goats.

◇ ◇ ◇

THURSDAY: A lively discussion is going on in one of the Ottawa papers about children's shoes; several people have written letters to say that since the war began the workmanship in these articles has deteriorated sharply. I have asked a few people who have children what they think about this, and their complaints are loud and long. Not only are the shoes poor in workmanship, they say, but they are scarce. And yet I see that the shoe manufacturers are deeply hurt that their honour in this matter should be aspersed. I can anly conclude that the children of today must be much rougher than the prewar children, and thus wear out the excellent, sturdy, well-made shoes which the great-souled manufacturers turn out so conscientiously, quicker.... A complaint reached me today that my diary has not been as funny recently as it was. My diary is never funny; I write it in a complete good faith and seriousness. Indeed, I am rather hurt by the suggestion that some people find it funny. Nothing does a man so much harm in Canada as the suspicion that he has a sense of humour; solidity is the quality we admire, particularly above the collar.

◇ ◇ ◇

FRIDAY: A surprising number of people drop in to see me around four in the afternoon; can it be because they know that I have a cup of tea at that hour, and they hope to share it? There are plenty of people I know, who think that tea in the afternoon is an effete custom, but I have never yet been refused when I offered it. It is odd that in Canada a great many people who look askance at the afternoon cup of tea are slavish devotees of the morning cup of coffee. From my window I can see them hurrying toward the coffee shop at about ten o'clock and shortly after eleven I see them going back to work again, grinning like cats who have swallowed the cream; they must drink a hogshead of coffee in that time.... In Britain most industrial workers have tea in the afternoon; it helps them to work better. Now there is something for the unions to strike about—Tea and a Sally Lunn every day, or we walk out!.... These days my furnace generates great quantities of gas; I mentioned this to a doctor friend of mine, and he absent-mindedly suggested that it might have gall-bladder trouble. My choice seems to be to let the furnace have its head, and roast, or check it, and die of strangulation. A reader writes to say that he is sick of my furnace. So am I.

◇ ◇ ◇

SATURDAY: This afternoon bent myself to the task of carving a pumpkin face as a Hallowe'en surprise for some children I know; this is a neglected branch of art which I have made peculiarly my own. I scorn the mediocre pumpkin face with triangular eyes and nose, and a gash of a mouth: mine has a noble nose, a mouth full of teeth, eyes which search your soul when the pumpkin is illuminated, and a leer which sums up the whole spirit of Hallowe'en. The only proper way to illuminate a pumpkin head is with the stub of a candle; electric light is harsh and lacking in mystery.... At present I am deep in diplomatic negotiations with a man about putting on my storm windows. He always does it, when he feels like it, but there is always an attempt on his part to panic me by hinting that he cannot come this year. My situation is extremely delicate, because he is the only person in the world who knows which storm window goes where, although I hope that he is not aware of this shameful fact. I have never put on a window since one year when I was caught in a high wind on top of a ladder, holding a big one; I had to drop the window, or sail into the air like a kite. I dropped it, and had bad dreams for weeks afterward.

HOW YOU GONNA KEEP 'EM DOWN ON TH' FARM

Scotland's Novelists

(By AUGUSTUS MUIR)

THERE still survives in the Highlands of Scotland a delightful old custom of gathering the neighbours round one's fire-side and spending the evening hours in the enjoyment of song and story. Such meetings are, in the Gaelic tongue, called ceilidhs (pronounced kay-leys), and I can assure you that some of the stories told round those Highland firesides are of the most macabre kind, while others are tales of love or pathos or high-spirited humour. In the same way, the people of the Border country, in the south of Scotland, have their stories in verse, which were repeated both in the dining-halls of the great lords and on the humblest cottar's hearthstone.

Indeed, one of the great delights of the Scot, one of the deepest needs of his imaginative life, has always been to listen to a story. Perhaps the enormous mass of traditional tales which persisted right up to the last century helps to explain why the Scottish novel—the novel written by Scotsmen about Scotland—had such a late beginning compared with the English novel.

THE only Scots novelist of note in the eighteenth century was Tobias Smollett, and most of his writings did not deal with Scotland at all. When he did venture upon Scottish soil, as in Humphrey Clinker, his pen never flowed more freely, and indeed his pictures of Edinburgh life are often quoted today by social historians. Very different was The Man of Feeling, a highly sentimental novel published in 1771 by Henry Mackenzie, and one of the very few Scottish novels of the eighteenth century that have survived.

It was Sir Walter Scott who founded the Scottish novel; and his works went all over Europe and were the inspiration of many great writers who built upon the foundations he had laid. Novels seemed to come tumbling from the brain of Scott in an unbroken stream. His first work of friction, Waverley, gave the name of the Waverley novels to the stories that followed so quickly. His imagination had been enriched by his wide knowledge of those traditional tales I have just mentioned; and perhaps two of the most successful of his novels were Guy Mannering, with its scene in Galloway beside the Solway Firth, and Rob Roy, a tale of the famous Macgregor outlaw whose adventurous life had become a legend far beyond the Highland hills.

WHILE Sir Walter Scott was pouring forth the Waverley novels, a writer called John Galt was depicting Scottish life with an intimate and humorous pen. His Annals of the Parish is regarded as a classic among fictional studies of this kind, and it gives a homely picture of daily life in a Scottish village.

Another contemporary of Scott's was Susan Ferrier, who might be described as the feminine counterpart of John Galt. With a genially humorous pen, she described the lives of the people of the professional and landowning class of her own time.

There were many notable Scottish men of letters in the nineteenth century; but, among the novelists, one of the most outstanding was Robert Louis Stevenson, who followed in the Scott tradition of romance rather than in the Galt tradition of realism. Nobody would describe Stevenson as a great novelist; he is not to be compared with Dostoievski, Dickens or Balzac; but he was certainly a great story-teller, with a genuine and carefully controlled gift of narrative. Apart from his romantic historical novels, Kidnapped and Catriona, he wrote Treasure Island, a boy's classic which grown-up readers enjoy. He died at the comparatively early age of forty-four, leaving his story Weir of Hermiston unfinished. This fragment revealed new powers in Stevenson, and it is difficult to say how high a place he might have taken in English literature if he had lived another twenty years.

A MORE recent Scottish novelist whose work cannot be ignored was Neil Munro. He wrote a number of historical novels with their scene in the Highlands, and followed the same romantic tradition as Stevenson. One of the finest of his novels was The New Road.

You may sometimes hear people talking about the "Kailyard School" of Scottish novelists, and you may detect a faint sneer in their tone. Kailyard means kitchen-garden; and this group of writers set out to deal in a sentimental way with humble people. The stories of Ian Maclaren can be taken as a good example; but the greatest of them all was Sir James M. Barrie, who later achieved fame as a dramatist.

Barrie's Auld Licht Idylls and A Window in Thrums were by far the best of all the books in this group. The Kailyard School derives from John Galt himself, but an over-indulgence in pathos is the reason why they are not held in so high esteem as they were a generation ago.

◇ ◇ ◇

SCOTTISH novelists of today are of a varied character. There is Eric Linklater, with so witty and satirical a pen; there is Neil M. Gunn with his fervid Highland imaginaton; there s George Blake, whose novel The Shipbuilders might be chosen from a long list as a story of Clydeside and of the great shipbuilding industry which is today working at full pressure. Edwin Muir, who holds a high place as a critic, is a novelist of note, although his output in fiction has been small. But the recent death of J. Leslie Mitchell, who began to write novels about Angus people under the "non de guerre" of Lewis Grassic Gibbon, removed a man who might have emerged as the greatest Scottish novelist of his own generation. His Sunset Song showed not only considerable achievement but the hope of still greater things. Various young writers are endeavouring to give expression in fictional form to their creative impulses; and they give promise after the war of taking their place, not only among other English-speaking writers, but alongside their brother-novelists of the world.

Circumscribed Bench

Some serious attention should be given by Prime Minister Mackenzie King to the matter of appointments to the Supreme Court of Ontario. In this, the City of Toronto appears to be almost the whole show. Since 1937, only one appointment has been made from anywhere outside the Toronto Bar.

And what of the "old school tie?" On the Appeal and Trial Divisions there are twenty Justices. Of these, one is a graduate of Ottawa University, and one is from St. Francis Xavier University. Of the other eighteen, all who are from any college at all come from the University of Toronto.

Hon. Louis S. St. Laurent, who recommends these appointments, is from Quebec City. Though he speaks English, he does not know Ontario. But of all men living, the Prime Minister should know something of the days when one Robinson was Chief Justice of Upper Canada and the Family Compact was in full bloom. Surely he has not forgotten the bitter, tragic lesson of those old days, or has come to think of them only as of some forgotten, far-off thing.—Windsor Star.

A Bible Message

This is the book of the generations of Adam....
And all the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years: and he died....

And all the days of Enoch were three hundred sixty and five years: and Enoch walked with God: and he was not; for God took him. (Gen. 5: 1, 5, 23, 24.)

◇ ◇ ◇

By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and was not found, because God had translated him: for before his translation he had this testimony, that he pleased God. But without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him. (Heb. 11: 5, 6.)

NEED OTHER EXCUSE

The group most decidedly in favour of abolition of the Home Guards are women with husbands or sweethearts who are members.

They firmly believe that the calls on their men's time which the Home Guards make are now unnecessary.

This group's views were expressed somewhat tartly when a housewife said to our interviewer: "Then they will have to think up some other excuse to stay out at night." — London News Chronicle.

Unconsidered Trifles

After much searching, the newly marrieds had managed to get a maid. Now the mistress was giving her a few hints on the job.

"And when you are waiting at table," she said presently, "you must always remember to serve from the left and remove the plates from the right. Is that clear?"

"Yes," replied the girl condescendingly; "you superstitious or something?"

◇ ◇ ◇

The shape of her nose had always annoyed her, so she consulted a beauty surgeon.

"How much will you charge to alter it?" she asked, when she'd explained her wishes.

"Twenty guineas," was the reply.

"Twenty guineas! Isn't there something less expensive?"

"Well, madam," said the surgeon suavely, "you could try walking into a lamp-post."

Generous But Untrue

Field Marshal Montgomery, speaking this week at a celebration of the second anniversary of the Battle of El Alamein, gave way to what was perhaps a natural sentimentality about his old foe, the late Marshal Rommel. "He was a worthy opponent," he said, "and I always respected his military tactics." Military men will understand. In spite of the fact that they must practice their profession over the dead and mangled bodies of men, it is nevertheless a profession, like medicine or engineering or the law, and there is a professional bond among those who honourably follow it. There linger, too, some belated rage of the tradition of chivalry, and soldiers who have fought well on any side in any battle are still respected by their enemies.

But was Rommel "a worthy opponent?" In battle, in the limited sense, he doubtless was. He did not, for instance, butcher prisoners. For one reason or another he fought a cleaner war than his fellow marshals and generals fought in Russia. But if he had thrown Montgomery back at El Alamein, taken Cairo and Alexandria and advanced to Suez and the shores of Palestine and Syria he would have exposed millions of helpless human beings, and not soldiers alone, to a cruel death at Hitler's hands. He knew this and it did not deter him. This smiling, sardonic, highly intelligent man was working consciously for an international murder gang. It will be fatally easy to forgive such generals when the fighting is over, but in fact our only "worthy opponents" in the German High Command are those who have already surrendered or those whom Hitler has already killed. The others, however "correct," must bear the blame for needless slaughter, both of Allied soldiers at the front and of innocent civilians behind the front. The prescription for them is not chivalry but justice.—New York Times.

Vice-President Wallace Supports Connecticut Lady Candidate

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(CP)—Vice-President Henry Agard Wallace will go down in American history as a man of vision, an able Secretary of Agriculture during his chief's first term, a Liberal who took philosophically his rejection by the Conservative wing of his party at the Chicago convention last June.

But he stepped out of character last night and, proved beyond dispute that he is a man of courage.

While President Roosevelt and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey were putting on the main show in last night's presidential election campainging, Mr. Wallace went to Bridgeport, Conn., to aid the cause of Miss Margaret Connors, pretty, brunette Bridgeport lawyer who is the Democratic candidate for representative from the fourth district. The vice-president boldly trod where no man previously had dared to raise his voice.

Mr. Wallace spoke at a rally on the Old Mill Green and, incidentally disclaimed any intention of telling Connecticut folk how to vote in the election in which Miss Connors is seeking to unseat Mrs. Clare Boothe Luce, the playwright and author who is seeking re-election on the Republican ticket.

Terming Mrs. Luce a "sharp-tongued glamor girl of 40," he took the bit in his teeth and affectionately termed Miss Connors a "solidly-built Irish girl of 29."

Said Mr. Wallace.

"Both girls play tennis but if there were to be a match between them I would advise those of you who want to bet to lay your money on Maggie.

"If there were to be a debate between them I would back Maggie. Maggie is Irish and no Clara Brokaw Luce can beat the fighting Irish."

(Throughout, Mr. Wallace referred to Mrs. Luce as "Clara" and to Miss Connors as "Maggie.")

Comparing Mrs. Luce with "the common women who have to think straight to get their work done," Mr. Wallace described the Congresswoman as "this glamor woman of Broadway and Sunday Magazine and wise-cracking fame who sometimes when running around the country without a mental protector puts her dainty foot in her pretty mouth."

"Clara," he said, "in her secret yearnings sees herself as the Marie Antoinette of the Bourbons. Marie Antoinette Luce proudly disdains anyone who is not of Royal American blood.

Bracken Wants Ralston To Talk

OTTAWA, Nov. 4 — (CP) — John Bracken, National Progressive Conservative leader, said last night in a statement that there was a "clear obligation" on Hon. J. L. Ralston or Prime Minister Mackenzie King to "tell the Canadian people the truth about the reinforcement situation."

Commenting on Col. Ralston's resignation as defence minister, Mr. Bracken said:—

"Following the trip (overseas) which Mr. Ralston took for the purpose of getting all the facts, there is a clear obligation on one or other of these men to tell the Canadian people the truth about the reinforcement situation.

"The urgency for giving the information has only been emphasized by Mr. Ralston's resignation. . .

"The people of Canada are deeply concerned and desire to be told the truth — be it good or bad — in the frankest possible terms by one or other or both of these men."

Paris Happy Over Churchill Visit

PARIS, Nov. 4 — (CP-Reuter) — News that Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden of Britain are to visit Paris shortly was acclaimed to-day by the Paris press.

"The visit signifies the solidity of the alliance which unites both nations and which has never ceased to manifest itself, despite the reverses of the last four years, especially through the agreements between Britain and the Free French" was a typical view.

(It as announced in London last night that the Prime Minister and Mr. Eden would visit France at the invitation of Gen De Gaulle, the date of the visit to be arranged later. Mr. Eden at present is in Italy, but is expected home in the next few days.

(Except for Mr. Churchill's visits since D-Day to Normandy, this will be the first time he has visited France since the tragic days of 1940.)

N.B. Legion Endorses Views Of President

SAINT JOHN, N.B. Nov. 4 — (CP).—The executive council of the Canadian Legion's New Brunswick Command has telegraphed the general secretary of the Dominion Command, endorsing views expressed by the Dominion president, Alex Walker, in a recent address at Verdun, Que.

"We view with alarm a press despatch that there is a possibility of the home defence army being released for urgent civilian duties," said the telegram. "As the casualty lists suggest the need, we urge that strong pressure be exerted on the government to have these men sent overseas."

Mr. Walker had said that "if keeping the home defence troops in Canada is the price of unity in the Dominion, the the price of unity is too high."

St. Mike's Win 6-Man Game

BELLEVILLE, Nov. 4.—St. Michael's Academy senior interscholastic gridders virtually cinched first place in the Bay of Quinte senior six-man football race by beating Albert College 24-5. The win was the fourth in succession for the Irish, who haven't been defeated this season.

St. Mike's went to the air in eliminating Albert, Quarterback Dick Fitzpatrick pitching four touchdown passes, two to Jerry Moher and one each to Doug Green and Bob Lucy. The latter also ran 40 yards to haul the Irish out of serious difficulties earlier in the game.

Wilson and McAulay collaborated for a safety touch to run the score up. Albert opened the scoring with a safety touch, which was followed by three single points booted by Kennie Lindsay. The powerful St. Mike's line held firmly every time Albert moved into potential scoring position.

St. Michael's Academy—Quarter, Fitzpatrick; halves, Moher and G. Wilson; centre, Green; ends, Lucy and R. Wilson; subs, Donovan, McAulay and Duffy.

For Sunday, November 5

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a most propitious one, with great excitement and high tempo, probably in connection with celebrations for promotion, public honors, tokens of approbation from superiors and those in authority, wtih celebrations in home, social and religious or cultural groups. Probably such functions may be the culmination of application and industry, with rewards.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year in which their dearest hopes may be expected to materialize. There may be honors, promotion, public acclaim, coming as the culmination of serious and faithful effort in all its relations and obligations. Romance and travel may also reward unusual performance in many clever and varied ambitions and objectives.

A child born on this day may possess many and varied talents, which may be steadily developed by its own application and hard work, winning place and honors as its reward. Romance should not be lacking in this useful career.

For Monday, November 6

Monday's astrological forecast is for a routine state of affairs, in which any important transactions may be developed easily, quietly and probably in behind-the-scenes activities. An element of the secret and subtle prevails with intrigue and subtle understanding and collaboration. Small changes may be needed, but these should be wisely considered. Be prudent in private affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may have a rather routine year, with matters of importance quietly or secretly pursued, with unique or subtle methods or undercover developments and associations. Some slight changes may be called for but these should be given due analysis and not [illegible]vely grasped. In the domestic [illegible]al or affectional relations use tact and gracious approach.

"I'll Show Him" Doc Hall Avers

DR. LEN HALL

Dr. Len Hall, the Californian clumper who has been storming around the ring here for weeks and demanding a head-line match with Whipper Billy Watson has at last been given his wish and will meet the British Empire champ at the Brock St. Arena. "I'll show him a few new ones," the elated Hall declares, intimating that Watson will think Wild Bill Longson a novice in using the pile-driver. The elongated Joe Christie will battle Babe Zaharias of the famous Greek wrestling family in the preliminary and Joe Maich and Bill Stack of Bowmanville will provide an all-Canadian opener.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

When you read this paragraph there will be still time for you to hike over to Riverside Park and see Peterborough juniors battle the strong Toronto Balmy Beach juniors in a football battle that should be as good as anything so far staged here this season. The Bammies with a big squad arrived in town at noon and are a capable looking bunch of young athletes who will probably prove decidedly tough opposition for Rich Jackson's proteges in this afternoon's clash. The Toronto kids get good coaching and in addition have opportunties of seeing senior clubs perform and in that respect have a big advantage over outside teams in centres where nothing but junior and school football is played. However the Peterborough team feels that it has benefitted from the experience gained in battling the two Toronto squads who have played here this season and that it will be able to turn in its best effort of the fall this afternoon. The game was billed to start at 2.15 o'clock at Riverside Park and rates the biggest attendance of the season. It will all be needed for the Peterborough club is under heavy expense in bringing the Balmy Beach outfit here.

Toronto Maple Leafs play the Boston Bruins in Toronto tonight and there doesn't seem to be anything to prevent the Leafs from hanging up their fourth straight win. Andy Lytle has christened the Boston outfit the "Ruins" and while that may be stretching things a bit the Rossmen certainly do not look overly strong. As a matter of fact the first week's play in the N.H.L. would seem to indicate that the Leafs, Detroit Red Wings and the Canadiens are the only clubs in the loop of anything like pre-war strength. Connie Smythe who is a realist and has been rather amazed at the attendance records being set up in spite of the below-standard hockey hits the nail on the head when he says he believes the Maple Leaf management could stage a flea circus in the Gardens and get a sellout. A crop of new fans with their war-job money burning holes in their pockets represent a pushover for the hockey magnates. The N.H.L. may be 50 per cent made up of weak sisters but the new customers don't seem to be worrying about that. They pay $2.50 for a seat in the blues and are tickled to be able to do it.

Cossa Resumes

The P.C.V.S. football authorities have been informed that the Cossa football championship series, dormant for several years, has been revived and will be played this season. The semi-final schedule that has been drawn up calls for the Lake Shore group winners to meet the Bay of Quinte title-holders while the champions of the Georgian Bay and of the Niagara Peninsula conferences will meet in the other bracket. These games are to be sudden-death affairs to be played on November 18 and the winners will clash in the finals on the following Saturday, November 25 in Toronto. The Lake Shore group, is of course, the Oshawa-Bowmanville-Lindsay, Peterborough setup. Just what will take place in the Bay of Quinte conference is not yet clear. Belleville, once one of the strongest football centres in that section of the province has been content to play the six-man brand for the last few years but may dig up a 12-man club to meet the Tweed district winners, although there is nothing definite on that point yet.

* * * * * *

As for the Lake Shore group the time element may enter into the picture. Everything depends on the P.C.V.S. showing in their game at Bowmanville this afternoon and against Oshawa here next Saturday. If the Peterborough students can clear up both those games they will be group winners and will be ready for action in the Cossa playoffs two weeks from today. But should the P.C.V.S. squad lose in Bowmanville today and then take Oshawa in the game here there would be a three-cornered tie for first place between Bowmanville, Oshawa and Peterborough and in that event it would be a problem for the loop to get a winner in time to meet the Bay of Quinte representatives on November 25. The race for group honors right now is decidedly interesting and there are a number of possibilities. However events of today and next Saturday will clarify the situation. Incidentally there will be a double-header here next Saturday for the P.C.V.S. juniors will complete their season with a game with Trinity College School juniors.

A Rush For Tickets

Sale of subscribers' tickets in Oshawa had to be cut off after 1,600 had been sold, George Campbell informs the world in the following paragraph in his Oshawa Times-Gazette sport column: "Locally, there's just as much interest in the Generals as any season yet. Hockey fans on all sides are asking when the team is going to start workouts and, no doubt, the "railbirds" will be on hand next week in large numbers. Another proof of the interest here is that the sale of "subscribers' tickets" had to be cut of on Monday night. Believe it or not, but they were lined up for nearly six hours solid on Monday, "new" subscribers getting their tickets. As usual, a few of last year's subscribers just didn't bother to get down for their tickets in the two full weeks given them and now they are out of luck. The sale has been cut off, with more than 1,600 seats subscribed for this season. With each subscriber getting ticket-for-ticket when playoff time rolls around, this means an almost sure sale of 3,200 tickets. Add the pass list and tickets for the visiting team to this figure, and it's readily seen there will be very few, if any, tickets available for "general sale" when playoff time rolls around. Incidentally, this tremendous sale and what it means when playoff time comes, also means that the suuscribers had better not miss more than two schedule games, for if they lose their subscriber's rights, their chance of getting a ticket in the general sale will be not much better than finding a snowball in July."

"For years past amateur boxers have defeated their own purpose," says Ken Colling in the Belleville Ontario-Intelligencer. "There is no use cloaking under the "shamateurism" of boxing, be it in Belleville, Ottawa or Toronto. If the house warrants the scrappers should get "their expenses." However, it has always been the same situation in amateur pug circles—the boxers agree to appear and at the last minute hold out. Their system is rather effective, as they merely go into hiding fight night leaving the promoters and fans holding the well known bag. The fans soon sour, the matchmakers become panicky with the result the game not only gets a black eye, but passes into oblivion. Thereby the boxers defeat their own cause all down the line. The matchmakers should "play ball" with their fighters, but on the shoulders of the latter rests the success or failure of the game. Locally all concerned should "smarten up" as Belleville fans are fight conscious and one faction can't function without the other."

Bolster Finances

PARIS, Nov. 4 — (AP). — The government, calling upon the French to meet the country's chaotic money situation in the same spirit as they fought the battle of resistance, announced yesterday an unlimited government loan designed to reduce inflation.

Shepperton Responds To Treatment

TORONTO, Nov. 4—Shepperton is responding to treatment of a knee injury, and so satisfactory is the condition of the great Canadian-bred it is expected the horse will be back in training and return to the racing wars during the 1945 racing season.

Fred Schelke's horse proved the "hard-luck" thoroughbhed of the past Canadian racing season. Now a patient in Dr. J. H. Black's hospital on Queen St. E., Shepperton was found by X-ray examinations to have dislocated a bone in the knee of the left foreleg which, through skilful attention of Dr. Black, has been set in place. Big Shep will be fired and blistered, and then vanned to Schelke's farm at Gormley until next spring.

The dislocation, Dr. Black is convinced, occurred during the running of a sprint race at Garden State track in New Jersey last summer. Shepperton was racing to his field when a spill occurred in which a couple of horses went down, and Shepperton's rider, to avoid going down in the spill, had to pull the big chestnut horse up too sharply, and caused the dislocation. X-ray plates showed the bone had dropped down an inch.

Dislocation Adjusted

Dr. Black, assisted by his son, Henry, went to work on the son of Sun Craig and Chatwater, and by manipulating the leg succeeded in getting the bone back in place. When the bone was adjusted Dr. Black said there was a snap which could have been heard out on Queen St. Hypodermic injections are being administered to the muscles of the leg daily to cause a contraction of the muscles and keep the bone in place. The injections draw the muscles together. Shepperton, in a box stall in the Queen St. E. veterinary hospital, is walking around and enjoying his stay in hospital.

Within the next day or so Dr. Black will fire and blister Shepperton. Both knees will feel the sting of the firing irons. The veterinary said he is going to fire and blister the right knee as a precautionary measure.

Fulfilment of Dr. Black's prediction that Shepperton will return to racing next year will bring the doctor well deserved credit for his painstaking and efficient treatment of an injury which many horsemen time and again declared had brought to a close the racing career of the horse.

"He's a great horse and will be able to stand training next year," observed the "Doc" as he peered into the stall at Shepperton. After dislocating the knee, Shepperton was shipped to Hamilton. He was worked six furlongs then pulled up lame. His owner sent him to the farm and brought him back early in the fall to Dufferin Park. Shepperton was being trained for a triple win of the Canadian championship. A third win of the handicap would have added new laurels to the name horse of 1943. The injury was aggravated in the training gallops and Shepperton again showed signs of lameness. The injury baffled and worried Schelke and he called Dr. Black to examine the horse.

X-ray Reveals Injury

Schelke accepted Dr. Black's advice to send him to the hospital and have an X-ray specialist X-ray the injured knee. A number of plates were developed and the dislocated bone was plainly shown. When the treatment is completed his handlers are satisfied the horse will be all right again.

The absence of Shepperton from racing the greater part of the season was a severe blow to his owner. Earlier he had refused an offer of $25,000 for the horse. He was entered in a number of big handicaps for the autumn season in the United States, and one of the races Schelke had his eye on last spring was the Trenton Handicap, $50,000 added, which was won by Charlie Turner's Bon Jour. With a large number of the handicap horses showing the strain of the long spring and summer handicap, had Shepperton been racing he no doubt would have justified the confidence the Canadian racing public held him in by making it a real horse race for any of them across the border to defeat in the rich handicap.

Shepperton is a 5-year-old and while Fred Schelke has not made any mention of his plans for 1945 for his outstanding horse, there is reason to believe that, providing he comes back to the races next year, Shepperton will be seen in post parades in important events.

Rangers Certain To Occupy Cellar Spot

By The Canadian Press

Only one thing is certain in the National Hockey League today—that New York Rangers will occupy the cellar position, a spot they dwelt in throughout the 1943-44 season, at the close of play this week.

On the other hand, Jack Adams' speedy Detroit Red Wings have a mathematical chance of taking over first place from Toronto Maple Leafs.

To grab the leadership, however, Wings have plenty of work ahead of them as they play Canadiens, last year's Stanley Cup champions, at Montreal tonight and meet the flying Frenchmen again on home ice Sunday night. To take the lead they must win both and Leafs would have to lose to Boston Bruins at Toronto in their only week-end game tonight. Boston also plays Sunday night when they clash with Chicago Black Hawks in the Windy City. Rangers are idle.

At present Toronto leads the pack with an unbeaten record of three wins for six points. Wings are second with four points—acquired by trouncing Chicago 7-1 and Rangers 10-3—and Hawks and Canadiens are tied for third place with two points each. Boston have lost their only two games and Rangers have dropped three without a win..

Art Ross Puts War At The Top

TORONTO, Nov. 4 (CP) — Art Ross, vice-president and general manager of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, yesterday refused to express his opinion on major professional hockey in general and the 1944-45 campaign for the Stanley Cup.

"After visiting Maj. Conn Smythe (former manager of Toronto Maple Leafs who was wounded in France and now is recuperating at his home here) and seeing what the terrors of war can inflict in the way of wounds . . . . I haven't any heart for an interview on hockey conditions," Ross told a newspaper reporter.

"Why don't you go out and ask some of our young men why they won't fight for our country. Why not go out and ask some of them why they won't buy war bonds?"

"I'm sure,' he said. "the boys overseas will be much more interested in the answers to these questions than any observance I can make at this time on hockey."

One of Ross' two sons is missing in action overseas.

BOMB MENACE FADES

LONDON — (CP). — Two of London's four deep shelters which were opened during the flying bomb attacks have been closed to release full time staff for other work and to economize on fuel and electricity. Both will re-open immediately if necessary.

Here and There in Sport

Playoff dates for both the Ontario Services Football League and the Ontario Rugby Football Union were decided at a joint executive meeting last night in Toronto. The Services League title will be decided in a sudden-death game at Varsity Stadium November 11 between Hagersville R.C.A.F. and Toronto Navy. Playoffs in the O.R.F.U. will be a home-and-home total-point series between Toronto Balmy Beach and Hamilton Wildcats. The first tilt wil be in Hamilton November 11 with second in Toronto November 16.

President Will Harridge of the American League yesterday announced that through joint agreement of National and American League officers, the annual meeting of the two circuits will be held here on December 11 and 12. The inter-league meeting, called by Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis, will be held the following day. The schedule approval and regular business will be disposed of at the meetings, Harridge said.

Jockey Ted Atkinson of Toronto took the limelight at New York's Jamaica racetrack yesterday by riding his third triple in four days. Atkinson, the leading jockey of the meet, won the second race with Scotch Irish, $4.50, the third with Madlyn K., $13.00, and the fourth with Sicily, $3.90.

Joe Louis Again.

Sgt. Joe Louis, world's heavyweight champion, just returned from a tour of exhibitions for service men in England, North Africa and Italy, knocked out Johnny Denson of Indianapolis in 1:30 of the second round of a scheduled three-round exhibition at Detroit last night. Weighing 212 pounds, Louis hardly got warmed up before his flurry of blows dropped the 210-pound Denson to a sitting position which he held for the count. It was Louis' first public bout with anyone, but a sparring partner since he knocked out Abe Simon in Ne York in Mirch, 1942.

In the main bout, a scheduled 10-rounder, Jake Lamotta, New York middleweight, scored a technical knockout over George Kochan of Akron, Ohio, in the ninth round.

Sammy Law, well known in lawn bowling in Ontario, died at his home in Galt yesterday after a seven-month illness. In addition to lawn bowling, he was prominent in soccer as a player and official in the now-defunct Western Football Association.

Bisons Blank St. Louis Team

By The Canadian Press

Buffalo Bisons' 2-0 shutout of St. Louis Flyers at St. Louis last night carried them to a first-place tie in the eastern division of the American Hockey League with Hershey Bears. It was the first defeat of the season for the Flyers.

George Boothman and Len Halderson scored the goals for Buffalo, Boothman coming in early in the second period and after taking a pass from Kenny Kilrea, feinted Goalie Franks from the net and beat him with a close-in shot.

In the last minute of play, St. Louis removed the goaler and sent on six forwards and Henderson scored on the empty net after taking a pass from Gordon Davidson.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Nov. 4 — (CP). — Rumor has it that officials of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association are putting out the storm signals and preparing to take to the tornado shelters, in view of the fire-laden situation in the Quebec hockey world.

Another of those interesting situations that have occurred off and on the past few years is keeping everyone much agog as they breathlessly await word on the outcome of the battle between the Quebec Senior Hockey League and the Ottawa District A.H.A. The Q.S.H.L. officials even have threatened to don the masks, in fact become outlaws, if those Ottawa fellers won't let their teams play in the Quebec bailiewick. There even has been talk of forming a professional loop, but chances are that will blow over. For one thing, it would cost a trifle too much.

George Slater, head of the Quebec League, makes no bones of the fact he is more than a little perturbed about the whole thing. Said he impatiently: "We are so tired—we are simply fed up with the entire quibbling and nonsense hurled at our league by the C.A.H.A. and all its affiliated branches......We are prepared to travel alone."

Save face, please:

Andy Lytle of the Toronto Star tackled Boston's Art Ross on the whys and wherefores of that much-argued "military deferment" rule the league directors wrote into the regulations. Many unkind citizens said it was done to cripple Montreal Canadiens, but Ross, chairman of the Rules Committee, says not. Its purpose was to permit the league members to face the citizens of Canada and the United States with a smaller sense of shame than was customary hitherto, but he declined to say whether that had been accomplished or not. Sometimes we wonder.

Incidentally:

Montreal's Junior Canadiens are planning a barnstorming trip in the Maritimes around Christmas, if it can be arranged. They have made plans to meet a team in Saint John, N.B., and are angling for a game in Moncton, N.B.....The war picture is looking brighter to the Western Ontario Secondary Schools Association. The group plans a complete return to athletic activities, suspended for the duration in 1941 because of travelling restrictions, etc., by spring, the executives think, things will be nearer normal ....Sculler Bob Pearce suggests holding the Canadian Henley alternate years in Canadian cities which have a suitable course handy, instead of running them off every year on the Port Dalhousie, Ont., course.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4 — (AP). — After Oklahoma A. and M. licked Tulsa, 46-40, in a wild and woolly game last week, Art Griffith, one of the Aggies' assistant coaches, swore: "They ruined the game of football. I'm never going to another game." . . . Any bets on where he'll be this afternoon when the Aggies face the Norman Navy Zoomers? . . . when the Yankees drafted Herb Crompton from Toronto the other day, it was the first time they had taken a player in the draft since 1931. Then they grabbed Bots Nekola from their own farm system to keep some other club from taking him. . . .

Unnecessary Statement

Andrew Schmitz, one of Branch Rickey's associates in buying a quarter interest in the Dodgers: "As to the future, see Rickey. He is going to do all the talking for our group."

King Edward Blanks Central Team

King Edward School evened the count in the Public School Soccer championship, on Friday afternoon, when they gained a 2-0 decision over Central, after they had battled on even terms until well on the second period when K. Lawson scored from close in. They made it secure when Byers registered from a spot kick. Riches, Chambers and Byers were best for the winners; while Patterson, Brooks and Noble the losers.

The next game will be played on King Edward Park on Monday afternoon.

Opening Very Fast

In the early stages Central went on the offensive to get three flag kicks that were wasted, thereby giving King Edward boys ample time to rally against the onslaught. Byers relieved the pressure to Riches, at out-side left, his new position, in this game, and quickly asserted his presence by smartly tackling and shooting for goal while on the run. This compelled the Central full backs to play close to safe-guard their citadel. Chambers received a nice pass from Riches to find Noble, Central, nipping in to take the ball away from him. Exchanges continued even for a while with Patterson and Forbes, playing the South-end boys off-side. A throw-in by Self proved costly for Central as they thought the ball was going pass but Riches sent a low grounder into goal. Central boys claimed off-side as Lawson was lying close in on the custodian but he immediately became on-side when the custodian kick cleared.

Half Time—No scoring.

King Edward Took Lead

On resuming, King Edward boys went out to get their objective by their systematic combination that upset the Central defense because their forwards were falling back into defense instead of playing their position. This fault rewarded the winners as they tore in repeatedly to find Patterson and Forbes, responding with clever defensive tactics. Byers eventually opened up the play by swinging the ball to the wings which split the opposing full backs thereby giving Chambers and Riches frequent centres into goal. Hutchison, in goal was unbeatable. A throw-in by Self carried the ball into the corner where Riches connected with a beautiful shot into Hutchison's hands. Both full backs claimed off-sides as Lawson was lying close in on the custodian but he immediately took advantage of his position when the custodian failed to clear his charge properly thereby putting the centre-man onside to connect with a smart goal that Lawson converted right on the goal-line. Central were not discouraged as they battled hard to get the equaliser but to their amazement a penalty kick converted by Byers took the pep right out of them, for a player handling the ball in the dreaded area. They went right back again to score on an off-side decision and Central goalie had to leave his goal through injury for the remainder of the game. Brooks took his position in goal and saved a rocket drive from the foot of Byers in another penalty kick just as the whistle sounded. King Edward 2. Central 0.

Central — J. Hutchison, goal; J. Forbes and E. Patterson, full backs; H. Wilson, W. Noble and W. McKenzie, halves; K. Delahaye, D. Brooks, J. Whitnall, T. Hum and D. Dolan, forwards. Subs — G. Chambers, N. Howard and D. Campbell.

King Edward—J. Grant, goal; D. Downer and D. Breadman, full backs; R. Anderson, J. Byers and R. Self, halves; M. Chambers, P. Ferguson, K. Lawson, R. Beggs and A. Riches, forwards. Subs—D. Buchan, J. Hooper and D. Buchan.

The Official Canadian Air History of World War II

By the Historical Section of the R.C.A.F.

Introduction by Major the Honourable C. G. Power, Minister of National Defence for Air

HERE is one of the proudest and most amazing stories in Canadian history, the story of the expansion of the R.C.A.F. from a handful of men with outmoded planes to one of the finest, fastest, best-equipped flying groups in the world today. This is the story of the men themselves and their air battles in the skies of all theatres of war, from London to Rangoon.

In this book are the epics of courage written by your son and your neighbour's son, by all the men who wrote these tales in smoke and flame above a war-torn world. R.C.A.F. historians and narrative officers travelled to the earth's farthest corners to gather the smallest details. More than fifteen hundred young airmen are mentioned by name.

Mission Circle Holds Meeting

MILLBROOK, Nov. 4 — (ENS) —The thankoffering meeting of the Golden Links Mission Circle was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. W. F. Bannister, with the president Mrs. Elsie Paulson in the chair, and presenting the theme of thanksgiving. The talk on "Why a Thankoffering?" was given by Mrs. Edmund Ball, emphasizing the giving of self first to the Lord, and the worship poem "Do We Thank the Father?" was read by the leader.

Miss Marjorie Skitch brought the message on Christian Stewardship, and Miss Getby Lunn read the story of the Christian home in India. It was decided to have a social hour, with lunch served after each meeting, the next one to be at Mrs. Howard's home, with Mrs. Bannister and Mrs. D. L. Lunn as supper hostesses. The matter of having the individual members read missionary books from the Circle Bookshelf during the year so the local society may be eligible for the Presbytery banner, as discussed the hostess having donated four such books which were taken out, and to be returned at the next regular gathering.

The study book "West of the Date-Line" was introduced by Mrs. Bannister, those assisting with the material being Mrs. H. Oullette, Mrs. Gordon Muspratt, Mrs. Howard, Mrs. H. W. Gray, Misses Gladys Williamson and Jean Burnham. A tour of south-west Asia was informative and interesting, and the secretary announced that the thankoffering amounted to $14, with more envelopes to come in.

At the close Mrs. A. S. Hall and her daughter Mrs. Bannister, assisted by the other supper hostesses, served lunch. Mrs. Henry Gray, a former president of the Circle, who returned this week from the West where her husband had been stationed, was warmly welcomed. Cpl. Gray has gone to New Brunswick, where he is taking a course before his new posting.

Cook, Glasgow, Scotland, skipper of the Letitia, and formerly captain of the Athenia, welcomes aboard Lt.-Col. A. L. Cornish, of Victoria, B.C., officer commanding the Letitia. 2. Full view from the harbor of the Letitia, which is equivalent to a floating general hospital for a large Canadian city. 3. Similar to an operating room in any of Canada's larger hospitals, is inspected by Lt.-Col. S. A. Wallace, of Vancouver, B.C., chief-surgeon aboard; Major A. E. Mackenzie, Niagara Falls, Ont., anaesthetist, and Nursing Sisters A. F. Barker of Bancroft, Ont., and E. Hastings, of Toronto. The four discuss the latest in operating tables. 4. In the modern dental office, Sgt. G. Claremont, of Montreal, dental assistant, is shown preparing equipment for the first voyage. (Cdn. Army Photos)

The harvest of milkweed pods will soon begin moving toward an appointed centre for ultimate yielding of its down for use as buoyant lining of airmen's flying suits.

Major L. I Johnson, eastern Ontario director of this project, said to-day that 200,000 bags have been distributed throughout his district and they have been filled and are drying on fences, many of them decorating school properties until pick-up day. His estimate of the harvest is 200,000,000 mikweed pods, a vast pile.

"We are now arranging for gathering in the bags and paying those who filled them."

Major Johnson said "It is likely that we will have central depositing places at Apsley, Lakefield, Havelock, Ennismore, Bobcaygeon, and Peterborough. Information of the details will be announced probably next week. We are hoping to gather up the bags in another ten days or thereabouts."

BIG SNOW SHOVEL.
An item in the Board of Works report adopted Friday night, provides for the purchase of a J. I. Case motor driven sidewalk snow plow at a cost of not more than $2,700.

TO ADDRESS ROTARY.
R. S. Hosking, National Secretary of the Y.M.C.A., will address the Peterborough Rotary Club at Monday's luncheon on the subject, "What War Has Done to Our Youth."

IGNORED THE WEATHER.
Girls selling scarlet poppies in the Canadian Legion's annual appeal ignored the downpour and the rain-drenched streets this morning and reported a brisk sale in spite of the disagreeable weather.

VIOLETS BLOOM
There seems to be no end to the reports of flowers blooming in this November season, and the latest, is that of wood violets, showing their gorgeous coloring despite the fact they came, and should have gone, with the springtime. The flowers were discovered in the garden by Miss Marie Harris, Perry St. This is another example of having all the rules in the horticultural book upset by Mother Nature.

MUST BE TESTED.
Direction to Chief Gimblett to have the pumpers tested in operation at least once a month "to make sure they are in full working order," was pointed in the Fire and Light committee report adopted by the council Friday night. It also provided for street lights, one on Stewart street between Simcoe and Charlotte, and the other on Donegal street between Park Hill Road and Dublin street.

WELCOMED "HOME"
Mayor Hamilton welcomed Alderman Cotton back to the sessions of the council Friday night with expression of pleasure at his improved appearance of regaining health. The chairman of the finance committee timed his return for one of the most important meetings in the council's century, particularly in the drafting of a by-law proposing to spend $1,400,000 on a civic hospital.

CITY'S APPRECIATION
"We were all very sorry to hear of the passing of one who made a great contribution to the life of this city, the late H. R. H. Kenner," said Alderman Dutton introducing a resolution of sympathy to be sent to Mrs. Kenner and son Hugh Kenner, conveying the council's sympathy and also "our appreciation of the fine service he rendered to Peterborough". The resolution was seconded by Alderman Swanston.

PLAYGROUND ENQUIRY
Alderman Curtis as chairman of the parks and rinks committee was authorized by the council Friday night to enquire into and also to secure a playground property in the vicinity of Aylmer and Wolsley streets. The rink property on Aberdeen avenue has been put to other use, and a substitute has to be located. The Aylmer-Wolsley corner, is likely to be considered as a playground for children of that section.

CROWDS SEE ROBOT.
Large crowds were present to see the rebuilt Nazi flying bomb which was exhibited on the Market Square on Friday from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. The bomb, on its way through from Montreal to Toronto, where it is due to-day, made a short stop over here. This secret weapon, which caused such heavy damage in Britain, was 200 feet long and had a wing spread of 16 feet, and without its load of explosives weighs about 2 tons. It was assembled from parts of actual robots that landed in Great Britain by the newly formed Royal Canadian Electrical Maintenance Engineers.

ON SAINT JOHN
Stoker 1, Gerald Longhurst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Longhurst, 516 Aylmer street, is a member of the crew of the frigate HMCS St. John, which it was announced Friday, helped sink a U-boat. The Admiralty congratulated the men and they were given special credit for tenacity.

WILLING TO HELP
Gordon H. Munro of Peterborough Lumber Company wrote the council Friday night proferring to cooperate with the city in any sewerage developments from Ashburnham to the west side of the river in the vicinity of the narrows at Burnham's-McDonald's Points. A motion by Aldermen Glover and Bradburn expressed appreciation of the company's interest.

ADJOURNS TO 20th
City council adjourned Friday night until Monday, November 20, skipping the thirteenth not for any jinx connection but partly because several of the members belong to the hunting crowd and are taking off to make life miserable for inoffensive deer. Absentees will likely include Mayor Hamilton, Aldermen Bradburn and Swanston. Another factor is the lifting of the weight and pressure of business.

Assault Planned On Court House

A realistic glimpse of war will be presented for Peterborough citizens this Wednesday afternoon beginning at one oclock, when 138 young, trained soldiers from Camp Borden will fight a sham battle on the grounds in front of the County Courthouse, storm the building itself and capture Mayor Hamilton and other city officials. Smoke bombs, bayonets, guns and other military equipment will be brought into play, in order to give people an idea at first-hand how the money they spend on Victory Bonds wil go to work for Canada.

All of the soldiers taking part in the mock battle are from the A10 Training Centre, Camp Borden, and while giving demonstrations, are under the command of Captain Baillie. They are all under 19 years of age, unable to go overseas because of that, but still fully trained in the art of defence and offence. The little army is giving demonstrations in other cities in Ontario, and in Montreal. Peterborough will have an opportunity to see the sham battle, because this city is on the route of the soldiers from Camp Borden to points east.

Peterborough Visitors Held For Vagrancy

Four visitors to Peterborough, Patrick Watson, Toronto, Prospra Levigne and Gerald Kirkey, Cornwall and Mrs. Joan Gardner, Montreal faced charges of vagrancy in police court this morning after having been arrested by city police Friday night.

Alleged suspicious actions in Elliott's drug store resulted in the apprehension of the four and police intimate that other charges will follow.

Mrs. Gardner and Levigne were arrested in the drug store by Constable Gordon Trennum and Kirkey was picked up a little later in a restaurant by Constable W. A. Clarke. Watson was arrested in a hotel by Constable Trennum.

All four accused pleaded not guilty this morning and at the request of the police were remanded until Monday. Only Mrs. Gardner asked for bail and it was fixed in her case at $500.

Harold Brooks, charged with drunkenness, was also remanded until Monday.

Two Acquitted

VERVIERS, Belgium, Nov. 4 — (AP). — Two Belgium civilians accused of harboring German soldiers, the first to face trial under Allied occupation law on charges serious enough to provide the death penalty, were acquitted last night — on the plea that they had merely been carrying out directions issued by the Allied Propaganda Organization.

Owing to the unsettled condition of the livestock market, there will be no shipments of cattle, calves or sheep until near the end of the month.

Memorial Centre Canvass Totals $205,816

In cash and pledges the treasury of Peterborough's Community Memorial Centre amount to $205,816.35 as reported today by John E. Keyes, chairman of its finance committee.

Sectional contributions show the following amounts: —

Manufacturers	$111,060.00
Employees	47,107.75
Merchants	18,419.85
Special names	18,430.00
City canvass	10,377.75
"Neighbors"	431.00
Total	$205,816.35

If the rest of the community had matched that total from Peterborough's manufacturing interests, the Community Centre campaign would have been an "ultra" success. Citizens feel that the results have been something like excellent, but it is the fact of many a dodging dollar having escaped the canvass or sneaked around corners that leaves a little feeling of disappointment—in a community that should not be satisfied with anything less than perfection.

Said Mr. Keyes: "Approximately 70 per cent of the total shown in this statement has already been paid in cash into the treasury. Records are balanced to the cent, and we are now mailing receipts for cash paid by subscribers."

The group described as "neighbors" includes a few good friends of Peterborough in Bethany, old baseball rival, Keene, Lakefield, Warsaw, Bridgenorth, Buckhorn, Lakehurst. Their contributions amounted to $431.

The rural district of Peterborough seems to be uninterested in the Peterborough Memorial Centre. From other than Mr. Keyes it was reported at the close of the canvass that three thousand letters had been sent out to county residents with such a slim response that the hope of some agricultural support was almost a complete failure. It was seed that fell by the wayside with the exception of a few generous subscriptions.

Presumably, every subscriber to the Memorial Centre Fund will be reminded that pledges should be paid on the dot. Most of them were given for a twenty-week period, and it is sincerely hoped that this promise of financial help will be carried out to the last dollar.

Another expectation is that during this month the supporters of the Memorial Centre will become propagandists for success of the $75,000 bylaw at the polls on December 4.

Pte. John K. Guerin Slightly Wounded

Pte John Kenneth Guerin, brother of Mrs. Marion O'Toole, 566 Rogers Street, has been reported slightly wounded, October 24, while serving with the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders in Belgium.

Pte. Guerin, who enlisted in 1942, went overseas in July as a despatch rider with the Transport Corps, later transferring to the Highlanders. Prior to enlisting, he worked for a short time with the C.P.R. in Peterborough. A brother Sgt. Emmett Guerin was killed in Italy a few months ago. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Guerin, formerly of Clifton Street.

Council Punctilious In Answering Letters

Mayor Hamilton and the members of the council rarely, if ever, neglect to make some acknowledgment of letters and other forms of communication. Whatever else the council may do it tries to follow the ways of courtesy in its public relations.

After the twin hospital questions had been disposed of last night, it was suggested that "we should write St. Joseph's hospital board and tell them what we have done."

Alderman Dutton's motion, seconded by Alderman Swanston, expressed regret that "we are unable to accede to the request of St. Joseph's Hospital to submit their proposal as part of the civic hospital bylaw; but we are willing to submit a separate bylaw and promise to use our efforts for its passing."

14,000 Quarts Of Milk To Go Overseas

More than 14,000 quarts of milk are destined for the children of bomb-ravaged Britain, as a result of hundreds of Peterborough boys and girls going "all out" for the Milk For Britain plan, while enjoying the traditional fun of Hallowe'en, through the Kinsmen Club's Hallowe'en Shell-Out. Approximately 150,000 Milk For Britain tickets were sold and every ten tickets meant one quart of milk for overseas.

Wins First Prize

Stan MacLeod, chairman of the War Services Committee, of the Peterborough Kinsmen Club, directed the work of this city's effort, and all across Canada, Kinsmen Clubs have sponsored and organized the Shell-Out, which will mean thousands upon thousands of quarts of milk starting on their way across an ocean, where it is vitally needed.

Thirteen Peterborough schools took part in selling the Milk For Britain tickets, with a total of 1,907 school children participating. The Kinsmen Club has donated prizes for those selling the most tickets, and extra prizes for notable work done by schools.

Wins First Prize

Edward Armstrong, of May's School, was awarded first prize of a windbreaker and parka, in the city-wide contest among students, for selling a total of 1,100 tickets. This one Peterborough public school student alone, helped send 110 quarts of milk to children in Britain.

For his work in selling 732 tickets, Clayton Boake, also of May's School, won second prize, a windbreaker. Third prize was awarded Adele Sheehy, of St. Mary's Convent, who sold 711 tickets.

Central School was awarded first prize by the Kinsmen Club, in competitions among city schools, for having the largest sale of tickets per student participating in the Shell-Out plan. With 109 pupils taking an active part in the work of helping others, 14,500 tickets were sold, making a grand average of 133 tickets sold by every participating child. In view of the fact that many of the smaller schools made such a splendid showing, a special prize was given to Queen Elizabeth School, in recognition of having the highest average sale for each student based on enrolment. With 83 students enrolled at the school, a total of 3,900 tickets were sold, making an average of 47 tickets per pupil.

Prince of Wales School was awarded a special prize for the largest number of students taking part in the sales, which was 266, and also for having the largest sale of tickets of any school in the city, 23,077.

Recognize Efforts

In addition to all other prizes, the Kinsmen Club did not forget the hundreds of children who sold many tickets, but did not quite reach the sales peak to win a prize. This morning, through the co-operation of the Centre, Capitol and Regent theatres, 1,347 Peterborough boys and girls, who each sold at least 50 tickets, were treated to a full program of entertainment.

Apart from the students who won city-wide contests, the boy or girl who sold the most tickets in each school participating was awarded a prize. Here are the names and the number of tickets they sold: Jack Forbes, of Central School, sold 600 tickets; Howard Johnston, Queen Alexandra, 595; Barabara Bacon, Immaculate Conception, 500; John G. Gerow, King George, 500; Ronald Deck, Prince of Wales, 461; Robert Welsh Queen Elizabeth, 435 June Crowther, King Edward, 412; Beatrice Moher, St. Mary's Convent, 400; Kenneth Floyd, Confederation, 325; Peter Ferrin, St. Peter's Junior School, 275; Bill Savage, Queen Mary, 272; Yvonne Glenn, May's School, 219; and Barry Thirnbeck, Sacred Heart, 160.

Objectives Reached By Smaller Plants

Tmployees of Scott Lumber Co. subscribed 273 per cent of their objective of this Victory Loan, and all hands invested.

The staff of Card and Paper Works Limited secured 122 per cent of their objective with 100 per cent investing. From J. J. Duffus Co. came a report of 100 per cent of objective and 96 per cent investing.

Memorial Gifts To Give Cheer This Christmas

All people living in these present days are influenced to some extent by what has happened in the past, which whether they would or not, do act as an influence or guide to a great many things of the future, both in a personal and public way.

This influence of the past is very apparent in many ways, this being shown through various days set aside for celebration purposes, each bringing their own influence to bear upon the lives of those living in this present age, of which the universal marking of Christmas Day in a festive way stands out in supreme prominence.

In a sense this is really a memorial of the greatest event in the history of the human family, which has never dimmed, but really has gained in influence and inspiration down through the ages, from the time of its actual recording nearly two thousand years ago.

In this, the sacrifice of individuals for others stands out in bold relief, this being the keynote of its celebration, which in these latter days finds a more widespread reflection in the acts of goodwill for others, than all the rest of the previous outstanding events in history put together.

Hero's Memory Honored

About four year's ago, P.O. Ross Allen, a young citizen numbered among the flower of the manhood of this country, died in its defence, contributing his share in its highest sense towards the victory which now appears on the horizon, thereby attaining an immortal lustre that the passage of the years should never dim.

To have goodness continue in his name of glorious memory would seem one of the finest memorials possible, and so today a gift it recorded in the records of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund to his memory, to go on its way to carry goodness and cheer to the war torn sufferers in the British Isles, whom he took a part in defending a few years ago.

Then, in similar vein, another contribution of like proportions is given "In remembrance of John," for the same purpose, while three other gifts take a part in this blessed work of giving cheer at Christmastide to those whom the misfortunes of war have dealt hardly with.

These include the "Wednesday Night Sewing Club," the proceeds of a quiz program listed as "A Friend" and the penny box at the Bell Telephone Co. Ltd. Office on Hunter street, which continues its good work to the tune of another $4.00 to cashier Bert Conley's delight, making a total of $135.58 that now goes to its credit.

O. A. Langley 30 Years As Magistrate

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., has completed 30 years as a magistrate in Peterborough county.

Thirty years ago he was sworn in before Judge E. C. S. Huycke as county magistrate, succeeding the late Magistrate George Edmison. Some years after he became city magistrate as well, as a successor to the late D. W. Dumble.

There have been many changes in the law enforcement personnel in the three decades since His Worship first sat on the bench in county police court.

The late R. E. Wood and G. W. Hatton were Crown attorneys before the advent of the present incumbent of the office, V. J. McElderry, K.C.

There were no provincial police officers stationed here then, and the police work in the county was looked after by the late High County Constable, George Cochrane, with assistance from the city police.

Daniel Thompson was Chief Constable of the Peterborough police department at the time Magistrate Langley was appointed.

His Worship in recalling some of the events of his 30 years on the bench yesterday said that he had some very interesting cases during that time. "And a lot of foolish ones, too," he remarked.

O. A. LANGLEY, K.C.

One of the most intriguing cases was the preliminary inquiry in murder charges against five Russians for the shooting of a man in the bunkhouse of the rock quarry near Havelock.

Magistrate Langley recalled that one of the features of that case that he always remembered was the microscopic marking of the bullets entered as exhibits that had been made by Dr. Thompson who was a witness in the case.

One of the best prepared cases, he thought, was the one involving the safe-cracking at the C.D.S. store. That had impressed him as one of the best examples of police co-operation that he remembered, with Sgt. Detective Nimo and Detective Ed. Tong of the Toronto police department assisting the local police.

Pauline Blewett Wed In Lakefield

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a floor-length gown of white bridal satin, with fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, full sleeves coming to points over the hands, and a flowing skirt with a long train. Her veil of Italian embroidered net was caught to a halo with orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

WHO SHOULD LOVE MORE?

More Important, Matrimonially Speaking, That Wife Should Be The Adorer

A girl asks: "In marriage which should love the more, the husband or the wife?" The French have a proverb which says that in love one kisses and the other permits himself or herself to be kissed. This goes double for marriage and whether it is better to be the kisser or the kissee is a matter open to discussion.

There are two schools of thought on the subject. One contends that a man should be more in love with his wife than she is with him, because all the conditions of life tend to separate him or her, whereas they serve to draw her closer to him.

On the other hand, the opponents to this theory assert that it makes for domestic felicity for the wife to be the one who love more, because the woman who has gotten the man she wants is satisfied and happy. She sees no flaw in her paragon and spends her life contentedly burning incense at the feet of her little tin god.

Personally, I am inclined to agree with the point of view that it is better for the wife to be the adorer instead of the adored, not only because it is always more blessed to give than to receive, but because the love motif plays so much bigger part in a woman's life than a man's. Therefore, it is important, matrimonially speaking, that she should have her heart's desire, than that he should have his.

Takes Things For Granted

After marriage, when a couple settles down to the ordinary run of domesticity, the average husband doesn't bother much about the state of either his affections or his wife's. He takes it for granted that he is still the hero of her girlish dreams and so long as she is a good housekeeper and pleasant to get along with, everything is O.K. by him. He isn't forever wondering if his heart-throbs are more frequent than hers and taking the temperature of her kisses to see whether they have cooled off or not.

But it is far otherwise with the woman. From the altar to the grave, the wife is preoccupied with her emotions. Her favorite diversion is vivisecting them and trying to determine whether her husband's footsteps send her blood pressure up or just leave her sub-normal. She can't take marriage as is, as a man does. She has to have some fireworks in it. And so she is only happy when she can make a lifework out of worshipping her husband and serving him.

But, paradoxical as it sounds, while the wife gets more happiness out of marriage in loving than in being loved, it is better for the bridegroom to be more in love than the bride, for her starts off with practically all the sentiment he is ever going to have, while she adds to hers as she goes along. Not many husbands every fall in love with their wives, but millions of wives fall in love with their husbands. Which is the woman of the thing.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP

We are going to continue our pie recipes to-day as space would not permit our giving you all we wanted to yesterday.

English Deep-Dish Apple Pie

6 to 8 tart, juicy apples, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon butter, ¼ cup water, 1 teaspoon cinnamon or nutmeg if desired.

Invert a heavy china cup or a custard cup in the centre of a baking dish, two or three inches deep. Line the sides of the dish with strips of pie paste, letting the paste come a little above the edge of the dish. Do not put any paste on the bottom. Fill with apples, pared, cored and cut in slices. Add sugar, spice and water and dot with bits of butter. Cover the dish with pie paste, slashed to allow steam to escape and pinch its edges to the edge of the paste that lines the sides of the dish. Bake for three-quarters of an hour, or, until the apples are thoroughly cooked, in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) for 10 minutes, then 425 degrees for 30 minutes longer. Serve hot with hard sauce.

Sour Cream Pie.

1½ cups sour cream, 2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon cloves. ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 4 tablespoons flour, ½ cup chopped raisins, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 tablespoons sugar.

Scald one cup of the cream in a double boiler. Mix egg yolks, spices, flour and remaining cream and add slowly to the hot mixture. Cook 15 minutes. Add raisins and vanilla. When partly cooled, pour into a baked crust. Cover with meringue made from stiffly-beaten egg whites and sugar. Brown in a slow oven.

Mock Mince Meat

6 green tomatoes, 6 apples, ¼ pound seedless raisins, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, ¼ cup fruit juice, ¼ cup vinegar, ½ cup citron, 1 orange rind, 1 teaspoon salt, 1½ teaspoon cloves, ½ teaspoon allspice, ½ teaspoon ginger, ¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg.

Chop tomatoes, apples and raisins. Add other ingredients in order given and cook until thick. This amount should make three pies.

Theatre Helps People Forget Unhappy Lives

The value of the theatre as a medium of relaxation and enjoyment, and its inherent qualities, which have helped it to survive throughout the centuries, were discussed by Robertson Davies, addressing the opening meeting for the season of the Women's Art Association. Mr. Davies' topic, "Some Aspects of the Theatre", proved vividly interesting to the Association, which met Friday afternoon in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A.

The speaker introduced his topic by bringing attention to the fact that while Winston Churchill was in Moscow, he and Marshal Joseph Stalin "took an evening off", and went to the ballet. He said that he felt the two leaders showed unusual wisdom, since, after an entertaining and relaxing evening, they went back to their discussions refreshed, restored, and enlivened.

"Why has the theatre continued to thrive and exist through adversity for the 3,000 years of which we have knowledge, and no doubt much longer?" the speaker questioned. He reasoned that it fulfills two impulses which are deep in every human heart: a desire to tell people about what they have done in an exciting and interesting way; and a desire to enter into the life of another person.

Explaining that everyone feels that he had not received the best from life, that his abilities have been overlooked, and that injustice more often triumphs, Mr. Davies said that the theatre provided an escape. If he wishes, a man can go to a play and see right triumph, and villainy punished, and everything turn out happily, as it less often does in real life. He continued by explaining that, depending upon his mood, one can go to a play and see the suffering of great and noble people in unjust circumstances, as provided by tragedies, or can enter into a romantic and fanciful mood by attending a comedy.

Great Attraction

Mr. Davies went on to say that the theatre's power to help one lose oneself and enter into the life of a character portrayed on the stage, was one of its unperishable qualities, which had enabled it to rise again when to all appearances it had been stamped out. He cited as a prime example, England in the time of the Commonwealth. "Yet" he continued, "with the return of Charles the second, the theatre sprang up against almost overnight, more vivid and brilliant than ever before."

Mr. Davies felt that this quality was also the essential difference between the legitimate theatre and the movies, and the reason why the theatre had met the challenge presented by the movies. "Movies are always exactly the same", he said. "There's something mechanical about them that cannot match the feeling that something is being created before your eyes, which the audience senses when watching a stage performance."

"In addition", he continued, "the audience's feelings and reactions are reflected in the players." Speaking from his experience and observations in the theatre, Mr. Davies said that a lively audience could improve a performance immeasurably, since the actors sensed their approbation, while a hostile and apathetic audience could dampen the whole spirit of the play, and the players.

Applause is Spur

"There is a stronger relationship between people that science has not been able to explain, yet most people will admit that it does exist" he went on, "and the relationship between actors and audiences is very strong." Since you help to make the play, it can be very satisfying, whereas in the movies, your feelings have no influence on the performance." He said that applause always spurred an actor on to finer achievement, and that an appreciative audience always helped the artists. "However, the audience also benefits", Mr. Davies explained. He said, "We keep ourselves alive by our contact with the arts, and need the emotional stimulus they provide."

On the topic of Canada's need for a national theatre, Mr. Davies felt that it should be built up through amateur theatrical agencies, providing a chance for interested people to learn about the theatre, and gain experience. Quoting conversations he had enjoyed with several Canadian-born artists, he said that they had explained that they would much have preferred to stay in Canada, but that opportunities were lacking. He urged that Canadians begin at the bottom and work up, using plays from other countries at first, so that, with the growth of the theatre, Canadian writers would be encouraged to express themselves.

Mrs. N. D. Seaton, who introduced Mr. Davies, warmly thanked him on behalf of the Association. On behalf of the president, Mrs. J. E. R. Munro, who was unable to be present, Mrs. Seaton welcomed the members, and discussed the year's program. Mrs. C. H. Saunders spoke briefly about the introduction of the labelling rulings, and said that literature on the subject could be obtained at the close of the meeting.

THE DR. CHASE CAMPAIGN FOR NATIONAL HEALTH

What is the Secret of Family Health

One family is always healthy. In the next family there seem to always be someone sick.

Why?

It used to be customary to blame this condition on heredity.

But recent investigations show that far more depends on living and eating habits.

The underlying cause of low vitality is often traceable to a lack of vitamin B_1 and essential minerals derived from the food consumed.

As a result whole families may be found to be subject to a low condition of health which leaves them prey to serious and annoying ailments.

More and more intelligent thinking people are learning to depend on Dr. Chase's Nerve Food as a "pick-me-up" to help them out of a low condition of vitality.

It is usually the mother in the home who is largely responsible for the family health and most mothers know about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and what it can do to help restore richness to the blood and vigor to the nervous system.

In most families, these days, there are excesses of work, worry and anxiety which overtax the nerves and cause headaches, irritability, loss of sleep and indigestion.

But these troubles do not need to get you down if you let Dr. Chase's Nerve Food help you.

Ask for the new economy size bottle of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and set it on the dining table along with the salt and pepper shakers so everyone who needs it may get his after meal supply of vitamin B_1 and food minerals.

$600,000 Civic Hospital Bylaw To Be Placed Before Ratepayers

For the proposed civic general hospital the municipal electors will be asked to approve the borrowing of $600,000 as finally determined by the council Friday night.

On a motion by Alderman Sands, chairman of the council's special hospital committee, seconded by Alderman Dutton, the division in committee of the whole on the second reading of the bylaw authorizing the issuing of debentures for the required money was 7-2, the affirmative group being Mayor Hamilton, Aldermen Cotton, Ovens, Glover, Sands, Dutton and Swanston.

Alderman Bradburn had moved an amendment for $500,000, seconded by Alderman Mark, but they failed to attract any supporters to their proposal. Alerman Sullivan did not vote on the amendment and the motion.

A statement by City Treasurer Shaver informed the council that the tax levy for $600,000 would be 1.40 mills for twenty years, and for $500,000 the corresponding rate would be 1.26 mills.

Two bylaws passed Friday night related to the civic hospital project, one providing authority to borrow the money needed for the hospital, and the other directing a vote of the electors be taken on the question of their assent to that borrowing of $600,000.

In committee of the whole on the money raising bylaw, Mayor Hamilton suggested that the first point to be discussed was the request of the board of St. Joseph's Hospital for the inclusion in the civic hospital bylaw of a clause permitting the council to pay to St. Joseph's an annual grant of $3,350 for twenty years toward the cost of constructing a 52-bed addition to that hospital at an estimated outlay of $250,000. The board of St. Joseph's Hospital in their request to the finance committee of the council Wednesday night asked that in the event of their clause being unacceptable the question of the proposed annual grant be not submitted separately to the electors.

Single Question

Reporting the substance of an interview with the Ontario Municipal Board Thursday afternoon by Mayor Hamilton, City Clerk Outram and himself on the legality of incorporating the St. Joseph's Hospital grant in the civic hospital bylaw of reference to the voters, Alderman Sands said the resulting opinion was that the two questions should not be "tied together." The civic hospital bylaw referred to the issuing of debentures, and the St. Joseph's Hospital Board proposal involved an annual grant out of the current municipal revenues.

Alderman Sands said the deputation was reminded that the Municipal Board does not give advice on such matters, but from the discussion with the Board and subsequently with Hon. George Dunbar, Minister of Municipal Affairs, and Hon. Dr. R. P. Vivian, Minister of Health, the only conclusion to be presented to the council was that it would be wise, to consider the two proposals as separate items.

"A Fair Request"

Mayor Hamilton: "I feel that the one is so different from the other that it is not fair to ask the people to vote on a bylaw in which the two questions were linked together. I say that with great hesitation, because I know the Board of St. Joseph's would like them to go together. I think their request is very fair, and I think both bylaws would carry."

Alderman Dutton: "I feel inclined to agree with Mayor Hamilton in the light of the report we have heard. I feel that this is not acting unfairly to the Board of St. Joseph's. I feel their request is a modest one, and if it is submitted in the manner now suggested, separate from the civic hospital bylaw, that the people would see that it is reasonable. I would be greatly surprised if it did not pass. We have had very cheap hospitalization in Peterborough up to the present. It has been carried on largely through the generosity of persons to both institutions. I think it would be unfortunate if the request of St. Joseph's Board is now withdrawn. I feel that everyone here wants to see both bylaws carry. I would be prepared to support any movement that has in mind the submission of both questions."

Alderman Curtis interjected from the chair the reminder that the committee was dealing with the important detail of the amount of money to be set forth in the civic hospital debenture bylaw.

Alderman Glover said he agreed that Peterborough had been provided with low cost hospitalization, and the securing of a 52-bed addition to St. Joseph's at an annual cost of $3,750 was probably the lowest charge for such accommodation that could be expected from any source. "From the opinions we have got from our City Solicitor and others, it seems that the two questions cannot be voted on at the same time. I would like to see the other question put to the voters. Surely the people have enough business sense to take care of something that would give us a splendid bargain in additional hospital beds."

$600,000 Needed

Alderman Sands stated that his committee decided this week that it would be necessary to insert $600,000 in the civic hospital bylaw to "carry the hospital as it has been planned."

"We have not as yet detailed plans," Alderman Sands continued. "It would be impossible to get that at this stage. But, the architect has given us an estimate based on his wide experience in this work as to what this place is likely to cost. We hope the tenders when we call for them will be less than the estimated $1,400,000."

Alderman Swanston: "Who is going to be responsible for the tenders and the building of the hospital."

Alderman Sands: "We will have to submit a private bill to the Legislature to convert Nicholls Hospital to a civic hospital, and to set up a new board of management. I believe the duty of that Board will be to build the new hospital. The council will set up that board, and I am confident that council will use good judgment."

Alderman Bradburn: "Have you any idea of what operating costs may be. I know the chairman hopes there will be no deficits. I should also like to know if the city requires a hospital of that size or are you looking into the future; if so, for how many years?"

Alderman Sands said he thought it would be foolish to estimate what deficits there might be from the operation of the new hospital. He felt they would be lower than at present if the hospital was managed in a business-like manner, with efficient equipment and rates "that are right."

360 Beds Required

As to the planning of accommodation, Alderman Sands said the city's requirements were considered on the basis of six beds for every 1,000 of population in this area. That meant 360 beds for acute cases. The committee assumed that St. Joseph's Hospital would have beds for 150, including the 52-bed addition.

"We have been anticipating present needs," Alderman Sands said.

Alderman Bradburn: "That is you are not anticipating needs five years from now."

In moving his $500,000 amendment, Alderman Bradburn said Peterborough was not a large city, "and we should cut our cloth according to what we feel the people can pay. I agree that we must have hospital accommodation, but we can't afford any frills. People own their homes and have the tax load to bear, and we all want to keep the tax rate down as low as we can."

Alderman Swanston: "I feel willing to let it go at $600,000, and trust to the judgment of the people. I don't think a hospital board should be hampered by a matter of $50,000."

Alderman Sands told the council that promised contributions to the new hospital were now around $790,000 to be deducted from the estimated cost of $1,400,000.

Alderman Ovens: "There is an item land that will cost $21,000 or $22,000, and I think $600,000 is a reasonable amount to go to the people. When we come to the time of borrowing that money I will be surprised if we need that much. But, if we found that we did need it and we had made the amount low, we could not get more money than the people had consented to spend."

Alderman Dutton spoke of the "magnificent efforts of certain members of the council in securing grants exceeding $700,000." The sum of $600,000 did not seem unreasonable for such a hospital fully equipped.

Alderman Glover said he was supporting the project of getting a $1,400,000 hospital for $600,000. "We should be able to afford taking care of that amount. This is a matter that concerns lives, not machines, and it should have our sympathetic consideration."

Labor Favorable

Alderman Dutton reported that the representative of the Allied Labor Council on the special hospital committee had said recently that organized labor was solidly behind the hospital project.

That closed the main part of the discussion, and the committee of the whole passed on to other details of the bylaw. One of them dealt with the time of issuing the debentures. Alderman Sands said the plans would not be ready for seven months, and general opinion looked to 1946 as the earliest beginning of the work. Alderman Bradburn said the money might not be required until 1947, and that estimate was accepted. A clause relating to redemption of debentures was left to the discretion of the council of any year when calling them might be decided.

"If we had a clause like that in the Hunter street bridge bylaw," Alderman Bradburn remarked, "we would be paying on the bridge debentures not 6 per cent but 3 per cent."

Keep Door Open

When this money bylaw and the kindred bylaw authorizing the taking of a vote of the people was disposed of, Alderman Ovens enquired whether there was any further information about the 52-bed addition to St. Joseph's in view of the resolution conveyed by the hospital's deputation.

"I feel they should get the money, but I don't want to do anything that might embarrass their Board after asking for the withdrawal of their request," Mayor Hamilton said.

Alderman Sullivan said he felt in a neutral position as member of the council and also of St. Joseph's Hospital Board. He asked whether a bylaw could be withdrawn, if passed by the council, before being submitted to the voters.

City Clerk Outram said it could, and Mayor Hamilton said: "I think their Board might let it go then."

Alderman Sullivan said that if the council passed a bylaw providing for a referendum on the question of an annual grant to St. Joseph's Hospital that action would afford an opportunity to the hospital board that would otherwise be unavailable.

The council then gave three reading to a bylaw providing for the taking a vote on the question 'are you in favor of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough paying $3,750 a year for twenty-five years for the purpose of assisting St. Joseph's Hospital in building a 52-bed addition.'

That course still left the door open to St. Joseph's board to agree to having this bylaw submitted to the people or withdrawn prior to the municipal elections. If the bylaw had not been passed the question was excluded from the polls by the time element of advertising it.

Reported Value Of House Causes Row In Revision Court

LAKEFIELD, Nov. 4 (ENS)—As the result of an appeal by a representative of the Badminton Club at Wednesday night's council meeting, the Club was granted use of the hall Thursday nights with the exception of unusual engagements and also on Monday nights when available, in an effort to encourage this sport in the village.

The Club will be allowed a month's trial to organize and in their appeal presented by W. J. Hamilton, Dave Spence, Harry Jewell and Mrs. Trude, the need of a suitable recreational building in the village was stressed, as a worthwhile post war project in the interest of the young people.

The council granted the possibility of this need and Councillor Grant suggested something might be done in this line, as the present building was not built to stand the strain of badminton on the second floor.

Demand Arrears

An ultimatum from the Unemployment Insurance Commission demanding arrears of $159.85 was discussed and the account passed under protest on the grounds that the former clerk, whom the major part of the bill covered, came under the exempt class, and Clerk Northey was instructed to ask for a refund.

The Canadian Legion, upon an appeal to have their room in the Memorial Hall redecorated, were granted paint for the job providing the members would do the work.

The village assumed control of the big C.N.R. former roundhouse tank near the stock loading yard and will repair the top. Fire Chief Allan Clark claimed the reservoir would be a valuable asset in case of fire The railroad had proposed filling it in unless the village desired it.

Want Reclassification

W. Kirkpatrick, in appeal on behalf of the James Richardson and Sons Ltd. Elevators, asked that their business be classed as storage, which would permit a reduction in business tax from 35 to 25 per cent. This was granted and a $231 rebate allowed, with the assessment to be set at 25 per cent in 1945 and the roll corrected.

Ferris Theatres Ltd. were granted use of the Hall two nights a week, Wednesday and Saturday, for a fee of $5 a night and the right to set up a proper billboard outside the building. Hours of voting in the municipal election were changed in By-law from 9 to 5 to 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. to allow voters working outside the village to reach the polls.

Chief Garnet Samis reported during the month of October one court case of failing to stop at a stop street, $3 fine and $2.50 costs; one L.C.A. illegal consuming, $10 plus $4 costs; one criminal code breach, reckless driving, $10 plus $4 costs, license suspended; tire and wheel stolen off Marvin Armstrong's truck, not recovered; battery stolen from Ken Carveth's launch; number of lights broken on Concession street, with the youthful culprits apprehended; two accidents, one in which Percy Dowling's milk wagon was wrecked when struck from behind by a car in an early morning fog, no charge; Ken Reid and his young son, age 3, injured on Strickland street, in a culvert crash, Reid being convicted of reckless driving.

One Adjustment

Wind-up of the adjourned Court of Revision as only one adjustment in seven appeals arising from the recent revaluation. The lone adjustment was granted on a part of lot 18 owned by W. J. Charlton, in which the assessment was reduced from $160 to $100 when investigation of deeds showed Mr. Charlton as not owning part of another lot for which he had been assessed.

J. R. Hull protesting a $2,400 assessment on his home on Clementi street had his appeal dismissed; W. J. Charltons appeal on the Payne home on east Concession street against an assessment of $700 on the building and $150 on the land dismissed; W. J. Charlton's appeal against $3,700 assessment on his home on west Regent street, dismissed; Walter Walker's appeal against $1,986 assessment on his home on Queen street, dismissed; W. J. Charlton's appeal on $3,570 assessment on boat factory, dismissed.

Fireworks arose in the court when during Ken Morris' appeal for a reduction on the Charlton House, W. J. Charlton from the front row of the spectator's seats interrupted.

Fighting Words

T. C. Ephgrave as the valuator stated the Charlton house was one of the best in the village — "you're a liar", said W. J. Charlton. "I don't have to take that from you" retorted Mr. Ephgrave, "and I should punch you right in the nose."

Order was restored and the case resumed.

An appeal to the judge in this one case was made by W. J. Charlton, only to be withdrawn on Thursday, November 2.

A full council of Reeve Gordon Scriver, Councillors George Graham, George Charlton, Reg. Doubt and W. C. Grant sat for both sessions of the Court of Revision, and all councillors were present for the November session with the inception of George Graham.

Dutch Facing Immense Task

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Paris, Nov. 3 — (AP). — The war-torn map of Holland will have to be redrawn when peace returns, for flooding is rapidly undoing the work of centuries in winning the lowlands from the sea.

Big Walcheren Island, one of the oldest dikes and most important crop lands, has been two-thirds lost as a result of the hard necessity of Allied aerial attack which breached the dikes. German defensive flooding has done nearly as much damage to adjacent South Beveland.

But of even greater consequence is the possibility that final liberation will disclose the loss of the entire 40-mile long, 20-mile wide reclaimed belt from the Maas and the Waal Rhine to Ijssel Meer, formerly the Zuider Zee, through Rotterdam and Amsterdam.

The heart of Holland and most of Amsterdam and Rotterdam are well below sea level. It will be a gargantuan task to reclaim this land.

Prices Board Slips Mr. Gordon Blushes

OTTAWA, Nov. 4 — (CP). — The Prices Board, which has borne many trials with fortitude, just cannot help blushing about the advertisement it is never allowed to forget. It carried a sketch of a farmer milking a cow, and, alas and alack, it showed the good man milking from the left side.

Donald Gordon, prepared to face up to most storms, has bowed his rugged head under a storm of mail from people who ought to know and say you never, never milk from the left side.

Institute Hears Prize Speeches

ROSENEATH, Nov. 4—(ENS)—Special features of the regular meeting of the local W.I. held Thursday afternoon included speeches by Marjorie Sandercock and Doris Robins. These youthful speakers were contestants at Roseneath Fair public speaking contests, and were invited to repeat their speeches. Marjorie's subject was "Why I Go To Roseneath Fair" and the subject of Doris' speech was "Fire Prevention." Both speakers were presented with gifts by the society.

A second feature was the showing of pictures by L. E. Barlow, loan organizer in the interest of the Seventh Victory Loan campaign.

Reports of the Belleville area W.I. convention were heard during the meeting. Reporting for the first day of the convention were Mrs. A. Halstead, Mrs. F. Adams and Mrs. B. Thackeray. Mrs. C. Grigg covered the sessions for the second day. The meeting was held in the town hall. Mesdames E. and Charles Sandercock were hostesses and the president, Mrs. Frank Brown, presided. The report of the secretary-treasurer Mrs. E. Timlin, showed $30.90 on hand.

Receive Thanks

Letters of thanks for socks, from overseas were received and read from Pte. R. Blaker and Pte. Albert Bigwin. It was announced a speaker from the W.I. department would deliver an address on Citizenship at the December meeting. This meeting will open at 1:30 o'clock.

The secretary reported four ditty bags valued at $4 each, packed and forwarded, since the previous meeting. Articles were distributed for sewing, when finished they will be forwarded as the society's contributoin toward the rehabilitation project in aid of victims in enemy occupied countries. Two pairs of hand knitted mitts were handed in by Mrs. E. J. Milne to be forwarded to the S.A.

Mrs. W. J. Milne had charge of the program period, when in addition to the above mentioned speeches Mrs. B. Thackeray played a piano solo and Mrs. Frank Adams contributed a birthday prize won by Mrs. L. Sherwin. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

TOOK THE WASHING

MELBOURNE — (CP). — An Australian Beaufighter pilot flew low to fire through the open door of a Japanese hut in a New Guinea clearing. When he got home a length of wire was trailing from his tail, and on it were a pair of Japanese trousers and a singlet.

He Used It Too

FORT BENNING, Ga., Nov. 4—(AP).—For months, Clifford I. Stigger aided the chief chemist of a soap company in finding a formula for a "G.I." soap. Barely two months after the soap went into production, Stigger began demonstrating his product on barracks floors as a "G.I."

TO KEEP UNIFORMS

LONDON — (CP). — Members of the civil defence services will be allowed to keep their uniforms on demobilization but all insignia except war service chevrons and wound stripes must be removed before they may be worn on unofficial occasions.

Charitable View

TORONTO, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Bishop F. W. Lee of the Methodist Episcopal Church said in an interview yesterday that the western allies should be "most charitable" in their thoughts toward China and should reserve judgment regarding the present military rift with Chiang Kai-Shek. Bishop Lee was active for 23 years in the Far East.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

PRESSURE INCREASES

IT IS PRETTY tough sometimes to figure out what you will discard when a hostile declarer is running a long suit against you. If you keep your wits about you, each discard you make leaves you in position to protect your side the best you can against the various apparent dangers. But it gets harder with each trick, until finally there may be no such thing as a correct discard—the declarer actually has you caught in a real squeeze.

North: ♠ A 10 7 2; ♥ K 4; ♦ 7; ♣ A K Q 9 8 2

West: ♠ K Q J; ♥ Q J 9; ♦ J 9 6 2; ♣ J 6 4

East: ♠ 9 6 4; ♥ 10 7 5; ♦ 8 5 4 3; ♣ 10 5 3

South: ♠ 8 5 3; ♥ A 8 6 3 2; ♦ A K Q 10; ♣ 7

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	4 ♥	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♥	Pass
5 NT	Pass	6 ♦	Pass
6 NT

We saw two West players squeezed in different ways by two Norths on this deal, the difference being caused by the leads used by two East players in the tournament. In each case the squeeze enabled North to take all 13 tricks instead of just 12.

Where East led the spade 9, the J forced the A, the heart K and A were scored, then all six clubs run. On the fourth West discarded his spade Q, on the fifth his heart Q, but on the sixth he was stuck. He was then holding his four diamonds and his spade K. If he threw a diamond, the 10 would become good, so he ditched his spade K. The spade 10 then scored for a discard of the diamond 10, the high diamonds finishing the hand.

Where East led the diamond 3, the play was even fancier. North refused the finesse, winning with the A, also scored the K and Q, then ran his clubs. On the fourth West threw his spade J, on the fifth the heart 9, on the sixth the heart J. Then he followed suit on the heart K, but when North led the heart 4 to the A he was sunk. With the spade K-Q and the diamond J, whichever he threw off would cost a trick, either making both the spade A and 10 good, or else building the diamond 10 to be followed by the spade A.

...A rich heritage is brought us from all lands. As Christians we must be interested in Democracy. Do we have liberty, justice? Marian Anderson's treatment in Toronto is an example of our racial prejudice. We have no say in liquor laws. beverage rooms are forced on us. scientific texts teach children the harm of liquor on the body, yet they go down the street to see the provincial coat of arms on the liquor stores.

"Everyone knows General Montgomery's attitude toward the liquor question. When Africa was all but lost, Montgomery ordered no more liquor, trucks were all needed for ammunition and the battle was won. In the last war great leaders issued manifestos against liquor."

After Mrs. Campbell's address a discussion followed. Mrs. Ames, secretary, stated that seventy-two temperance papers had been required in the surrounding public schools for examinations and the teachers are giving splendid co-operation. "We can educate if we cannot legislate. We need Christian statesmen rather than politicians," she said.

Mrs. Westington voiced the thanks of the gathering to the speaker and of Mrs. M. C. Fisher closed the meeting with prayer. Dainty refreshments were served and Mrs. Fisher moved a vote of thanks to the hostess, Mrs. Ames.

"BODY" WAS STATUE

Afternoon Tea Held

HASTINGS, Nov. 4 — (ENS) — Over 30 ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. J. Davey on Thursday afternoon, when an afternoon tea was held, the proceeds to be used for Christmas boxes for the boys overseas from St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

Miss Agnes Dickson of Fenelon Falls (who is a missionary from China) gave a very interesting talk on China.

The hostess, assisted by the lunch committee of the Women's Association, served a dainty luncheon. Miss Wilson poured tea. A social hour was then spent.

Minister Shows Lovely Pictures Of North Country

MARMORA, Nov. 4—(ENS)—A beautiful technicolor film on the Alaskan highway taken by Rev. H. G. Watts, Dominion Field Secretaary of the M.S.C.C., was shown by that clergyman in St Paul's Parish Hall Thursday evening.

Rev. J. M. Brownlie, L.Th., S.Th. rector of the parish, who acted as chairman, referred to the wide experience of the Field Secretary which included two years residency in China and fourteen years missionary effort in Japan.

Mr. Watts, before giving his interesting commentary on his film, asked his audience not to treat it as a mere entertainment as they would a film of its kind shown at a theatre, but rather as a colored picture to fill in such teaching of his subject that could not be adequately conveyed in words he might use. He also reminded his hearers of the route the first missionaries followed in entering Canada. When the new Alaskan highway was put through, it touched points where mission stations of long standing are situated and this shows that the Church of England through help received from the Motherland, had seen to it that people in remote parts got the gospel. Last year he travelled 18,000 miles in visiting many of these missions in the northern region.

Road Developes

In the film, the beginning of the new highway at Dawson Creek was shown and later scenes of Fort St. John, Dawson City and White Horse were unfolded in beautiful panorama. Mr. Watts is a nephew of the late G. F. Watts, noted English painter.

At the close of the lecture, a collection was taken for the mission funds of the church. The film was also shown at St. Mark's, Bonarlaw, on Wednesday evening and at Deloro Hall on Thursday afternoon, in addition to which Rev. H. G. Watts addressed children in St. Paul's parish hall on Wednesday afternoon. He was the guest on Wednesday and Thursday of Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Brownlie.

Youth Training Stressed At W.C.T.U.

PLAINVILLE, Nov. 4 — (ENS) — A special meeting of the local branch of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. F. Ames in Gore's Landing. About thirty-five women were present.

Mrs. Will Herriott presided over a short worship service when Mrs. Leslie Carruthers read the scripture from Luke, Mrs. Ewart King led in prayer and the leader gave reading. "Living Sacrifice" and a poem "Stir Me". The president of the Society, Mrs. Frank Westington, welcomed the guests.

Mrs. Earl Joice read a short sketch of the life of Francis Willard, the founder of the W.C.T.U. This society is the only women's organization to be world-wide. Mrs. Westington quoted portions of an address by Dr. Geo. Little and read an editorial from White Ribbon Tidings.

The guest speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. George Campbell of Colborne, spoke on Christian Women and Citizenship. As Christian women we must have broad interest in housing, schools, the sort of teacher who instructs our children, in recreation and most of all, in homes, she said. Our interest centers in children.

"Christian women's interest", she stated, "is in the church and its future. The younger one's should be taught to enjoy Sunday school, and also to lead. The land is much in need of future Christian leaders. Their interest also is in temperance scientific study. Many war memorials will be used as community centre libraries and it is our duty to see that they are Christian. The text books on Christian education especially, should be carefully examined.

"Our interest is in wider vision. The war has taken our minds over the globe, and in the matter of world brotherhood have we any prejudice?

"THAT'S RIGHT — I'm Shorty Smith"

JUST ONE of thousands who joined up in '39. In a way I wish I was home. But in another way I don't want to come home until this job is finished. We've got to smash the Jerries once and for all. I'd hate to think that my boy would have to go through it all over again in another twenty years.

And that reminds me. The other day, our fellows were buying more Victory Bonds. And we sure did buy them. Every Bond we buy brings us that much nearer home. We buy them just like you, by deductions from our pay cheques.

You folks at home simply can't send us too much stuff. It's not until you've been through it and seen pals wounded and knocked out that you realise what it means to have enough stuff to smash the Jerries . . . it's either you or him every time — make no mistake about that.

When our planes and guns blast the life out of them, it makes it safer and better for us foot sloggers.

There's also another reason why I'm buying Victory Bonds. I figure on buying a house when I come home, and the wife and boy will need lots of things they've been going without since I've been away. And they're going to have them. But it all takes money. So that's why I'm soaking away every dollar I can spare in Victory Bonds.

Give my regards to pals in the firm. I guess you're doing a bang-up job in buying Bonds . . . and that's all to the good because we need everything you can send us . . . no kidding.

Yours,

Shorty

GERMAN LINE FLATTENED AT MAAS

Red Armies 19 Miles Inside Reich

Russian Tanks Well Inside Budapest City

LONDON, Nov. 6 (CUP)—Furious fighting raged in the suburbs of shell-torn Budapest today as heavy Russian infantry forces joined armored vanguards which had penetrated the defences of the Hungarian capital from the north and south on the east side of the Danube river.

The Germans said they had recaptured the East Prussian rail town of Goldap, 19 miles inside Germany, after surrounding the place. The Russians at midnight reported violent German counter-attacks staved off there.

The enemy said also a counter-attack had started south of Budapest and that the Hungarian capital was not yet under a major Russian assault. The Red Army was declared regrouping and reinforcing for the final attempt.

The German radio announced early today that Soviet tanks crashed into the southern Metropolitan limits, only two miles from the heart of the city, while a Bucharest broadcast said other Red Army units, racing around the eastern edge of the capital, stormed the northern suburbs.

At the same time Red Army troops threatened to gain a bridgehead across the eastern fork of the Danube, just south of Budapest, and cross on to narrow Csepel Island which divides the river into two arms for 30 miles southward.

The city's German and Hungarian defenders were being captured at the rate of 1,000 a day in the powerful Russian encirclement, Moscow announced. Hungarian reports quoted by Bucharest indicated the bulk of the Nazi forces already were fleeing to Buda—western part of the Danube-straddling capital.

The Danube bridgehead, presumably shaping up in the vicinity of the captured town of Taksony, seven miles south of the successful Red Army sweep across the marshy plains between the Tisza and the Danube during the past week.

Moscow communique, although not confirming the thrusts to the Budapest city-limits, announced the occupation of nine suburban points by Soviet troops in the last 24 hours, including Ullo, rail town eight miles from the city on the Budapest-Cegled trunk line.

10,518 Prisoners

The war bulletin said enemy resistance had stiffened temporarily. It put the total of Nazi prisoners taken in the week's offensive at 10,518.

War Bond Total 42 Millions Ahead Of 6th

OTTAWA, Nov. 6—(CP)—Canada's Seventh Victory Loan to-day swung into its third and final week with canvassers striving for an all-time record. At the end of the second week the loan total was $901,395,000 with a minimum objective of $1,300,000,000 for the three-week campaign.

The two-week total, which is $42,000,000 ahead of the Sixth Loan at the same period, include subscriptions of $407,319,400 from individuals. To exceed the total of $843,000,000 subscribed by individuals in the last campaign this figure must be increased by $236,000,000 this week.

Loan officials announced to-day that the number of Canada bonds, due and callable on Oct. 15, 1944, were compiled. It is estimated that $82,000,000 of these are held by individuals of which $34,000,000 have been converted in the first two weeks of the campaign. Victory Loan officials said they hoped that all holders of the Bonds will convert them into bonds of the Seventh Victory Loan during the final week of the campaign. These conversions are not included in the announced total sales.

Northwest Atlantic naval command reported a general increase in all objectives for uniform and civilian personnel when subscriptions reached $3,086,450 for 114 per cent of its $2,688,000 quota. All but 18 of the loan departments in the command are over, while vessels under the captain of destroyers have $555,500 for 111 per cent of a $500,000 quota.

Graham F. Towers, general chairman of the National War Finance Committee, said in a statement the committee was "very encouraged" by the progress of the first two weeks of selling.

Schelde Battle Tries Veterans

LONDON, Nov. 6.—(CP Cable.)—The Polder country of the Schelde estuary "is the abomination of desolation," Lt.-Gen. H. G. Martin, Daily Telegraph military correspondent, wrote to-day after a visit to the battlefield of the Antwerp approaches.

"Here at home we may sometimes have thought that the clearing of it (Antwerp) has been a 'longish' business," said Gen. Martin. "Rather we should be amazed that the business has been finished at all—such are the conditions in which the 1st Canadian army has had to fight."

Gen. Martin said the Canadian troops in the Schelde pocket had to fight for a week on end standing waist deep in water and without a stitch of dry clothing on them. He expressed astonishment that "they had thriven on it—with little or no incidence of trench foot."

Ralston To Speak At Montreal Tuesday

OTTAWA, Nov. 6—(CP)—Col. J. L. Ralston, former Defence Minister, today was preparing a speech to be delivered tomorrow to the Montreal Rotary Club. It will be his first public statement since the Cabinet crisis which saw him succeeded by Gen. McNaughton, and it is possible he may make some reference to the reason for his resignation.

It was reliably learned that Col. Ralston later this week will go to his Prince riding in Prince Edward Island to visit his constituents and it is considered probable he will explain to them something of the Cabinet situation which led to his resignation.

Ormoc Battle To End Leyte Fight

Japanese Massing Troops Resistance Fierce

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Nov. 6 — (AP). — American long-range artillery was turned on the reinforced Japanese in a narrow valley on northwestern Leyte today as the invaders, driving on the besieged Ormoc garrison from two directions, prepared for a clean-up fight.

Pinamopoan, strategic communication centre on Leyte's northwest coast, was captured yesterday by troops who then headed south toward Ormoc, west coast port town 20 miles away through which the Japanese for three days have managed to bring in reinforcements.

South of Ormoc — the enemy's last escape port — another infantry division was about 12 miles away after a 14-mile drive from captured Baybay.

Thus a climactic battle for the central Philippines island appeared taking shape.

Japanese mechanized reinforcements, brought north along the Ormoc-Pinamopoan highway despite ceaseless aerial interference, already have been in contact with American advance units, but no large-scale fighting was in progress yet.

Use Long Toms

American artillery was brought into play in forward positions from the Pinamopoan spearhead and shells from 155-mm. "Long Toms" sent steel screaming into the Ormoc Japanese for the first time.

Pinamopoan, bitterly defended, fell to infantrymen driving by land from Carigara, seven miles to the east along Caragara Bay, after an earlier amphibious assault on the town had been beaten back by determined enemy rearguards.

Only light and ineffectual enemy air raids were reported against Leyte. Much of the Japanese aerial sting was eliminated during repeated American bombing of enemy airfields in the central Philippines. In the past five days, 167 Japanese aircraft have been destroyed or damaged on the ground or in the air. This compared with 11 American planes lost.

Gen. MacArthur announced yesterday that between 67 and 77 Japanese planes were destroyed by American fighters in low-level attacks on enemy airdromes on Negros and Cebus Islands west of Leyte.

Were Used To It

NEW YORK, Nov. 6—(AP)—A group of Manhattan residents claim the unaccustomed silence of the 106-year-old clock in St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church has disturbed their sleep, disrupted their daily schedules and made their children late for school. They are collecting donations to pay for repairs to the clock's venerable machinery, broken for the second time since 1938.

Stuttgart Hit Twice During Night

LONDON, Nov. 6 — (CP). — More than 1,800 American bombers and fighters attacked industrial targets in western Germany again today following a twin night attack by the R.A.F. on Stuttgart as the Allies carried the mightiest bombing siege of the war into the third straight day.

The main force from an armada of more than 1,100 Eighth Air Force heavy bombers went for oil refineries in the Hamburg-Harburg region. Others attacked industrial and rail objectives in the Ruhr Valley. The bombers were escorted by 700 fighters.

R.A.F. Mosquito bombers sailed deep into southwestern Germany to attack the rail city of Stuttgart twice last night to keep the around-the-clock offensive going.

The Reich was battered over the week-end from the west and south by approximately 9,000 Allied planes—virtually unopposed by the German air force—and there was every indication the all-out air offensive was continuing unchecked today.

The double-barrelled attack on Stuttgart brought to 21 the number of German cities that felt the crash of hundreds of tons of Allied bombs between noon Saturday and last midnight.

One other place, Solengen, the "Sheffield of Germany" on the southern fringes of the Ruhr, also was bombed twice by R.A.F. heavies.

Of the targets hit in the two-day offensive aimed at knocking out Germany's synthetic oil plants and communications centres, were 4,000 American heavy bombers and 1,500 fighters from British and Italian bases.

Secure Peace Assured Stalin Says

Russian Leaders Praises Allies For Second Front

By JUDSON O'QUINN
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 6—(AP)—Germany is "on the verge of catastrophe," Marshal Stalin declared tonight in an address in which he said Russia, the United States and Great Britain have "made plans for a secure peace."

"It is not enough to win the war but we must make any future war impossible," the Premier declared before a Moscow throng commemorating the 27th anniversary of the Russian revolution.

He hailed the invasion of France as the operation which enabled the Red Army to drive the Germans from Russian soil and declared 120 German divisions had been destroyed during the year.

War Review

In a 42-minute review Stalin proclaimed:

"The United Nations face undoubted victory. But a firm peace is not yet secured. New wars must be made impossible.

"The only way is to create a special organization of the United Nations to preserve peace and security, give it armed forces and make it responsible to apply them immediately to avert or suppress aggression.

"This is not like the League of Nations, without resources or powers, but will be a new, armed organization to avert new wars. It will be effective if the great powers which bore the brunt of the war continue to work unanimously and in concord—and only so."

"The alliance of Russia, the United States and Great Britain is vitally important for all," Stalin said.

"The firm front of the Allied nations has made plans for a secure peace. Some people speak of discord. There are differences of opinion. The amazing thing is not that differences exist but how small they are."

50 Million American Votes Will Be Cast On Tuesday

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (CP)—American voters today searched their hearts and minds for guidance when they go into the polls tomorrow to decide the 1944 presidential election.

Some 50,000,000 Americans, considerably more than half the eligible electorate, are expected to mark their ballots and choose between a four-year prolongation of the 12-year Roosevelt regime, or the election of a Republican administration headed by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

For eight weeks the air has been filled with campaigning by both the Republican and Democratic organization and for most of that time the 42-year-old, vigorous Dewey has been on the hustings.

But President Roosevelt, burdened by the responsibilities of war, has made only seven major campaign speeches, his last in Boston's Fenway Park Saturday evening.

While the president was speaking in Boston Gov. Dewey was speaking in New York city, in his home state which has 47 of the 531 electoral votes which decide presidential elections, and a state that casts more than one-tenth of the total American vote.

Mr. Dewey was telling the 22,000 cheering people who overcrowded Madison Square Garden that the president's incompetence was prolonging the war in Europe—a damning charge if it was believed by the voters.

Mr. Roosevelt, in Boston, was replying to claims that he had told a Boston audience in 1940 that Americans would not be sent to fight in foreign wars.

He never denied that statement but explained that his condition had been that his promise would hold true only if the United States were not attacked.

Would Do It Again

But the United States was attacked at Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941 and the people went to war with a will. And he told his Boston audience that what he did after Pearl Harbor he would do "again and again and again," under the same circumstances.

This latest move of Mr. Dewey to put the blood of American soldiers on the president's hands may be commented on by the president when he makes his election eve radio talk tonight.

The president said that "never before in my lifetime has a campaign been filled with such misrepresentation, distortion and falsehood."

Mr. Dewey also is scheduled to make a radio speech tonight but in both cases the talks will be supplementary to the wind-up addresses of the major campaign which ended Saturday night.

This is the first United States election which has found American citizens at war since the election of Abraham Lincoln during the Civil War in 1864.

The latest polls and estimates by national observers give Mr. Roosevelt a fairly safe margin of hope for decisive victory in the home voting.

Gunmen Wound Cairo Minister

CAIRO, Nov. 6 — (CP) — Lord Moyne, British resident minister in the Middle East, was seriously wounded and his chauffeur was killed today when they were fired on by two civilians.

The assailants were arrested, one after being wounded by an Egyptian police constable.

Lord Moyne was stepping from his car at his home when he was shot by two men who apparently had hidden in his residence. Both assailants carried revolvers which they emptied at his auto.

Their attackers fled across the front grounds of the home. One was shot, his companion was caught nearby.

Lord Moyne, 64, has been minister of state in Cairo since last January when he was named to succeed R. G. Casey. From 1942 until last January he was Mr. Casey's deputy.

Earthquake Centres In Timmins Area

TIMMINS, Nov. 6.—(CP).—Timmins and district homes were jolted by an earth tremor starting at 3.08 p.m. E.D.T., yesterday afternoon. Mine workings in the district were also subjected to a shaking, but no damage was reported.

The shock, duration of which was reported to be 30 seconds, was believed to have been of origin in this district. The Dominion observatory at Ottawa said the epicentre was about 230 miles north of the Dominion capital.

Sidney Wheeler, meteorologist at the Hollinger mine here, said today the earthquake may have been caused by a slip of the earth's crust in the Porcupine area. He added that it had never been known to happen in the district before.

German 15th Army Riddled By Montgomery's 21st Corp

By WILLIAM FRYE—Associated Press War Correspondent

LONDON, Nov. 6—(AP).—Assaults by Field Marshal Montgomery's 21st Army Group flattened the German line back to the Maas (Meuse) River for 25 miles to the sea and forged a firm base today from which the next offensive can be launched. The 1st Canadian and British 2nd Armies were declared by a British Army spokesman to have reduced the strength of the German 15th Army to less than half in the campaign which overran southwest Holland and freed the approaches to the great Belgian port of Antwerp.

As British, Canadian, Polish and United States troops drew up to the water barrier 16 miles south of Rotterdam, it was estimated that 65,000 Germans had been killed, captured and wounded while being driven northward from 15 to 25 miles.

Declaring Field Marshal Model's 15th Army had suffered a "serious setback," British Army spokesmen said British and Canadian troops had bagged 25,000 prisoners in the drive that opened north of Antwerp October 22. The campaign freed 1,200 square miles of Dutch territory and 570,000 Netherlanders.

Already Allied dredges and minesweepers were clearing the West Schelde approach to Antwerp.

The Allies hold all the south bank of the Maas from north of 'S Hertogenbosch to the sea except for two small pockets, each four miles long and two miles deep at the Moerdijke bridge and Willemstad ferry 16 miles south of Rotterdam.

Canadian troops were reported last night by Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent, to have gained control of Tholen Island and to have held that patch of land north of South Beveland off the Netherlands west coast for four days.

Field dispatches told today of Allied—presumably Canadian—units overrunning Tholen and St. Philipsland peninsula farther north, while meeting "little more than token resistance" from the fleeing Germans.

The threat of smashing Allied offensives hung ominously over the whole western front as air assaults upon Germany reached unprecedented intensity and battered rearguards of the German 15th Army were mopped up in elimination of the southwest Holland drive.

To the east, the U.S. 1st Army kept up its hard pressure from Hurtgen to Schmidt. Although gains in the past 36 hours were measured in mere yards, the potential menace led the enemy to bring up German reserves and dipped deeply into the dwindled German supply of tanks.

In probing attacks, Allied infantry and tanks kept pushing the enemy all along the front, scoring gains against stiff resistance around Meijel in eastern Holland, southeast of Aachen, north of Metz, and in the Vosges mountains.

10 Barges Sunk

There was no Allied confirmation of the German radio announcement, broadcast yesterday and repeated today, that the Allies have landed airborne units again in the Arnhem area. But Montgomery's men now hold the line of the Maas in western Holland, except for two small pockets at Moerdijk and Willemstad. Both were about four miles wide and two miles deep.

Mosquitoes of the 2nd Tactical Air Force sank 10 barges loaded with men and equipment crossing the Maas yesterday.

On Walcheren Island, the most bitterly-defended German position in Holland, the enemy garrison still fought savagely for Middleburg, but British troops were closing in, and all German guns which could fire on the Schelde estuary now have been silenced.

A Reuter News Agency dispatch from Allied Supreme Headquarters in Paris said today the suburbs of Middleburg already had been entered.

In the Hurtgen forest area southeast of Aachen, where United States infantry has made the deepest penetration inside Germany, troops who were thrown out of Schmidt by an enemy counter-attack mopped up German units in the woods a mile west of that town, and scored minor gains elsewhere.

Traveller Says Cologne City Devastated Half Of Normal Population Evacuated

SOMEWHERE IN HOLLAND, Nov. 6.—(AP).—A German traveller who left Cologne two weeks ago said yesterday that in his opinion the great Rhine industrial city, which is being progressively obliterated by Allied air power, was then about 80 per cent destroyed.

An army air corps officer pointed out that since then an additional 11,500 tons of bombs have been dumped on the city. Eight of these continuing raids were of 1,000-plane strength in October.

The traveller expressed the belief that about one-half of the city's normal population of more than 700,000 had been evacuated. He said most persons remaining in Cologne were foreign workers forced to remain on the job.

Month-Long Schelde Battle Great Canadian Victory

By ROSS MUNRO—Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 1ST CANADIAN ARMY ON THE SCHELDE, Nov. 6—(CP Cable).—Next to the battle for Caen, clearing the Schelde estuary ranks as the 1st Canadian Army's greatest achievement in the Allied campaign in Western Europe. The successful month-long operation has driven the Germans from the approaches to Antwept and given the Allies a vast supply port that is the key to the final offensive into Germany.

The battle for the Schelde was unique in the actions of this war. It was fought in the worst weather of the west front campaign over some of the worst country in Europe.

For four rugged weeks Canadian army forces engaged in savage fighting along sodden dikes, through flooded polder fields — land reclaimed from the sea — and over canals. No troops in Western Europe faced such terrible battleground conditions for so long.

Canadian infantry carried the major share of the battle burden but in the later phases of the operation British troops swung into action alongside them.

The job was finished successfully by keeping up continual pressure, by leap-frogging fresh troops through tired ones and by throwing in four

Canadian Army Casualties High

OTTAWA, Nov. 6.—(CP).— The Canadian army suffered 8,445 casualties in September for the second highest monthly total of the war which brought the army's total to 51,022, Defence Headquarters announced to-day. The September figures for the navy and air force are not yet available.

The highest monthly total—9,338—was suffered in August during stiff engagements in France which led up to the invasion of Belgium and Holland in September.

Casualties for all categories were lower in September compared to the previous month. In September there were 2,069 dead, 191 missing, prisoner and interned, and 6,185 wounded. August figures were 2,359 dead, 665 missing, prisoner and interned and 6,314 wounded.

The 51,022 war total included 14,216 dead, 5,964 missing, prisoner and interned and 30,842 wounded.

This brought the total for Canadas' three armed forces to 69,740 made up of 25,666 dead, 11,934 missing, prisoner and interned and 32,120 wounded.

In the 4½ years of the First Great War, 628,462 Canadians served and casualties totalled 190,092, including 62,817 dead.

Lt.-Gen. K. Stuart Expected To Retire

TORONTO, Nov. 6—(CP)—A dispatch to the Toronto Daily Star from Ottawa today reported that the retirement of Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, chief of staff of the Canadian Army overseas, "is momentarily expected by those closest to the military situation which resulted in the change of Defence Minister last week.

The dispatch adds that Gen. Stuart's "retirement, is is predicted, will be a first major step in the complete reorganization of reinforcement training and establishment overseas...."

Allied Guns Turn Back Tanks

ROME, Nov 6 (AP)—The Germans began aggressive patrolling of Allied positions in Italy and several enemy planes attacked the Allied 5th Army sector south of Bologna, but Allied headquarters today said frontline positions were virtually unchanged.

The weather cleared a bit after several weeks of heavy rains but mud and swollen streams still hampered operations, although an Allied communique earlier today reported small local gains registered on both British, 8th and Allied 5th Army fronts.

The Germans clung to the village of Ronco and the buildings on the northeast corner of the Forli airfield. Yesterday the enemy brought six-barrelled mortars into action, but tanks backing up their troops withdrew under sharp Allied artillery fire.

An Allied communique disclosed that during the last five days Allied warships bombarded enemy positions near the Franco-Italian border.

Latin-American Protest

19 Republics Make Demands At Air Parley

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, Nov. 6—(CP)—An outspoken Latin-American group of nations, bent on maintaining the right of each country to say what planes shall fly over its territory, made its voice heard in the councils of the international conference on civil aviation today.

While a joint statement on behalf of the delegations of 19 Latin-American republics Sunday expressed opposition to the establishment of "an international air transport authority which would infringe upon their sovereign rights," it was learned some of the delegations are favorable to some features of the Canadian draft convention.

Not all the delegations have yet had a chance to study the Canadian plan which involves creation of an international authority and the concession of certain freedoms of the air. One Latin-American delegate, however, saw distinct possibilities in the Canadian proposals if they are so applied that an international body will not be able to give permission to a foreign airline to fly over a particular state without that state having something to say about it.

Canadian Troops Are Popular In Britain

MONTREAL, Nov. 6 — (CP)). — Canadians are enjoying a "tremendous popularity" in Britain these days following their work in clearing out buzz-bomb sites and cross-Channel gun emplacements, William Stewart, Canadian Press war correspondent, said yesterday on his return to Canada after three years of covering Canadian advances in Sicily, Italy, France and Belgium.

"Stories about the Canadian Army have been headline news in British papers for several weeks," he said. "The result is that the reputation of the Canadian fighting man stands higher than ever in Britain."

Chiang Expects Great Future

Prospects Of Co-operation With U.S. Excellent

NEW YORK, Nov. 6 (AP)—President Chiang Kai-Shek, in his first statement for publication on the withdrawal of Gen. Stilwell from the China-Burma-India theatre, said in a message to the Associated Press that the "prospects of effective and close Chinese-American military, political and economic co-operation are now excellent."

Sent by radio from Chungking and addressed to Kent Cooper, executive of director of the Associated Press, the Chinese President's message was received at the New York office of the A.P. yesterday. Its text follows:

"Kent Cooper, 50 Rockefeller Plaza, New York.

"Telegram dated Nov. 1 received Nov. 3. Thank you for expression of interest in this situation. According to press reports received here President Roosevelt has already given adequate explanation General Stilwell's transfer to which I have nothing to add. Prospects effective and close Chinese American military, political and economic co-operation now excellent." "Chiang Kai-Shek."

Gen. Chiang's statement was in response to a direct request for his views on the Stilwell case and other elements of the China situation, following public discussion of the American General's withdrawal and the publication of stories detailing the background of Chinese-American relations.

McNaughton Opposes Conscription

Recruiting Drive Expected To Be Intensified

ARNPRIOR, Ont., Nov. 6—(CP).—Defence Minister McNaughton revealed in an address here Sunday that he opposed conscripting home defence troops for overseas and favors the continuance of the voluntary system of enlistment for Canada.

His address, delivered before a Victory Loan rally, is expected to be followed by an intensified Army recruiting drive.

At present, the Army's recruiting objective is 5,000 men a month, met partly by voluntary enlistments and partly by recruits from among the men called for military service.

The Army has been left with a clear field in recruiting since the suspension of Air Force recruiting. The Navy takes in 500 each month, but they are called from prepared lists of volunteers who have been awaiting induction.

In his address, Gen. McNaughton said he was "firmly convinced that the best hope lies in the maintenance of our long traditions of voluntary service," and added:

Gained No Benefit.

"We have had this form from the earliest days of this war. We had it in the last war until we changed and then we gained no benefit in time to be af any use."

"In the First Great War conscription was introduced in Canada in August, 1917, and the first conscripted troops began arriving in France towards the end of that conflict.)

Gen. McNaughton said figures on reinforcements now available "show that we can safely count on some short period yet before there is danger of the situation becoming acute." Then he went on:

"I think that there is time to tell our public of the great need as I now do. I know their deep interest, and I am confident that, now the need is known, our men and women will come forward to serve—they will take up this honorable obligation and rally to the support of our gallant comrades overseas. I hope that the public of Canada, knowing the urgency, will give them every support and encouragement.

He said there were two methods of solution open, either of which could be taken. One was to continue the voluntary system for service overseas. The other was to resort to compulsion.

"I know full well that there is an honest difference of opinion as to the respective merits of these systems, and I am going to tell you very frankly what I think about the matter," he said.

"First let me say that all through the war and even when I have not been directly concerned with this problem I have continued to give it the closest attention, and during the last few days since again I have responsibility I have explored every possibility with the utmost care.

Convinced Plan Best.

"I have read and studied the reports from our officers in the field, I have read and studied the suggestions and proposals made by our officers here, and I am firmly convinced that the best hope lies in the maintenance of our long traditions of voluntary service.

"We have built the system of discipline in our army on the principle of an honorable obligation voluntarily assumed. That army went through the very difficult and anxious time of waiting for the proper time to strike. It was the high purpose of the men — their devotion to the great cause that they themselves had taken up which gave us the strength to carry through.

"That army now has gone through with the greatest credit the stern test of battle, and its morale stands high in the estimation of all the world.

"You will, I know, forgive me if I stress to you the importance of these great advantages which we now have and understand I am sure the anxious thoughts I have that they should not be lost in any way."

Gen. McNaughton said that until recently the Allied forces were advancing rapidly in Italy and in north west Europe. Now they were coming up against the heavy zone of fortifications which the Nazis had prepared close to Germany itself.

Siege Warfare

This was the beginning of siege warfare in which there was need for "lavish" supplies of guns and shells which must be regarded as a first priority. He was sure they would be forthcoming from the factories and war plants.

With the General indicating the voluntary system would solve the reinforcement problem, the question as to what is to become of the home defence draftees remains unanswered. It is undertood he may deal with this question in a speech before veterans at Ottawa Monday night.

The best conjecture is that the largest number of them will be held in service if the voluntary system fails. Others may be seconded to essential work.

His speech was received with close attention by a Victory Bond rally audience of about 1,000 which included veterans of both the first Great War and the present conflict.

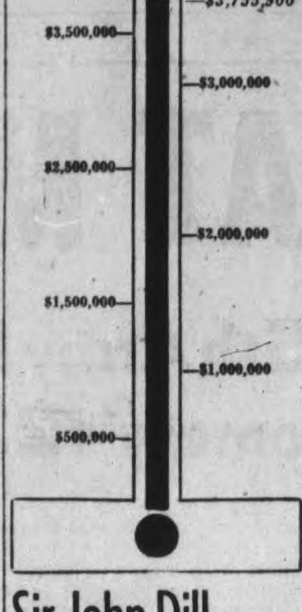
The audience gave him a hearty cheer when he entered, when he was introduced, when he finished and the veterans gave him three cheers and a tiger after a brief after-meeting personal address urging their support of his voluntary program.

His formal speech was interrupted by applause and cheering once. That was when he made his first reference to the urgent need for reinforcements.

When he finished he thanked the audience "from the bottom of my heart" for their warm welcome and he told them their "kind reception" of his remarks would be an encouragement "that you and I can see this thing through to a successful conclusion in a matter of days."

Later he explained to newsmen he meant there was an urgency for his voluntary recruiting campaign to get started and it was this early start he was referring to when he said "in a matter of days."

INVEST IN VICTORY IN PETERBOROUGH



Sir John Dill Dies At Age 63

WASHINGTON, Nov. 6.—(CP).—Field Marshal Sir John Dill, head of the British Joint Staff Mission in the United States, died Saturday night in Walter Reed Army Hospital. He had been ill for several months with anaemia.

Sir John, who was 63 years old, has been called by British admirers "our best general since Marlborough," and during the early days of the war a German commentator once referred to him as the only British general "worthy of our steel."

He retired as Chief of the British Imperial General Staff three years ago and served as Governor of Bombay until his assignment to Washington.

He is survived by his widow, one son by a previous marriage, Major John de Guerin Dill of the Royal Artillery, now serving in the Central Mediterranean, and by a step-daughter, Miss Sonia Furlong, of Washington.

Peterborough Soldier Said Dangerously Ill

Word was received Saturday night by Mrs. A. Nelson, 735 Water street, that her son Dvr. Leonard Nelson, at Camp Borden, is dangerously ill, although there has been a slight improvement in the last three days.

Dvr. Nelson was hospitalized in July, following an accident where he was crushed between two trucks on manoeuvres. At that time he was described as seriously injured, but had made some progress. His mother believes infection may have set in in the leg. A staff report told her that he will not be able to sit in bed before December.

A son Dalton, a casualty at Ortona, has spent the past 10 weeks taking treatments at the Kingston Military Hospital, and is returning home tonight. Two other sons, William and Keith, are both in hospital in Italy, convalescing from wounds.

Ortona Veteran Tells Story Of Bitter Fight

A comrade of Lieut. Allen Park in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment overseas, Capt. H. R. Long, of Port Hope, who was badly wounded at Ortona in Italy, praised the medical care which wounded men receive, when he spoke at the Victory Loan show Saturday night in the Summer Gardens.

Capt. Long told of how they found Lieut. Park badly wounded in the head, and at that time the men believed he was dead, so serious were his injuries. However, on further examination a spark of life was found and the men brought him out to the hospital where he had 10 major operations performed and doctors used $150,000 worth of penicillin.

Once in the hospital gangarene of the brain set in, and he lost the use of all his faculties. A miracle of surgery and nursing brought the badly injured officer back to health. When Capt. Long visited him in Christie Street Hospital recently he could do everything but write, and when shown snaps of his pals overseas identified all of them and recalled incidents that they had shared together.

Cut To Pieces

While leading his company at Ortona on a left flanking movement to break the enemy's hold on a road above the main body of Canadian troops, a shell burst a few feet from where he was standing and injured his leg, Capt. Long related. Describing the bitter struggle at Ortona, he told how of the first groups sent in only three got through to the objective, and the officer commanding said that if three could do it the rest could too. His company, 150 strong, attacked and 38 came back, while in other companies the same size some had only 18 survivors.

Capt. Long also gave bond buyers some idea of how their money was spent. In the barrage preceding the attack at the Moro River, 25 regiments of artillery firing 400 rounds for each gun, lasting 2½ hours, cost $25,000,000. When a soldier is in hospital it costs approximately $10 a day, plus his pay.

Prior to the war the Port Hope soldier was connected with the 14th Field Battery, Cobourg, N.P.A.M., and when war came he tried to enlist with the artillery and was turned down. He finally was accepted by the Midland Regiment in July, 1940, and went overseas in September, 1942, as a reinforcement to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

The talk given Saturday here was the 69th speech Capt. Long has made since the opening of the 7th Victory Loan. In civilian life he was a professional badminton player, having held state championships in New York and Ohio. His leg injury from Ortona has forced him to abandon his sports activities and he is going into the insurance business in Port Hope.

Toronto Editor Talks At Centre Theatre

The Peterborough Business Men's Committee had as their guests at the "After Church" service in the Centre Theatre Rev. A. Earle Frid of Toronto, editor of World Conquest, as speaker, Mrs. Charles Baster of Toronto as soloist and Mr. Bernard Aldridge of Toronto as song leader and trombone soloist. Mrs. Baster and Mr. Aldridge have been here on previous occasions.

The speaker gave his own personal testimony of the joy that had come into his life since he accepted Jesus Christ as his Saviour. During his life he had tasted the pleasure that success can bring as a baseball player, as a radio artist and as a financier. In all of these had had achieved success and yet today he would not exchange the joy he had experienced as a saved man for all the joy that success in these things had brought him.

"I am a man of God through Christ Jesus," he said. "But in the words of the hymn, we never can prove the delights of his word until all on his altar we lay. Trust and obey is the secret of a spirit filled life."

Speaking of the Christian experience he compared it with marriage. All the bridegroom and the bride say is I do and they are by that expression of belief and confidence married and so when we say immediately the hard thing is to say it. Once it is said salvation is easy.

The C.B.M. Committee will have as their guest speaker next Sunday, Rev. E. L. Simmonds, M.A., B.D., of the Church of the Messiah, Toronto, and Frank Sime as soloist.

Pte. Stanley Ellis Slightly Wounded

Serving with an infantry regiment somewhere on the western front in Europe, probably Holland, Pte. Stanley Ellis has been listed as slightly wounded in action on October 23, according to information received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ellis, 62 St. Mary street. No additional information was disclosed in the brief telegram.

Since the young soldier enlisted in May, 1942, he has been with several different regiments, and at the present, the regiment he is serving with is obscure. He was with the Essex Scottish at the time of his enlistment, and has since served with the Royal Rifles of Canada.

He was formerly employed in the shipping department of the Quaker Oats Company, prior to his enlistment.

assaults from the sea at crucial moments.

The order was to clear the Schelde, and the Canadian Army cleared it by audacious planning and gallant execution of this plan by veteran infantrymen who followed one fundamental principle — keep hitting the enemy and keep moving for that next dike.

Every Unit Saw Action

Every Canadian combat unit on the western front saw action in this operation. But it was principally an infantry show. The foot-sloggers had to storm dike after dike in relentless attacks which never let up. For days and even weeks battalions fought in the mud and water of the polders.

The polders fighting was something entirely new to this war. At times the fighting was as fierce as in the tremendous and fateful struggle around Caen. The German 64th Division was destroyed by the Canadians south of the Schelde Estuary and on South Beveland other Canadians ripped apart the 70th Division which fell back to Walcheren Island where British troops of the Canadian army now are finishing it off.

Early in October the Canadian Army mustered its forces for the Schelde operation. Lt.-Gen. Crerar, the army commander, had been forced to go to England for his health and the responsibility for directing this ticklish job fell to Lt.-Gen. Simonds, commander of the 2nd Canadian Corps, who also planned and executed the break-through south of Caen last Aug. 8.

Came From Boulogne

Gen. Simonds hustled veteran Canadian infantry from the Boulogne and Calais sectors, where they captured those two forts late in September, and he marshalled them south of the Leopold Canal. They were to drive the Germans from the Schelde Pocket on the south side of the Estuary.

Meanwhile another Canadian infantry formation cleared the northern outskirts of Antwerp and also the harbor area of the great Belgian port. The Germans were badly trimmed in this suburban battle of Antwerp and the Canadians drove them north towards Bergen Op Zoom.

Oct. 6, one month ago, three western battalions — the Regina Rifles which included at the time a company of the Royal Montreal Regiment, the Canadian Scottish of Victoria and the Royal Winnipeg Rifles — stormed across the Leopold Canal, just before dawn behind sheets of fire hurled over the Canal by flame-throwers.

The westerners intended to penetrate inland immediately but they met heavy opposition right on the northern bank of the Canal. Few Canadian units had ever been in such a tight spot as were those D-Day veterans. For five days a bloody struggle raged along the narrow canal bridgehead.

With the heroism which they showed at Bretteville and Putot en Bessin on the Caen perimeter during the first 10 days of the Normandy campaign, when they hurled back counter-attacks from massed German panzer divisions, the western battalions held the bridgehead when the situation looked hopeless.

The 64th Division troops which they had drawn into a knock-down, drag-out fight on the Leopold Canal suffered heavy casualties. A Canadian cemetery marked with rows of white crosses south of the Leopold Canal is a solemn reminder of the sacrifice of the westerns and of the company of the R.M.R.'s.

Other Canadian infantry were ready to pass into this strip of muddy hell over the Leopold Canal but the resistance was too strong to commit more troops. The westerners were ordered to hang on while another attack was launched.

Highlanders Take Beachhead

Gen. Simonds surprised Maj.-Gen. Eberding, commander of the 64th Division, with his next move — a seaborne assault on the backdoor of the German pocket south of the Schelde. The Highland Light Infantry from Galt, Ont., the North Nova Scotia Highlanders from Amherst, N.S., and the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders from Cornwall, Ont., made an assault landing on the south shore of the Schelde west of Terneuzen Oct. 9. A beachhead was won but the Germans soon counter-attacked. Every counter-attack was driven off. The struggle for the Schelde polders began.

The seaborne attack relieved the pressure on the Leopold bridgehead as Gen. Eberding was forced to look over his shoulder to deal with the new threat. The bridgehead won by the Highlanders was rapidly reinforced and central Ontario, Maritime and French-speaking Quebec battalions went in there.

Over the flattest, bleakest area in western Europe the Canadians hit out. Slogging through knee-deep mud and wading through flooded fields, they plodded forward through this incredibly desolate country.

The Germans were dug in on practically all the dikes which formed the interminable ramparts of the Schelde defences.

The Highland battalions worked to the northwest and the Glengarrys captured Breskens Oct. 22 after artillery and planes had beaten the town to the ground. Other battalions swept west through the pocket.

A western unit fought its way across a 300-foot canal which ran north and south across South Beveland and within a few days the Island was overrun with Canadians striking right across it to the causeway leading west to Walcheren Island.

The Schelde pocket south of the estuary meanwhile was being squeezed. The forts at Cadzand were captured. A link-up was made with British troops on the Leopold canal and the Germans were pressed back into Knocke and Heyst, in Belgium 12 miles west and slightly south of the mouth of the Schelde.

While Canadian Army successes mounted on this Schelde sector, its other forces attacked north towards Bergen Op Zoom, Roosendaal and Breda, while the British 2nd Army struck westward from its deep salient into Holland to capture 'S Hertogenbosch and Tilburg.

The two-way drive pinched the German 15th Army forces out of southwest Holland and put Canadian army forces on the Hollandsche Diep following capture of Bergen Op Zoom, Roosendaal and Breda. Canadian, British, American and Polish troops shared in this triumph, which was complementary to the Schelde operation but a vital protection for it.

Never Lost Initiative

The Canadian Army never lost the initiative from Oct. 6 when it loosed its lightning thrusts.

As soon as the Walcheren causeway was reached, Montreal infantry attacked across it Oct. 31. The next day Walcheren was attacked from two direction from the sea. British commandos and infantry crossed from Breskens to land practically in the streets of Vlissingen (Flushing).

Three hours later, the fourth landing of the Schelde operations took place at Westkapelle on the western end of the island where more commandos went ashore with support of Royal Navy ships, including the battleship Warspite, and R.A.F. planes. Both landings succeeded. Vlissingen was captured. The coastal dike from Westkapelle to Vlissingen was taken. All the coastal guns which could fire on the Schelde estuary were destroyed. Clean-up of Walcheren is all that remains to be done.

At Knocke and Heyst amid coastal defences reminiscent of the ones on the Normandy beaches the Canadians finished off the 64th Division and the battle of the Schelde pocket. They even captured the divisional commander, Eberding.

Canadian and British troops of the 1st Canadian Army had cleared the Schelde as ordered.

Firemen Answer Four Alarms On Week-end

Peterborough firemen responded to four alarms over the week-end, the first coming at 5:15 Saturday afternoon, one on Sunday shortly after twelve o'clock in the afternoon, and two this morning. All of the alarms brought firemen to give attention either to a chimney fire, or overheated stove pipes.

Just before 8.30 this morning overheated pipes at the residence of Mrs. Phoebe Blodgett, 189 Hunter street, West, accounted for one alarm, and earlier, at 5:16 o'clock this morning, a chimney fire at the residence of E. R. Murduff, 409 Wolfe street, was extinguished by firemen.

At 12:11 o'clock Sunday afternoon, firemen responded to a call at the residence of Clarence J. Harrison, 520 Glengarry avenue in the Wartime Housing district, where overheated pipes were treatedq. Saturday afternoon, firemen attended a chimney fire at 300 Frederick avenue, the home of Edward English.

Failure to have pipes cleaned before cold weather set in is one of the chief causes for the abundance of chimney fires and overheated pipes, Fire Chief Gimblett said today.

End in Sight.

"The Red army now faces its final task," Stalin concluded, "together withour Allies to completely defeat the Germans and raise the banner of victory over Berlin.

"This will be fulfilled in the near future."

Of the 204 divisions facing the Red Army, Stalin said, 180 were German and 24 Hungarian.

The Premier-Marshal spoke at a Moscow celebration marking the 27th anniversary of the Russian Revolution.

"The Red Army was enabled to do its duty because of the support of our entire country," Stalin said. "Our people this year have achieved great results in war economy—our army is sufficiently supplied with food.

Takes the Credit.

"Now the war is ending, the importance of the Soviet people becomes obvious. They saved world civilization."

Turning to the international affairs and the post-war world, Stalin said;

"When you read reports of divergencies of views among the three Great Powers about post-war organization, remember that such differences always exist even in the same party and obviously will exist between different countries.

"If differences have occurred, as for example at Dumbarton Oaks, we must not complain, but we must be glad they were so few. Dozens of points were involved in complete agreement.

"Therefore I think that Dumbarton Oaks is an indication that a peaceful solution is possible.

"There were differences among the Allies about the second front, but, as everybody knows, they finally were solved in a spirit of complete agreement."

He declared Russia had destroyed 120 German divisions during the year and that "only 204 German and non-German divisions stand against us."

(At present German strength in the East, this indicated the destruction of 1,200,000 men, leaving about 2,040,'00 opposing the Red Army from the Arctic to the Balkans.)

"There is no doubt that without the second front which pins down 75 German divisions, we could not drive the Germans out of the Soviet Union," the Premier added:

"But without our pinning down 200 divisions our Allies would not be able to drive the enemy from Italy, France and Belgium.

Police Pick-up Two Runaways

Two Windsor boys, George Henry Picket, 14 and William Charles Maisonville, 13, who ran away from their homes on Hallowe'en, were picked up by the city police Sunday and held here until Maisonville's mother arrived from Windsor to take the two back.

The boys said that they had hitch-hiked here with a third boy who had relatives in Ennismore and that their original intention had been to look for farm jobs. However by the time the police took them in charge they had decided to go back home, they stated. They said that they had walked considerably during their trip from Windsor and spent their nights sleeping in farm barns.

They admitted the going was not as pleasant as they had anticipated it would be.

Losses Terrific As British Hit Walcheren

By CMDR. PETER MacRITCHIE, R.C.N.V.R.

LONDON, Nov. 5—(CP)—The battle for Walcheren, which was an epic of heroism by Commandos of the Royal Marines, was a battle won at a heavy cost in human sacrifice.

Flushing, where British troops distinguished themselves, was, they say, a grim affair, but it is of the battle of the Westkapella beach-head at the island's western tip that I write. It was there that I saw from the deck of the Royal Navy monitor Roberts the Royal Marine Commandos storm ashore and fight and die and mash the strongly entrench German garrison.

The fighting was still going on when flotillas of minesweepers, among them ships of the Royal Canadian Navy, were sweeping the Schelde Estuary to clear the sea entrance to Antwerp so it would be ready for use when Allied land arms had cleared out the guns which menaced the shipping lanes.

Without Air Support

The Royal Marines I watched went in without air support, and were targets for withering fire from enemy pillboxes and from the flailing fire of snipers as they left from assault craft and stormed a 100-yard gap the R.A.F. had breached in the island's sea wall the day before.

Many of these Commandos died right there, and the wonder of it is that they were able to effect a landing at all, so fierce was the German fire from pillboxes which finally disintegrated under the fire of 15-inch guns of the montors and the famous old battleship Warspite.

Planes came later in the day, but by this time the Commandos of the support force, either on the beach or offshore, had been badly cut up.

We sail from England Oct. 31, the intention being to stand off Westkapelle next morning and go into action with out 15-inch guns. Before dawn we observed a line of ships to starboard which turned out to be our miniature D-Day convoy which had left the Belgian port of Ostend the day before. It seemed ahead of schedule, and when an enemy plane dropped a flare we knew the Germans would be waiting for them.

Shore Versus Ship

The weather prevented the use of spotting planes for naval bombardment of the difficult target Walcheren presented. So flooded it resembled a saucer filled with water with the exception of a tiny strip around the lip. The Roberts' third salvo was a direct hit on a signal tower, and the Erbus and the Warspite then joined in, along with landing craft (gunnery) and flatships which comprised the support group for the two assault forces.

Then ensued a battle of shore versus ship, and throughout the day the flash of guns, big and small, enveloped the shoreline from Westkapelle to Flushing, nine miles southwest.

Nearing 9:45 a.m. the landing craft crept closer, and finally we could see Commandos leap overboard, rifles held high, and wade to the beach.

Many were singing, and many died with the song in their throats.

Landing craft (gunnery) also moved in to engage the enemy more closely. A number of them never returned. Some backed off from the beaches with the aid of kedge anchors, but were riddled with holes and quickly sank.

Until they were silenced, German pillboxes had the Commandos at their mercy for a while.

As the landing craft went into shore, rocket ships discharged their explosive cargoes at shore targets and came under heavy fire themselves. But the marines—those that were left of them—pushed toward their next objectives, Domburg, four miles northeast of Westkapelle, and Zoutelande, four miles southeast. Shortly before noon, the weather having clearing, Typhoons appeared and engaged n dive-bombing.

Defenses Smashed

All the time the Warspite, the Erebus and the Roberts were pounding away with their guns, and it is estimated they hurled some 500 tons of 14-inch projectiles. When the bombardment ended on the morning of the third day, there was little left of the enemy defenses.

The batteries facing the Commandos were of nine-inch and six-inch calibre. Even after the attack by the warships and the Typhoons they would open up sporadically, and as we sailed away to the westward toward dusk on the first day of the battle fires fringed Walcheren Island.

We came back again at dawn Thursday, and resumed the attack, this time at Domburg. Visibility was much greater now, and planes were busy over the island. Before many hours, the heavy German gun emplacements at the spot had been knocked out and ammunition dumps had been blown up. The Commandos had forged their way ahead both northeast and southeast. Flushing was all but free, and the German reign of the island was drawing speedily to its close as we retired.

Police In Raid Discover Police

WELLAND, Nov. 6. — Welland City Police announced over the week-end that they were leaving the matter of possible prosecutions up to the anti-gambling squad of the Ontario Provincial Police in the case of one of the oddest raids in Ontario police annals.

On Friday night a detachment of local police, led by Inspector Tom Gee, swooped down on an establishment in an alleyway off East Main St.

"We had suspected gambling and when we made entry, there was a pile of money on a table and a dozen or so people present," said Inspector Gee. "One of our officers started grabbing the money for evidence, but one of the men present suggested that he leave the money alone.

"It was only then that we discovered that Inspector Doyle and several members of the Provincial Police anti-gambling squad were present, in plain clothes, and had been watching proceedings, intending to intervene.

It is understood that when the local police hammered on the door of the premises, they were admitted by one of the members of the anti-gambling squad. They failed to recognize the officer in his plain clothes. It was Inspector Doyle who called a halt when a local officer began scooping up the money that was on the table.

Those present other than police are reported to have vowed that it was a spectacle they wouldn't have missed even for the possible ultimate cost.

Salvation Army Band Performs In Omemee

OMEMEE, Nov. 6.—(ENS). — A vrey fine musical program was presented by the Salvation Army Temple Band of Peterborough and the Omemee Boys' and Girls' Band in the Coronation Hall, Omemee. The Temple Band was conducted by Bandmaster R. G. Routly and the Omemee Band by Sgt. H. J. Parnell.

Trinity Honors Memory Of Casualties

With news of heavy fighting and growing casualty lists darkening the lives of many Peterborough people, the congregation of Trinity United church, more than 200 men and officers from the Training Centre and veterans of the last war, took time for an hour Sunday to attend a memorial service, pledging themselves anew that the things for which those on the Honor Roll died, will not be forgotten or neglected.

Led by the Salvation Army Band, the Active Army men under Lt. Col. James Turnbull paraded to the church, youthful boys who may soon be listed on their home memorial rolls. They were followed by members of the Canadian Legion, Branch 52, under their president, George Gimblett. In contrast to their youthful companions, their eyes have seen the suffering, which the others have yet to endure, and the fruits of their sacrifices, discarded. The Women's Auxiliary to the Legion, many of whom have sons overseas, were also guests.

The memorial list, read by H-Capt. John L. Hodgson, contained the following names Pilot Officer W. R. Widdiss, R.C.A.F.; Pilot Officer J. M. Clark, R.C.A.F.; Sgt. Observer R. T. Hanbidge, R.C.A.F.; Sgt. Pilot Carl Grose, R.C.A.F.; Sub. Lieut. Douglas W. Wolfe Fleet Air Arm; and Capt. John N. Stephenson, North Nova Scotia Highlanders.

In his message to the soldiers and congregation, Capt. Hodgson emphasized that those remaining must make the most of themselves, carrying on, not only under the emotions roused by war but during the long, difficult days of peace as well, in a fight behind the fight.

Certain Duties

The speaker said that patriotism is a great word, abused by many. He pointed out that to be a patriot meant more than doffing one's hat or coming to the salute when the flag is carried by, or sounding the praises of Canada, and that it involves four patriotic duties.

His text, "What mean ye by this service?" was the predominating theme and he pointed out that as Moses spoke them to his followers, encouraging zealousness in worship and love of country, so they were applicable today.

"In memorial services like this, we are seeking to instill in the minds of Canadians, a greater appreciation of the deeds of their forefathers and of their contempories, in this war, and a stronger desire to make this Dominion a more Christian land. We are called upon, not to rest upon past achievements, but to press onward to even greater triumphs in the future. We pay tribute, to the strong men who have gone forth from this fellowship and have laid down their lives for better ideals.

Capt. Hodgson said that it was a comparatively easy thing to accomplish something worthwhile under emotional stress, and then when that stress was gone, to forget to finish the task. Addressing himself to the men in uniform, he told them that it was a comparatively easy thing for them to enlist, carried away by the thought of getting into action in a few months and finishing the job. He declared that he considered the Canadian divisions which sat in England for so many years, played a greater part. The fever of enlistment wore off, and they were forced to wait and train, train and wait, until, in the end, they showed what was in them, and their deeds performed on the soil of France, Belgium and Holland, can never be forgotten.

Co-operative Effort

"Another of the duties of patriotism is to stand up for the underlying principles of our country. A man who disobeys the laws, (a rugged individualist) is an anarchist of liberty. No one's free to do what he likes, unless in accordance with the laws. Individual freedom is merged under social freedom. No one can be a good citizen unless he obeys the laws, and no man can be a good soldier unless he learns the meaning of discipline in his own life and in a striking force."

The third patriotic duty outlined by the speaker, dealt with discharging cosmopolitan duties which devolve upon Canadians. He referred to the League, which he said was not dead, although it had committed many blunders, which had produced a period of suspended animation, but its great purpose lies in the direction of manifest destiny. In closing he stressed the duty of being mindful of God, and giving Him allegiance. He said that people must learn to dwell in amity if everything which they value is not to crumble into dust.

"We have come together to commemorate the deeds of the fine young men and women who have made their sacrifices. Let us go forth and live as they want, mindful of our duties to God."

Assisting Capt. Hodgson, minister at Trinity, were H-Capt. William McDonald, who took the opening part of the service and pronounced the benediction, and H-Capt. W. I. D. Smith, padre at the Training Centre, who read the Scripture. Following Capt. Hodgson's address, the "Last Post" and "Reveille" were sounded as the large congregation stood at attention. The choir, under the direction of Miss Mabel Clarry, sang Mozart's "Gloria in Excelsis" and "Souls of the Righteous" by Tertius Noble.

ALLIES PREPARE FOR RUHR DRIVE—As British forces stormed through Walcheren Island which guards the approaches to the port of Antwerp, the U.S. 1st Army opened a new drive beyond Aachen. Analysts say that the co-ordinated operations have as their objective the strategic Ruhr area. The tempo of these drives will be stepped up as supplies leave Britain (1) and, instead of moving to the battlefront over a land route through France and Belgium, reach Antwerp directly by sea. By building up huge amounts of equipment and material in this manner, the way will be open for a strong joint offensive from the north (2) and south (3) into the Ruhr.

Mrs. Butler died in the Private Patients Pavilion at Toronto General Hospital. News of her sudden passing came as a shock to a host of friends, including many who had been associated with her in church and other activities.

Mrs. Butler was a member of Yorkminster Baptist church. She was an active member also of the Red Cross Auxiliary and had found time, as well, to take a keen interest in the work of the West End Creche.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Geraldine Dougall and Mrs. Margery Edwards, a son Bruce; a sister, Mrs. Walter L. Rawlinson; a brother Melville W. Smith, and a grandson, Rodney Dougall, all of Toronto.

The funeral service will be held on Tuesday at 2 p.m. at the chapel of Morley S. Bedford, 159 Eglinton Ave. W. Interment will be in Mt. Pleasant cemetery.

MARTIN JOHN QUINN

COBOURG, Nov. 6.—(ENS). — The funeral of Martin John (Mert) Quinn took place this morning from St. Michael's Roman Catholic church with interment in St. Michael's cemetery, following services conducted by Rev. Dr. P. J. Kelly.

Fifty years of age, he had been in poor health for the past few months and died Friday at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto. The remains were brought to the residence of his brother, P. H. Quinn, of Cobourg.

He was born at Gilmore, later residing at Lakeport and finally moving to Toronto, where he resided at 779 Eglinton avenue. Northumberland Total Climbing Steadily

COBOURG, Nov. 6—(ENS)—Northumberland County's Victory Loan campaign is on the last lap and salesmen are out to put the county over the top, with the co-operation of the Bond purchasers. The general situation throughout the county had improved by Saturday. Highlight of the week was the very good returns on Thursday when canvassers did $144,000 worth of business.

Colborne village is sitting on top of a record sale to date of 150.5 per cent of its objective. Percy township is next in line with 83 per cent. Standing of the other districts is: South Monaghan, 66; Haldimand, 59; Alnwick, 59; Brighton township, 56.2; Brighton vil., 52.3; Cramahe, 51.5; Hastings, 50.1; Hamilton, 49.3; Cobourg, 49.0; Murray, 45.15; Campbellford, 44.9, and Seymour, 40.6. Total for the county is $912,400 or 56.15 per cent.

59th Anniversary

COBOURG, Nov. 6—(ENS)—Calvary Baptist Church observed its 59th anniversary here on Sunday at which the special speaker was Professor Harold W. Lang of McMaster University, Hamilton. The services were in charge of Rev. S. D. France. Special music featured the anniversary observance.

Mothers Guests Of Red Cross

HAVELOCK, Nov. 6—(ENS)—The members of the Junior Red Cross Society of North School in Belmont township, who have been busy for sometime embroidering a daffodil quilt in a gold and white color scheme, invited their mothers to the last regular meeting to do the quilting. This quilt will be drawn for and tickets are to be put on sale in the near future, the proceeds to be used for their war activities.

A program of recitations and vocal numbers was presented, which concluded with a masquerade march by the school. Joe Harnden won the prize for fancy dress and Josephine Lytle the prize for the comic costume. The judges were Mrs. C. McConnell, Mrs. E. McLaughlin and Mrs. A. Buchanan. A dainty lunch was served at the close by the teacher, Miss D. Dafoe.

Legion Opposed

TORONTO, Nov. 6.—(CP).—Tom MagLadery, president of the Ontario Command of the Canadian Legion, issued a statement Saturday saying the Legion was "unalterably opposed" to the policy of the government in refusing to send call-up troops overseas on active service "to meet the pressing needs for reinforcements."

Budapest's Fall May Start Austrian Revolt

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The Red Army's furious assault on the Hungarian capital of Budapest represents the crisis in one of the war's major operations. The city's inevitable fall will speed Hitler's end.

This vastly important communications and industrial centre, which straddles the broad Danube like a colossus, is the guardian of the Danubian basin route into southeast Germany via Austria. Its capture will at once open the gate for an advance up the valley and provide the Soviet forces with a magnificent base for operations against Germany itself.

But Budapest to my mind means far more than that. It's only about 100 air miles from the Austrian border and 140 from Vienna — and many Austrians are only waiting for a chance to rise and throw off the Nazi yoke.

Thus it strikes me as quite possible that the arrival of the Red Army at the Austrian frontier might precipitate a revolt against Hitler within that enslaved country. Once a rebellion started in Austria there would be no telling how far it might

Draftees Being Used As Section Gang

COBOURG, Nov. 6 — (ENS). — About 20 Zombie, members of a French-Canadian regiment, are working as a section gang on the C.P.R. line here, coming last week. No details are available as to how long they will be here, but they are being quartered in railway boarding cars. It was rumored that representations were made on their behalf for the use of the washroom facilities of Cobourg Armouries, and they were referred to Major Alan MacDonald. However, Major MacDonald stated that he has not been approached in the matter.

Raise Thermometer

COBOURG, Nov. 6 — (ENS). — The Victory Loan thermometer raising ceremony on Saturday was in charge of the Midland Regiment and 3-47th Auxiliaries, with Mrs. Harold Denton as chairman. The program included several patriotic numbers by the choir of Cobourg Collegiate Institute, under the direction of Mrs. Lettice Gingham. On the platform were Capt. H. Long of Port Hope, and a Cobourg boy, Pte. R. Lane, who has recently returned from overseas.

During the ceremony an amphiblous duck was parked in front of the Town Hall during a brief stay in town on its way west on Victory Loan work. The combination land and water craft drew keen attention from the citizens, many of whom climbed aboard to learn its functions.

R.C.A.F. Identifies Plane Wreckage

HALIFAX, Nov. 6 — (CP). — Wreckage of an aircraft discovered with the skeletons of its four crewmen near here on Thursday has been identified as that of a plane that disappeared last February 14, the R.C.A.F.'s Eastern Air Command announced last night.

The twin-engine Hudson bomber was missing on a flight from Newfoundland to nearby Dartmouth. The crashed machine was found by hunters in the woods at Echo Lake, near Dartmouth.

Names of the crew were not announced.

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Painful, Pus Filled Boils the Cause of Much Misery

If you suffer from boils you know how sick and miserable they made you feel.
Boils are an outward indication of impurities in the system, and just when you think you are rid of one another crops up to take its place and prolong your misery. All the lancing and poulticing you can do may not stop more coming.
To help overcome boils you should purify the blood, so why not give that old, reliable blood medicine, Burdock Blood Bitters, a chance to show what it will do in helping you get rid of them? Thousands have used it for this purpose for the past 60 years. Why not you?

Every man who rises above the common level has received two educations: the first from his teachers; the second, more personal and important, from himself. —GIBBON.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1944

For Education Week

As this is Education Week a few observations on the subject of education in these columns may not be amiss. As we look at education in Canada today, we must be impressed by the amount of attention which is given to techniques of teaching; indeed, it sometimes appears that more attention is paid to the manner of teaching than to the matter which is taught. This is a comparatively recent development; it is not so long ago that most schools operated on the simple principle that the pupils learned their lessons or they were beaten, and very little attention was paid to whether the teacher was capable to teaching in an interesting, or even a comprehensible, manner. We need look no farther afield than the history of the early schools in Peterborough, where flogging was of hourly occurrence. The schools of the nineteenth century were conducted on harsh, almost brutal lines; and yet the surprising thing is that they produced many excellent scholars who did not appear in later life to have suffered from the extremely unscientific methods by which they were educated.

* * *

We may ask the question, then: is all this talk about the technique of education so much poppycock? The answer cannot be an unqualified affirmative. In our local schools opportunities are offered for boys and girls who do not fit into the ordinary scheme of education; seventy years ago they would have been beaten every day because they could not learn their lessons; now, with appropriate care, they are able to learn a great deal which will be of use to them in later life. Thus far the new technical approach to education is a success. But what about the others, who pursue the traditional course of academic education?

* * *

The most that any group of teachers can do for these is to give them a strong desire for education, and an understanding of how to educate themselves. It cannot be repeated too often that education is not what a teacher is able to cram into a student's head, but what the student learns himself, aided where necessary by the teacher. Learning which is crammed into a child is lost as soon as he leaves school; he sheds it as easily as a snake sheds an old skin. But what he has taught himself will remain with him forever. It is the barest platitude to say that the only true education is self-education.

* * *

The wonders which have been accomplished by self-education are familiar. Upon the authority of Mr. Van Wyck Brooks we know that factory girls in the New England States during the middle of the nineteenth century were so eager for learning that they organized lyceums and study-groups of their own, and mastered the classics as well as the best in the literature of their own day; we know that blacksmiths and teamsters of the same period studied Hebrew and Greek after ten hours of heavy work at their trades; we are told that every farmer had his shelf of books, and would have been ashamed to admit ignorance of the history of his own country. This great popular movement for education expired suddenly when the attitude of self-education was supplanted by state education, with its promise to educate everybody, whether they liked it or not.

* * *

Is the best school, then, the one in which the student is encouraged to teach himself, coming to the instructors for help only when he needs it? Has the technique of teaching gone so far that it has strangled the desire for learning? During Education Week we may fittingly turn these matters over in our minds. We have a system of education in Canada of which we are very proud: and yet the general standard of learning in Canada is very low. How do we explain this? Can it be that our schools have failed to impart the one really necessary quality — the desire to acquire and retain knowledge?

Churchill And His Critics

Like all great leaders, Mr. Churchill attracts enemies as well as adherents, and some of his enemies criticize him severely; this has been the case for many years, for bitter criticism is often the instrument which mediocrity uses to revenge itself upon brilliance. When we read criticism of Churchill we can judge its value by examining the source from which it comes. Let us look at two recent examples.

An American Senator from Massachusetts, David I. Walsh, ranks Churchill with Stalin as an "outstanding isolationist" whose chief aim is to "protect and expand" the imperial might of his own country. Now who is the man who says this? He is an anti-Roosevelt Democrat, who has reached prominence as an anti-British and anti-war speaker. He is, in short, one of the small but noisy minority in his country which believes that the U.S. can maintain great economic influence in the world without accepting a correspondingly great political and moral influence. Such a man cannot be expected to remember that the British Commonwealth, with Mr. Churchill as its principal leader, went to war to protect the interests of a weaker European country, as well as to check a German aggression which was aimed toward itself. In the light of these things, does Senator Walsh's opinion carry much weight?

Another recent critic of Churchill is Mr. David Lewis, the national secretary of the C.C.F. Mr. Lewis repeats the judgement of the British Labour Party that Mr. Churchill is a great war leader, but a dangerous man in time of peace. It is hard to see just how dangerous Mr. Churchill is to labour; he was largely responsible for giving Britain unemployment insurance 35 years ago, before any other country had it, and he has always been a good friend to the working man. But what about the Labour Party itself? Under Ramsay Macdonald it involved Britain in a policy of world disarmament which proved disastrous, while it smilingly encouraged Germany to build itself up, not only as an economic, but as a military state. The Labour Party reduced Britain to a condition where she was almost too weak to resist German aggression when it came. The Labour Party was pacifist in a particularly naive, trusting way. And it will be remembered that the C.C.F. used to be strongly pacifist on the same lines, and wanted to restrict Canada's participation in this war to the profitable sale of munitions. These considerations give C.C.F. and Labour criticism of Churchill their proper proportions.

The Anti-Culture Cranks

We have no liking for culture cranks, those tiresome people who separate themselves from the generality of mankind by claiming obscure and particular tastes in music, reading, pictures and the drama, and who despise whatever happens to be popular. But on the other hand we have no use at all for the anti-culture cranks, who decry anything which they suspect of being highbrow, and who make extreme popularity the final standard by which all art must be judged. During the past month the anti-culture cranks have been unusually busy in Canada.

Not long ago, for instance, the Ottawa Citizen published an article on opera by a Mr. Ulric Mignon (a name which is obviously a pseudonym). Mr. Mignon is not content to dislike opera himself; he insists that anyone who likes it is a poseur, and in some obscure way guilty of un-Canadian activities. The Winnipeg Free Press publishes an article called "A Pill For Sir Thomas" over the name "J. H. Gray"; the inherent improbability of this name also marks it as a pseudonym. Mr. Gray's subtle argument is that as single recording by Benny Goodman will outsell all the symphonic recordings ever made by Sir Thomas Beecham, the latter is a small potato, and should not dare to express any views on music. This, we suggest, marks Mr. Gray as a fellow of meagre discernment.

Further, the Ottawa Journal recently published an article on chamber music signed I.N.S., which we understand is the pseudonym of James Caesar Petrillo. Mr. Petrillo (pseudonymously calling himself I.N.S.) doesn't like chamber music and doesn't want anybody else to like it. It is not generally popular, and therefore it is no good.

As it is still near Hallowe'en, we confer upon the gentlemen who hide behind the names Mignon, Gray and I.N.S. the Examiner's special Order of the Pumpkin Head (First Class) for their services to the cause of Philistinism in Canada.

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

POST-WAR propositions are being made quite frequently and while land settlement is not bringing forward as many sugestions as some others, there is the odd new proposal made. We have had a quarter of a century of experience in soldier settlement on the land and we do not seem to have learned much about it. We have lost a good deal of money on its account, but that is not as important as the years returned men have spent struggling to own a farm and now find that they have little for their labour and not much promise for the future. This ought not to happen again.

A few days ago there appeared quite a surprising suggestion in a Toronto Daily under a scare heading, part of which stated: "Nipigon to be Utopia for 50 Returned Men." Briefly the plan is to have fifty families settled on a 74 square mile tract of land, part of which is to be cleared for cropping but the fifty houses are to be built in a a row in a sort of country village, and not on the farms or wood lots of the settlers. It is reported the Ontario Government will loan $150,000 to finance the scheme. I have not seen that confirmed nor would I expect to.

The story goes on to say that each of these settlers can borrow $6,000 under the Veterans' Land Act, making a total of $300,000. Then the statement suggests how this money would be spent viz $3,000 for a house, $1,000 for barn and other buildings, $1,200 for team, implements, seed, etc., $300 for living expenses for first two months and $500 for clearing a five acre farm lot.

Fortunately the Veterans' Land Act doesn't provide for a loan to be expended in such a way. It is an act of Parliament and definitely provides for a loan up to $4,800 on a farm with buildings suitable for its operation, less the down payment of $480 by the Veteran. It also provides for a loan of $1,200 for livestock implements. Of this total loan of $6,000 the Government agrees, upon certain conditions, to absorb the $1,200 for the chattels and $1,120 of the land loan of $480, but there can be no loan under this Act such as this story proposes.

There is practically no fear of any such proposal as is made in this story being carried out, but the thing I consider objectionable is the unsettling effect that stories of this kind have on our war veterans who purpose farming, and on their families who read them. Men with farm experience know that the place for a farmer to live is on his farm, not in any suggested community. Tis chickens, pigs and other farm livestock will be much the better of his presence at home.

This scheme provides a way for the farmer to earn money as follows: Five months at wood cutting to earn him $600; (quite a while in the bush), two and a half months farming to earn him $250 and his own needs (whatever these are?) and four and a half months at $4 per day guiding, river driving, commercial fishing and factory working $450. A prospectus has been issued to float this scheme, and there is to be a general manager and eight superintendents, and the gross profits in the fifth year are estimated at $135,000 on the investment of $500,000.

The returned soldier who wishes to farm wants a place of his own, and it is a good thing that the Veterans' Land Act provides for that.

A RATHER awkward situation exists with some of the Packing Plants at the present time. Whatever merit there is for the claim of higher wages is checkmated by a wages ceiling which prevents any increase being made unless the Prices and Trade Board agrees. It is easy to see that if this Board varied its prices or wages at every request it would cease to be useful. It is to be hoped Mr. Justice Richards will arrive at a satisfactory finding. It is no use to rail at the workers in a Packing Plant for asking better pay. There are some quite unpleasant jobs in such an establishment, and with unskilled labourers getting 65c per hour it is not surprising that some men have left the plants. Not only is some of the work disagreeable but it requires a good deal of skill. My information, at the time of writing, is that all plants except the large ones in Toronto and Winnipeg are running to quite fair capacity.

We must keep in mind that in a country like Canada, where we market a lot of cattle for beef, it is highly important to have forces of men who will slaughter them and prepare the beef for market. The beef raiser and feeder has, therefore, a common interest with the workman in the abbatoir, and there should be a fair way of settling wage disputes. The farmer's interests are vital because when his cattle are ready to go, he wants to get them off at once as he may suffer losses by holding them.

In pigs the farmer's difficulties are even greater as a few aditional pounds may reduce his grade and price. Hog killings, I am informed, are up to the demands at present. We must not have a strike no matter how drastic the measures to be taken are to prevent it. Until Mr. Justice Richards reports, any suggestions are out of order. He is now hearing representations from the parties.

THE Hon. A. C. Taylor, Minister of Agriculture for New Brunswick, has announced that he is going to establish three new schools of Agriculture in that province. In this the Minister is showing the kind of progressive spirit that improves agriculture. He is following the lead of England where several new Schools of Agriculture, or Institutes as they call them, have been opened since the war began. In Canada we have not been very progressive and in Ontario, the Kemptville School of Agriculture was closed, as also was the Macdonald College for girls at Guelph and the O.A.C. greatly handicapped all for no necessary war purpose.

It has been suggested that the Alumni of the O.A.C. should be given some jurisdiction over the College. In this connection it is significant that not one member of this Alumni ever made a single protest, as far as I know, against the "Messing up" of the College, and no member of the Legislature had a word of criticism to offer.

A Board of Agricultural Education could be a useful body in Ontario, but after all it depends upon the Government as to what shall be done.

◆ ◆ ◆

WE are now told that the Toronto Stockyards has been taken over by the Provincial Government and a new Board of Directors is to be appointed. We are told this Board is going to have a new livestock policy. The Breed Association for Cattle, pigs and sheep will no doubt await the proposals with a good deal of interest and these men can render useful assistance. There are many things that the Governing body of a stockyards could do, and doubtless they will be undertaken.

BONDS WORK TWO WAYS —By Houston

The U-Boats Are Back

(KINGSTON WHIG-STANDARD)

SOME months back, the Battle of the Atlantic was won; the U-boat menace had been crushed. The seal was set on the victory by destruction of the U-boat pens at French ports on the Channel and the Bay of Biscay, and no more was heard about the undersea raiders who had taken such heavy toll from the supply ships of the Allies. There was genuine rejoicing among the United Nations, for nothng was more vital to Allied success than maintenance of the Atlantic supply lines.

Apparently the rejoicing was premature. According to dispatches received during the past day or so, the U-boats are back in the North Atlantic. A convoy reported a running fight, and unofficial reports of convoy vessels sunk have increased. In some quarters there is a tendency to discount these reports, but they are so persistent and so numerous that they cannot be lighly disregarded.

If the U-boats are back again, their return gives further warning of the danger of overconfidence. The enemy is dangerous until utterly crushed; never more so, perhaps, than when desperation heightens his viciousness. There was a tendency toward premature rejoicing just before the murderous shower of robot bombs was rained on England. That stern reminder of German readiness to retaliate blindly and wantonly should have warned the world that the Germans were far from finished and would fight as long as their weapons of terror held out.

It was known or estimated that Germany had approximately 200 submarines left after the last Atlantic raids had been beaten off. There was no reason to believe that these wolves of the sea would be kept caged in their pens; there was every reason to expect them to be turned loose again as soon as bases could be established. Apparently the bases are now operating, and the Atlantic war is on again in modified form.

The incident should help to quash completely recurrence of waves of optimism regarding war's end. Following news of the U-boats came a report of Hitler's latest speech, still holding out hope of victory for the Reich. As long as Hitler and his gangsters have anything to say about it, war will go on; and while it lasts Germany can be expected to use any and every weapon in its arsenal. Realization of that fact should impress upon those manning the home front the continuing necessity for full support of the war effort. They will be afforded an excellent opportunity to provide that support by the Victory Loan campaign.

Canada and Australia

A Comparison of Prices of Things Bought and Sold

(By R. J. DEACHMAN)

WE have heard much of the prosperity of New Zealand and Australia—distant fields look green.

Everyone would be delighted, if, "down under", they developed a new technique which would bring about steady and continuous progress. Above all, stability is needed. If we could measure prospects for the future the way would be easier.

Our problem is agricultural. If there is prosperity on the farm it will be diffused throughout the nation—if the farmer is hard up, not all the strategy of statesmanship can bring prosperity to the cities. Success for the farmer depends on prices received for things sold, prices paid for things bought.

The following table gives prices in both countries. The figures were obtained by Dr. Donnelly, M.P., who has just returned from a trip to Australia:

	Australia	Canada
Binder, 8 foot	$ 525.60	$ 347.50
Seeder	341.46	313.00
Mower	195.75	120.50
Hay Rake	79.65	70.25
Tractor, 102	2,187.00	1,486.90
Disc Plow	339.30	168.00
Farm Produce—
Butter-fat, top grade	.34	.43½
Cheese	.18	.24
Hogs, dressed	.14	.16½
Top grade baby beef	.05¾	.11
Honey	.09	.13
Wheat	.72	1.25

Mr. Donnelly points out also that, on the State owned railways of Australia, the rate on farm products is approximately three times the Canadian rate. What would the Canadian farmers say if they were saddled with a burden of that kind?

French Luxury Trade

It is estimated in official and trade circles that if her communications were open France could export today women's dresses, hats, gloves and other articles worth many millions of dollars, some say as much as $400,000,000 at the high prices prevailing now.

These articles represent materials hidden from the Germans and result from the long struggle of dressmaking industries to retain their existence and independence during the German occupation.

In reply to reproaches sometimes made by English-speaking visitors that the French pay too much attention to the elegance of attire in wartime and other frivolities, leaders of industry point out that French exports of women's adornments were valued in 1938 at 2,000,800,000 francs when total French exports amounted to 20,000,000,000 francs.

They say that 1,000,000 French persons live by related trades, including those making belts, buckles, ribbons, sweaters, lace, furs, feathers, shoes and jewelry. Thus it is a question of one of France's important industries that figures conspicuously in her balance of trade. — New York Times.

Three Bags Full

There is a grim enough reminder that liberation is by no means the same thing as profusion in the story sent by our special correspondent from the Paris where, at present, every day is a milkless day for adults. He had learnt that a family of three could have three bags of coal, and inquired whether that was the ration for the month. "No, monsieur," was the simple answer, "for the winter."

No doubt as the winter wears on and if the close of the war eases the transport situation by land and sea it will become possible for those three bags full to be replaced and renewed, but as a bulwark against long nights and cold mornings the present allowance does not amount to much of a Maginot Line.

Some people in this country have been a little apt to let their imaginations run away with them on the subject of liberated Europe. Because there was butter in Normandy (since there was no transport to send and sell it elsewhere), because some Italians could offer fruit and wine to our soldiers, or because Parisians not unnaturally put on their best clothes for the liberation rejoicings, and there were tales of scent and lipstick more easily secured than in this country, there have been some murmurs on our side of the Channel that the despoiling of occupied Europe by the Germans must have been a myth.

It was no myth; it is the frame of mind which prompts the reflection "Why, those people must be better off than we are ourselves!" that belongs to an envious and ill-adjusted fairyland. A bottle of scent and a few Paris models saved from the black market will not fill the tables or warm the hearths of thousands of undernourished French families.—Manchester Guardian.

What Ails Canadian Restaurants

If we are to become a nation of restaurant-eaters we may hope to see an improvement in the general calibre of Canadian restaurants. The old restaurateur who took great pride in every dish that came from his kitchen is not a familiar figure nowadays. Meals tend to run to form, and not too good form at that. And the art of serving a good meal properly has been streamlined into the knack of serving a certain number of dishes in the shortest space of time. If toast doesn't arrive until the dessert no waitress is surprised, and the connoisseur who requests his eggs turned to the sun or his bacon crisp or his roast lamb without gravy is regarded as an old fuss-pot who should be ignored if he ever appears in the doorway again.

It would not be difficult to fill several columns of what is wrong with Canadian restaurants—quite aside from their wartime problems—but the reader will fill in his own pet aversions. When the war is over perhaps we had all better register our complaints in fairly vigorous fashion. If we are to become restaurant-eaters, for the benefit of our wives and mothers, then let us see to it that our restaurants fill something other than our stomachs. There is an aesthetic quality to eating that is scarcely less important than the matter of vitamins and volume. — Ottawa Journal.

A Bible Message

Now there is at Jerusalem by the sheep market a pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, having five porches. In these lay a great multitude of impotent folk, of blind, halt, withered, waiting for the moving of the water. For an angel went down at a certain season into the pool and troubled the water: whosoever then first after the troubling of the water stepped in was made whole of whatsoever disease he had.

And a certain man was there, which had an infirmity thirty and eight years. When Jesus saw him lie, and knew that he had been now a long time in that case, he saith unto him, Wilt thou be made whole? The impotent man answered him, Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, an other steppeth down before me.

Jesus saith unto him, Rise, take up thy bed, and walk. And immediately the man was made whole, and took up his bed, and walked: and on the same day was the sabbath....

Afterward, Jesus findeth him in the temple, and said unto him, Behold, thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee. (John 5: 2-9, 14.)

Unconsidered Trifles

Once there was an Indian named Big Smoke, employed as a missionary to his fellow Smokes. A white man asked Big Smoke what he did for a living.

"Umph!" said Big Smoke, "me preach."

"That so? What do you get for preaching?"

"Me get ten dollars a year."

"Well," said the white man, "that's pretty poor pay."

"Umph!" said Big Smoke. "Me pretty poor preacher."

Passing of a Princess

The death of the Princess Beatrice, the youngest daughter of Queen Victoria, brings back many yesterdays. There are references in the Queen's journals to this last child of her union with her "dearest Albert," born in 1857, year of the Crimean War. In 1863 Beatrice was still her mother's "precious little baby, with her golden hair and large nosegay." On her twenty-first birthday the Queen wrote:

"At eight the band played under Beatrice's windows, and therefore mine, reminding me of former happy days. And how many prayers and thanks went up to our Heavenly Father for this darling child, whose birth was such a joy to us, and who is my blessing and comfort, whom God will, I know, keep near me and preserve."

This was in 1878, the year of Gordon's death at Khartum. Beatrice was married to Prince Henry of Battenberg, or Mountbatten as the name would be today. In November, 1886, Beatrice's first son was born, and Victoria found "the letters and telegrams she had received and written so overwhelming" that for a day or so she neglected business of state.

The years rolled by. Beatrice's brother was King of England, her sister Empress of Germany, her daughter Queen of Spain, her niece Empress of Russia. With more years every great throne on the Continent was toppled over, revolution and counter-revolution followed, two world wars seemed to wipe out almost every vestige of the nineteenth century. The British throne itself endured a crisis and an abdication, and it became evident that Victoria had been the last sovereign in Britain to exercise even a veiled power. At 87 the aged Princess is dead. Yet in England, more than in most countries, some continuity exists. A little of the Victorian period survives. The old Queen's love and grief for Albert, her affection for her "precious little baby," are human emotions now quite freshly recalled.—New York Times.

Planned Policy Enlarges Cattle Herds

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Nov. 6—(CP)—A farm policy of enlarging cattle herds begun two years ago appeared to have reached full flower today with official estimates that inspected slaughterings in 1944 may reach a record of 1,300,000 head.

Extension of Canadian herds to meet beef requirements became possible on a large scale in 1942, following a rich crop of feed and other grains, which permitted farmers to set up feed reserves and plan their herds for a considerable period ahead.

Two years ago beef shortages occurred in various sections of Canada and to maintain domestic supplies the export of beef cattle to the United States was halted. The Government now is considering suggestions that this export market should be reopened, as packing plants, which have encountered labor difficulties, are unable to handle all the cattle marketed by farmers.

In addition to meeting domestic requirements, cattle marketings this year have been sufficient to permit Canadian Meat Board beef purchases for export to the United Kingdom totalling some 90,000,000 pounds, the equivalent of some 200,000 head of cattle.

The beef agreement with the British food authorities specified minimum shipments of 100,000,000 lbs. in two years 1944 and 1945, but on the basis of present marketings the minimum requirements for two years may be met in one, with an additional 100,000,000 pounds shipped in 1945. The present price schedule for export beef is expected to remain in effect until Dec. 31, 1045.

The agriculture department said inspected slaughterings for 1944 now are more than 1,000,000 head, a gain of nearly 27 per cent over the corresponding period in 1943. A major gain in marketings was shown last year, while in 1942 total slaughterings were 970,415, less than the number for 10 months of 1944.

A total of 33,367 animals slaughtered in the final week of September set a record for this period.

The average weight of dressed beef carcasses has been declining since April and in September fell below the 500-pound average to 479 for the first time this year. Officials said it was thought the drought which affected eastern Canadian pastures this year was a factor in the reduced weight of beef animals marketed.

An increase in the marketings of veal calves was taken to mean that the herd-building program is tapering off, with fewer young animals being saved for beef or breeding stock.

Yes, they died for you . . .

They died trusting that you would carry on . . .
Knowing that you would carry on.
You, their countryman.

Can you measure their sacrifice?
Mark it down in dollars and cents?
Judge the value of a man's life blood?

You cannot measure it.

P.C.V.S. Seniors Eliminates Bowmanville 6-1

The Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School senior rugby team eliminated the Bowmanville High School team Saturday afternoon by defeating the home team at Bowmanville by a score of 6-1. As Oshawa defeated Lindsay, P.C.V.S. and Oshawa remain tied for the lead of the senior group of the Lake Ontario District of the C.O.S.S.A. The stage is now set to have the winner declared at Riverside Park next Saturday, when the Oshawa team plays its return game with P.C.V.S.

At Bowmanville, the home team was the first to score when an attempted placement by Sturrock missed the posts but went for a single. The Peterborough team, slow to get started, found difficulty in playing on the muddy, sloping field. However, when the teams changed ends at the quarter, play swung to the Bowmanville end. Matthews was outlucked when he collided with the goal-post and fumbled in his touchdown attempt. However, Bowmanville kicked short, leaving P.C.V.S. still in scoring territory. This time there was no mistake when a Matthews to Sisson pass allowed the latter to fall across the line as he was tackled. Outram converted from placement, making the score 6-1 at half-time.

P.C.V.S. was on the defensive the whole of the second half as Bowmanville put on the pressure continually. The one good gain by Peterborough, a dash through the whole Bowmanville team by Jack Matthews, was called back for holding on the line of scrimmage.

A Bad Snap.

Bowmanville moved within striking distance of the P.C.V.S. goalline when a third down pass from Sturhock to Brown from kick formation was good for a thirty-five-yard gain. An end run moved play to the P.C.V.S. eight, but here a bad snap relieved the pressure.

The last quarter saw play in the Peterborough end throughout as Bowmanville threw pass after fass. Three of these were complete, but P.C.V.S. intercepted as many to prevent further score.

Jack Matthews was outstanding for P.C.V.S., while McIlveen and Brown were always dangerous for Bowmanville.

The teams:

P.C.V.S.—Snap, Scott; insides, Browne and Paterson; middles, Graham and Lech; outsides, Smith and Estlick; quarter, Sisson; halves, Outram, Matthews and Robinson; flying wing, Thompson; alternates: De La Plante, Loftus, Davis, Hinton and Monaghan.

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Coach Bev Goulding of the Peterborough C.V.S. senior squad must have had a lot of satisfaction Saturday afternoon when he led his garnet and gray squad into his old stamping ground, Bowmanville and watched them pull off a most valuable 6 to 1 victory over Bowmanville High in the Lake Shore senior interscholastic group. The win eliminated the highly-regarded Bowmanville squad from the running and left P.C.V.S. and Oshawa Collegiate, who beat Lindsay Saturday tied for first place with four wins and one loss each, with the group championship depending upon the game between the two here this Saturday. That makes the week-end battle the most important of the season in local rugby, for the winner takes the group title and enters the Cossa playdowns meeting the Bay of Quinte winners in the semi-finals the following Saturday. The win in Bowmanville was one of the most important of the campaign, marking the first time in which one of the big three had won an away-from-home fixture against one of the other two. It puts the P.C.V.S. squad in a fine position to take the group title but in the Oshawa gang they have really tough opposition. The senior game will be prefaced by a tussle between Trinity College School seconds and P.C.V.S. juniors.

Bouquets are in order for the Peterborough juniors for their achievement on Saturday in reeling off a convincing win over Toronto Balmy Beach juniors. While the opposition may not have been as strong as in the battles with Westsides and Vikings, the fact remains that the Petes played much more solid football themselves, handled the ball much more smartly and were guilty of far fewer fumbles. They earned their win by their good performance, going both ways. The only regrettable fact was that only a small crowd saw them win and the result was that the club's treasury suffered materially for the gate was not nearly large enough to cover the expenses of the visiting team. It was a treat for those who were on hand to see Spike Matthews, one of the stars of the last Collegiate championship team out there at quarterback for the Petes. Able Seaman Matthews is home on leave from the Navy after some interesting experiences in the North Atlantic and hasn't had much chance to play football but he performed as if he hadn't been away from the gridiron at all, scoring two touchdowns and playing fine rugby all through the game. Ronnie Hodson turned in a four-star effort in the backfield for the Petes and Frank Davis starred for the Bammies with a fine all-around performance.

Will Be A Sizzler

That the coming clash between Toronto Balmy Beach and Hamilton Wildcats for the Ontario senior title is going to be the outstanding football attraction of the season is sure after the thrilling battle between the two rivals on Saturday when the Cats came through in the final moments to nose out the Bammies in a 9 to 8 argument that must have left the Hamilton fans dizzy with excitement. Until that last Wildcat surge it looked as if the Ponton machine had earned a win over the hard-hitting Wildcats right in their own lair but Mr. Football himself, otherwise Joe Krol, came to the rescue with a one-man show that had even the radio fans on their feet. With Hamilton apparently beaten as the last quarter rapidly passed with the Bammies leading 8 to 3, Krol suddenly took to the air with a series of successful passes until the Cats had clawed their way deep into Toronto territory. Then with the Beach defence all spread out to take care of the last desperate pass that they were sure was coming, Krol crossed them up by running the ball over in a smashing, twisting dash that saved the game. It was a great finish to a grim battle.

Toronto Maple Leafs are setting the pace in the National Hockey League and right now have the opposition looking rather bewildered. The Toronto gang knocked off the Boston Bruins Saturday night in hollow fashion, outscoring the Rossmen 7 goals to 2 and that was four wins in a row for Hap Day's fast-travelling Leafs, two of them scored on the road. To make the Toronto position a little more secure, the only other undefeated club in the loop, the Detroit Red Wings lost a close one to the Canadiens in Montreal Saturday night 3 to 2. The Canadiens may not have attained their dazzling speed of last season as yet but evidently they have not lost their dominance over the Red Wings who played the Flying Frenchmen ten times last season without being able to win a game from them. The nearest they got was to tie the Flying Frenchmen once. Now the team tutored by Dick Irvin have started right in where they left off and as a result the Red Wings after two easy victories over Rangers and Boston fell down in their first real test of the present season.

* * * * * *

They Do It Again

Canadiens ascendancy over the Red Wings was continued last night at Detroit when the Flying Frenchmen came from behind to grab off another 3 to 2 win for the second time in two nights. Jack Adams' hired help looked to have that one tucked away in the early stages for Mud Bruneteau and Syd Howe fired first period goals with no reply from the Montreal sharpshooters. However Canadiens fought back, Buddy O'Connor scored the only goal of the second period, Toe Blake who beat the Wings the night before evened it up in the second minute of the third session and finally Murph Chamberlain potted the winner with 67 seconds to go. Meanwhile at Chicago the Boston Bruins grabbed off their first win of the season by outscoring the Black Hawks 6 to 3 with Herbie Cain setting the pace with three goals. The win left the Rangers the only team in the loop that has not yet won a game.

Spike Matthews Sparks Petes To 21-6 Victory

Peterborough juniors finally broke into the win column Saturday when they defeated Toronto Balmy Beach juniors 21 to 6 at Riverside Park, on a field made slippery by the morning rain.

The Queen City youngsters are members of the same T.R.U. group as Westsides and Vikings, both of whom had previously defeated the Petes here. They did not shape up as strong as those aggregations but put on a good show against a Peterborough team that played much sounder football than in its two previous engagements.

Spike Matthews, home on leave from the R.C.N.V.R., played quarter for the Petes, and the presence of the former Collegiate star was a big help, offensively and defensively. The Navy boy went over for two touchdowns, hit the line hard and used good judgment in handling plays when the homesters were on the attack. Ron Hodson played brilliantly in the backfield, carrying the ball for big gains and kicking well, and Shadgett also showed to advantage. Griffin at outside wing distinguished himself by doing some sparkling catching of forward passes and turned one of them into a 50 yard dash for a touchdown.

For the visitors Frank Davis, clever flying wing, was a one man task force. Davis did most of the ball-toting, all the forward passing and some of the booting for the Bammies and he was good at everything he tackled. Roy also showed a nice turn of speed and one of his dashes around the end set the stage for the Toronto touchdown. Fidler was about the pick of the front liners.

Petes Score First

Balmy Beach threatened in the opening moments of the game when Fidler dropped on a loose ball after a Peterborough fumble. The visitors could not gain through the line, however, and Davis tried for a field goal, his placement kick being just wide of the uprights and the Petes ran the ball out. A little later the home crew recovered on a Balmy Beach fumble and started an attack that wound up in a touchdown. A 30 yard forward pass by Bill Shadgett, nicely taken by Vic Griffin paved the way for the major score. Shadgett ripped through for a big gain and Spike Matthews on a quarterback sneak plunged over for a touchdown. It was not converted.

The Petes continued to press in the second quarter and added another try after a march from midfield. Balmy Beach made a determined stand on their goal line but Jack Wade finally cracked through for a touchdown which was not converted.

A Long Gallop

Soon after Vic Griffin put the homesters further in front when he ran 50 yards after taking a forward pass from Horton. It was a sleeper play and Armstrong for the Bammies almost intercepted the long toss. The ball however bounced out of his hands into Griffin's arms and the Peterborough end was away for a touchdown, going around the Toronto safety man. Griffin converted with a dropkick to make the score 16 to 0, and it remained that way at the half.

Balmy Beach, sparked by Davis, played their best football in the third period. The Petes kicked off forcing the play into Toronto territory but the visitors started a drive at their own goal line that was not stopped until they had scored a touchdown. Davis threw two forward passes down the centre to Fidler and Armstrong for 25 yard gains. Then on a cutback play that completely fooled the Petes, Roy dashed around the homesters right end and ran 40 yards before he was hauled down 10 yards out. The Bammies took it over in two plunges, Roy carrying the ball across for the major score. Davis converted with a drop kick to make it 16 to 6.

Peterborough scored the only touchdown in the final period and they earned it by a driving march from centre field with Ron Hodson contributing several long gains and Spike Matthews completing the advance with a dash around Balmy Beach's left end for a touchdown, straight-arming off several tackles. The convert failed. Final score, Peterborough 21, Balmy Beach 6.

Balmy Beach—Flying wing, F. Davis; halves, Roy, Armstrong, Bickerton; quarter, Stewart; snap, Baldasse; insides, Oliver, Johnston; middles, Paynton, Burns; outsides, Miller, Burns; alternates, Bailey, Mulligan, Black, Vanuven, Heatherman, W. Davis.

Peterborough—Flying wing, Lynch halves, Hodson, Shadgett, Withers; quarter, Matthews; snap, Pagett; inside wings, Miller, Menzies; middles, Harris, Jordan; outsides, Griffin, Dugan; alternates, Wilford, Wade, Lucano, Daly, Burns, Jim Conlin John Conlin, Neimen, Dyer, Quigley Brooks.

Referee—Gordie Young; Umpire, Micky Magee.

Cobourg Beats P.C.V.S. Juniors

Opening with clever forward passing in the second half, Cobourg Collegiate defeated Peterborough Collegiate Juniors 17 to 6, Saturday at the Exhibition Grounds in Cobourg. The defeat puts the Peterborough boys out of the running as far as the series championship goes, although one more game is scheduled with Trinity College, Port Hope.

Peterborough led the scoring 6 to 5 at the end of of the first half; forward passing that somewhat baffled the Petes piled up the Cobourg count. Bad weather kept a large crowd from being on hand, and the first half was played almost entirely in the rain.

Busher Jackson Definitely Out

TORONTO, Nov. 6 — (CP). — Harvey (Busher) Jackson has definitely retired from the National Hockey League after 18 seasons' campaigning, Manager Art Ross of Boston Bruins announced at the week-end. Now 33, Jackson turned pro in the 1929-30 season, joining Toronto Maple Leafs with whom he gained fame as a member of the Charlie Conacher - Joe Primeau-Jackson "kid line." Later he played with Brooklyn Americans, and then went to Bruins three years ago.

He stands fifth among the eleven players who have scored 200 or more goals in the National Hockey League. His total is 241, exceeded only by Nels Stewart, the late Howie Morenz, Auriel Joliat, and Cy Denneny.
